Reds Driving West Near Latvia

Rogachen Battle Costs Nazis More Than 6,000

LONDON, Feb. 26—(CP)—Russian armies massed on the 400-mile-long front between Pskov and Rogachev are pressing westward in White Russia toward Latvia and the northern part of Poland despite increased German resistance, a Moscow communique reported today.

German commanders threw fresh reinforcements into the Rogachev area yesterday in a futile attempt to seal the gap torn in their lines by Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian Army Tuesday.

Fourteen fierce counter-attacks north of captured Rogachev were thrown back by the Soviets, the Russian communique said, and the Germans lost 2,500 men killed. Gen. Pokossovsky's men surged forward and captured several unidentified localities and a large number of prisoners.

To date the battle around Rogachev has cost the Germans 6,000 men and enormous stores of war equipment, the Moscow bulletin added.

On the northern end of the front, Russian troops converging on Pskov, Baltic gateway stronghold south of Lake Peipus, drove the Germans further west toward Latvia. They killed another 1,100 Germans and captured 54 towns and hamlets, the Moscow bulletin said, and at one point in the northwest were less than 30 miles from the great communications centre.

A second force was 22 miles north of Pskov at Lutovo, another 28 miles northeast at Kebska, and to the east still another column had reached the outskirts of Porkhov, last important town before Pskov, 45 miles away.

Twenty miles south of Dno on the railway leading to Nevel, the station of Dedovichi was captured, as well as the town of Barlayevo and Dorka, southwest of Kholm. All these towns are within 80 miles of the Latvian border.

The situation around Vitebsk was still obscure. A Berlin radio report that the great stronghold 150 miles north of Rogachev had been evacuated was not confirmed by subsequent Russian and German communiques, although the controlled Paris Radio repeated the report early today. Berlin reported abandonment of the city, which has been under siege by the Russians since November, after "particularly bitter" fighting.

Developments in the Dnieper bend were not mentioned in the Moscow war bulletin, but a German broadcast claimed Russian pressure in that sector had "decreased considerably."

EXTRA!

WASHINGTON—Estimating the armed forces were still short approximately 200,000 trained men, President Roosevelt today ordered a review of all occupational deferments "with a view to speedily making available" the personnel required to carry on the war.

A Small World

CHARLESTON, S.C., Feb. 26—(AP).—Mrs. Abraham C. Steele received a letter from her soldier husband, saying he could not tell her what English town he was stationed in but it had a castle with stuffed birds in the cellar and a cathedral famous for its spire. She sought in vain for a clue from guide books until she met a Royal Navy chaplain who exclaimed, "That's my home home. My father is canon of the cathedral."

Nazis Maintain Pressure On Anzio Forces

NAPLES, Feb. 26 — (AP). — German forces maintaining steady pressure on the Allied beachhead south of Rome, harassed British and American forces with shells and bombs, but were knocked back in their single small attack yesterday, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

The ineffective Nazi stab was made on the Allied right flank in the Pontine Marsh area about four miles from the coast at a point south of Cisterna and west of Littoria. Taking advantage of the ravine terrain near Carroceto on the other end of the beachhead, the Nazis tried to slip through the Allied lines, but all their attempts were unsuccessful.

High winds sweeping the mountains on the Allied 5th Army Cassino front together with the snow flurries helped to keep that sector more or less stationary except for patrolling, but the Germans again attacked a French-held hill northwest of Cassino and again were thrown back. On this front as well as on the beachhead heavy guns of both sides kept up their endless shellings.

Get 23 Planes.

Headquarters announced that 23 German planes were destroyed and 14 more probably were knocked down on the Italian leg of yesterday's simultaneous American heavy bomber assault against Regensburg, Germany, by bombers flying from Italy and Britain.

Thirty-nine bombers and five fighters were reported missing from the heavy bomber thrusts, also aimed at the Italian ports of Fiume and Pola, the Yugoslav port of Zara, and an airfield near Gras in Southern Austria.

Indian troops of the British 8th Army threw back three separate night attacks near Orsogna. Allied artillery fire also broke up an enemy raid at another point in the Orsogna area and a patrol inflicted casualties on the Germans in a clash north of Arielli, between

Russians Want Finnish Support

LONDON, Feb. 26 —(CP) — A Reuters news agency dispatch from Stockholm said to-day the Russians were reported to have proposed a Finnish military and political delegation go to Moscow as soon as possible to receive terms for quitting the war.

Stockholm dispatches, quoting unofficial informants, said yesterday and Thursday that Russian armistice conditions demanded re-establishment of the 1940 border and made no demand for changes in the Finnish Government, but that the Finns were profoundly disturbed by an alleged demand that their army combine with the Russians in a drive against the Germans in the northern part of Finland.

2-Way Attack Continues Aerial Drive

24 Planes Lost 8 Canadian During Night Sweep

LONDON, Feb. 26—(AP)—A massive fleet of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers carried out a crushing attack on the burning city of Augsburg last night, and piled up a total of more than 17,000 tons of bombs dropped on Germany in an unparalleled six-day offensive against Germany's aircraft industry.

The German radio said large-scale attacks on the chemical centre of Frankfurt were made at the same time and the Swiss radio said night flights cross Switzerland from Italy—raising the distinct possibility that Italian-based Wellingtons of the R.A.F. again carried out a two-way British assault as they did the night before.

The Air Ministry communique announcing the operation against Augsburg said it was carried out in "very great strength" and that the city, a centre of aerial engine production, was attacked twice during the night by large forces of Lancaster and Halifax bombers.

At least eight squadrons of the R.C.A.F. bomber group were reported to have participated.

Attack Concentrated.

"The weather was favorable and reports indicated the bombing was concentrated and effective," the communique added.

Twenty-four planes were lost in these assaults and in simultaneous Mosquito operations over southwest Germany and the low country and in extensive minelaying sweeps. Eight of the missing planes are Canadian.

Heavy bombers from Britain made the 1,600-mile round trip to Augsburg yesterday, setting fires which lighted the way for the R.A.F.

The night blow was in the wake of an unprecedented two-way stab at Regensburg's Messerschmitt factory by American heavy bombers from both England and Italy yesterday in which 70 United States bombers were lost, and at least 120 enemy fighters destroyed. Thirty-one of the bombers lost were from England 39 from Italy. The Italy-based 15th U.S. Air Force shot down 93 enemy planes at Regensburg, while the fighters accompanying the Britain-based bombers shot down 27.

Large Armida.

The score of the heavy bombers from Britain had not yet been tallied.

From the size of the force heard leaving Britain last night for the blow at Augsburg, 30 miles southwest of Berlin, it was probable that 2,000 tons of bombs were showered on that production centre.

The communique, disclosing the attack was by two separate forces of Lancasters and Halifaxes, indicated a new tactic employed for the first time Thursday night against Schweinfurt, again had been used successfully.

Convoy Trip Pleasure Jaunt Writer Says Returning Home

By FRANK LOWE—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 26 — (CP). — The comparison between a North Atlantic crossing in 1942 and a crossing in 1944 is like the comparison between a preliminary boy and a champion. There's that much difference.

In 1942 the British and Canadian escort force keeping open the North Atlantic was a stripling, weary and over-worked.

For the convoy I travelled with back in '42 Lady Luck worked overtime. We arrived without a scratch despite some 14 days and nights of spasmodic but fierce fighting.

Other convoys near us, similarly protected, were broken and bloodied with frightening regularity.

But this winter, sailing from the same Canadian port and in the same type of convoy, the water hop was a wartime approximation of a pleasure cruise. It was simply a matter of keeping in convoy formation. The only fight was against boredom.

Once there was a U-boat alert and at another time a few exploding depth charges shook our ship. That was all.

The reason for this difference, of course, was the expansion in escort strength. The stripling had grown up and in place of two destroyers and a mere handful of corvettes — standard protection 18 months ago—were several destroyers bolstered by numbers of frigates and corvettes.

Baby flat-tops also were in the convoy, their broods of planes nestling on deck ready for instant use or circling ahead of the plodding ships, anxious to drop canisters of sudden death on any U-boat that might develop fighting ideas.

And this was no special effort, just an ordinary convoy, 1944 style.

Treasury Plan Closes Bridges

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Niagara Falls Bridge Commission voted last night not to meet a demand of the United States treasury department that it pay overtime to customs inspectors engaged in official capacities on Sundays at the Rainbow bridge.

The treasury department also asked that a $5,000 bond be posted to insure the overtime payment, the commission added.

A letter from M. O. Bement, collector of customs at Buffalo, the commission said, announced that failure to comply with overtime payment would result in halting of international travel over the Rainbow bridge, starting at midnight Saturday, until midnight Sunday.

Closing of the bridge, said C. Ellison Kaymayer, general manager of the bridge, would prevent about 3,000 Americans residing on the Canadian side of the river from reaching week-end shifts at Niagara Falls chemical plants and other war industries.

The bridge commission declared that any payment to customs inspectors by other than the government would be a violation of the civil service act prohibiting employees from receiving compensation from other than government sources.

The Thousand Islands bridge at Alexandria Bay, N.Y., also voted not to meet the treasury demand the commission said. It added that while the Peace Bridge at Buffalo conceded to the payment, its attorneys would join legal representatives of the dissenting bridge commissions at Washington Monday to seek a conference with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

The commission said it would ask special police protection at the American bridgehead Saturday night.

Cold Rain Pelts 8th Army Force

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Feb. 26 (CP Cable)—A cold, day-long rain fell on the Canadian Corps area of the British 8th Army front in Italy yesterday, limiting patrol action to small-scale sorties into the Nazis' Ariello River defensive positions. Some machine-gun opposition was encountered.

The Maritime battalion from which patrols captured six German prisoners the night of Feb. 23 today received a message of congratulation from Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, 8th Army commander, on their excellent fighting patrol."

Americans Want Furloughs Back Home After Battles

By JACK O'BRIAN—Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP).—Many American soldiers in the stalemated Italian campaign feel there's a real inequality of sacrifice in this war, Hal Boyle, Associated Press war columnist, said today on his return from 16 months with troops in the Mediterranean.

"The battle of these troops is high," he said. "But they are fighting for a land which some feel has forgotten them.

"Many have been overseas for two years and have given up hope of ever coming home. To them the war has become a blind alley with death at the end."

Boyle said infantrymen who fought through three campaigns—North Africa, Sicily and Italy—feel common sense dictates they should have a rest at home.

"These overseas veterans in the ground forces want to be told there is a limit to the sacrifices demanded of them," he added, "and this can best be done by giving them a real rotation system of home leaves such as that enjoyed by the air forces."

The 33-year-old reporter said:

"The boys overseas have an idea that the people at home still think of the war as a ball game—and that they're enjoying the seventh inning stretch.

"It does look like if all the energy being used in fighting the battle of the income tax could be expended on the battle of the Anzio beachhead, Rome would fall in short order."

Boyle has been through three major amphibious campaigns—at Fedala, French Morocco, where he nearly lost his life in the landing, November 8, 1942; at Gela in Sicily,

Engineer Killed In Train Wreck

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 26 — Engineer William Eccles of Montreal was killed and Fireman W. Houle also of Montreal injured early to-day when an east bound Canadian National Railways passenger train collided with a derailed freight car a mile east of Cardinal, Ont. The accident occurred at four a.m.

The engine and two baggage cars of the passenger train were derailed in the collision with the freight, part of a west bound Montreal-Brockville train. The passenger was running from Toronto to Montreal.

Remaining coaches of the passenger train (No. 18) were brought here this morning and the passengers fed.

No one else was reported hurt, although local doctors and nurses were rushed to the scene.

The right of way was blocked and all trains were being re-routed through Ottawa.

Climax to Bombing Experiment Near

Plan To Neutralize Luftwaffe And Pave Way For Land Invasion

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst

We are rapidly approaching the climax of the experiment to determine how close the Allies can come to bombing Hitler into submission.

Less than a year ago Prime Minister Churchill told a joint meeting of the Senate and House of representatives in Washington that the use of air power by itself to bring about collapse of Germany and Italy was an "experiment . . . Well worth trying, so long as other measures are not excluded."

Since then, the Allies have let loose a thundering bombing assault which certainly contributed to Italy's collapse and now has reached a peak of intensity never before achieved—and it's rapidly increasing.

True, the Allied high command is preparing for the land invasion of western Europe on the theory that Germany must be finished off in battle on the ground. We are depending on the aerial bombardment to pave the way for what Mr. Churchill describes as "the greatest joint operation between two allies that ever has been planned in history."

While it's generally agreed that the invasion is essential if victory isn't to be unduly delayed, there can be small doubt that Allied fighting men of all categories are watching the outcome of the bombing experiment with tense interest. They're wondering how long the Nazis can stand the round-the-clock assault which already has reached frightful proportions.

I'm sure you'll understand I'm not predicting that Hitler will be knocked out by air alone. I'm saying that we are rushing toward the climax of the second big-scale experiment of history to see how close air power can come to defeating a nation. The first effort was by Hitler in 1940-41, when he tried to blitz England into submission but failed.

Fleets Growing.

We cannot judge the present offensive by what he did, for the striking power of the United Anglo-American air fleets far exceeds his greatest effort. The Allies have numerical superiority and this is rapidly increasing.

The stepped-up Allied air offensive is directed at all German war production and defences in general, and at its warplane plants in particular. The immediate objective is to neutralise the Luftwaffe as quickly as possible and so pave the way for invasion by land. The Allied air forces in the Mediterranean are entering into this by striking Eastern Germany from its Italian bases, thus putting the Reich under a cross-fire so to speak.

The drive against the Nazi air-force is in two divisions. First, the Allies are hunting out every warplane factory and are destroying or crippling it. Second, they are bent on keeping the German air force so constantly engaged that its pilots and ground forces will become exhausted. Also, of course, the Allies are intensively gunning to knock out enemy planes in combat, because of Hitler's difficulty in replacing them.

Murray Replies To Jolliffe

Claims Crusade Is For Free Enterprise

TORONTO, Feb. 26 (CP)—Gladstone Murray, Toronto Policy counsel, whose name was linked by E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader, with those of several industrialists described as a "danger" to democracy, said in a statement Friday:

"Mr. Jolliffe shares with Mr. Coldwell (National C.C.F. Leader M. J. Coldwell) indignation at my having included in a list of personal references some of the leaders of Canadian industry, the suggestion being that whatever notice is taken on my views is due to the alleged wealth of these leaders of industry. The fact is that the evidence and the arguments for free enterprise which it is my purpose to disseminate receive just the same notice they deserve from an impartial press."

Speaking in the Ontario Legislature Thursday Mr. Jolliffe said democracy is in danger when a large part of political policy does not come from responsible political leaders but from men whose only claim to a hearing is that "they have millions." He said Mr. Murray's efforts to speak on behalf of democracy should be "examined with care."

Barge Plant Men Strike

Produce Armor Plate Needed For Invasion

DETROIT, Feb. 26.—(AP).—C. I. O. pickets turned some 3,000 workers back from gates of the Great Lakes Steel Corporation plant in suburban Ecorse this morning, halting all production in the only mill producing armor plate for United States navy landing barges.

The strike which started with the walkout of 500 workers Friday protesting discharge of an employee who left the plant without permission, has made 5,000 workers idle. The night shift stayed away from the plant last night, but fires were kept under the furnaces.

Headquarters of the United Steel Workers' Union (C.I.O.) confirmed the dispute was over disciplining by management and promised a statement later in the day. A spokesman said the disciplining was "the only issue."

In an official statement the company described the down-river plant as the "sole supplier" of armor plate for barges, adding "this material is needed badly."

$62,500 Agreed As Figure For 2 Schools

For the two suburban township schools, May's and Confederation, representatives of the city and North Monaghan councils last night tentatively suggested $62,500 in a survey of financial details of the eventual terms of annexation.

Reeve M. H. Johnston was appointed chairman of the meeting in the course of which it was stated as being understood that the respective school boards would have to be consulted.

An appraisal of the two school buildings and their contents, excluding land, by T. C. Ephgrave on a city assignment, arrived at a total of $53,330.

The total cost of Confederation School was $46,000, the main section built in 1927 having cost $30,000 and the two room addition in 1942 cost $16,000. Reeve Johnston said the boiler and equipment of this school was designed to accommodate another two rooms, comprising altogether, in that event, eight rooms.

May's School on the other hand was considered an old building which probably would not conform with the standards of the Board of Education. "In fact we might not get more than three years' use out of it," Alderman Swanston commented.

Discussion of several valuations moved toward an amount which provide an agreeable compromise between extreme estimates. Councillor W. J. Grady said he had thought $70,000 should be close to the combined value of the two schools. Alderman Glover suggested $60,000.

"What about $62,500?" Alderman Dutton proposed in a form of question, and Reeve Johnston said he had been thinking of some figure in that neighborhood.

"We want to be fair to the township," Alderman Dutton remarked, and Mayor Hamilton supplemented that attitude with the comment that the city understood the position the remaining part of the township would be placed in as a result of annexation, and Peterborough's desire was to deal fairly in the settlement.

Bruce Johnston, township clerk, explained that debenture payments on May's School were nearly complete, about two remaining, and generally he expected that this debt would be erased within a year or so. It also transpired in the discussion that unpaid debt on Confederation School was $20,000.

The city's offer of $62,500 was moved by Alderman Glover and seconded by Alderman Dutton.

"I would say that $66,000 would be closer, allowing for another debenture to be paid this year by the township," Mr. Grady said.

"I'd say that we were leaning backward a little in making this offer," said Alderman Glover, "at least to the extend of $2,500.

Councillor J. S. Roberts said he would like to see the amount raised to $66,000.

"Well, we could say we would be more satisfied with something nearer the appraisal we received from Mr. Ephgrave, $53,300," Alderman Dutton replied.

Teaching and Attendance

The proposals last night were intended to be an approach to the agreement which will finally be reached by the councils and school trustees, and discussion proceeded on that understanding of breaking ground for further consideration. Members of the city council emphasized their wish to be helpful in the initiating of the present negotiations and not to seem to be presuming on the rights of the Board of Education.

Continuing to another point, Mayor Hamilton asked: "Now, what about the two township schools being taken over by the Board of Education in September? They wish to make appointments at the beginning of the school year. The township would levy and collect taxes on the whole area this year, and it would be my own idea that your trustees would run the school for six months and the Board of Education would take charge of them for the remaining four months of the year."

Reeve Johnston: "Our pupils would go there for the whole year. Then if we were not ready for them we could make an agreement with the city's Board to take them in for next year."

Reeve Johnston said a new school might be ready by that time, although, on account of wartime conditions, the building of a new school might have to be considered as a postwar work. "We have had the Brinton Carpet Company helping to carry that area, but now we are losing that factory to the city. The assessment for the remainder of that school section that is not to be annexed is $159,000, and we expect to have from 88 to 100 children to educate. I think we will need two schools, one down in the southern part, and the other up in the Sherbrooke section."

He estimated maintenance alone at $1,700 per room-year.

Against that opinion was quoted an estimate by Edward Humpage, city auditor, that the school taxes in the township area might be reduced from 19 mills to 11 mills. School grants were mentioned in the calculations, with several other phases of the eventual outcome, but for the present the Mayor's suggestion, which is to be passed on to the Board of Education, was generally accepted as a working basis.

The Hatton Area

Mayor Hamilton said the township expected to receive $6,600 from Wartime Housing Limited in lieu of taxes on the Hatton housing area for the period to the end of this year. Speaking to his associates of the council His Worship asked: "Are you willing to forego any extra costs we may have had, and thereby help the township. I don't think it will be a great deal any way."

"Sure, let it go," Alderman Glover answered.

"Whatever the township gets from the company on the staff house and Hatton area is theirs without any claim from us," Mayor Hamilton said, as the other members assented.

City Engineer Parsons pointed out that Wartime Housing had laid the sewers and there was no capital expenditure by the city for that work.

HALIFAX, Feb. 26.—(CP).— The boys fighting in the mud and dirt of Italy aren't complaining. but sometimes they "wonder if the people back home appreciate just what they are going through," Cpl. Michael Gorick of Vancouver said here to-day as he waited aboard the hospital ship Lady Nelson for the train that would take him home again.

When the soldiers read about strikes, civilians complaining about shortages and the other home-front perils they just dig a little more mud out of their boots, duck another bullet and wonder if those at home "know there's a war on," Cpl. Gorick said.

Obituary

MRS. JOHN GILMOUR.

CAMPBELLCROFT, Feb. 26.—(ENS).—There passed away in a Peterborough hospital on Friday afternoon Annie Coates Gilmour, wife of John Gilmour, after a week's illness. Mrs. Gilmour broke her hip in a fall on February 18 and while she appeared to recover from the shock she suffered a stroke on Wednesday and passed away without regaining consciousness.

Born 83 years ago, daughter of William Coates and Annie Fforde, pioneer settlers of Hamilton township, Mrs. Gilmour retained a wonderful memory of early days in the Rice Lake area. She remained in the best of health right up until her injury and was a very active woman for her age.

For years she took a very prominent part in the Women's Institute, being a past president, and up until the time of union was an active member of the Garden Hill Presbyterian church. Se was a great reader and one of the best informed women of the district.

There survive her husband, John Gilmour and one son, Franklin at home.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon from the Funeral Home Jackson and Smith in Port Hope, wtih interment in Port Hope Union cemetery.

Based on the device, a pocket-size instrument could be perfected for use by blind persons who would be warned of nearby objects by the sounding of a musical note.

SelectCommittee To Organize Rehabilitation

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 26 (ENS)—A strong plea for the formation of some type of post-war planning committee was urged by Mayor Frank F. Long Friday night in addressing a large group of citizens assembled to discuss the part this town was to play in rehabilitation.

Mayor Long told the gathering that he had given careful thought to the problem and as he saw it there were two main problems. The chief one of these was rehabilitation of returned men and women and the second objective would be to find employment for those who would be displaced by returned men going back to their former jobs.

Since it could be assumed that all who were gainfully employed at the time of their enlistment would be re-employed at their former occupations on discharge, the big task would be to look after those who had just completed their schooling or for other reasons had not had any regular employment, he said. There were some who would return to complete their education or perhaps learn a new trade under a Government scheme while others would want work "right away," and it is up to us to have a job waiting for them. He suggested that a complete survey be made to learn how many were employed in each local industry in peace time, and how many they expect to employ when the war is over. How many enlisted from each industry, clerks, Hydro employees, farmers in Seymour.

"When we know how many will be taking their former jobs we will then have an idea of the number who will be displaced from their present jobs."

Takes Time

The Mayor recalled that a recent survey in the press indicated from one million to one million and a half more jobs would be available after the war than before. He thought this might be true after peace time production got in "full swing," a year or so after, "but in the meantime it would be the part of wisdom to hope for the best, but be prepared for the worst." The suggestion of a post war work pile embracing repair work and alterations to barns, dwellings and business establishments was a good one, but all of this work called for skilled workmen.

"A certain amount of work could and should be done in the Municipality of Campbellford, but I do not believe in going on a spending spree. It isn't the necessaries of life that make a man poor, it is the unnecessaries. If the Government at Ottawa or Queen's Park intend to spend money in providing work for returned men, we have a right to get our share of that work. As for municipal spending on a large scale, let us not forget that many citizens of our town have lost their property through tax sales during recent years. We fully realize the fact that we cannot remain stationary—we must make progress or we will fall behind in the race, but it is wiser to make haste slowly and make every move count for the better."

Need 125 Jobs

Following the Mayor's address there was considerable discussion and N. Alex MacColl, a representative of the Legion, pointed out that body had already made a survey and found they would have to provied at least 125 jobs when hostilities ended. He observed that this number was as of the present date and might be greatly increased before the war was concluded.

A motion was then passed authorizing the formation of "The Campbellford District Rehabilitation Association" with an executive of eleven members, four of whom should be from Seymour township. The executive will name a president and secretary. Members of the executive from Campbellford, were elected by ballot and are as follows—N. A. MacColl, A. D. Bennett, Rev. G. N. Maxwell, C. B. Williams, H. J. Taylor, P. C. Denyes. Seymour township members, appointed on motion, Harry Free, James Waters, W. A. Hume. W. A. Hogle.

Sqdn. Ldr. Moore Back In Canada To Get Action

COBOURG, Feb. 26 — (ENS) — Ready to suffer a reduction in rank to pilot officer in order to see some action, Squadron Leader Delmar Moore of Cobourg, has arrived from overseas and will start on a course in air crew duties. Only 25 years of age, he was a station administration officer in England when he left for Canada, being the youngest airman in both the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. to hold a post of that nature. In September of 1942 when he was appointed adjutant of the Goose Squadron, he was also the youngest adjutant in England.

Squadron Leader Moore was badly injured back in 1939 when his plan crashed at Camp Borden and he was transferred for medical reasons to administration duties.

"I feel fine now and I don't think that my physical condition will be any drawback now," he told the Examiner Friday afternoon, shortly after he had arrived in Cobourg by train from Ottawa.

Wonderful Welcome

"There were about 70 of us when we landed from overseas. Some are going on courses, some are back for medical reasons and so forth. They certainly gave us a royal welcome when we arrived at the station in Ottawa—had the band out and everything. We arrived at Montreal Thursday and we proceeded to Ottawa," he stated.

His mother Mrs. Rita Moore, received a phone call from her son Thursday morning from Montreal.

"It was wonderful to hear his voice again and to know that he would soon be home," his mother said Friday morning.

Squadron Leader Moore looks fit and one can understand how his administration duties have palled on him. He said that he was eager to get into something with some action. There was not much romance and excitement to his work in the air force overseas.

"It was just a steady grind and it became very monotonous. It is not much fun seeing the fellows go out on bombing missions and to have to sit at a desk. Boy, oh boy, I certainly worked hard to get this chance at some action. I am a whole lot better than after the crash at Camp Borden back in 1939. After my leave is spent here, I will report at Toronto and after that a chance at air crew duties—perhaps navigator. It will mean reverting in rank to pilot officer but it will mean some action," the youthful squadron leader said.

Discussing food in England he said that he was surprised how good it was.

"We had no kick coming as far as we were concerned," he commented.

Married Overseas

Squadron Leader Moore found the English girls pretty good too. So much so that he married one in August of 1943.

"I met her at a party. Her name was Marjorie Hill, and she lived at Harrogate. We became very good friends and in about six or seven months we were married. She will be over here when summer comes. Don't get me wrong—Canadian girls are swell but Marjorie, well—I married her," he said with a smile that said more than his words.

Asked if he had had any close calls from Nazi bombs, he recalled that on one occasion a German flier had dropped his bombs while flying through dense cloud formations. One of them landed square on the aerodrome at which he was stationed. The clouds were too thick to have permitted sighting of the aerodrome as a bombing objective, it being a case of the bomber happening to release his load while passing over.

The trip over from England was uneventful—just as peaceful as going across Lake Ontario, he declared. When he went overseas in 1942, the trip across was also quiet.

Born in Cobourg, he enlisted in the airforce at Trenton in January of 1939. While flying at Camp Borden in June of the same year he was seriously injured and when he recovered he was transferred to administration duties.

In August of 1942 he went overseas and his promotion to Squadron Leader came soon after.

4 People Perish When Kerosene Poured On Fire

SIMCOE, Ont., Feb. 26—(CP).—Four members of a tobacco share grower's family here died today, victims of a fire which raced through their 10-room frame house two miles west of nearby Delhi.

The dead are Mrs. Ernest Lewis, 29; two sons, Richard, three, and Wray, two; and an eight-month-old daughter, Bernice, who was burned to death as she lay on a blanket in front of the living-room stove. Mrs. Lewis and the two sons died in hospital last night.

Police said the fire occurred yesterday when the stove exploded as Mrs. Lewis poured coal oil on burning wood in an effort to "boost up" the fire.

Her clothing ignited into a blazing torch, Mrs. Lewis ran screaming from the house and rolled in a snowbank. Her cries attracted the attention of Henry Pearson, Highways Department road foreman, and two helpers. Pearson carried the boys out of the house after beating out the flames on their clothing and then removed the baby's body.

The three men then took shovels and threw snow into the living room until the flames were smothered.

A fourth child, eight-year-old Clara, escaped from the house with slight burns. Two others, Donald, nine, and Jacob, six, were at school. The father, who works as a share grower for a tobacco firm, was at Delhi when the explosion occurred.

The fire followed a few hours after four persons—a mother, father and two children—were burned to death when fire destroyed their Acton, Ont., home.

Orsogna and the Adriatic coast.

Guns and supplies still were flowing into the beachhead area, despite bad weather, continued Nazi shelling of the port of Anzio, and a new attemp by the Germans to interrupt the process by employing torpedo boat stabs at shipping off the harbor.

The Allied communique said E-boat attack on the anchorage three nights ago was broken up by patrol craft.

Heavy bombers attacking port and rail facilities at Fiume flew through heavy flak. Like the Regensburg raiders, they met vicious fighter opposition, with some of the enemy planes carrying rockets. The crews reported direct hits on the harbor and nearby installations.

Pola's quays also were pounded and direct hits registered on a torpedo depot, while military buildings at Zara took many smacks from bombs.

A coastal air force raid by Spitfires in the Durazzo and Valcona area of Albania also caused severe damage to warehouses and rolling stock.

Fighters and fighter-bombers alternated patrolli-g of the beachhead with attacks on German troops concentrations. German activity over the beachhead amounted to four sorties.

Two-Goal Edge Means Finals For King Edward

King Edward School qualified for the final series in the Public School Hockey League this morning when they broke the deadlock with Queen Alexandra in a hard-fought game at the C.G.E. Rink by winning 3 goals to 1. The ice was decidedly rough, but in spite of that fact the two teams played good hockey and it was a battle until the end. King Edward scored the only goal in the first period, added two more in the second, and Queen Alexandra wound up the scoring with a counter in the final 20 minutes.

Byers in goal for the King Edward team was one of the stars of the struggle, making some fine saves.

The win gave King Edward second place in the standing, and they will now meet King George in a best-of-three series for the school championship.

The line-ups:

King Edward — Goal, Byers; defence, Riches, Murray; centre, Lawson; wings, Eakins, Floyd; subs., Dolan, Bartley, Robinson, Dibden.

Queen Alexandra — Goal, Morgan; defence, Crawford, Richardson; centre, Simmonds; wings, Dracup, Morin; subs., Montgomery, B. Simmonds, Powers, Jewell.

Referee—W. King.

135 Planes Downed At Marianas

Not One Warship Damaged By Jap Defenders

PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 26—(AP)—The battleship-escorted American task force which ranged 3,800 miles west of Pearl Harbor Tuesday to strike at the Marianas, less than 1,500 miles from Tokyo, wiped out 135 Japanese planes, scored against shipping, caused heavy destruction and lost no warships, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday.

The warships were not even damaged despite the fact their approach was detected the day before the attack and enemy torpedo planes repeatedly tried to sink them. Only six out of hundreds of attacking carrier planes were lost.

Guam, American outpost occupied by Japan at the outset of the Pacific war, was bombed for the first time.

The task force sent against the Marianas duplicated the Feb. 16-17 feat at Truk of risking capital ships deep inside Japan's island defences and emerging intact.

The 135 planes bagged in the Marianas were added to 201 destroyed during the two-day attack on Truk. From the standpoint of enemy ships, the bag at Truk was much better—between 19 and 26, including at least 11 warships.

It was learned yesterday a total of 793 Japanese planes have been destroyed by Allied fliers since the campaign to reduce Rabaul from the air got under way last Dec. 17.

Salvation Army Leaders Plan Week-end at Peterborough

Peterborough Salvationists on the week-end are to have a visit from Lieut.-Colonel Robert Hoggard when special meetings are to be conducted in the Salvation Army Temple. In these special meetings Lieut.-Col. Hoggard will be assisted by his son Captain Robert Hoggard who is visiting in Canada enroute from Trinidad to London, England. For two years the Captain has been at work among American troops near Port of Spain. Prior to that he worked in London when the blitz was at its worst. His thrilling experiences will be related.

Lieut.-Colonel Robert Hoggard is the son of the late Commissioner and Mrs. Hoggard, of England. At an early age he accompanied his parents to the Far East where the work of the Salvation Army was pioneered in Korea. After several years residence in Korea and a business career in Japan the Colonel proceeded to London, England, by way of Siberia to the Training College for Salvation Army officers.

Lieut.-Colonel Hoggard quickly rose to the command of some of the largest corps in the Old Land and while still a young officer was appointed as a divisional commander. During this period he had charge of two of the large London divisions, and for five years was the leader of the world-famous Holiness meetings at the Clapton Congress Hall.

In 1939 General Evangeline Booth appointed the Colonel Principal to the Salvation Army College in Toronto, where he has responsibility for the training of young people from all parts of the Dominion for Salvation Army service.

A versatile leader and powerful speaker, the Colonel has toured the greater part of the Dominion in the interests of evangelism as well as being featured as the chief speaker at prominent Summer conventions in the United States.

Jesus Presents Himself As Messiah To The People

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 27 is Mark 11:1-12:44, the Golden Text being Mark 14:61, 62, "Again the high priest asked Him, and saith unto Him, Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed? And Jesus said, I am.")

JESUS AND His disciples were on their way from Bethany, at the mount of Olives, to Jerusalem. Jesus told two of the disciples to go into a nearby village where they would find a colt, an ass, who had never before been ridden, tied. They were to loose and bring him to Jesus. If any one asked them why they did it they were to say, simply, "The Lord hath need of him."

The men did this, and brought the colt to Jesus. They put their own garment on the colt for Jesus to ride on, and many in the multitude which had gathered about them, spread their garments in the way and some cut down branches from the trees and strewed them in the way . . . They went before Him and after Him, crying, "Hosanna; Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest."

This was Jesus' triumph. The donkey, or ass, was used much more by the common people than was the horse, which was mostly used in battle. These asses were used as beasts of burden, for work in the fields or mills and for riding.

Jesus Goes to Temple

Riding so, with those who loved and admired Him about Him, Jesus came to the temple, and looked about, and when evening had come He again went to Bethany, to the home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, whom He had recently raised from the dead. Next morning they started again for Jerusalem, without having had breakfast. Seeing a fig tree with leaves on it, Jesus went to it, hoping there would be some figs, but He found there were none. Jesus said to the tree, "No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever." And the tree withered away. Jesus saw an opportunity to teach a lesson with this tree, warning unfaithful Israel that it would bring a curse down upon itself.

When they came to the temple, Jesus threw the money changers out for the second time, saying, "Is it not written, My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves." Hearing this the scribes and Pharisees sought to destroy Him for interfering with what they felt was their business.

Jesus' saying about prayer should be remembered. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." But, He added, when you pray and remember that you have a quarrel with anyone, go to that person and make up with them, for give them, so that your Father in heaven may forgive you your sins.

Enemies Try to Trap Jesus

Trying to trap Jesus, as usual, the scribes and Pharisees asked Him where He got His authority to do the things He did. He countered with a question to them: Is the baptism of John from heaven or of men? He had them there. If they said of heaven, He could say, Why did ye not believe him? If they said of earth, they were afraid of the people who looked on John as a prophet. So they didn't answer. Jesus then refused to answer their question.

Jesus taught the people by a parable. He said a certain man planted a vineyard, built all the necessary equipment and rented it to some men to share the profits. When he sent a messenger to get his share of the retruns they beat the man; another they wounded severely, another they killed, and when at last he sent his only son, they killed him. Of course the man killed these wicked men so they lost all.

Jesus, of course, was the Son who was killed by the wicked husbandmen, and Israel was the loser by not accepting Him when He was sent to save them.

Again the priests sought to catch Jesus by asking if it was lawful for Jews to pay tribute to Caesar Jesus asked for a coin, and when Caesar's image was found on it, He said, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." They used the coin for bargaining, selling, for protection under Caesar, so why should they not pay tribute to Caesar?

We will skip the silly question asked by the Sadducees, about the seven brothers who successively married the same woman, as each died, the question being who would claim her in heaven. Jesus said there is no marriage in heaven.

Not all the scribes were the hypocrites that Jesus called them. When Jesus was asked what was the first commandment, and He answered to love God, and the second was to love thy neighbor, a scribe agreed with Him, and Jesus said to him, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."

Sitting near the treasury where gift offerings were dropped for the temple, Jesus watched rich men put in large sums, but at no sacrifice. A poor widow dropped two "mites," which make a farthing—a fourth of a penny. Jesus declared that she had given more than any other, because of her poverty she had given all she had. Hers was a real sacrifice to the Lord.

Wilderness Of Arabah Held Great Fascination For Jews

REV. E. R. JAMES

Immediately the Spirit Driveth Jesus Into the Wilderness. — St. Mark 1:12.

The fearful wilderness law to the East of Palestine. Every Jew, as he looked at the rising sun, could not help seeing that vast, terrible wilderness of Arabah. The wilderness was never out of the mind of the Jew. It held an extraordinary fascination for him. Jesus, the Carpenter of Nazareth, was a Jew. "Born of a woman and made under the Law." As a child he learnt that His people received their first lessons about Jehovah while they wandered in the wilderness under the leadership of Moses.

Very probably as a young man the Pharisee attracted Him. The Pharisee set an example of religious devotion and governed hs life by strict rules. Discipline was his key word, regular hours of prayers and worship. But the Carpenter found no real satisfaction in the religion of the Pharisee: He felt there was something wanting.

Naturally as a member of the Synagogue He had been brought into touch with the Rabbi, who was the professional, orthodox teacher of the Church. The Rabbi placed emphasis upon sound learning as a preparation for true worship. The Rabbi very probably gave the young Carpenter access to the Synagogue Rolls of Sacred Scripture, which He studied in His spare hours. They filled His mind with the wonder of those ancient prophecies.

Then came the news of the Prophet from the wilderness preaching with great power. He went and was baptised by John in the Jordan. There He heard the Voice of the Father saying:— "Thou are My Beloved Son in Whom I am well pleased." How true to modern psychology that we read these words:— Immediately the Spirit driveth Jesus into the wilderness."

Moses, the highly educated Jew flees from the court of Pharoah into the wilderness. There He discovers God through the symbol of the burning bush, which was not consumed. In the strength of that revelation he led his people from the house of bondage into the promised Land.

Centuries later another prophet from the wilderness appears, Elijah the Tishbite. In the wilderness of Mount Horeb He discovers God and received a fresh revelation of Jehovah. He was taught the Jehovah was not in the fire, nor wind or earthquake. God was in the still small voice. Elijah realises that Jehovah speaks to the individual in his heart.

Hundreds of years pass, John the Baptist in the wilderness discovers the Voice of God and goes forth to preach repentance and the coming of the Messiah.

What has the wilderness to teach? Two profound truths:—Solitude and silence. In the wilderness a man is alone, far from his fellows. In the wilderness a man feels the awful silence. In the wilderness a man depends absolutely upon God. The wilderness produces either faith or fear; either the life of God or insanity.

In the wilderness a man discovers the Presence of God, which deepens his faith. He has to rely completely upon God.

In those forty days in the wilderness Jesus of Nazareth, following in the footsteps of the great prophets who had left their mark upon their people's lives—Masters of faith-deepens His own faith in God the Father. In that vilderness He heard the still small Voice of the Father. He came forth convinced that He is indeed the Son of God in a wonderful sense of the word. He determines to put His whole faith and confidence in God. Even His enemies recognized that He trusted in God. This is the lesson he desires to teach you and me. "O Lord, in Thee I have trusted; let me never be confounded."

MY SOUL THIRSTETH FOR GOD: MY FLESH ALSO LONGETH AFTER GOD.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus Presents Himself As the Messiah — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 11:1—12:44

"When ye stand praying," said Jesus, "forgive, if ye have aught against any that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses."

Jesus was asked if He thought the Jews should pay tribute to Caesar. "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's," He answered, looking at a coin.

Love for God is the first commandment; love thy neighbor is second, said Jesus, and commended the scribe who agreed, with Him.

Sitting near the treasury Jesus watched people dropping in their offerings. A poor widow put in "two mites," her all. GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 14:61, 62.

The Community Fund Drive

The Red Cross and Community Fund Drive is now in progress, and we do not feel that it is necessary to urge the claims of the campaign on our readers. The Community Fund has worked so well since its beginning that we cannot imagine that any group of citizens or any of the beneficiaries would want to go back to the old system of individual campaigns. Collecting money is hard work and it takes a great deal of time; it is better to do it intensively once in the year and have done with it.

The Drive this year is to raise $60,000. The Community Fund has a balance on hand, and for this reason some people have thought that the demand made on the citizens should be lessened. It must be explained that the demands on the Fund this year will come to $75,000, and that for this reason the objective has been kept at the usual figure. Most citizens will recognize, also, that it is an easy matter to lower the objective of a Drive of this kind, but it is hard to raise it again when that is necessary. The Community Fund does not raise money in order to establish large reserves; all the money raised finds its way, sooner or later, into works which have the approval of the majority of the citizens. And of course any citizen who wishes to do so may earmark his contribution for the particular causes in which he is interested.

This year the recipients of aid from the Fund will be the Red Cross, the Navy League, the Salvation Army, St. Vincent's Orphanage, the Children's Aid, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., the Victorian Order of Nurses, and the National Institute for the Blind; in addition the corvette, H.M.C.S. Peterborough will receive substantial benefit from the Fund.

We feel sure that the people of Peterborough will support the Community Fund with their usual generosity.

Restoring Sons And Buildings

Several eminent churchmen have suggested that Allied bombing of Germany is too rigorous, and that many of the buildings which are being destroyed are irreplaceable. In reply to this the Right Reverend J. R. P. Sclater, the Moderator of the United Church, says that bombing saves the lives of Allied soldiers, and he adds that buildings can be restored, whereas dead sons cannot.

We are in complete agreement with Dr. Sclater in his opinion that the lives of our men must weigh more heavily with us than the preservation of historic monuments. But we disagree with his opinion that these buildings can be restored. They cannot. We have learned a great deal about building during the last four centuries, but we have forgotten a great deal, as well. The cathedrals, palaces and even some of the dwelling-houses in European cities are unique, and not only could we not reproduce them,—we could not build anything comparable to them. We could, and certainly will, erect fine buildings in our own fashion to replace them, but we doubt very much if posterity will look upon the substitutes as adequate. We have lost the art and the devotion which expressed the soul and the aspirations of a people in stone. The buildings which we are forced to destroy through the necessity of war are irreplaceable, and it is useless to deceive ourselves about it.

That is part of the tragedy of war. It withers whatever it touches. In choosing between the destruction of great architecture and the sacrifice of the lives of men we have to make a choice of evils. We have chosen the lesser evil of the two, but it is an evil all the same.

Canadians In Battle

As we have said in these columns from time to time, praise of Canadians by Canadians loses its savour through repetition. When we read what our war correspondents say about our troops in battle we are pleased, but we sometimes wish for a standard of comparison. When we read that General Crerar has called our troops "the best bloody soldiers in the world" we accept it as a partisan opinion; we should hardly expect him to say that his own men were the third best, or the fifth best, soldiers in the world. But praise of Canadian soldiers from an unbiased source is sweet indeed and recently Mr. C. Ray, the war correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, has praised them highly. This is what he says, in part:

"The Canadians' own special contribution to the art of war seems to be the flexibility and freedom from routine of their administration. It is said that the division's A.A.Q.M.G. has issued only two written administrative orders since they left England—one for the landing in Sicily, one for Italy. All else has depended on word of mouth and personal contact between the A.A.Q.M.G., his subordinates, and lower units and formations. This is combined with the utmost interest in the welfare and equipping of the front-line soldier.

"Such a system depends entirely on personality, on an adequate supply of administrative officers with ability and imagination, and on hard work and goodwill all round. Without any one of those things there is everything to be said for the letter of the law and for everything to go down on paper according to the book. But the Canadians make their own system work to a marvel.

"I doubt if any British soldier in the 8th Army is as well looked after as the front-line Canadian, gets his mail so quickly, such good food, or such support in the matter of ammunition and supplies. And that again—except perhaps for the matter of mail—is to judge by the highest standards".

Mr. Ray has only one serious criticism to make of Canadian soldiers. He thinks that in comparison with the best British troops, they lack 'wiliness'—the old-soldier quality. They are apt to underestimate difficulties and to rush in with bad results where caution would be a wiser and more productive course. This same fault, we believe, has been found with Australian and New Zealand troops. In spite of their experience in Sicily, this critic finds our men "still a little more raw than the very best".

After such praise we do not think that anyone will be offended by the word of dispraise. Our troops will learn to be wily very soon; they have plenty of ingenuity and initiative, and those are the qualities which beget wiliness.

Churchill Government Under Criticism

Great importance has been attached by a number of Canadian papers to the result of the by-election in West Derbyshire, in which a Government candidate was defeated by an Independent Socialist. The reverse was a drastic one; the Government's pre-war majority of 5,524 was transformed into a Socialist majority of 4,561. The rebuke to the Government is obvious.

It would be unwise, however, to interpret that rebuke as broadly as some observers have done. We do not think that the election really resolved itself into a contest between an aristocrat and the son of a cobbler, with the underdog proving himself to be the best man, a la Hollywood; the British people know more about true democracy than that. Nor do we think that the defeat of the Government candidate meant that the people of Britain are sick of the coalition and would be glad to sweep it away. We do think, however, that the defeat of the coalition candidate may be taken as a sign of the strong dissatisfaction which the British people feel with the delays which the coalition is making in outlining its program of post-war reconstruction.

The evidence of the British press shows that the people of Britain think well of the coalition as a war-making body, and there is no suggestion that they would like to supplant Mr. Churchill and his colleagues with other men. But there is continual discussion in the British papers of the delays, the reservations and the reversals of opinion which accompany every discussion of post-war plans.

The people of Britain have been under a strain which we cannot comprehend, and they are becoming somewhat short-tempered. They have taught their Government a lesson in a contest which looked like a safe thing. They will watch now, to see whether the Government has taken this strong hint. If it has not, they may nudge it again.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A contemporary predicts that our rationing system will continue for some time after the war. Let's end the war as fast as we can, and see.

Tokio has given a grim warning that Japan is developing a secret weapon which will destroy the whole Allied fleet instantaneously. Those fellows don't know what fun is. Look at the pleasure the Americans get out of knocking off their ships one by one.

W. K. Esling, the M.P. for Kootenay West, wants to have the unruly Doukhobors deported to Russia. This is not a particularly bright suggestion when we consider how long the Doukhobors have been in Canada. They came in 1899, just three years after Mr. Esling himself, and we are sure that he would be very much surprised to be sent back to Philadelphia.

Diary Of A Lost Soul

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: It occurred to me today while I was out for a walk that we seem to have forgotten all about the law of the survival of the fittest; has it been repealed, I wonder? Perhaps not, but like the law of supply and demand it is being questioned in a most searching manner these days. Our struggles toward social security are prompted, to a great extent, by truly humane feeling and to some extent by a natural desire for change, whether good or bad. But will the strong old law of the survival of the fittest tumble down all our plans when we have set them up? Certainly it could be argued that social security is a determined effort to bolster up the unfit and lay burdens as heavy as can be borne upon the fit, in the hope of achieving a middle level upon which we shall all exist. The question is: Will the fit put up with it? Certainly the attempt will be an interesting trial of the strength and efficacy of our civilization. The excellence of our intentions cannot be doubted, but Nature always insists on having her say in these matters, and the old lady never minces her words.

MONDAY: The goings-on of radio people never fail to amaze me. I heard an announcer say today that the artist who was about to play had been "concertizing throughout the United States and Canada"; where do they pick up these vile words like "concertizing"? And another announcer became deeply sentimental about the fact that a baritone was about to sing "the fine old English song by Edward Purcell, 'Passing By'." Now 'Passing By' was written not very long ago by a man called Edward Purcell Cockram, who died in 1932. It is not old nor, in my opinion, is it fine; it is a pleasing little sentimental piece written in imitation of a bygone mode. Peter Warlock wrote a setting of the same words in 1928 which is superior in every way.... The death is announced of Israel J. Singer, a notable writer of whom comparatively few people have heard, because he wrote in Yiddish. But his "Brothers Ashkenzai" and "Yoshe Kalb" were distinguished works, and Maurice Schwartz made excellent dramatizations of them.

TUESDAY: My work piled up today to the point where I seemed to be chained to a treadmill; this seems to happen to everybody nowadays, because of the war. Ordinary working hours mean little; one must go on till the job is done, for tomorrow will be busy enough.... Maj.-Gen. Brock Chisholm is in trouble for having supposedly insulted the mothers of Canada; actually he did nothing of the kind, but there are some very touchy mothers about. What he said was extremely moderate; Philip Wylie really peeled the hide off mothers in "Generation of Vipers." The trouble with the attacks on mothers, of course, is that they give pain to the good mothers, who are not to blame.... A young friend of mine wasted some of my time today trying to tell me that swing music was a new development in musical art. Flapdoodle! There isn't a swing trick which Bach didn't know and exploit in a way that would make Duke Ellington hide his head. Swing is not complicated at all; it is a simplification of a few conventional musical devices, designed to please people who cannot appreciate really complicated music, and who have no taste for the beauties of really simple music.

WEDNESDAY: Somebody sent me a tract through the mail today. I have a taste for tracts, and read this one with relish. It seems that I am a lost soul. I pondered on this, and decided that it was nonsense. Though normally sinful, I am far from being a great sinner; I haven't the time or the necessary vitality and imagination for a life of sin. High-grade sin is uncommon; apathy is the real problem of the world. I don't suppose there are more than a million really distinguished sinners on earth, but I dare not guess at the number of the spineless, the disgruntled, the inert and the boobs. They are the ones who get in the way whenever anything important has to be done.

THURSDAY: Read several newspaper accounts of the destruction of the monastery at Monte Cassino, and a number of editorials. In the latter I was shocked to find a few which wrote of this necessary destruction with a note of vandal joy. Apparently the writers did not like old buildings, and thought that Europe would be better off without a few of them... Some friends of mine have announced their intention of building a house, as they must get out of their rented one and have no place to live. Poor souls! Imagine trying to build a house in wartime.... I see tangerines advertised "with zipper skins." Sweet are the uses of advertisement, as Shakespeare would have said if he had thought of it.

FRIDAY: A great rumpus in the papers about Mrs. Bernard Shaw's will. She has been misquoted as saying that she left £160,000 "to alleviate the vulgarity of the Irish." The Rev. Jos. J. Lynch of Fordham University said: "The Irish have always payed strict attention to the will of God but they're not apt to pay much attention to the will of Mrs. Shaw." A very neat Irish answer, but I think the gentleman underestimates the charms of £160,000. It is interesting, however, to reflect on Irish neutrality as a manifestation of the Divine Will.

SUNDAY: The Marquess of Hartington has been defeated in West Derbyshire by Charles White, an Independent Socialist. I see that during the campaign White taunted the Marquess with his wealth and the twenty fireplaces in his house. Now I wonder what would have happened if the Marquess had taunted White with his poverty, and the fact that he had no bathtub in his simple home? There is something very dirty about a taunt which cannot be answered in kind. ....A friend presented me with a cigar tonight; I can smoke pretty nearly anything; there was a time when I used to smoke Indian cheroots; but I could not smoke that cigar. I threw it out the door, and this morning a dead dog lay beside it; I suppose the poor creature took a drag, and perished.

Educational Confinement

Henry Adams, famed American historian and man of letters, was born in Boston 100 years ago Monday. In his autobiography, The Education of Henry Adams, he bitterly described how the confined education of his youth had not fitted him for the changing world of the later 19th century. His book may well be read by those charged with making education valuable to the changed world that will emerge from the war.—Montreal Gazette.

Higher Standards For Farmers

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

SPEAKING at Queen's University Monday night, Mr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, declared that agriculture must be made attractive economically, and that a generally higher standard of living should prevail for farmers. These things the speaker thought necessary to encourage farm youth to remain in productive agriculture. We think Mr. Hannam is correct, and we feel that the improvements he seeks should in some way be made available to farming communities.

Agriculture is Canada's basic industry. If it were not for agriculture, there would be little or no Canada. The farmers feed the rest of us, and they produce as well tremendous surpluses which contribute substantially to the national income, directly and indirectly. They are certainly entitled to a standard of living which would compare favourably with that enjoyed by urban residents. At present, the farm standard is generally lower, and badly in need of revision. How that revision may best be achieved is a matter for careful study and expert decision.

Prosperity cannot be created by legislation alone, for farmers or for members of any other industrial or professional group. Legislation can—and has, in the past—greatly aided farmers to a better life, but in itself is no guarantee of a higher standard of living. There are many other contributory factors. Education is one, and rural education could be revised to play a more effective part in encouraging farm youngsters to follow in the path of their elders. There is a tendency nowadays, both spoken and unspoken, to hold up before brighter rural pupils the advantages of other occupations. As long as this trend continues, the farm population will lose a percentage of its potentially most valuable members every year.

If drudgery and long hours on farms are to be eliminated, the two greatest eliminants will be machinery and electricity. The part played by machinery has been amply demonstrated; that which might be played by electricity less so, for lack of widespread rural electrification. Extension of electric services to farms was expanding previous to the outbreak of war. The advent of peace should see a resumption of their expansion, with consequently greater enjoyment of the industrial and cultural inventions dependent upon this form of power.

All these things will help provide a higher standard of living for farmers. In the final analysis, however, the farmer himself is the most important single factor in bettering his own way of life. Some farmers have always enjoyed a higher standard of living than others; they were better farmers, better able to arrange their affairs with time for leisure, to manage their farms with a margin of profit. Legislation intended to give incompetent farmers the rewards enjoyed by competent ones is doomed to failure, in the sense that it will never help raise the general standard of the agricultural industry. But there is a bright future awaiting a program which will place all the benefits of civilization within easy reach of those farmers economically competent to acquire them. When the farmer can have the same things as the city dweller, at the same cost, farming may become the most popular, as well as the most important, industry of the Dominion.

Poker Wisdom

Says Herr Robert Ley, leader of the Nazi labour front, in charging Winston Churchill with being a poker player:

"Only a person with an aptitude for falsehood, bluff and hypocrisy can achieve a mastery of poker."

Old Problem Solved

That old scientific stumper about what happens when the irresistible force meets the immovable body has been neatly solved by Prof. Stalin. At Stalingrad the i.f. battered its head in against the i.b., after which the i.b. took after the i.f., and at last reports was chasing the hell out of it. Physics to the contrary notwithstanding.—T.D.F., in Ottawa Citizen.

Mystery Call From Miami

A Providence lady had rather an exciting telephone call the other day—Long Distance wanting to know if she would accept a collect call from Miami. "We're not allowed to tell you who is calling," the operator said. "It's a military secret." Being a shrewd guesser, the lady accepted the call, and sure enough, it was her son, who is in the navy. His first words were: "Hello, Mother, this is George. I can't tell you where I am—military secret."—New Yorker.

Quick Thinking

Two wheel-equipped planes fell into the Gulf of Georgia near Campbell River. A police boat started to the rescue, but could never have covered the five-mile gap in time to save seven lives. A Canadian Pacific airliner, equipped with pontoons, was passing high over the scene, the pilot regarding what went on below as some sort of naval game. With rare smartness the police boat flashed a Morse signal, the passenger plane descended instantly, picked up every one of the struggling airmen. Several medals were earned that day.—Vancouver Sun.

Children and Books

A child does not read to criticize and compare, but just in the unsullied joy of finding itself in a new world. And behind every such child is the heart and brain of some teacher, parent or librarian that makes the book possible. If at just the right moment we present to the child just the right food for his curiosity and eagerness—folklore, fairy tale and fable, song, science, adventure, handicrafts and games each when the appropriate faculty is unfolding—then we can keep him curious and eager all through his childhood. Nothing better can hapen to a child. If, on the contrary, we provide insufficient reading matter we starve clamorous faculties. If we provide the wrong books, the child can't digest them and his appetite for reading may quickly be ruined.—Brandon Sun.

Appropriate Name

Fine Regiments In Italy

The Perth Regiment and the Cape Breton Highlanders are among the latest Canadian units to be reported in Italy. Both are fine regiments, trained to the minute while in England and they will undoubtedly be heard from many times before the Italian campaign has ended.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

None Other Like Him

So now he is gone, the symbol of the old, and first, Canadian Corps — the Corps which has been, and is, to hundreds of thousands of Canadian men the greatest thing in life. Many a Veteran of that Corps, on hearing the news of Canon Scott's death, stopped, broken with unashamed emotion, and felt that something fine and great had gone out of his own life.

No parallel to the life of Canon Scott exists or has existed anywhere. No man has ever achieved the distinction that was his. His contribution to Canada, both in war and peace, can be measured by no common yardstick. He is being mourned by more real admirers, more real comrades than any other Canadian has ever been, and that is saying a great deal.—The Legionary.

A Bible Message

But whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like unto children sitting in the markets, and calling unto their fellows, and saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented. For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He hath a devil. The Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. But wisdom is justified of her children.

Then began he to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not: woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes....

At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and has revealed them unto babes. Even so, Father: for so it seemed good in thy sight.

All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him. (Matt. 11: 16-21, 25-27.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The touring company had a terrible week in the provincial town. There was nothing available for wages, and the hero of the company was forced to consider leaving his lodgings without the formality of payment.

Carefully he collected and packed his belongings; then slowly he let the suit-case down into the garden from the upper window.

Suddenly the cheerful voice of his landlady floated up to him:

"It's all right, sir; I've got hold of the bag. You can let go the rope now."

Millhills Ransom

Requiescat in pace. Millhills Ransom, the Shorthorn bull that Senator Duncan Marshall as Minister of Agriculture brought to Ontario at a cost of $15,000 in 1936 is to be honored posthumously. The Senator cannot be blamed for the fact that Millhills Ransom died just when criticism of the purchase was at its height and Mr. Marshall was made the target for the jeers of his opponents. Now it transpires the bull's progeny has turned out so good his calves are fetching $2,000 per head. Even Agriculture Minister Kennedy today acknowledges his death was a great loss to breeding in Ontario. Whether a plaque will be erected to his memory is a moot question but in any event he will not go down into oblivion like "the calf with a cough" and "the hog with the cholera," strong campaign material of the Tories in the old days of small politics that are gone almost beyond recall.—Renfrew Mercury.

Tale of a Shirt

England has rationing, too, and it makes ours look free and easy. Take Quinton M. Hogg, member of parliament for example. Under the law he is obliged to send his shirt to one certain laundry. But the laundry lost his shirt and he has only one other. Now he argues that since the law compelled him to use that laundry and that laundry lost his shirt, then obviously the Government has to give him another shirt. But the president of the Board of Trade, who has charge of this rationing, refuses to accept responsibility. The courts will have to decide the controversy, because you cannot take the shirt off an Englishman's back, war or no war, without a fight.—Detroit Free Press.

Swedish Method

More than once pilots on commercial airlines have been forced to return to the airfield to repair damage after colliding with a flock of seagulls at the takeoff.

Farmers of Sweden have been bothered by seagulls which raided their crops. It is against the law to shoot seagulls in Sweden, so the farmers formed a vigilante committee, raided the rookeries and broke all the eggs. But the gulls simply laid more eggs.

Then the farmers became statesmen. Next year, instead of breaking the eggs, they visited the rookeries with saucepans and stoves. The eggs were hard-boiled instead of destroyed and replaced in the nests. Love's labour was lost. Not only did this reduce the bird population, but, since half the birds were always sitting, only half were left to cause trouble.—Vancouver Sun.

National Heads Urge Support Of Red Cross

The people of Peterborough were urged to support to their utmost the appeal of the Red Cross and Community Fund which opens on February 28, by Jackson Dodds, chairman of the Society's Central Council, and Mr. Justice P. H. Gordon, chairman of the National Executive Committee, in a joint statement issued to-day.

"This is the crucial year in the world conflict and there is a great possibility that Canada will be called upon to make sacrifices in the face of the enemy. There will be casualties and wounded who will need bandages, dressing, hospital comforts and blood serum. This is the work your Red Cross must do on your behalf," the statement said. "For this work the Society requires $3,000,000 this year."

"Then, too, many of our men will fall into the hands of the enemy and come under the guardianship of the Red Cross which will provide them with life-sustaining weekly food parcels, comforts and educational and cultural services. For the relatives of men reported missing in action, the Society, through the International Red Cross at Geneva, will bring hope and good news. To provide the weekly food parcels cals for $5,500,000.

"Provision has also been made in the Society's plans for assistance to Allied Red Cross organizations, such as China, Poland, Belgium, France, Greece, the Netherlands, and other nations," the statement declared.

V.O.N. Served Citizens Of All Ranks

One of the societies seeking support in the current Community Fund drive is the Victorian Order of Nurses, now beginning its fourth year of service in Peterborough. Appreciation of its work and its place in the community has grown steadily since the inauguration of its work here, and today it is generally felt that a firm foundation looking to a period of substantial growth has been laid by the efforts of its representatives in the city. Nationwide in scope there are branches of the Order all over Canada, and the progress of the local organization is merely indicative of the popularity and recognition it is achieving everywhere.

War has accentuated realization of the vital place the V.O.N. can fill in a community, and the general tightening up of nursing services has ensured a very busy time for the nurses of the Order during the past year. In 1943 it was reported that a total of 796 patients had been cared for, an increase of 50 over 1942 and of 150 over the first year of operation. In all, 5,781 visits had been made, with a nursing staff that never exceeded three and was for a time reduced to two.

Service For All

A popular misconception regarding the payment for services of the Victorian Order is now gradually being laid to rest. Many have thought that the services of these public health nurses were limited to the poorer classes that cannot afford to pay for their nursing care. But the truth is that the V.O.N. renders service to all classes and renders it on the basis of a 24-hour day. For those who can afford it, there is a set fee; for those whose means are limited, they are asked only to contribute what they can afford to pay; and if they cannot pay at all, then the nursing service is free.

Figures for the past year support the broad base of V.O.N. work, its disregard of class and creed; and in 1943 12% of the patients treated paid all the fees, 18% paid part, and 60% were taken care of free of charge. The remaining 10% were holders of Metropolitan Life insurance policies.

Educational Work

Of the various phases of the nurses' work, bedside nursing is naturally the most important, but it is far from being the only activity engaged in by the Victorian Order. A very significant division of the work concerns the nursing care and educative training program pursued by the Order in matters of pre and post-natal care. Of all visits made in 1943 nearly half, a total of 2,575, were in the interests of mothers and children. Educational visits are made free of charge, and it is here the Order feels there is a great field of opportunity in the instructing of mothers. At present such visits are of necessity limited to such times as they can be sandwiched in between calls of a more pressing nature, but even so the nurses were able to visit one-third of the city's expectant mothers in 1943.

FIRE FIGHTERS TRAIN FOR BLITZ—Acrobats in firefighting training is the newest feature of the activities of British firemen. Lessons learned in the blitz form the basis of the new training program. Here you see two smoke-eaters walking a tight-wire bridge, carrying equipment. One man carries a ladder; the other totes 240 pounds of hose lines. There is no room for a 4-F in this outfit.

Soldiers Praise Canadian Socks

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Feb. 26 — (CP). — Four Canadian soldiers who were captured in Italy and released from Nazi prison camps by Italians to make their way tortuously back to Allied lines, had a special prayer of thanks for the clicking needles of Canadian women.

The men arrived in London with nothing but the tropicals they stood in, as they had lost all their kit at the time of their capture. They went to headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross here and were given sweaters, scarves, gloves — everything they needed to keep out the damp cold of an English winter.

"Their gratitude was touching," said Mrs. Dudley Ryder, formerly of Montreal, who is in charge of the distribution department of the Red Cross overseas.

Canadian women whose tireless hands seldom put down their knitting, and whose afternoons are spent in Red Cross workrooms from Victoria to Halifax, should be able to visit headquarters here and see the distribution of the things they make.

The big boxes from Canada are unpacked carefully and most of the hospital supplies, clothing and soldiers' comforts they contain stay a very short time here. As requests come in for these things from the services, the goods are shipped immediately. In November 32,159 articles went out to Canadian men in uniform and 3,297 to women.

As officers on their stations see that those under their command need warm underwear, scarves, sweaters, the requests are sent in to Red Cross through auxiliary services.

Many Comforts Available

Besides clothing, there was a pile of gay patchwork quilts and some cushions the day I visited headquarters. These go to the women's services, and make many a chilly Nissen hut where CWAC's or WID's live a warmer, more cheerful place.

If there's a surplus of clothing beyond the needs of the Canadian women here, they go to British girls. Mrs. Ryder had been sorting out heavy woollen underwear for Auxiliary Territorial women at an ack-ack post on the blustery coastline. Another box of heavy Air Force blue sweaters was ready to go to a squadron of WAAF's who operate a barrage balloon in all types of weather. There were heavy underclothing and stockings for the WREN'S, those who man the small coastal boats and who are often soaking wet day and night.

At a table an English volunteer worker was unravelling knitted mitts. Men overseas don't wear these, so thousands a month are unravelled and re-knit into gloves by British women.

Warming the servicemen and women isn't the only job of Mrs. Ryder's department — they often warm the heart of a Canadian mother too. When a boy or girl comes in to get warm clothing personally, the staff writes to the mothers at home to tell them how their children are looking and what they are doing.

"We write them all by hand," said Mrs. Ryder. "A typed letter might be a shock to some nervous women who would think her youngster was ill or hurt." Sometimes they write seven or eight letters a day.

Community Fund Aids Y.W.C.A. Carry On Social Service Work

One of the most important jobs done by the Y.W.C.A. in Peterborough is the assistance given to industrial war workers and soldiers' wives, when they arrive here as strangers and have no homes to go to. Assisted by the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, they placed more than 800 women during 1943 from a list of 209 homes. This is one of the community groups which receives a share of the Red Cross and Community Fund receipts from the drive for $60,000 which began Friday.

In the past three years, the Y.W.C.A. has sponsored the Mrs. Churchill Fund and the local group in that time has reached their allocation of $1,000 a year. The money is used wherever servicewomen are stationed, for huts and mobile vans, particularly in out of the way places. The local group also supports Hostess Houses which are all through the country, operating at army camps.

The residence, during the past year, was well filled and assured many girls of good meals and care. Clubs for girls of all ages are kept up, teaching the value of fellowship and the work of the health classes has been increased. Teen age and business girls at the "Y" every night of the week taking gym and swimming classes. The "All Nations Club" has proven to be popular and the members have been taking a series of lectures about Canadian history, government set-up, parliamentary procedure and the refugee problem. When a stranger of foreign extraction comes to the city, some of the group call on him, and make him welcome.

During the summer of 1943, Camp Ingelstane on Stoney Lake had 145 girls registered, and it was one of their most successful years. A special meeting of the Y.W.C.A. secretaries held after the regular camp also proved popular.

Every Monday night the facilities of the "Y" are available for a dance held for the men from the Training Centre. Here the boys can spend a few hours in a cheerful atmosphere and meet girls from good homes.

Along with the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A. is making an invaluable contribution to the youth of the nation, helping to build up team work and give girls a broader outlook. If they are to continue, they must have more money, and the Community Drive is expected to supply this need.

Aluminum Workers Assail Cheap Wages

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 26 — (AP). — Members of the International Council of the Aluminum Workers International Union, A. F.L., concluding its three-day convention here yesterday, went on record assailing "cheap wages" which they declared are prevailing among aluminum workers in Canada.

The "cheap-wage" issue was raised by the Louisville Council of the Union and the resolutions as adopted by the convention asked the American Federation of Labor and William Green, its president, to use their influence to obtain better wages for Canadian aluminum workers.

Miss Mary Eakins went to Toronto this week and is expecting to take an office position and remain in the Queen City.

Friends of Mr. Wesley Clarke, manager of the Bank of Toronto, Havelock, and whose boyhood days were spent in Millbrook, will regret to learn that he has been in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, owing to serious ill health.

Ex-Warden Percy Stinson, who has been a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for the past month, was able to be brought home on Wednesday, but will be convalescing for some weeks yet.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Payne go to Toronto today, the former having to undergo an operation on his right eye, which will entail remaining in the hospital for some weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bremner, and baby, have moved to the village this week from Peterborough, and are living in the house on Marshall street, formerly occupied by Mrs. Stanford Sloan. Mr. Bremner expects shortly to join the Navy, and has already reported for enlistment in that service. Mrs. Bremner was formerly Colleen Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Blair, of Millbrook.

RED CROSS
DRIVE
A HUGE SUCCESS

Everyone's help is needed to make the drive a success. It will take thousands of small contributions as well as hundreds of large ones to reach the objective of $60,000. Wartime needs increase our responsibility. All must make personal sacrifices, some on the battlefield and others on the home front. The funds are needed for necessary work, and your donation, whether large or small, will help in allowing the Red Cross and Community Fund of Peterborough to carry on. Please do your share.

The Joint Objective for the 9 Organizations in the Campaign is $60,000

THE Y.W.C.A.

- Y.W.C.A. Hostess Houses serve Soldiers and their friends.
- Hospitality and Entertainment is the wartime program at every Y.W.C.A.
- The Canadian Y.W.C.A. stands back of the British "Y" in its war work.
- In wartime more than ever, girls need the Y.W.C.A.
  Need its recreational facilities
  Need its residence.
  Need its friendship and help.

Help the Y.W.C.A. To Continue Their Important Work

Keeping up the morale of the women of Peterborough is every bit as important as keeping up the morale of our fighting forces. Women are playing a big part in our war effort, and their part will grow larger as time passes.

In war work, in industry, in offices and the home our women need the recreational and social facilities of the "Y." Women from out of town find in the "Y" a safe home. The educational facilities, swimming and showers, dancing and musical facilities provide health and interesting activities for our young girls.

THE PETERBOROUGH Y.W.C.A.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

One of the best battles of the season in the City Basketball League should be the clash between the C.G.E. and Pete McArthur's Orphans, called for 7.15 o'clock at the Y gym tonight. The Electricians with Joe Stewart staging one of his scoring splurges won the opening game in the league from the Orphans two weeks ago after an interesting argument but the McArthur clan came back strong last Saturday night to take a fall out of the Military Training Centre and if they can play back to the form they showed then tonight they should prove serious opposition, even for a club with so much scoring punch as the C.G.E. outfit undoubtedly possesses. Orphans have Baird, Steve Csumrik and Jim Ferguson in their lineup along with McArthur and that give them a bunch of experienced cagers who are liable to get hot tonight and set a lively pace for the boys from the big plant. C.G.E. in addition to Stewart and Currie came up with a couple of new performers in their initial fixture. With both teams at full strength the contest should be one of the hardest fought tussles of the campaign. A win for C.G.E. will put them well out in front while on the other hand a victory for the Orphans would leave the race all knotted up.

If ever a team won on sheer "fight" it was the St. John's girls in eliminating Generals from the senior semi-finals in the Ladies' Basketball League playoffs last night. The Saints found themselves down 7 to 0 at the end of the first few minutes and after they had weathered that storm and begun to take possession of the play they had no luck under the basket, blowing many scoring chances. They refused to crack however, kept on battling and finally in the second half their shots began to click and they gradually whittled down the Generals' lead. When they finally went in front for the first time early in the fourth quarter there was no stopping them after that. They kept driving in and while a lot of chances were lost they got enough shots on the button to pull away from the Generals on end and finally win 20 to 12. After scoring seven points in the first few minutes of play the losers found themselves held to one point in the second half. St. John's will now meet Transports in the senior finals.

Fancy The Fillies

Fillies played such valiant parts in the 2 year old turf dramas of 1943, that many astute horsemen feel that one or another may come up a real threat to any colts whose owners are ambitious to win the 70th running of the Kentucky Derby, on May 6th. Regret of 1915, is the only filly that ever won the Derby. In the history of the race, only 26 have gone to the post through the 69 years. The last to appear was Gold Seeker, which finished 9th in 1936. In the previous year—1935—Nellie Flag was rated so high that she was given the signal honor of being post favorite at Derby time—$3.80 to $1—against $4 to 1 for Omaha. The latter won, and Nellie finished 4th. Twilight Tear generally was rated the top filly of 1943, with Durazna close up. Boojiana, a bit on the in-and-out side, won some races by large gaps of open daylight; in others, she ran below expectations. Maybe she won't like distance—but it will take springtime training to furnish the answer. Mrs. Ames and Cocopet were sensations in early summer of 1943, but did not do so well through the autumn. Miss Keeneland may develop into a great route-running mare. Whirlabout was fast and stout-hearted as a 2 year old in 1943. Probably the best filly of the year was Bee Mac, bred by E. R. Bradley, and which raced in the colors of Miss Beatrice MacGuire, daughter of one of the officers of the Empire City track. Bee Mac whipped all the best colts and fillies in some of the important stakes races, but was so badly injured in a race at Pimlico that it was decided to retire her to the stud.

"On the heels of the news that Lloyd Waner, who will be 38 years old on March 16, is planning a comeback with the Dodgers comes word that Chuck Klein, who has passed the 38 mark, hopes to return to action this year with the Phillies," Doug Vaughan says in the Windsor Star. "In disclosing his intentions Klein said he believed that he could take part in about 75 games provided he is allowed to condition himself under his own system. Manager Freddy Fitzsimmons would agree to that without hesitation, because he knows Chuck well enough to be sure that the veteran outfielder wouldn't neglect to train diligently. During his last six or eight training campaigns Fitz was allowed to work as he pleased. He liked it and there never was a more active player in the squad. In fact Freddy did more work than most of the younger players and observers marveled at his tireless efforts. Klein, doing his own training, would probably emulate his manager. Chuck, with his legs in first-rate condition at the opening of the championship season would be equipped to render valuable service to the Phillies."

Meets Another Villain

Although Vic Holbrook, the sensational mat star from the Pacific Coast, should win next Tuesday's battle here in the main bout of the Tunney show he's not being handed anything in the way of a pushover. Strangler Bob Wagner of Portland, Oregon, has never been regarded as a soft dish. As a matter of fact everywhere he has wrestled and he has wrestled everywhere, he is looked upon as a tough battler, an experienced mat performer who knows all the angles and the answers and figures that the easiest way to win wrestling bouts is not to worry too much about form or finesse but rather to carry the attack in every way possible and soften up the opposition until it is a simple matter to pin his shoulders on the mat. So faithfully has the Strangler followed that policy that he has had crowds all over the continent calling for his scalp for the treatment he hands out to all the popular favorites. He thinks that he can beat Holbrook in precisely that way but local fans who are enthused over the clean-cut work of the Californian believe he is too fast and clever to be beaten by any back-alley stuff. However the contrast in styles should make the bout one of the most thrilling of the season. It will be supported by a well-balanced card.

Paying a well-deserved tribute to his favorite Oshawa Generals George H. Campbell, Oshawa sport scribe pauses in the middle of his boost to cross his fingers and issue a warning to the Motor City boys that there is lots of tough hockey ahead and their feat in scoring over 200 goals in the group schedule shouldn't be allowed to go to their heads. Here is what he says: "Did you note today's "banner" heading. Oshawa Generals set "world's scoring mark." Now, perhaps we are bragging a little, although 203 goals in 26 games will take a lot of beating at that. However, we will warn the Generals not to take the claim too seriously. After all, they still have to win at least one game in St. Catharines—or they'll not even be in the O.H.A. finals this year. The Generals averaged 7.42 goals per game this year and had 3.65 scored against them, which is a splendid achievement but it must be admitted the brand of competition throughout the entire circuit was not nearly as keen this season as in the past. Now we await Bunny Morganson's official scoring figures to see how Kennie Smith headed the point scoring parade and where the rest of the Generals stood."

Omemee Team Captures Frost Trophy

OMEMEE, Feb. 26 —(ENS) — Omemee Bombers won the Frost Cup, donated by the Hon. L. M. Frost, of Lindsay, by defeating the Haliburton Huskies 10-4 in a hockey tournament in Omemee last night. The game was fast and clean, and was more evenly contested than the score might indicate.

In the first game of the tournament, Omemee Bombers defeated Oakwood to the tune of 5-3. It was a very closely contested game, with Omemee making the most of their chances around the net. The goal getters for Oakwood were C. Tamblyn, McTaggart and Vic Jewell. For the Bombers, Thurston and Crawford scored two each and Parsons netted one.

The second game of the night was between Lindsay Silverwoods and the Haliburton Huskies, the latter winning by one goal, 3-2. The game was held up as the Huskies protested against Lindsay using Ellis. The Silverwoods dropped Randy Ellis from their line-up, and the game finally got under way. The first two periods were very rough, and stick and tempers were very high. The last period produced a fight as well as some good hockey. Phibbs scored all the goals for the Huskies, and Green and Grills scored for Silverwoods.

The final game between the previous winners produced the fastest game and the best hockey of the tournament. In the opening period Baker and Dart scored for Haliburton and Omemee tied it up in the closing minutes of play. Bradley beat Bannon on a neat pass from Thurston, and the Crawford Brothers scored when J. Crawford passed the rubber to R. Crawford, who drew the goalie out of the net and scored.

Baker Evens It.

Omemee opened the second period by scoring a beautiful goal on a nice passing play from Thurston to Bradley. Baker evened the score by sinking the rubber in the net on a pass from Dart. Deyell scored unassisted and again on a pass from Bradley, and R. Crawford got one to make the score 6-3 at the end of the second period.

Parsons for the Bombers opened the scoring early in the third period on a lone rush which took him the entire length of the ice. Baker scored again for the Huskies, Jack Crawford with two goals, and Deyell with one were the only other goals in the third period. Final score: Omemee Bombers 10, Haliburton Huskies 4.

On behalf of Hon. L. M. Frost, who was unable to be present, Mr. Harry Burgess, a member of the Omemee Council, presented the Frost Cup to the winning team. Keith Bradley, in accepting the cup on behalf of the Bombers, wished to thank Hon. L. M. Frost for the cup, and also the Haliburton team team for the sportsman-like manner in which they played the game.

The line-ups.

Apparently King Billie and his merrie men just got a little too confident of their powers or had been out visiting the night before they met the Saints, or maybe it was the Saints had a guardian angel floating around them when they met the Orangemen. Anyway the results were simply nothing short of a disaster with the Saints running off with all the spoils of battle and a score that will deplete the Orangemen's average. Your scribe has mislaid the score card but will give result next week. The win brings the Saints into a tie for second place with the Fighting Parsons who split their game.

The Wardens and Jesse James outfit are the two most backward teams of the season and we would urge the skips to play every game as per schedule to do some catching up.

It is not our aim to run many double game for any team except for the reason of bringing the schedule on an even keel. Also we would ask the skips to try and get the fees in. We are waiting to hear from No. 4, No. 8 and No. 9. All others are paid in full except one man.

Schedule for the coming week:
B.E.S.L. No. 1 vs. All Saints' No. 5
L.O.L. No. 2 vs. P.F.D. No. 8
S.O.E. No. 3 vs. B.E.S.L. No. 9
Brintons No. 4 vs. Wardens No. 6
Brintons No. 4 vs. St. James' No. 7
St. James No. 7 vs. B.E.S.L. No. 9

PCVS Basketeers Trim Lindsay

Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School's two basketball squads hadn't a great deal of difficulty in polishing off a double-header with Lindsay Collegiate senior and junior teams in the P.C.V.S. gym last night and taking the round in both divisions. Both teams had won in Lindsay a week before.

Coach Bamforth's senior outfit swept through the visitors for a 43 to 6 triumph, leading 27 to 3 at the half. As in the game at Lindsay the Scugog students showed little offensive strength and they seemed lost on the big Collegiate floor. They did a little better defensively in the second half by holding the winners down to 16 points after the rest but never developed anything that looked like an effective attack themselves. Moore by tossing in two field baskets and a free throw scored five of their six points.

The Peterborough team handle the ball smartly and did some nice shooting with Lee sparking the scoring with 10 although the points were well scattered among the squad, Kidd, Richardson, Thomson and Estlick all helping to pile up the score.

In the two games the Lindsay team was able to score only 11 points while P.C.V.S. seniors ran up a total of 80. The teams were as follows:

P.C.V.S. (43)—Kidd 7, Richardson 6, Lee 10, Thomson 7, Green 2, Estlick 6, Seabrooke 4, Patterson 1, Metcalfe, Collins.

Lindsay Collegiate (6)—Moore 5, Worsley, Trotter, Williams, Bell, Bryano, Wunker, Skitch, Gerow, Batt 1, Logan, Ranson.

The Peterborough junior who had won a cleancut victory in Lindsay a week ago came back with another win last night but they had a tougher time than had the senior squad. The final count was 19 to 14. P.C.V.S. led at the half by 9 to 6 and added to their margin in the second period when they outscored the visitors 10 to 8. The Lindsay kids put up a determined argument and the game was a good battle.

Matthews with ten points was the leading socrer for P.C.V.S. while Philp was the spark-plug of the Lindsay attack with six.

P.C.V.S. (19)—Matthews 10, Loftus, Graham 2, Ferguson, Ludwig 3, Lee, Graham 4, Menzies, Patterson, Lech.

Lindsay Collegiate (14)—Punnett 2, Philp 6, Ranson, Cullis 2, Puffer J. Gleeson, Batt 1, Logan 3, A. Gleeson, Lewis.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—Latest anti-farm suggestion advanced by Detroit's Jack Zeller is to take part of the $300,000 "lying idle" in the National Association treasury and set up baseball schools that would obtain and develop players for the lower class minors...Clubs from Class A1 up to the majors would have to fend for themselves, and Zeller figures this would produce players for the independent minor clubs, who would then sell them to the major teams that don't own farms.

One of Jack's complaints he reveals (via The Sporting News) is that the Dodgers came into Detroit last year and set up a baseball school at Pontiac, Mich....And why not? The Tigers apparently weren't doing anything to dig up the material in their own back yard.

Quote, Unquote

After absorbing a couple of blasts from Zeller in the course of explaining the plan, minor league boss W. G. Bramham wired this reply: When anyone is a party deliberately to giving the public misinformation when they have in their possession truthful facts to the contrary, it can only be charitably attributed to loquacious imbecility....The Jedge and Branch Rickey disagree on a lot of things, but it seems they talk the same language.

A man who would be one of the first to know if the Yankees were to be sold says that no negotiations are under way at present and that none of the offers made in the last three years still stands.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Art Ross, Boston Bruins' manager, said in an address at Ottawa Friday to a service club (Kiwanis) that "Canada's National Game is winning the war, and pray God soon."

Ross criticized sports organizations which thought of box office receipts in wartime. Of the National Hockey League he said: "A lot of things went on this year which won't happen again."

His own team had given "thousands" for war purposes.

The Boston manager added he is "hurt" when hockey players are put in categories that show them as quitters. "I say I don't believe there is a man playing hockey to-day who wouldn't lay down his life for his country," he said.

The National Hockey League game between Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings at Detroit to-morrow night has been sold out for a week, but to-day a desperate fan still held out hope of getting into Olympia Stadium.

In the Want Ad columns of the Detroit Free Press appeared this entry:

"Wanted—Four tickets to Sunday's hockey game."

Frank Gilpin, five years trainer for the Parkwood Stable, has decided to open a public stable, it was learned in Toronto. Gilpin, who also formerly trained for the late E. F. Seagram and Mrs. T. Stevenson of Hamilton, Ont., has taken over the three-year-old No Shores and the two-year-old Dr. Bob, both owned by Edward Dewart.

Mrs. Stevenson's Tempestuous, winner of the New Year's Hanicap at Santa Anita, the Autumn Cup at Woodbine and the Pontchartrain Handicap at Detroit, was trained by Gilpin through most of his racing career.

C.G.E. Breaks Tie With 4-3 Score

NORWOOD, Feb. 26 —(ENS) — A large number of hockey fans turned out to see the hockey game Thursday evening between the C. G. E. and Genelco when C. G. E. won 4-3.

The ice was fair, considering the mild weather, and the teams expect to come next week for another game.

Line up for C. G. E. was: Goal, Burns; defence, Burton, Brown; Centre, Tompkins; wings, Conroy, Carpenter; alternates, Kennedy, Williams, Allison and Wade.

Tompkins scored 2 goals in the first period and Vic Brown one in the second. Genelco scored three in third period. The last one was scored with just one minute to go. The play in the overtime was mostly around the Genelco net after Conroy scored the fourth goal.

The Genelco line up under C. Heintzman was as follows: Goal, Caravaggio; defence, McGuaige, Brockley; centre, Brayo; wings, Beauchamp and Dyer; alternates, Montgomery, Anderson, Platte, Armstrong, Duggan and Rogers (a former Norwood boy).

Brayer, Brockley and Dyer scored for Genelco. Armstrong received a sligth injury in the third period but was able to continue playing.

Brockley received a 2-minute penalty for protesting a decison. Penalties for C. G. E. were: Conroy 2 minutes for holding. Williams 1 for tripping, Carpenter 1 for hooking. The referee was Pat Calladine.

Montreal Curlers Capture Trophy

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—(CP).—Royal Montreal Curling Club yesterday captured the Lady Tweedsmuir Trophy when two of its rinks edged out a pair of Ottawa Club fours 21-20 in the grand final of the double-rink competition on the ice of the Rideau Club here.

It was the fifth time in the seven-year history of the tournament that the trophy has gone to a Montreal club. Individual matches were won by ample margins. Mrs. A. D. McCrae's rink provided the winning margin with her 14-6 triumph over Mrs. A. E. Mahood of Ottawa.

The eight shots were just enough to swing the final count in favor of Royal Montreal, although Mrs. R. R. Williams' Ottawa rink came through with a 14-7 win over Mrs. L. B. Unwin of Montreal.

St. John's Take Semi-final In Basketball

St. John's came from well behind in last night's senior playoff game with C. G. E. Generals in the Ladies City Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. to win out 20 to 12 and take the semi-final round two games to one. As a result they will now meet the Transports in a best-of-five series for the senior title.

The intermediate series is all tied up, however. After winning the first game of the best-of-five round a week ago Y Cadets were beaten 22 to 14 last night and the series is even with one win each.

The senior game was a tense battle in which the Saints won by sheer fight and determination. Generals got the jump on them, ran in three quick baskets and were in front 7 to 0 at the end of five minutes. Then the St. John's girls rallied and began to carry the battle, although for most of the first half they had difficulty in locating the basket.

It was 11 to 5 in favor of Generals at the half but the ultimate winners came out fighting in the second half and outplayed the Electricians all the way, so much so indeed that the Generals were held to a solitary point in the final two quarters. By the end of the third session the Saints had climbed to within a point of sewing up the game, the score standing at 11 to 10 for Generals. In the opening minute of the final quarter a neat basket by Eileen Hewitt put the church team in front for the first time 12 to 11 and from then on they took command of the game and steadily pulled away until they had an eight point margin when it was all over. In fact, the only point collected by the losers after half time was a successful free throw by Eleanor Craig.

It was a close checking hard-fought battle with everybody on both sides working every minute she was on and two tired teams walked off the floor when it was over. Eleanor Craig was top scorer for the night with six points for the losers and Mary McPherson contributed four. Teresa Heslip topped the Saints with five points and Marg. Hawthorne and Peggy Lawless each had four to their credit.

The teams:

St. John's—20—Marg. Hawthorne, 4; M. Dyer, 2; Teresa Heslip, 5; Eileen Hewitt, 2; Eva Clarke, 2; Doreen Groombridge, Peggy Lawless, 4; Edith Harte-Maxwell, 1.

Generals—12—J. Hickey, Dot Allen, Shirley Mortimer, Mary McPherson, 4; Eleanor Craig, 6; J. Rahmel, Monica Lawless, 2; June Moore, Isobel Bullock.

Referee—Joe Cooper. Umpire—H. Smith.

Normalities in turning the tables on Y Cadets in the second game of their intermediate final series played good basketball all the way sparked by Reta Chappelle and Evelyn Frits who had their sights on the basket and did some accurate sniping. The former was responsible for 12 points and the later for ten.

The Normal team outscored the Cadets in the first half to lead 12 to 8 at the rest period and they enlarged their margin in the second session by hanging up 10 points while the Y team was collecting six.

It was an interesting tussel all the way and the series now tied up with one each is anybody's round.

Normals—22— Reta Chappelle, 10; Mary Vanderwater, Evelyn Fritz, 8; Pauline O'Donnell, 2; Verna McNalley, Helen Baird, 2; Agnes Nelson, Reta Heffernan, Joan Griffin, Mary Duffitt.

Y Cadets—14—Patsy Martyn, N. Soothern, D. Saunders, 6; Betty Stewart, M. Spicer, 2; Betty Braund, M. Barrett, 4; Ann Young, 2; Barbara Weir, N. Ackerman.

Mauriello Bows To Baksi In Ten Rounds

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The heavyweight fistic ranks have a new title threat today—and the new titleride.

The threat is 22-year-old Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., former anthracite coal miner who last night in a rough and rugged scrap before 16,-815 fans at Madison Square Garden punched out a 10-round decision over Tami Mauriello of the Bronx, N.Y.

Mauriello entered the ring as the No. 2 ranking challenger for Joe Louis' crown, a 5-12 favorite, but he left it a badly-beaten boy.

Baksi, making his first main event start in the Garden, flattened him for a nine-count with a left hook to the jaw in the first round, piled up an impressive lead in the early sessions, and then coasted to victory. The decision was unanimous and the fans who paid $50,434 to see the scrap were satisfied.

After the fight Baksi announced he was married just a week ago to Miss Anne Tomchik of East Nassau, N.Y., a farm girl he met last summer.

Baksi's bride was not at the ringside for last night's bout, and she didn't hear it on the radio or read about it in the papers. She went to a movie, and then listened later while Joe explained what happened.

Baksi outweighed Mauriello 210½ to 196¼ pounds, and had things his own way most of the time. His jarring left hook and a long right, which he threw with abandon, found their marks time after time and Tami was never dangerous.

Mauriello said he injured his hand in the third round, but that was after he had been floored for the nine-count, and long before he staged a whirlwind finish to take the last two rounds by a comfortable margin.

TOMMY FARR OFFERS CONGRATS—At a Canadian brigade boxing match overseas, Tommy Farr, former British Empire heavyweight champion and one of the few who have stayed 15 rounds with Joe Louis was an interested spectator. Here, Farr congratulates Sergt. George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., on winning the cup for the best performance of the evening.

Saints Clinch Top Spot Beating Majors

By The Canadian Press.

The Saints of St. Catharines clinched first place in the scheduled race of the Senior O.H.A. last night with a 4-2 triumph over Majors at Hamilton, gaining a margin of points in the standing which the Hamiltonians, in second place, cannot absorb in the one remaining fixture. Toronto Navy will visit Majors Monday night for the final set-to of the schedule and Saints are five points to the good.

It was 1-0 in the first period with Umbo Concessi bulging the net for the eventual winners, but Hamilton braced in the second to make the count 2-all, then faded in the third to permit the visitors to ram in two more, with Doug Boston notching the winning counter. Other scorers for St. Catharines were Paul Mundrick and Doug Fritz. Doug Runions and Johnny Conick came through with Hamilton's goals.

A small crowd at Stratford saw the Kroehlers bow to Hamilton Whizzers 4-3 in overtime in the sole Junior A argument last night. Four points were awarded to the winners on this one and the result eliminated Stratford from the title picture. Hamilton remained in the third spot in Group 1.

Hamilton led off with a 2-1 margin in the first period only to have Stratford take a 3-2 lead in the second. Whizzers equalized the count in the third and Lymburner scored the payoff goal in the extra session. Spittal, Comfort, Jacklin and Lymburner were the score-collectors for the winners. Stoddard, with two, and Tindal, one, counted for Stratford.

Chicago Needs 2 Wins Over Week-end

By The Canadian Press.

Chicago Black Hawks, fortified defensively by Joe Cooper and relying for offensive strength principally on the threesome manager Paul Thompson describes as the best forward line in the National Hockey League, seek this week-end to strengthen their hold on the fourth place—the league's last playoff spot.

Now two points ahead of fifth-place Boston Bruins and with 11 games to play compared with nine for Boston, the Hawks can strengthen their position by winning the week-end engagements against the Maple Leafsat Toronto on Saturday and against New York Rangers on home ice Sunday.

Boston's lone contest sends them into Montreal Saturday for a clash with the league-leading Canadiens, who return to action on Sunday at Detroit.

Cooper, recently discharged from the Canadian Army, gives Chicago added power on defence, but most of the Hawks' strength is generated by the fleet forward unit of Clint Smith, Doug Bentley, and Bill Mosienko. Thompson says Toronto fans "will be looking at the best" when they see this combination in action to-night.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — (CP). — By coincidence two of the greatest hockey goalies of all time were interviewed during the past week. They are Percy Lesueur and Paddy Moran, rivals more than 30 years ago.

Lesueur played with Ottawa's Stanley Cup champions in 1909 and 1911. Moran was in goal for Quebec Bulldogs when they won the Cup in 1912 and 1913.

Moran, 66, and a Customs House employee in Quebec for 35 years, told Lloyd (Montreal Star) McGowan he was a hockey professional from 1910 to 1916 and his total earnings approximated $4,000. The average for a season was only a little more than $500.

"I've seen them lining up at six o'clock in the morning for a game that night at Quebec's Grand Alley Rink," Paddy recalled. "We played in gaslight. The rink held only 1,400, but sometimes there would be 2,000 there."

In Moran's book, Joe Malone was the greatest scorer and best stickhandler of his time.

Lesueur, interviewed by Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon, agreed that Malone was one of the greatest of all players. But, said Percy, Malone had so much natural ability and mechanical greatness that he made hard play look easy. Thus Malone had not been as colorful as some of the other great players.

Lesueur claimed the most colorful of all hockey players were Howie Morenz, Cyclone Taylor and Eddie Shore. As an afterthought, he added King Clancy and Sprague Cleghorn to his color class.

Percy offered an interesting comparison of two of the greatest centres the game has known. "Morenz and Taylor differed i n style, Cyclone not inviting the bumps Howie took but combining his speed with expert stickhandling to circle, rather than barge through defences. When Cyclone was in stride, neither Howie nor any other player ever went faster."

Of the old-time stars worthy of consideration for a place in hockey's Hall of Fame, Lesueur named such as Tommy Phillips, Hod Stuart, Didier Pitre, Newsy Lalonde, Jack Laviolette, the Patrick Brothers and Harry Smith. He refused to choose an all-time, all-star team, explaining no one could conscientiously call the six best men in hockey history.

McSpaden Leads At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 26.—(AP). —Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Merion, Pa., blasted par by four strokes with a 32-36—68 to lead the first round of the $5,000 New Orleans golf tournament Friday.

Still riding the brilliant play that carried him to victories in three major winter tournaments, McSpaden posted his low score despite a stiff wind that whipped across the tough city park course all day. The wind held down his drives to an extent, but McSpaden's almost flawless putting proved too much for his competitors.

Sammy Byrd of Birmingham, who arrived in town at noon yesterday after being accepted for the navy, banged out a two-under-par 35-35—70 which gave him a second-place deadlock with long-hitting Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N.Y.

Byron Nelson, veteran of the pro-wars from Toledo, O., complained of bad lies on the fairways and said his putting distressed him, but finished with a 35-36—71. He was the only other man in the field to whittle par on the first day of the 72-hole event.

Only contestant to shoot even par was Jibmy Hines, with a 36-36—72. The Amsterdam, N.Y., professional recalled wryly that he boomed over the course for 70's in two tune-ups for the tournament.

Farther down on the list among dark horses, any one of which is given a chance to gallop off with the open, was Milton Demaret of Houston, brother to the colorful Jimmy who swept the New Orleans test four years ago. Demaret sank a short approach shot on the 18th hole for an eagle three to finish up with 38-35—73, which tied Leonard Dodson's 37-36—7.

CANADIANS COMBAT BOOBY TRAP MENACE IN ITALY—All through the Italian campaign, mines and booby traps have proved one of the chief hazards and this is the way the advancing troops are combatting the menace. At the Left, Sgt. A. Kerr, Owen Sound, and Lieut. R. S. Brown, Vancouver, B.C., point out a trip wire of an S. mine. The S. mine also has a push ignition which would cause explosion when stepped on. The centre picture shows a display of various mines and booby traps at an Italian training camp. Left to Right they are: Igniters Mark III Teller mines with detonators and booby trap attachments; Prepared 5 lb. charge; Ignition adapter Mark II Teller mine; Demolition, high explosive and German fusing. Back Row: Mark IV Teller mine and boxes of detonators; S. mine with 3 igniters; 2 Magnetic beehive mines; A-T.S. mine with push ignition; and Italian Box mine. At the Right, Spr. G. C. Bullock, Kingston, places a "hot cross bun" to indicate the spot where Spr. R. T. Gilpin, of Toronto, has discovered a mine by means of a Polish mine detector.

Music for the dancing was supplied by Ouellette and Patton.

Epitaphs On Tombstones Carry Wide Range Of Information

By C. H. IRESON

Of the quotation of epitaphs there is no end and their name is legion. In these modern days they have almost fallen into disuse but if one walks through the church yards and cemeteries in the Old Country, one can generally see an epitaph which is worth noting.

They are of every type, some amusing if one may use the term in such a connection, many pathetic and some unduly sycophantic.

But turning from the general of the particular and from far-off fields to our own cemetery a tour through our own beautiful "God's Acre," Little Lake Cemetery (now some 90 years old) discloses some interesting epitaphs and memorials.

Probably that best known to the general public is that over the grave of the strong man, Daniel MacDonald, which tells its own story: "In memory of Daniel MacDonald, died October 27, 1871, aged 33 years."

"Ye weak beware, here lies the strong,
The victim of his strength,
He lifted sixteen hundred pounds
Now here he lies at length."

If it is true that the evil that men do lives after them and that the good is oft interred with their bones, it is only fair that the merits of the departed should be written in stone to form an enduring monument to their virtues and the services rendered by them to the community. Here in Little Lake cemetery we find many testimonials to the public services rendered by various citizens of the past; these form an epitone of and commentary on the civic life of the community in days gone by.

Let us consider some of these. Starting at the southern end we come to one erected in memory of James Robert Stratton, 1859-1916. For 22 years he represented West Peterborough in Ontario and Dominion parliaments.

"Not very far away there is a monument "In memory of William S. Conger, M.P.P., for the County of Peterborough who during his lifetime filled the office of sheriff of the county, warden of the county council and mayor of the town of Peterborough. This monument is erected by public subscription in memory of his continued and disinterested efforts to advance the interests of the town of Peterborough."

Passing on we come to James Hall who held many public offices. He was M.P. for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, 1849-1851; sheriff of the same counties, 1856-1863; sheriff of the County of Peterborough, 1863-1872; M.P. for the East Riding, 1873-1878; mayor of Peterborough, 1852-1855, and first president of Little Lake Cemetery Company.

We find another prominent citizen in James Stephenson, 1829-1910. "For ten terms mayor of Peterborough; for nine years member of parliament."

In another sphere of action was Capt. Donald Andrew Fraser, 1789-1866, "who served his country with distinction as an officer of the 42nd Regiment in many of the actions of the Peninsular War and at Waterloo, and also acted for many years as police magistrate for the County of Peterbroough, beloved and respected by all who knew him."

There is a striking tribute to work well done on a monument "Erected as a tribute of respect in the memory of John McNabb, surgeon, 1871. He was constant and unremitting in all acts of benevolence and charity, at all times ready and by his skill in his profession he rendered to the poor and needy his gratuitous services."

These are some of the memorials to men prominent in civic life but there are others of a wider interest.

Probably unique is the memorial to one John A. Sherlock, whose cenotaph lies near the banks of the Otonabee River.

"In memory of John A. Sherlock, Canadian voyaguer, one of those who volunteered for prolonged service under Lord Wolsely. He died at Kaiber on the Nile in the Soudan, March 26, 1885, aged 26 years and 4 months. There is not a name, there is not a stone, and only the winds from the desert make moan; but he'll never be forgotten, no never."

But the unique feature is that there is imbedded in the monument a small piece of fossilized wood which was taken from the vicinity in which he died and sent to his relatives here, who had it fixed into the monument. This strange relic from the tropical Soudan has weathered, without damage, the rigors of many Canadian winters.

Not far away we find a monument of more than local interest. A granite cross marks the last resting place of Isabella Vallancy Crawford. This gifted young woman, in her lifetime comparatively unknown and now almost forgotten, possessed, according to great literary critics, the true genius of poetry. The monument was erected by friends and admirers and has an inscription of simplicity and strength, "Poet by the Gift of God." Could a multitude of words say more?

At the end of our journey and not far away rises that landmark so well known to all visitors to the cemetery, the bronze angel standing with outstretched wings, facing the rising sun, erected "In loving memory of John MacDonald, eldest son of the late Lieut.-Col. John MacDonald, died March 27, 1892, aged 45 years."

Fishing Note

MONTREAL, Feb. 25 (CP). — United Nations armed forces have been using a new "secret weapon" — a lethal gas, known as 'D.D.T.,' which, it is said, kills all mosquitoes within a radius of three miles. The "disclosure" was made at the final session here of the three-day annual meeting of the Canadian Pest Control Operators' Association.

France's Cellars Stalled Hitler

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 26—(CP) — "For some reason or other, Hitler in the mad rush of the summer of 1940 turned to plunder the well-stocked cellars of France before going to reach for the prize of Britain, apparently at his mercy. How near he came to us, and why he did not consummate his great desire, will remain one of the mysteries of all time!"

This was one of the striking sentences in an address given before the Canadian Club Wednesday by Rt. Hon. Leslie Burgin, M.P., former member of the British Cabinet now engaged in an officially-sponsored lecture tour of North and South America. Dr. Burgin was Minister of Supply in Britain during the first years of the war.

BIG LOOT.

CARDIFF, Wales —(CP) —Ronald Faulkner, 22, and Kenneth Muston, 21-year-old fireman, don't do things by halves. And as a result, they are in the toils of the law, it being alleged they stole a 60-ton railway engine, jumping out after it had gone two miles. The engine then raced driverless at 40 m.p.h. until it was switched into some sheds at a busy station.

NEW PARATROOP MOTOR SCOOTER—Sgt. Gordon Davies, Glace Bay, N.S., takes a ride on the new paratroop motor-scooter. Small as a child's toy it will travel more than 30 miles per hour and can easily be dropped from a plane by parachute. It is standard equipment now with Canadian parachutists training in England.

A MEAN THIEF

Peterborough has its share of mean citizens. Among the meanest may be listed the sneak thief who stole a tin box of the Chinese Red Cross Patriotic Fund from the Hollywood Cafe several days ago. The receptacle, with its contents gone, was found in a yard back of the Kingan Hardware Company this morning. It had been locked with a chain and padlock but the chain had been cut through with a pair of pincers and the top of the box pried open to get at the money.

IN FLEET AIR ARM.

Arthur J. Geraghty, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Geraghty, 317 Pearl Avenue, has applied for a commission with British Admiralty, Fleet Air Arm and is at present in London, England, after receiving a call from that department. He has his Bachelor of Science degree in aeronautical engineering from Park Air College, Illinois and for the pats year was employed in the engineering department of Canadian Pacific Airlines. His father is a partner in the F. and G. Grocery chain.

WIN BONDS

The War Savings Stamp draw held in conjunction with the Canadian Legion cigarette bingo Friday night resulted in the following eight attendants each receiving a five-dollar War Savings Certificate: Billy Burke Chemong Road; Bob Hendry, 313 Miatland avenue; A. Stanley, 523 Bolivar street; Helen Clark, Lift Locks; Mrs. Higgins, 247 Hunter street; Mrs. Minnie M. Smith, 228 Perry street; Mrs. F. Storey, 130 Maria street; Mrs. E. J. Mohre, 691 Stewart street.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY

Col. Haggart of the Salvation Army, Toronto, is to be the speaker at the luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday. His subject will be "An Army of Peace in a World at War."

NO POLICE COURT

There was no session of the police court this morning. After a busy night Thursday in which a flock of arrests were made the police had a blank Friday night without a single case. As a result the magistrate found no docket for him this morning.

WILL RECEIVE DONATIONS

Headquarters of the Red Cross and Community Fund is at 287 George street, between Charlotte and King, and here donations will be received. In every campaign there are always a number missed by the canvassers and these are asked to make their contributions at the campaign headquarters.

20 More Blind Here In 4 Years

The number of blind persons in Peterborough increased from 36 in 1940 to 56 in 1944, information received from the Canadian Institute for the Blind whose appeal for public support is included in the new campaign of the Red Cross Society and Community Chest Fund.

"We must not only provide services to this increasing number but also provide preventive and curative treatment in a positive effort to prevent blindness."

This campaign which you are urged to support provides essential help for men and women of the armed forces but its funds also extend to assistance for the blind here at home.

Murder Trial Held Next Week

Interest in the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court which open in the Court House here on Monday afternoon at one o'clock, with Mr. Justice Hope presiding, will centre in the murder trial in which Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert, 47, is charged with killing her husband, John E. Hubert, 41, in Douro township last November.

Hubert died suddenly in his home, and after the body had been removed to an undertaking establishment it was found that he had been shot in the back. Mrs. Hubert was arrested by Provincial Police several days afterward and charged with the murder of her husband.

Evidence in the case will be submitted to the Grand Jury on Monday afternoon, and if a true bill is returned the trial before the petit jury will likely commence on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Hubert will be defended by John A. Bradshaw.

Policemen Seek Help For Benevolent Fund

Tickets for the Peterborough police department draw and dance are to go on sale Monday and will be in the hands of all the members of the department. The proceeds will go to the Police Benevolent Society and the draws will be made at the annual dance to be held at the end of April.

The prizes for the draw are as follows:

WALLY CROUTER

Dispatch Rider Wounded At Italian Front

Racing through German observation lines in a desperate effort to get an important message to his unit's front lines, Wally Crouter, of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, who was acting as a dispatch rider, was wounded in the right knee January 26, according to a letter received by his mother, Mrs. C. H. Crouter, 399 Edison avenue.

He wrote that his motorcycle was dashing ahead at full speed and enemy planes were machine gunning overhead and shells were passing perilously close from German guns. That is the last thing he remembers. When he became conscious he found he was off his machine and had crashed into an abandoned truck.

"I was at the mercy of either our own or German soldiers, for I found I couldn't walk. Luck was with me, though, for one of our men came along and drove me to an Indian dressing station. From there I was taken by stretcher on a hospital train to the Red Cross Hospital where I am now. By the time you get this letter I will have had my operation and be on the road to recovery," Wally Crouter wrote.

The injury was a break in the right knee and he said that the operation was either to have a piece of bone removed or to have them wired together. The chaplain told him that he would be sent back to England, where he would have his leg in a cast for several months.

Mrs. Crouter has had no official word yet about her son's injuries.

Crouter enlisted in the Army four years ago at the age of 17 and he has been overseas for the past two years. Before enlisting he was a messenger boy with the C.P.R. Telegraph.

Outram, Stewart street, as lieutenants in the 4th Reserve Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery. Lieut. W. T. Fanjoy, Homewood avenue, has qualified as a captain with the same unit.

For the 43rd Field Regiment the following qualifying certificates were granted: Lieut. W. A. R. Perry, Lindsay, as captain; 2nd Lieut. W. J. Loukes, Cobourg, as lieutenant; 2nd Lieut. J. H. Moebus, Lindsay and Lieut. H Wood, Lindsay, as lieutenants.

Wonderful Work Of Services Told By Padre

"Our boys have been supported by the same organizations that you are supporting here," was an emphatic note struck in his appeal on behalf of the Red Cross and Community Fund drive by Captain, the Rev. T. W. Jones of Montreal, speaking to a large gathering of the workers in this year's campaign at the Genelco cafeteria Friday night.

Capt. Jones, minister of Calvary United Church and senior Y.M.C.A. officer with the 1st Division overseas in the opening months of the war and during the Battle of Britain, was guest speaker at the dinner marking the opening of the drive. He painted a picture of the life and work of Canadian troops stationed in England in those crucial times, paid tribute to their courage and devotion to duty and praised the spirit of the English people in enduring the hardships of those unforgettable days.

"I question whether there is any army better cared for than the Canadian Army," Capt. Jones said, discusing the intimate work that is done by the four organizations that associate directly with troops overseas. These four, the Knights of Columbus, the Salvation Army, the Y.M.C.A. and the Canadian Legion, had representatives who "lived with the various units and shared everything that they had to share."

Unlike the American Army, where there is a tremendous and well-developed organization in the U.S.O. but where auxiliary services are not permitted inside the camps, the Canadian service groups are part and parcel of the military establishment, Capt. Jones declared.

Encouraging Facts

He had encouraging words to speak of the life of soldiers interned in the prison camps of Germany and passed along the report of a highly-placed neutral representative of the Red Cross, returned recently from an inspection of such places. "If you have boys who are prisoners now, I tell you it would have put new heart in you to have heard this man speak," Capt. Jones averred. "Though you still must carry a heavy burden, it would have made a great difference.

"By the grace of God there is something coming out of this war," he continued, describing phases of the report as heard by him. At one camp there were four orchestras and a director of music who was formerly conductor of the Warsaw Symphony; at another 55 university professors; at still another chaplains of all creeds and denominations, who each conducted services in the one chapel and were already training some students for the ministry.

"I wish I could pick you up and transport you over there," the speaker said. "Then there would be no need of speeches to tell about the indomitable spirit of the English or the great kindness they have shown our men. To tell the truth, no words are adequate to tell the story of the people during the Battle of Britain, sleeping on cement platforms in the underground tubes night after night, month after month, emerging to work by day and always keeping their faith, their courage and their sense of humor."

Make Their Places

"Our lads have made a place for themselves in the hearts of the English people," he said. "Our boys have been given the very best they had to give. Canadian soldiers have been entertained by the King and Queen," and he added in praise of their Highnesses the statement "if ever a people had cause to give thanks for their rulers, the English had such cause in those trying days."

Several hundred were on hand to hear the address of Capt. Jones, who was introduced by J. R. Marshall and thanked by Mrs. R. Turner, president of the Red Cross. Miss Canada girls sold stamps to the diners, and the band of the local military training centre was there. An honored guest at the head table was Sgt. James Ireland, returned soldier of the Hastings, Prince Edward Regiment, and a member of that unit who worked with Capt. Jones in the early days of the war in Britain.

Obituary

HARRY MUNRO

Harry Munro, the son of R. J. Munro who owned and operated the Munro House which is now the Examiner building, passed away recently in Toronto. Born in Lakefield, he came to Peterborough as a boy of five and lived here 30 years, working with the Peterborough Hardware. He moved then to Toronto.

He is survived by a daughter, Mary, a sister, Irene, who is a registered nurse in Toronto; and by a step-brother, Kelly Munro of Cobourg. His wife predeceased him early in December.

GOT IT ANYWAY—Sapper Arthur Bovair, in England with the Canadian Engineers, writes his wife who is at Nick's Camp here, to say that he received a parcel sent by her some time ago, and it was marked "Saved from the sea." However, in spite of the dunking, Sapper Bovair said that the contents were in perfect condition. He is one of three brothers overseas.

Nature Lovers Hear Dr. Dymond

Under the auspices of the Peterborough Nature Club and the Women Teachers' Guild, Dr. J. R. Dymond of the Royal Museum of Ontario, addressed a very large audience of both adults and children in the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening. Dr. Dymond, who was introduced by Dr. A. J. Madill, took as his subject "Social Life of Animals."

In drawing his comparisons Dr. Dymond showed that animals were to a large extent like human beings; they gathered together either for protection or because of capable leadership. Animals also displayed a social standing whereby everyone had a certain place to fill.

He recommended a greater teaching of nature lore in our elementary schools and with the children practising what they are taught there would be less juvenile delinquency. He declared that the juvenile delinquency was found in urban centres and not in the rural areas with the children who daily lived with nature.

He illustrated his talk with very interesting colored slides which showed how the robin, the grouse, and many other birds all had their own territory and would fight to keep it wholly theirs.

A moving picture on the preservation of wild life in Canada and soil conservation, which traced the steady decline of both the soil and wild life through abuse on the part of man, was shown. It also showed what is necessary for a return of productive soil and an abundance of wild life so essential to the welfare of mankind.

V. R. Henry, the president of the club, was chairman of the evening, and Alex Kay moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Miss Margaret Westbye sang "The Leaves and the Wind" and a little Irish song, "Kitty of Coleraine," and Miss Alicia Langley chose as her wo numbers "Summertime of Bredon" and "Happy Song."

Potato Stock Found Plentiful

"We are getting locally all the potatoes we need," George Clark of National Grocers informed the Examiner respecting recent reports of Maine stock coming into the country and being distributed. "And I might say that it is good quality", he added.

Considerable doubt has been following in the trail of the story, but Mr. Clark said he had no information except what had been published.

National Grocers are still out of onions, and the local market was never so bare as it has been since Christmas. New crop vegetables from Texas, cabbage, carrots, beets, spinach are coming into the city. Some of the prices have actually been below the ceiling. Two cars of bananas were distributed by National Grocers this month.

"If more boats were available there would be plenty of bananas," Mr. Clark added.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—The British Information Services have said yesterday that British anti-aircraft batteries, aided by "new secret devices," now are shooting down eight German planes with the number of shells needed to shoot one down in 1940.

Veterans' Total Passes $1,900 For War Victims

Men who fought in the active service of their country some twenty-five or more years ago, know full well out of bitter experience, the hardships that those in the actual zone of hostilities have to undergo, and while the armaments of those days, particularly aircraft had not reached to any way near the height of destructive potential that exists to-day, they still were capable of causing considerable loss of life and damage to property.

To most of them, two outstanding features would remain with these old soldiers to their dying day, the first of which would be a horror at all this destruction that ensues when a country is at war, and the other would be that sense of loyalty to the cause, an outgrowth of those days when every man labored under a stern discipline to act as a unit in its defense.

Veterans living in this city and now banded together as Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion and unable to again serve in an active capacity, have demonstrated their loyalty to the cause by volunteering in the home front job of alleviating the distress of those who are suffering these same horrors of war in the front line in Britain, and it is to their credit that they have exhibited that same steadfastness that characterised their efforts of the now distant past, for their efforts have been one of the most outstanding features of the work that the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund has been endeavouring to do in the name of the residents of this city and district.

They Pass $1,900 Mark.

To-day their usual monthly contribution through G. Gimblett and G. G. Torrence is recorded in an amount of $62.65, which now gives them the total credit of $1,903.74, a splendid help which gives them third highest place in money raised for the fund from any one particular source, and it would not seem at all out of place to predict that e'er long, they will have reached and passed the $2,000 mark.

St. James A.Y.P.A., Emily.

The Anglican Young People's Association of t. James' Church, Emily, come into the picture with a donation of $5, through their treasurer H. Franks, and it is interesting to note that their motto of Fellowship, Worship and Service all can find an answer in this gift, for real fellowship is displayed in their helping unknown persons because they know they are in need, and since all gifts of this nature are given as if to the Great Creator, they perform an act of Worship, while service in highest form is rendered when it cares for the needs of others.

This same church through its Ladies' Aid was represented in this column not so very long ago with a substantial gift for a group of this size, and this latter donation shows a widespread interest in general for the sufferers from air raid attacks in Britain by the members of this congregation.

YMCA Big Help To Men In Services

The Peterborough Y.M.C.A., one of the organisations included in the Community Fund, has contributed heavily of its membership to the Armed Forces fighting in this war, and during 1943 there were 111 who joined up, a total which is to be added to the 199 enlistments of prior years. "These brave boys," as was said by John R. Marshall, president, at the annual meeting, "have been retained on our membership." He added that the close of 1943 saw a total membership of 775, with 515 in the senior section and 260 in the junior section.

Service to the Armed Forces in the Training Centre and to those on leave has been and is a very important part of the Y.M.C.A. work. During the past year, as an example, 10,883 took advantage of the showers and swimming pool facilities offered by the Association, which is playing a valiant part in the community life of the city. Moreover, several dances were held in the gymnasium under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee of Servicemen; and extra beds have been required at various times to take care of the overtaxed dormitory.

The swimming department of the "Y" is deserving of special mention. Under the experienced direction of Gordon Minty it has turned out one of the topflight younger swimmers in Canada to-day. William Lech, who won the junior Canadian championship at Winnipeg this fall, and later at a meet in the Y.M.C.A. pool equalled the Canadian record.

The Boys' Department has an increase of 36 members over the year 1942, and of 9 over 1941. Boys' clubs are a feature of this department, and one new group was organized last year—the Rural Members' Club—consisting of boys from the rural sections coming into Peterborough to school and devoting their noon hour once a week to club meetings and physical activities. The Intermediate Club collected magazines for soldiers and fats for salvage during 1943, and a total of $137 was made and donated to various schools, the Y.M.C.A., and community funds.

Last year 111 boys were taught to swim and a large number of boys qualified for advanced certificates; in all 367 awards were won. The annual free "Learn to Swim" classes for boys of the Primary schools were conducted during April and May with 67 boys registered.

The Friday Night Supper Club continues to carry on efficiently, though it represents an age group hit hardest by the enlistments for war service and can boast of 160 members in the fighting forces. A new feature in social education with Quirt McKinney as chairman has enrolled 19 young men and 51 young women.

Tojo Takes Over More Power In Jap Set-up

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—Premier General Hideki Tojo finally has unified the Japanese government. For the first time in modern Japanese history, the government and the high command are one.

Tojo himself now is both Premier and Army Chief of Staff. His Navy Minister, Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, is doubling as Navy Chief of Staff.

Thus the traditional dualism in Tokyo—military and civilian—fades as Tojo gathers all controls into his hands.

The background of some of Tojo's new ministers indicate that he felt the changes were necessary to reassure the Japanese people, just let in on the fact that the Pacific War is going against them.

Tojo found his recent cabinet reshuffle expedient just after he let the Japanese know about the loss of Marshall Islands outposts and the American assault on Truk—which the Japanese people had been told could never be attacked, much less attacked with Japanese losses admitted to an unprecedented extent.

On the home front Tojo made these changes:

Out of the Finance Ministry he kicked Okinori Kaya, a bureaucrat with much experience in exploiting conquered territories like North China.

His successor as Finance Minister is another bureaucrat, Sotaro Ishiwata—but more orthodox than Kaya. It may be significant that Ishiwata was Finance Minister once before— in the short-lived Hiranuma cabinet which before the outbreak of war tried to prevent Japan's adherence to the pact with Germany and Italy.

Shinya Uchida is the new Minister of Agriculture. He formerly was identified with the old Seiguaki Party, which until its abolition stood for what passed in Japan as Liberalism.

Keita Goto is the new Minister of Transport and Communications. He is a parity in Japan, a private railway operator.

This looks like domestic appeasement.

Tojo, who since late summer has been ramming through a drastic war program, may be trying to overcome criticism levelled at the government's handling of finance, food and transport.

To the Japanese, Tojo personifies the war, the bold gamble for world empire. He himself is hinting to the Japanese people that the bold gamble is back-firing.

He may have to go.

Night Fighters Have Bagged 128 German Planes

By GEORGE TUCKER.
Associated Press War Correspondent

ADVANCE AIR HEADQUARTERS, Italy, Feb. 26 — (AP) — One of the hottest groups of night fighters in the war is a gang of kids who call themselves the old City of London Squadron. They have shot down 128 enemy planes, all at night.

While they work other pilots sleep. Seventeen of these victories were in England. In North Africa they got 38, in Sicily 42 and so far in Italy they've bagged 31.

Against this in more than four years of fighting is the incredible figure of only two ships lost by enemy action. Both were shot down at night over Bone, North Africa, but the pilot of each got an enemy ship before he went down.

The boss is Wing Cmdr. Paddy Green, a South African-born Englishman who learned to fly at Burbank, Calif.

Green and his observer Flt.-Lt. R. J. Gillies, a reformed travelling salesman from London, have scored 11 victories. In nigth fighter squadrons observers and pilots always share victories.

Highest scoring pilot in the squadron now is Flt.-Lt. Johnny Turnbull, a lanky bank clerk from St. Thomas, Ont. He is the only Canadian in the outfit and has been credited with 12½ German planes.

Turnbull has been wounded and shot down twice. Once he was shot down while fighting at 30,000 feet and centrifugal force pinned him in so tightly that he was only 1,000 feet off the ground when he managed to bail out. Turnbull said he began to worry a little during that last 500 feet.

It was FO. Alwayn Downing who shot down five Junkers 52's in 10 minutes off the Sardinia coast one night, and for it was awarded the United States Air Medal.

The closest co-operation imaginable exists between this squadron and American night fighters.

Christmas Gift Delights Soldier

NORWOOD, Feb. 26 —(ENS) — The Willing Workers met at the home of Mrs. H. Rusaw on Monday evening.

Correspondence was read which included two letters from Archie Brooks and Jack Breckenridge for Christmas cards sent to them overseas .

There was a motion to send $10. to the India and China Relief fund and a draw was made for the pillow slips with Mrs. John Curtis the lucky winner. The members sold tickets on it amounting to $11.85. The treasurer's report was read by Lois Stackhouse and showed a balance of $46.21. The program consisted of games followed by sandwiches and cake.

The following letter was received from Jack Breckenridge:

"Although I received your card before Christmas I just haven't answered until now. While in London December 18, I saw some twenty or more of the Norwood boys and they had also received your remembrances. It is grand to know that you all remember us and I am sure Norwood is second to no village or town in Canada for looking after her boys.

"We all meet representation from the farthest corners of the Dominion but personally I doubt if any receive letters and parcels from so many organizations as well as individuals other than their immediate families, I have seen none."

CANADIAN "WIDS" IN WASHINGTON—Sitting on one of the low stone walls that surround the Canadian joint staff mission in Washington, D.C., where they work, four airwomen of the Royal Canadian Air Force enjoy the noonday sun. OTTAWA, Feb. 26—(CP)—Promotion of a Brigadier to the acting rank of Major-General, appointment of five new Brigadiers and announcement of the return to Canada of Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, an overseas divisional commander, to take command of Camp Borden, was announced to-day by Defence Headquarters.

Here is the line-up:

Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, C.B., M.C., M.M., 54, a native Scot and expert on mobile armour, returns to Canada to take over command at Camp Borden;

Brig. A. C. Spencer, 56, of London, Ont., present commander at Camp Borden, becomes chief administrative officer at the camp;

Brig. George Kitching, D.S.O., 33, of Montreal, succeeds General Worthington as commander of a Canadian division overseas;

Lt.-Col. Geoffrey Walsh, D.S.O., 34, of St. Catharines, Ont., is promoted to the acting rank of Brigadier and is appointed chief engineer of a Canadian Corps;

Lt.-Col. Earle Ritchie Suttie, 34, of Yarmouth, N.S., is promoted to the acting rank of a Brigadier and given command of a group of artillery.

General Worthington has, since the First Great War, been a strong advocate in the use of mobile armour. Born in Scotland, he emigrated in his early youth to California, where he barely completed his schooling before embarking on a career of soldier-of-fortune. He took part in a revolution in Nicaragua and a rebellion in Mexico and when world war broke out he sped from Chile to Montreal to enlist with the Black Watch as a private.

Going overseas in 1915, he remained at the front until the end of the war, except for a short trip to England after being wounded. He won the military medal twice, on the Somme and at Vimy, and the military cross twice and at war's end he was a captain of a machine gun regiment.

Demobolized in 1919, he joined the Canadian permanent force. Taking over command of the Canadian armoured fighting vehicles school at Camp Borden, Ont., in 1939, he was made Lieut.-Colonel, and as brigadier took over the first Canadian armour brigade for training in England. In 1941, he was appointed to command an army tank brigade, and in February of 1942, he took comand of a Canadian armoured division overseas with the rank of major-general.

On the outbreak of war he joined the Royal Canadian regiment and went overseas with the first contingent of the first division.

General Kitching was apointed to a senior staff position at the headquarters of the first Canadian corps in 1942. He was later promoted to the rank of Lieutenant - Colonel and assumed command of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment. He was awarded the distinguished service order for his services in Sicily.

He was appointed brigadier of a Canadian infantry brigade in Italy in November, 1943.

Brig. Lane was born in Edmonton, and educated at Royal Military College. His home is Halifax and Mrs. Lane resides at Hamilton, Bermuda.

Brig. Booth was an officer with the 1st Hussars of London, Ont. when war broke out. He went overseas in November, 1941 and was appointed second in command of a Canadian armoured regiment in July 1942.

He was attached to the British First Army in North Africa in 1942, later returning to the United Kingdom to assume command of a Canadian tank regiment. He subsequently won the Distinguished Service Order while leading his unit in Sicily and Italy.

Wealth No Sign Of Able Leader

TORONTO, Feb. 26—(CP)— Opposition Leader Jolliffe yesterday told the Ontario Legislature that "democracy is in danger" when a large part of political policy does not come from responsible political leaders but from men whose only claim to a hearing is that "they have millions."

He named a number of prominent industrialists and linked them with the name of Gladstone Murray, Toronto policy counsel. He said Mr. Murray, former general manager of the CBC, had been "a complete failure as a public servant" and that his efforts to speak on behalf of democracy should be "examined with care."

Mr. Jolliffe named as supporters of Mr. Murray, Arthur Schom, president of the Ontario Paper Co., and Lord Barnby whom he described as "one of the sponsors of the English-German fellowship which spread Nazi propaganada. He said other supporters were the president of the Massey Harris Co., the president of the Imperial Oil Co. and the president of the Imperial Tobacco Co., although he did not give their names.

He added that there were also a number of other men in Canada who now were "devoting their time and money to individualism."

SHOE SHIPMENTS.

LONDON—(CP) — Boots and shoes sent overseas to British troops are packed separately, those for the left foot going in one case, those for the right in another. The reason: the high rate of pilfering, in transit and in warehouses. This might discourage it.

In life, as in fiction, events mount to a CRISIS . . . that supreme hour of tension and effort, when everything we have and are, our lives, our wealth, our prayers must be thrown, unreservedly and with all our might, into the balance. That hour is near. Now, as never before, the Mercy that is Red Cross will be needed to support and comfort our brothers . . . our husbands . . . our sons in their great crisis. It is in their name, and against their fast-approaching need, that the Canadian Red Cross now asks your most liberal generosity to this National Appeal.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

To-day I am going to take you back to some old-time recipes. These were always good, and loved by all the family, but due to the rationing of some of the ingredients, we have had to not serve them of late. One of these recipes is for a real old-fashioned gingerbread. We can now get for one D coupon 40 fluid ounces of molasses, and 15 ounces of corn syrup. Now this increase in molasses especially, enables us to have the real old-fashioned homemade ginger bread, such as mother used to make.

One-third cup shortening, ½ cup buttermilk or sour milk, ½ cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon soda, one egg, one teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup molasses, 1½ cups flour, pinch salt. Bake in a shallow pan in moderate oven for half an hour at 350 degrees.

Method— Cream shortening and blend in sugar gradually. Add beaten egg, a little at a time, beating well after each addition, add molasses. Mix and sift together the flour, salt, cinnamon and ginger. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Add dry ingredients alternately with liquid to creamed mixture.

Ginger Snaps.

One cup molasses, two tablespoons water, one cup lard, one teaspoon cinnamon, one cup sugar, two teaspoons ginger, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda, four cups flour. Cream lard, sugar and molasses and add the soda dissolved in water. Sift the dry ingredients with ½ of the flour and add to the lard mixture. Then add the rest of flour and work into stiff dough. Chill and then work into thin sheet. Cut with a cookie cutter and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) 12 minutes. Makes 100 cookies.

When passing a fruit store the other day I saw bundles of delightful red rhubarb in the window and it brought to my mind a recipe for delicious rhubarb custard pie and I am going to pass it on to you for I know you will like it.

Rhubarb Custard Pie.

Two cups rhubarb, boiling water enough to cover, let stand until cold then drain. To the rhubarb add one cup white sugar, two eggs, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon butter, pinch of salt. Bake in uncooked pie shell.

Pie Paste Recipe.

Eleven tablespoons flour, five tablespoons crisco or other shortening, three tablespoons salted water. This makes enough for one large and one small pie.

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Hard To Beat

Very Easy to Make. No Cooking. Saves Big Money.

No matter what you've been using for coughs due to colds, you'll be the first to admit that this surprising relief, mixed in your own kitchen, is hard to beat, for real results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—anyone can do it. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really excellent cough relief—about 4 times as much for your money. Tastes fine—children love it—and it never spoils.

You can feel this home mixture taking right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness and difficult breathing, and lets you sleep. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

DOROTHY DIX

PITY CHICKEN-PECKED MOTHER.

Children Rule Home, Placing Furniture, Locating New Residence, Making Parent "Has Been."

The henpecked husband is the object of universal commiseration. True, a certain amount of contempt is mingled with our sympathy, but it wrings our hearts to see an able-bodied man who is so terrified by his wife that he jumps when she speaks to him, and who wipes his feet on the doormat before he enters the house that he supports by his labor.

But, strangely enough, there is another victim of domestic tyranny whose plight is even worse than that of the henpecked husband, and that is the chicken-pecked mother. But, instead of pitying her, we congratulate her, yet her sufferings are greater than those of the man, for he, at least, has only one old hen to boss him, while she has many chicks to shoo her around.

Children Influence Parents.

Little is said about this divertissement of the young in pushing their parents about and interfering with all of their tastes and habits because it is so common in this country that it is scarcely noticed. The chicks are hardly hatched out of the shell before they begin to rule the roost, and there is scarcely a family in the land in which adolescents do not lay down the law about what street they shall live on, whom they shall know and how they shall generally conduct themselves.

These are minor pecks, however, that parents bear with fortitude, cheered by the hopes that when their children grow up and get married and leave home they will have some liberty and be able to do as they please. But, alas, this dream of freedom never materializes if, as often happens, there is an unmarried daughter left who considers it her sacred duty to continue her supervision of Mother.

It does not matter if Mother is merely a middle-aged woman, strong and healthy and in full possession of her faculties. Unless she is on her guard and has spunk enough to fight for her rights, the daughter deposes her from her position as head of the house and elects herself she-who-must-be-obeyed. She changes the furniture around to suit her own taste. She orders the meals. She decides upon Mother's activities. She gives the parties for Mother, instead of Mother being the hostess.

Mother Relegated to Has-Beens.

And before Mother knows it she finds herself relegated to the has-beens, a tottering old soul who has to be supported as she walks and who is so senile that she doesn't know what it is all about and Jane has to decide everything for her. And all of her friends sigh, and say how sad it is, and how fortunate she is to have such a devoted daughter. And no one seems to realise that it is daughter's chicken-pecking that has brought Mother to the state she is in.

If you doubt this assertion, just look around among your acquaintances and you will observe that the mothers who have no devoted daughters look about ten years younger and a hundred times sprier than their contemporaries who have them. Why, I have seen a woman who looked as if she were on the verge of the grave absolutely rejuvenated by her old maid daughter getting married and leaving her.

Of course, these henpecking daughters do their ghastly work with the best intentions, and they pat themselves on the back when they relieve Mother of all responsibility. But Mother doesn't want to become a stooge. She likes to boss, too.

In a millinery shop I once met an old friend of mine who was buying a gay hat, and she said: "If Jane were here she would not let me get this, but I have been wearing Jane's hats for twenty years and I've hated them every one, but now she is gone and I can please myself. And I am going to dress according to my taste, not hers."

And she did, and she had a grand time every afterwards.

Women of City Churches Unite For Prayer Service

"It is inspiring to know that women in all parts of the world are meeting for a like purpose," said Mrs. Wood, of the Salvation Army, addressing the gathering in St. James United Church Friday afternoon during the World Day of Prayer service. Mrs. Wood took as her text a verse from Ephesians, and stressed that God lives and is able to do much more than even ask or think.

She also said it was gratifying to know the leaders of the country had such faith they wanted a day of prayer, and womenfolk had such faith they would meet and pray for those in peril, and suffering.

The service was read from special folders, sent out by the Inter-Board Committee of the Women's Missionary Societies of Canada, and a representative from each church taking part in the Day of Prayer, read a portion of the lesson. Mrs. E. M. Davies, of St. James United Church led the service.

Representatives from St. James' United Church, St. George's Anglican Church, St. Andrew's United Church, Bethany Tabernacle, Trinity United Church, St. John's Anglican Church, St. Luke's Anglican Church, All Saints' Anglican Church, Murray Street Baptist Church, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Mark Street United Church, George Street United Church, Knox United Church, and the Salvation Army were present.

Took Part.

The ladies taking part in the service were: Mrs. E. M. Davies, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. J. H. Rowe, Mrs. D. Wyatt, Mrs. W. Farr, Mrs. W. A. Filer, Mrs E. Dinner, Mrs. A. H. Campbell, Mrs. E. H. Howson, Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Mrs. H. Tremaine, Mrs. E. Graham, Mrs. C. Weldon, Mrs. J. Halcrow and Mrs. Walter E. Crone. Mr. Cecil Lapp was at the organ, and Mrs C. Weldon, the soloist, sang "Alone."

The service was the outcome of a fellowship gathering at which representatives of fifty different nationals, and repatriated Americans, worked to prepare it. The folders were sent to all countries joining in that gathering, and on February 25, the same service was read throughout the whole world.

At the evening service, held at 7 o'clock, members of the C. G. I. T. and the Teen-age groups conducted a special youth program. Miss M. Graham, leader of the Girls' Council, was leader, and Miss Jean McIntyre, led in prayer, and Miss Joan Deyell read the Scripture. Mrs. H. H. Graham was guest speaker. The theme of the service was "Prayer," similar to the afternoon. Mrs. Moore was at the piano.

There were ten churches represented at the second evening meeting, held at 8 o'clock in St. James' United Church and they were Trinity United Church, George Street United Church, St. John's Anglican Church, Murray Street Baptist Church, Bethany Tabernacle, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the Salvation Army, Park Street Baptist Church, and All Saints' Anglican Church.

Those taking part in the program were Miss Jean Hammond, Mrs. O. Smith, Mrs. C. McBride, Miss E. Massey-Cooke, Miss Margaret Eastwood, Mrs. L. Hiscox, Miss M. Greer, Mrs. L. Casey, Mrs. Leslie MacLaren sang "The Lord's Prayer," and Mrs. G. S. Shaw sang "We Lift our Hearts to God."

Capt. V. Graham of the Salvation Army, was guest speaker, and took as her text a verse from Isaiah, "Oh that Thou wouldst rend the heavens, that Thou wouldst come down, that the mountains might flow down at They presence." The speaker urged all Canadian women to seek guidance and strength more earnestly in prayer, and thus be enabled to add to their spiritual strength and the whole nation.

Mrs. Robert Ross and Mrs. D. Loomis conducted the evening service held at the Anson House, and Mrs. W. Young read the prayers. Mrs. Jessie Spencely was soloist, and sang two well-known hymns. The same program was followed.

Y.W.C.A. Club Doings

This week our citizenship idea has been "Who is Your Neighbour—Know Your Community and Your Fellowman; For World Peace Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself."

A study group has been formed to meet each Tuesday from 7:30 to 8:15 p.m. until Easter, that is, a Lenten series. The discussion topic is "The Christian Community" dealing with the idea of community in the Old and New Testaments, the Great Commandment, Racial Equality, and Meeting Obligations to Society. It is expected that a large number of club, gym and residence girls will avail themselves of this opportunity to clarify their ideas of "community" through Bible Study and discussion.

The All Nations' Club held their regular meeting in the club supper room on Tuesday. Mrs. Downes Miss Ward, Miss Mary Ellis and Mr. La Plante were welcome as new members. The program consisted of a question box on "Personality and Etiquette." A lively discussion folowed on the questions, led by the president.

An executive meeting was held before supper at which plans were discussed for future meetings. It was decided to cancel next week's meeting because of the school play. A special program is being arranged for March 9th. It was decided to send the afghan made by the club to the National Council for a Blue Triangle Leave Centre.

The Friday Supper Gentlemen's Night held last Saturday was a decided success. This banquet and program were presided over by Jean Ferguson. Guests at the head table were Mr. and Mrs. O. S. IN MEMORIAM.

CURTIS. — In loving memory of Albert Curtis, who passed away February 26, 1942.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Always remembered by Mrs. F. Steadman.

350 American Internees Move Into Spain

IRUN, Spain, Feb. 26—(AP) — German occupation authorities at Biarritz, France, have made arrangements for some 350 American civilians interned as enemy aliens in German-controlled territories to join the American Diplomatic party at Lisbon which is being exchanged for German nationals.

The American civilians are scheduled to cross the Spanish frontier February 28 and to be repatriated aboard the Gripsholm along with 37 wounded United States War prisoners, diplomats and several hundred other civilians including newspaper correspondents.

Announcement of the new repatriation was made at the last minute as the diplomatic internees were leaving Germany, and apparently was intended as a precedent to initiate exchange with the United States of this new category. The civilian internees will include almost all United States citizens in the German interment camps of Tittmoning and Laufen, both on the old Austria-German frontier.

Taylor Henry, Associated Press Bureau Chief at Vichy when the Germans took over there and one of the American citizens being exchanged, said one of the most striking points to an observer inside Germany is the fact the defeat of the Nazis must come through the defeat of their armed forces. There is almost no sign that an internal collapse is worthy of consideration as far as the people as a whole are concerned, he said.

Henry said an equally striking fact is the decrease in German fighting strength which became apparent as their morale increased. This decrease was based mainly on losses of manpower on the Russian front and the inability of German war production to compete with that of the United Nations.

Dancing was enjoyed to music provided by Davis' Orchestra from Warsaw.

LONDON, Feb. 26—(CP) On the outskirts of the dirty, bomb-bashed little Arab-French town of Souk-el-Kemis, a strange new army bridge was thrown over the Meddjerdah River last winter by the Royal Engineers.

It was built quickly and it looked like something done with a huge meccano set. We were told confidentially that this was the British Army's new "Bailey bridge," the latest bridging development being used in North Africa for the first time on operations.

Throughout the campaign, it was on the secret list. There were Bailey bridges at Medjez-el-Bab and down by Le Kef and Tebessa but still nothing could be said of this bridge, which was brought up to the front in steel sections, loaded on trucks.

In Sicily, the Germans blew up scores of bridges and the Bailey replaced them, speeding the advance. The Canadian 1st Division engineers erected a dozen Baileys during the campaign. But the bridge was still secret.

The Bailey went with the troops to Italy and there again it was the best army bridge on the front.

Now the secret is out. The mysterious "Bailey" who invented the bridge is Donald Coleman Bailey, 42-year-old civil engineer who lives at Southborne on England's south coast.

This man has done one of the great jobs of the war. Last year he received the Order of the British Empire in recognition of his work.

Bailey described his invention as "just part of my job." For 12 years he's been designing bridges for the army and this new one, which now tops the list, was accepted 18 months ago.

"The bridge's chief merit, I should say, is its simplicity and that very simplicity made it easy to design," he said.

Derbyshire Loss Starts Tories On Campaign

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 26 (CP Cable)—The Churchill coalition government is going on the offensive in future by-elections in Britain and will carry the fight to the vigorous Common Wealth campaigners and others who have revelled in political controversy in recent by-election contests.

Conversations have been taking place, it is learned, between national headquarters of the Conservative, Labor, Liberal and National Liberal parties which form the coalition government regarding the best methods of co-operation in combatting activities of belligerent and outspoken anti-government organizations.

Until now, in view of the party truce agreed upon by the four parties in the government, conduct of by-elections has been left to the party defending the seat.

Answer Vigorously

The new move to leave defensive positions and attack the government's opponents on the hustings is the result of a political inquest held after the West Derbyshire by-election in which the government's candidate was decisively defeated by an Independent Socialist. It is felt such defeats could be avoided if the government parties put their case more strongly to the electors and provide vigorous answer to charges made by the Common Wealth and other critics.

Prime Minister Churchill himself is taking a keen interest in the new proposals and he had a private report prepared on the West Derbyshire by-election. Despite his onerous responsibilities, he is carefully watching developments in the Bury St. Edwards by-election next Monday where the Conservative candidate, Maj. E. M. Keatinge, is opposed by Mrs. Corbett Ashby, an Independent Liberal.

Both Conservative and Labor organizers here believe the ascendancy of the Independents and government critics is temporary and due largely to the fact that government members are "frozen" to a large extent by the electoral truce — thus there is pressure to modify this truce to cope with the Common Wealth whose appeal to date has been based on something more than winning the war.

Teach Indians To Grow More Vegetables

By JAMES McCOOK,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 —(CP) — Canada's 120,000 Indians are busy learning to paddle their own canoe.

The Indian Affairs Branch of the Resources Department has started a campaign to increase agricultural production on Reserves, distributing instructional charts emphasizing the food value of vegetables and supplying seed to Indians who cannot buy it themselves. Some $13,000 worth of seed already has been bought for distribution in British Columbia.

Indians in lake areas are being encouraged to enlarge their fishing operations and $20,000 worth of fishing equipment has been bought for distribution in Northern Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

As the largest collective landholders in the Dominion— the area of Reserve Lands is 5,423,734 acres — the Indians are being encouraged to make a larger contribution to the nation's meat supply. Pure bred bulls worth $20,000 have been purchased for Prairie Indians, two goat herds have been established at Spanish and Golden Lakes, Ont. Small herds will also be sent to agencies in Northern Ontario if present plans mature.

Officals who expect to see more and more Indians able to stand on their own feet in respect to food supplies noted that last year about $1,000,000 worth of food stuffs, including bacon, beef, lard, flour, rolled oats and rice, was purchased from Parliamentary Appropriations and Indian Trust Funds for distribution to needy Indians.

Secrets: To the rest of the world a meeting in camera and a meeting in secret appear very much the same—the public can't get in. But it seems there is a subtle difference and the House of Commons was quite exercised over it this week.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader who had been referring to in camera hearing of War Expenditures Committee, said there is a well defined rule that evidence given in camera is not given in secret and that a member has to be guided by his own conscience as to what he will subsequently divulge. A secret meeting was secret and nothing could be said about it.

Manley Edwards (L-Calgary West) said speaker J. A. Glen should give some guidance as to what "in camera" means. He cited a similar request for guidance made in the British House, when the speaker said evidence given secretly cannot be divulged.

Parliamentarians forecast the House would talk about it again.

Wounded Use Up Plasma Quickly 5 Donors Give 1 Bottle Serum

Although the Blood Donors Clinic has maintained a fairly good attendance, Red Cross headquarters are asking that their quota be increased. It takes about five donations to make enough serum to be used for an ordinary war casualty and many more if a man is bady wounded. In the battle of El Alamein, 8,000 bottles of serum were used roughly, blood given by 40,000 persons. In anticipation of heavier fighting, the Red Cross is making an urgent appeal to get more serum now so that Canadian soldiers will have enough blood to care for their wounded.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WHICH IS MORE LIKELY?

BETWEEN TWO propositions, which do you consider the more likely? One is that a not-vulnerable player had a suit of more than six cards in length when he made an overcall at the level of one. The other is that the six outstanding cards of a suit will be evenly divided, with three in the hand of each opponent. We all know the odds are heavily against such a split of a suit. And calm reflection in his memory should tell any declarer that most overcalls, especially when not vulnerable, are on suits of six cards or less rather than seven cards or more.

North: ♠ 7 6 4 2 ♥ A K J 9 3 ♦ None ♣ K 7 5 2

West: ♠ 9 ♥ 7 2 ♦ K Q 9 8 6 4 ♣ Q 9 6 4

East: ♠ K 5 3 ♥ 10 8 6 4 ♦ 10 3 ♣ A J 10 3

South: ♠ A Q J 10 8 ♥ Q 5 ♦ A J 7 5 2 ♣ 8

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass

After getting into that slam with the aid of the Blackwood slam convention, South should have been able to make it. He failed solely because of that peculiar tendency of some players to fear one very unlikely danger more than one which is a probable threat.

When West led the club 4, the declarer reckoned he might as well take a chance that West, a freakish leader, was underleading the ace against a slam—first unlikely fear—and used the K, which the A killed. South ruffed the club J return, saw that he had to reach the dummy for trump finesses, so led the heart Q and overtook with the K. The spade Q finesse now worked, so he led the heart 5 to the A to finesse the spade J. The spade A then dropped the K. The diamond 2 was ruffed by the spade 7 and the heart J led, a diamond being tossed. If it had dropped the remaining two hearts, then the 9 and 3 would have furnished discards of the last two diamonds, but it didn't drop them. So now he had to lose two diamonds and was down two.

Success of that play depended on the heart split. The contract could have been made by ruffing a diamond on the third trick for a spade finesse, ruffing a second one for a second finesse, dropping the last trump and playing the hearts naturally without overtaking the Q. But he said that risked an over-ruff of the second diamond lead, since West bid them. This could have been possible only if West had seven diamonds.

Your Week-End Lesson

Can you think of any situation in which a declarer should deliberately lead to a defender a suit in which it is virtually certain the latter can take three successive tricks? How about setting up an example of it?

Arguments On CBC Livens Session In Parliament

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—(CP).— The storm signals which have marked the month-old 1944 session remained flying high when the House of Commons closed another week of business last night.

The members approved a motion by War Services Minister LaFleche to again set up a special committee on radio broadcasting, but in so doing exchanged some vigorous comments on broadcasting in general and the CBC in particular.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, who commended much of the work done by the CBC, heard Liberal and New Democracy speakers say CBC news broadcasts placed too much emphasis upon what he said and upon his party policies.

Gen. LaFleche said Mr. Coldwell had expressed some fear that Canada might some day be governed under National Socialism.

"I do not think that will be the case," he continued.

"Nor do I," said Mr. Coldwell.

"We now have the member from Rosetown-Biggar (Mr. Coldwell) expressing publicly in this House the view, the opinion that he will never come to power," replied the General.

Wants Retraction.

Rising on a point of order, Mr. Coldwell said Canada was at war with the National Socialists and that when members tried to apply the term to the C.C.F. they transgressed the House rules.

"I say that it (the statement) be withdrawn or you arrest me as an enemy of this country, one or the other," he added. "You cannot have it both ways."

Speaker J. A. Glen said Mr. Coldwell had denied he was identified with the National Socialists and, having stated his position, there was no point of order. His decision on whether a withdrawal should be made probably will be given Monday.

Dr. J. J. McCann (L.-Renfrew South), chairman of the Radio committee last year, said the CBC had a fine record of accomplishment during the last six or eight years, with expansion and improvement of services.

He expressed belief the time had come when it would be advisable to have a full-time, well-paid general manager of the corporation, who would have the rank of deputy minister. If there were a smaller board of governors, it might be well to have regional advisers for the four different sections of Canada—the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada—"to give the benefit of their knowledge of their various areas.

Statements that there was conflict between the CBC and privately-owned stations were incorrect since they worked in co-operation, said Mr. McCann.

Gen. LaFleche said the CBC Board of Governors has not yet made a recommendation for a new general manager.

Publicity Stunt

The minister said that when the Progressive Conservative party showed the CBC a speech to be made by John Bracken, national leader, last December it had never expected it to be passed for broadcasting as the script stood. The Progressive Conservative move was a "too-clever piece of publicity," he said.

He said C.C.F. speakers had charged political interference with the C.B.C. by the government and he denied such interference had occurred.

"I have no admiration for men who do nothing of which I know to help win the war but remain at home, perhaps not unwillingly yet effectively to cause trouble in a family which should remain united so that we can do a better job in helping the other United Nations in downing our enemies," said Gen. LaFleche.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (ND-MacLeod) said the CBC "could not dangle the name of Coldwell in front of the people almost every day without it having some effect on the people."

There should be a supervisory body with control over both the CBC and private broadcasters, without the CBC being given a monopoly control of broadcasting, he continued.

Capt. Walter Tucker (L—Rosthern) said the C.C.F. leader was being held up as the leader of the future and the CBC was not giving a true picture in its news broadcasts of what happened in the house.

Far from feeling it had an advantage, the C.C.F. believed it was discriminated against, Mr. Coldwell said.

Wants No Monopoly.

Replying later, Mr. Hansell said Mr. Coldwell was "wrong again." On the night in question he had listened to two different broadcasts and Mr. Coldwell had obtained the script for only one.

He said his constituents had told him the C.C.F.. and Mr. Coldwell in particular, regularly received prominent mention and he had heard the same report from other sources.

Tom Reid (L.-New Westminster) said there was danger in allowing too many newspapers or chains of newspapers to own radio stations. Mr. Reid said former Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia, had proposed a provincial bill which would compel newspapers to publish letters sent to them by men who thought they had been framed. Nothing has been done about the bill but it showed the trend of the times.

The committee should see how many newspapers controlled radio stations. Some might be put out of public life by criticism they were unable to answer. Freedom of speech should not be the monopoly of either government or private interests.

Pig Purchased For Burns' Supper In England Factor In Starting Hunt For Murder Clue

By DOUGLAS AMARON,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Feb. 26 — (AP) — Four years ago the Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver bought a pig for the Sergeants' Annual Burns' supper.

The battalion then was in England and because of rationing they kept their purchase secret to protect themselves and their butcher. The pig was chloroformed to drown its squeals and smuggled into camp and slaughtered. The entrails were dumped down a drain followed by false teeth of the Regimental Sergeant Major, sickened by the smell of the chloroform.

The drain became plugged and plumbers, called to clear it, discovered the teeth and the entrails and summoned the criminal investigation branch.

An investigation followed and the R.S.M. now a Major "innocently" guided the police in search of other evidence of "murder."

Authorities finally were convinced there was no homicide but the secret of the plugged drain was never revealed in its true light. The story, which R.Q.M.S. Stan Welburn and Pipe Major Edmond Essen of Vancouver swear is true was recalled at this year's Burns' supper held in Ortona January 26 within range of the German guns but still in full tradition of the time-honored celebration.

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, Feb. 26 (CP) — War correspondents, telling the day-to-day story of Canadian soldiers in Italy have come to appreciate the hardships of war and to admire the men whose home is a slit trench, whose fare is bully beef and whose occupation is fighting.

Compared with soldiers whose every hour is lived in danger and discomfort, war correspondents have no cause to bemoan their lot, but being human beings as well as two-finger typists, they do sigh at times as they recall the luxury of civilized life.

An Italian town not far from the front will live long in the memory of correspondents who reported the Moro Valley battle for Canadian newspapers. It was there they set up advance headquarters, in a windowless house the Germans had used as a machine-gun post.

Maj. Bert Wemp of the Toronto Evening Telegram, Maurice Desjardins, correspondent of French language papers in Canada, and Lieut. Fred Whitcombe of Sarnia, Ont., have especially vivid memories of that town and house.

They shared a top floor room and one night "Sunny" Italy loosed on them one of its frequent storms. For several hours a gale lashed the precarious tiles of the roof and one by one they blew away, leaving the rain free to drench the correspondents and their belongings.

At the same time a chimney from the smoky kitchen below caught fire. Italians, living in the same building, paraded through various correspondents' rooms in search of a lamp, which the wind blew out again as quickly as they lighted it.

It was a sleepy corps of correspondents that tried to work next day, but some set out in open jeeps over roads deep in snow and mud. The road to the north was blocked by motionless traffic; the road to the south was one way—and the wrong way.

Only four miles from the front, correspondents were as far from the war as were their readers in Canada and not even a dispatch rider could get through to carry a message telling of their plight.

That gave one insight into conditions under which soldiers live. The men up front experienced that gale too and emerged from it, as did Maj. George Renison of Toronto, with 30 inches of water in their dugouts and slit trenches.

Correspondents don't share the dangers of fighting men but to get their stories they have to go into areas under shell and mortar fire and to positions within reach of German snipers and machine-guns. Every correspondent has had a "close one."

They don't have those experiences every day, but they are sufficiently commonplace to inspire respect and admiration for the fighting soldier to whom bullets, bombs, shells and discomfort are the rule and not the exception.

Many Old Posts Marking Surveys Missing

Few investments made on the part of the public exhibit the peculiar situation that prevails with regard to land surveying, where no allowance was ever provided for the maintenance of the original investment, it was stated by John W. Pierce, Ontario land surveyor, addressing the Friday meeting of the Kiwanis Club. "Millions and millions have been spent down the years on township surveys, but scarcely a cent is now expended on keeping up the survey corners and erecting new marks where the old ones are rapidly disappearing," Mr. Pierce said.

The original surveys upon which all the boundaries of to-day are based were first begun in 1783 and continued for many years thereafter, the speaker remarked. Though it was the recommendation of the Governor of Upper Canada in those days that a proficient technical man be placed in charge of the work, his advice was not acted on, and a lawyer, D. W. Smith by name, was finally chosen as the head of the Surveying Commission. As a result a poor type of surveying was carried out, and once inaugurated the system continued for years. In the beginning, not realizing the future growth of Canada, the importance of detail was overlooked; little money was provided by the province for the work; and surveys by men generally not well qualified were made with compass instead of transit, a method Mr. Pierce characterized as vastly cheaper and easier, but far from accurate.

Compass Was Not Accurate.

"A great part of the present province of Ontario was laid out by compass," the speaker told his audience, "and it was only much later that some attention was paid to the fact that the public was getting poor results. Then surveyors were required to lay down cross-lines for the purpose of trueing up; but many errors still remained. The task of surveying was never completely done with a strict regard for accuracy," he said.

It was often very difficult to find the survey corners, originally marked sometimes a hundred years or more ago, and this was especially true of the sparsely settled areas such as the bush, where surveyors placed wooden posts or marks on growing trees. Fire, lumber-cutting and kindred causes had in many cases practically obliterated the survey marks, Mr. Pierce explained.

Tried to Locate Posts.

It was some few years ago, he informed the dinner gathering, that the Government decided to send out surveyors with the object of locating fast disappearing marks, and in their place erecting permanent stone posts. As part of their work these men were to interview old settlers who might remember where marks had been in cases where they could no longer be found; get affidavits from these persons and statements from the neighboring landowners signifying their agreement; and then proceed to put up new markers that would last. Chosen himself to perform this job in the Township of Smith, Mr. Pierce had completed erection of 120 markers when the work was stopped. A new Government had come in, upsetting the project of its predecessor and calling in the surveyors, and, Mr. Pierce stated, the project was never revived.

Mr. Pierce devoted a portion of his talk to a discussion of the surveying of Methuen Township, one example of a very poor survey. Done in 1823, it had later proved difficult to ascertain the northern boundary of the township, and a survey he himself had undertaken of certain portions of the area revealed inaccuracies of a very obvious nature in the early chart. The difficulty extended to the eastern boundary line of the game preserve, which goes through Methuen; and recently, Mr. Pierce added, the true line in this case had been found to vary by several hundred feet from the line advocated by game officials.

Introduction of the guest speaker was made by Vincent McCabe and Richard Raine moved the vote of thanks.

"God Bless the RED CROSS and those who GIVE"

Words that come right from the heart... and with a catch in the voice! Words that rise from all parts of this war-torn world where the Red Cross brings hope and help...

... from a prisoner-of-war as he steps forward eagerly to receive a life-saving parcel of food.

... from a wounded soldier after a transfusion of blood plasma—from a Canadian blood bank.

... from a little boy—a victim of a direct hit on his home—as he gets food at a mobile canteen.

... from the front, from behind the lines, from bombed areas, from prison camps... from all these the cry swells into an anthem... "God bless the Red Cross and those who give!"

The Red Cross needs 10 million dollars this year. Over half of that amount will go to food parcels for our boys in prisoner-of-war camps... to keep them alive, healthy and hopeful. The rest of the money? To the many other noble, spirit-lifting causes that you yourself would wish to help... too many to tell here.

The Red Cross asks your support.

You'll give it, we know... warmly, unstintingly. For the need is great... the cause is great... the appeal is to a great-hearted people.

Finnish Press Seeks Peace Helsinki Fires Still Raging

By EDWIN SHANKE—Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 28—(AP).—The Finnish press continued today to prepare the people for momentous developments—perhaps a government decision this week on whether Finland will get out of the war with Russia. Helsinki meanwhile dug out from under the debris left by the worst bombing of the war when 600 Russian bombers, by Finnish communique count, hit the capital Saturday night. Today's communique said enemy planes had attacked Oulu on the Gulf of Bothnia yesterday afternoon and night, causing damage and fires.

The touchy question of Russian troops moving into Finland still appeared to be the biggest stumbling block to a Finnish-Russian armistice, and the Conservative newspaper Uusi Suomi indicated the issue apparently had boiled down to the point of Soviet guarantees of safety for the Finnish people, and the assurances they would continue to be free.

Failure to get such guarantees would be the only reason no armistice was signed, said this newspaper which generally reflects the Government view, thus inferring that territorial and other questions no longer were a problem in the negotiations.

The refugees said Soviet planes, estimated in a Finnish communique at 600, laid waste vast sections of the capital and one estimated that

500 Striking Miners Ordered Into Army Reject Government Order To Start Work

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 28 —(CP Cable)— Call-up notices for the army were being handed to-day to 500 miners between the ages of 18 and 25 who have been on strike in South Coast Mines since February 14.

Despite urgent warning by the Coal Commissioner that miners must present themselves for work to-day, none of the mines affected are working.

Nearly 4,000 miners of the New South Wales coal fields rejected the Government order.

It was explained officially that the men who received military call-ups were no longer under the Mining Industry Exemption since they refused to work.

The other strikers will be called up by manpower authorities for other work unless they return to the pits. This is the first time a return-to-work order issued under National Security Regulations has been defied by striking unionists.

Japs Take Over Hospital Massacre Many Patients

By Special Correspondent of the London Daily Mail
Distributed by Reuters News Agency

ON THE ARAKAN FRONT, Feb. 28—(CP-Reuters).—The Japanese will have to answer after the war for the massacre of Ngakyedauk. For 36 hours they used the hospital of the newly-relieved 7th Indian Division as battle headquarters, killed British and Indian doctors, nurses and orderlies and murdered patients in their beds.

Wounded men whose moans might have given away their positions were bayonetted. They refused water to dying troops and bandages to doctors who would have tended them.

Doctors who survived this raid on their hospital which began on the night of February 7 told me of murders when I went through the "hedge-hog."

When the Japanese hemmed them in, three field ambulance units combined to form a hospital near the end of Ngakyedauk Pass. At 8 p.m. on the night of February 7, 60 Japanese crept up a nullah (ditch) and attacked it.

They dug themselves in quickly and stayed there until English soldiers threw them out 36 hours later.

Four doctors and at least 35 wounded had been massacred by then. How many more nurses, orderlies and patients were killed is not yet known.

Some of their malaria cases are believed to have fled into the jungle on their own, and their fate is uncertain.

Just before an ambulance carried him back over the pass Lieut. A. Basu, Indian doctor whom the Japanese left for dead with two bullet wounds in his head, told me the Japanese addressed their commander as "General."

Tied Very Tightly.

"We did not give much away in answer to their grilling," Basu said. "At last they pinioned our hands behind our backs and tied us together in couples regardless of rank. When

Artillery Fire Livens Battle

NAPLES, Feb. 28 (AP)—A sharp increase in fighting in the past two days along headquarters of the Moletta river southwest of Carroceto was announced today as artillery duelling rose in intensity along the Anzio battlefront.

Allied headquarters said British troops of the Allied 5th Army in that sector stormed and captured two buildings the Germans had converted into strongpoints. Comparative quiet has existed heretofore along the Moletta, which empties into the sea 11 miles north of Anzio and extends almost due east to within a mile of Via Anziate, the highway running from Anzio to Carroceto and Rome.

Simultaneously with the increase in artillery fire, an American cruiser, standing close to shore, poured shells into German gun positions yesterday.

Although adverse weather hampered both ground and air operations yesterday, Allied patrols probed Ger-

Loyal Frenchmen Decimate Huns

By TAYLOR HENRY

LISBON, Feb. 27.—(AP).—Virtual civil war in France between Partisans of the United Nations and German supporters has resulted in the death of thousands of collaborationist Frenchmen and members of the German army of occupation with only nominal casualties to the friends of the United Nations.

During the last six months, according to the best available figures, this French terror has spelled death to at least 1,500 French police and militia, and half as many civilian collaborationists, and to between 1,500 and 2,000 German troops.

Widespread as these figures indicate the terrorist activity to be, it is nothing compared with sabotage, one of the French patriot's main contributions to the United Nations' war effort.

The latest round-number figures on sabotage indicate Partisans have made 15,000 bomb attacks, 1,000 direct attacks against railroads carrying supplies and men for Germany, and some 750 attacks on city halls in various towns and villages to obtain food tickets and supplies to care for the growing terrorist organization.

Chiang's Armies Receive Support

WITH A CHINESE EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Feb. 28 —(AP) —The revitalization of Chiang Kai-Shek's armies has begun with the arrival of concrete American aid.

This is the first public disclosure of one of the most ambitious and far-reaching programs in military history to modernize, re-train and re-equip a vast army in wartime.

American army officers and men under the command of Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell have started the job in southwest China in co-operation with Commanders of Chinese Expeditionary Forces. The program envisages the re-training of a score of divisions in critical areas where they will do the Japanese the most harm.

Frontline troops in some cases have received American weapons and ammunition and learned their tactical use from Chinese officers and non-commissioned officers, recent graduates of American Training Schools.

Badoglio Wants New Alliance

NAPLES, Feb. 28 —(AP)—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, asserting "it was I who dumped out Fascism," declared firmly in an interview yesterday he intends to stay in power with his present government until King Victor Emmanuel "finds a better one."

While Prime Minister Churchill has said the Allies would reconsider the political situation after their armies reached Rome, Badoglio asked 'who will there be in Rome?" and immediately answered, "nobody else."

"If His Majesty founds a political government after we get there, I will get out," the marshal said. "If he does not, then I will stay." He indicated his government hoped to remain in power until all Germans are driven from Italy.

Pskov's Fall Expected Soon 'Fight to the Last Man'—Hitler

By HENRY C. CASSIDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Feb. 28—(AP).—Red Army troops driving westward upon Pskov have outflanked and neutralized a powerful German line based on lakes and streams in that area, dispatches from the second Baltic front declared today.

(The BBC said Soviet forces striking down from the north were within 10 miles of the rail hub of Pskov, and that Hitler had ordered his troops to hold out there "to the last man." CBS heard the broadcast.)

Gen. Markian Popov's forces after passing Pushtoshka — 30 miles west of Novosokolniki and 40 miles east of the Latvian frontier—were reported to have broken the Velikaya River line just northwest of Pushtoshka.

Bypass Defence Line.

A Pravda dispatch said they left behind them to the northeast a water line of numerous rivers and ponds where the Nazis had hoped to check the Soviet advance. This waterline, southwest of Loknya, was by-passed from the north and south and "annulled," it added, and beyond that sector the Red Army was spreading out along a network of good roads.

The Germans are attempting to break off contact and reorganize their defences, Pravda said, but the Russians, harassing them constantly, are defeating Nazi efforts to disengage.

The advance was facilitated by complete clearing of Dno-Novosokolniki railroad, main lateral line of communication just behind the front.

644 Nazi Fighter Planes Downed In Week While Bombers Riddle Aircraft Plants

LONDON, Feb. 28 (CP)—Destruction of at least 644 German fighter planes in one unprecedented week of Allied aerial attacks on Nazi industry cut Hitler's available aircraft almost to the point where he must soon depend chiefly on new output from his badly-battered production centres, it was estimated unofficially today.

But whether Hitler could expect much help there was a big question. The weight of at least 18,000 tons of bombs dropped in 13 massive raids in the offensive indicated a large percentage of Nazi plane productive capacity is wiped out.

At least 18 major German aircraft production centres were attacked in the week-long bombing drive.

Over and above the 644 total are the German fighters downed by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. in four major night operations last week. Air ministry communiques gave no figures.

The Allied air forces lost 387 heavy bombers and 37 fighters in the forays into Germany, incomplete statistics in the communique show.

Murder Counsel Asks Judge To Draw New Jury Panel

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(AP).—Counsel for Wayne Lonergan moved that Judge John J. Freschi disqualify himself, as the first degree murder case against the Canadian aircraftman, accused of slaying his heiress wife, was called for trial today in general sessions court.

Edward V. Broderick, addressing the court, said he believed he had been "unjustly attacked in this case," adding:

"I regard as an implied judicial threat the statement that Your Honor would deal with me after the trial for contempt of court. The court has no power to take such action."

Broderick, whose spectacular trip to Toronto and elsewhere in Canada last week caused two adjournments of the trial, also moved that Judge Freschi dismiss the special jury panel and order a new panel to be drawn.

Judge Freschi denied both motions. The court also denied a motion for determination of contempt of court proceedings before the opening of the trial. Broderick took exceptions on all three rulings.

Looked Rested.

Lonergan entered the courtroom looking fresh and rested for the ordeal which faced him, and took his seat beside Broderick.

Broderick recalled his 28 years of practice as a lawyer "of good standing," and the "certain sessions" in the present case during which he said "Mr. (Jacob) Grumet (assistant district attorney prosecuting the case) asked the court to send me to jail."

"There was no admonition from the court to check Mr. Grumet's savagery," he said. "I regard that as a judicial endorsement of that savagery. From Canada I sent telegrams to Your Honor fragmentized and did not put on the record in full as I requested.

"Regarding the contempt threat, I say I am not guilty of contempt. The Bombers Renew Aerial Sweeps

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(AP).— United States medium bombers with fighter escorts swept across the channel shortly before noon to-day, renewing the attack on German war installations after a week-end lull.

The last American attack was the double north-south blow on Regensburg Friday

Britain has been free of enemy aircraft for three consecutive nights after five raids on London, probably because of unfavorable weather over the Nazi airfields.

Bombing of the Gilze-Rijen and other airfields in Holland by a record force of daylight medium bombers Friday may have been a contributing factor. Other German bomber bases also were hit during the week.

A third cause of the lull possibly was the immense week-long bombing of the German aircraft factory, forcing the Nazis to reserve all aircraft for defence of the Reich.

12 Million Slaves In Germany Are Threat

Wave Of Revenge By Prisoners May Follow Surrender Of The German Army

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Disclosure that Hitler is sitting on a keg of human dynamite consisting of 12,000,000 slaves, brought to the Reich from occupied countries, raises a grim picture of the situation which would exist if these unfortunates should try to exact retribution from the German people when the Fuehrer's military machine cracks—as crack it will in due course.

Unconditional surrender will bring the Hitlerites respite from further war. But what will it bring them from the millions who have suffered under the lash and have seen other millions of their colleagues die from privation? It's obvious that should these folk rise up for revenge, the best efforts of the Allies wouldn't be able to restrain them before terrible events had taken place.

We have known, of course, that Hitler was loading many of his war burdens onto the scarred backs of slave labor, both male and female. However, we've had no such details as are now being given us by Taylor Henry, Associated Press staff writer who is in Portugal awaiting repatriation after 18 months internment by the Germans.

Reds Predominate

Forty per cent of Hitler's labor is foreign, and Russians and Poles head the list with 2,500,000 and 1,000,000 respectively. He must get uneasy moments when he recalls the massacres and other atrocities he has perpetrated in Russia and Poland. He must get a chill when he remembers that of the first 4,000,000 Russians captured by the Germans, only 1,500,000 survived the privations of his prison camps.

We know something of what the Nazi leader is thinking from a statement carried by the BBC, which reports that all German nationals in Czechoslovakia have been issued guns and ammunition for self defence. The reason is that open resistance among the Czechoslovakians is growing and, says the BBC, the German authorities fully realize what will happen to them when the war reaches the frontiers of the little republic.

The civilians of many countries are living for the day when they can avenge themselves against the Nazi troops of occupation. But Hitler's greatest problem along this line must have to do with the Reich, where revenge may be taken not only against the soldiery but upon civilians. No wonder his murderous Gestapo chief, Himmler, has been given sweeping powers and has under his command a picked military force of 600,000.

Argentine Trouble Likely

Col. Peron Takes Over As War Minister

MONTEVIDO, Feb. 28 —(AP) — Col. Juan D. Peron, leader of the powerful Argentine "Colonels' Group" credited with ousting Gen. Pedro Ramirez from the presidency last week, was to be installed to-day as War Minister, a Buenos Aires announcement said last night.

A communique from the Secretariat of Labor, which Peron heads, said the appointment had been made by Gen. Edelmiro J. Farrell, who succeeded Ramirez.

Although reliable travellers from Buenos Aires asserted a majority of the officers and armed forces of Argentina favor returning Ramirez to the Presidency, last night's communique announced high army and navy officers as well as other Government officials will attend Peron's induction.

One informant in close contact with the Argentine situation said Ramirez had been coerced into turning his powers over to Farrell and now is being held a virtual prisoner in his own home. He said army officers are only awaiting word from Ramirez to return him to the Presidency through another coup.

Claims Brosig Tampered With King's Mail

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 28.—(CP).— Eckhert Brosig, German prisoner of war who escaped three times from th perison camp at Monteith in Northern Ontario, went on times from the prison camp at Mon- of His Majesty's mail. The charge arose from his latest escape last December when he was arrested in the mail car of a Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway train near North Bay.

The charge was that "on or about Dec. 21, 1943, at or near the city of North Bay, you did steal certain parcels, the property of the Postmaster General of Canada." Brosig pleaded not guilty.

Seven witnesses were called by the Crown before the luncheon adjournment and it was understood about six more were to give evidence when court resumed in the afternoon. G. A. Martin of Toronto counsel for Brosig, intimated that defence testimony will be heard immediately at the conclusion of the Crown's case.

Brosig's first escape was in June, 1942, and he was recaptured in New York State. His second was Aug. 8, 1943, and this time he was recaptured about a month later in Ottawa.

Largest Convoy Reaches Britain

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(CP).— Allied forces massing in Great Britain for an invasion of Western Europe have been strengthened by the arrival of one of the largest contingents of Canadian and American troops ever to cross the Atlantic in one convoy.

Majority was made up of Americans, but "hundreds" of Canadian troops were included in the contingent, Canadian Military Headquarters here announced.

The Canadian group included reinforcements and specialists, as well as a number of Canadian airmen.

The crossing was made without attack by enemy submarines but heavy storms were encountered.

Number of troops landed from the convoy is a military secret, but all are highly trained and ready for combat. They included mechanized units and specialized groups of many types. All were fully equipped with the latest weapons.

In addition the convoy carried many planes of various types.

Immediately upon disembarking the troops were dispersed to American bases scattered from one end of the United Kingdom to the other.

John A. Moroso, Associated Press war correspondent who travelled with the convoy, said the trip was so uneventful that it was a pleasure jaunt compared to a convoy crossing he made two years ago. He recalled that on that trip escorting craft delivered 11 depth charge attacks.

"Then," he said, "we slept in our clothes and wore lifebelts and helmets the last three days. On this trip we had no underwater contacts. We slept in pyjamas and wore no life belts. Helmets were not even issued except to gun crews in exposed positions.

Drunk Sentenced To 3 Months

"They'd look a lot at the end of the sentence," pleaded Thomas Gormon in police court this morning in asking Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to date his term of confinement in the county jail to from Saturday, instead of to-day.

Gormon pleaded guilty to a charge of having been drunk Saturday and also admitted two previous convictions during the last twelve months so that the minimum sentence that could be imposed was three months in the county jail.

"The sentence is so long that two days wouldn't make much difference," remarked the Magistrate when Gormon made his request to have the sentence dated back two days. The term begins to-day, the court declining to accede to the accused's plea for two days' grace

Curve Lake Man Faces Liquor Counts

Noah Taylor, Curve Lake, faced a couple of liquor charges before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today.

The first count charged the Indian with illegal possession of liquor and he finally pleaded guilty, after having first declared that he had been under the influence of liquor at the time of his arrest.

Inspector Reid stated that the accused had had a 16-ounce bottle of whisky on him when arrested.

"You mean a 12-ounce bottle, a Mickey Mouse," remarked the Magistrate and the officer said that was the case.

"They found it in my pocket, I guess" acknowledged Taylor, who was fined $25 and $2.50 costs or a month in jail on that count.

To a second charge of having attempted to purchase liquor on a permit not his own Taylor entered a plea of not guilty, and at the request of the crown was remanded for a week. Bail was fixed at $100.

we were all lashed together the 'general' unsheathed his sword, waved it over us and went away. As soon as he had gone we were dragged into a nullah and forced to sit there with our hands tied.

"The bonds were so tight that some of us cried with pain. Others begged for water. The Japanese ignored us. After what seemed hours we heard a tank approaching. It was one of ours and the enemy pulled out British non-commissioned officers and pushed them towards the entrance. The tank opened fire with its machine-guns.

"The Japanese lay back under cover laughing and smoking. The tank attacked three or four times. We were also mortared and dive-bombed. By this time the wounded and dying were screaming for water.

"In the early evening they bayonetted one and shot another because they were crying with pain. A little later they prepared to retreat. They took ordinary British soldiers and some of the Indians aside and shot them.

"I was lucky. Two bullets hit me and I fell, but a little later I realized I could still think and see. Two Japanese were five yards in front of me. Cautiously I smeared blood from a colleague lying near over my face, ears and clothes.

"Then with a groan I rolled into a trench and lay there all night among the dead and dying. Next morning I shouted with joy. The Japanese had gone and there at the mouth of the nullah were two English soldiers with Tommy-guns."

Viewing the Chinese picture as a whole, however, there still is a staggering job ahead. To a large extent, it hinges on opening a land supply route from India for which a Chinese-American Expeditionary Force under Stilwell is fighting ahead in Burma. It also depends upon the eventual seisure of a seaport on the China coast. American personel and material now are limited to what can be flown in, in addition to the needs of the U. One of the sore spots for French patriots with whom I talked on my way through France was the fact that while the Germans were executing French men and women who were fighting their country's battle against the occupation troops, Marshal Henri Petain in an official Vichy ceremony laid wreaths on the graves of German dead at the same time that he honored French soldiers killed in the fighting around Vichy in the last days of the war.

He added that "if it was not wrong for Mr. Grumet to be supercilious, then it was not wrong for me to go to Canada on business having to do with the life of my client."

He intimated his purpose in asking for an alliance was the protection of Italy's interests at the peace table after helping to defeat the Germans. While Badoglio did not say so himself, associates told me afterward that the American and British governments have given him no encouragement to expect an alliance.

Postal Men Honor Arthur Moscrop

Presentation of a smoking cabinet on behalf of the staff of the Peterborough Post Office was made last week to Arthur Moscrop, 51 Sophia street, letter carrier who has completed 25 years service with the Post Office. Frank Smith, president of the Letter Carriers' Association, presided at the ceremony and made a few remarks honoring Mr. Moscrop.

Postmaster Charles Lechaur was present and H. E. White, assistant postmaster, handed the cabinet to the veteran of a quarter century of service, who was also a soldier of Canada's Army in the First Great War and was wounded in battle. The presentation to Mr. Moscrop is akin to others that have been made in recent years, wherein a gift is made to each employee completing 25 years by his fellow workers.

22 Zero Days In February, '34

Ten years ago today, February 28, 1934, the late Walter Peters who was the official weather observer for this city at that time gave out a statement to show that on 22 days out of the 28 days in February of that year, the thermometer had dropped down below zero.

The Peters' figures further indicated that only on one day in February had it been warmer than the freezing point. On that occasion the thermometer had managed to climb up to 33 degrees above zero, one degree above freezing. Even the six days that did not record a sub-zero temperature were not warm for the statistics showed that on several of them it had been only a few degrees above the zero mark.

The weather observer also reported that including February 28 there had been 45 below-zero days that winter.

Fires broke out in many sections, the refugees said and panic spread among the civilian population as the Russian raiders, striking in small groups kept the attack going almost 12 hours.

Some fires still were burning yesterday and transportation facilities were virtually paralyzed. No Sunday papers were published.

Finns said the raid served only to stir up hatred for the Russians and made the prospect of peace with Russia more remote than ever.

A Russian communique described the attack on Helsinki as a massed raid by large groups of Soviet planes, which were said to have bombed the railway station, arms dumps, military barracks and war plants.

A Berne dispatch said Swedish press reports from Berlin quoted a German spokesman as saying Germany has no intention of withdrawing her troops from Finland regardless of any steps Finland may take toward peace with Russia.

Farther south, German successes at the tip of the Russian spearhead in the Luck sector in prewar Poland appeared definitely checked after gaining initial successes that subsequently were lost.

(The German communique indicated a new gain southward by the Russians on this deep salient, saying Nazi forces had thrown back Red Army counter-attacks near Yampol. There is a Yampol 27 miles southwest of Ostrog, one of the largest Soviet-held towns on the southern edge of the penetration into Poland.)

Describing the fighting on the Baltic front, a Pravda dispatch quoted a captured German officer as saying his unit had been forced to defend a wide sector ordinarily manned by much larger forces. He said the Soviets attacked in small groups, filtering through enemy lines to cut communications and open the way for advance of their main forces.

Far to the south, in the lower bend of the Dnieper River, the Russians advanced to capture a district centre south of Apostolovo in the Nikolaev area.

Burns Leads Division Of Canadians

Competent Staff Man Expected To Set New Records

NAPLES, Feb. 28 —(CP)—One of Canada's most competent staff officers, Maj.-Gen. Bedson L. M. (Tommy) Burns of Ottawa is leading a Canadian division in Italy. The 46-year-old Burns has been here for some time but only Sunday did Allied headquarters disclose the fact.

This disclosure followed Defence Minister Ralston's Feb. 11 statement in the House of Commons at Ottawa that there are two divisions in Italy. Since Allied headquarters on Jan. 16 identified Maj-Gen. Chris Vokes, 39, of Winnipeg and Ottawa, as a divisional commander it appeared Burns and Vokes lead the divisions in the corps commanded by Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar.

Vokes was presumed to have taken over the 1st Division from Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, 40, of Kingston, Ont., now commanding a corps in Britain with the rank of lieutenant-general.

BRIGADIER E. L. BURNS

There are three divisions in Britain, Col. Ralston told the House in his Feb. 11 statement, and from published announcements the divisional commanders appear to be Maj.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, 41, of London, Ont., Maj.-Gen. Keorge Kitching, 38, of Montreal and Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller 42, of Kelowna, B.C.

(Appointing Burns to a divisional command in Italy has placed him in a position from which he might eventually step to the corps command should Crerar be called to a more important post, Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported from London last night. Great things had been expected of Burns, considered one of the best-qualified senior officers in the Canadian army, Munro added, and in Italy he probably will get his chance.)

Few of Canada's generals in the field have such a broad background as Burns, who is skilled in science and languages, bears the nickname of a boxing namesake and has intimate experience with engineering, infantry and armored forces.

He is a recognized authority on aerial photography and his work in that field for the National Research Council won him the O.B.E. in 1935.

Born in Westmount, Que., June 17, 1897, he learned French in his youth. He was educated at St. Thomas, Ont., and Lower Canada College, Montreal and began his army career as a trooper in 1913. He was commissioned as an engineer two years later after a year at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. He won the Military Cross in the First Great War and was a captain when the war ended.

When this war started he had just completed a course at the Imperial Defence College in England. He held a staff post at Canadian Military Headquarters in London, was assistant deputy chief of the General Staff in Ottawa, had a corps post in England and then returned to Canada to bring an armored brigade to Britain. He was first appointed to command a division in the spring of 1943.

Navy Bombards Rabaul, Kavieng

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Feb. 28.—(CP).— United States navy destroyers, after giving the enemy base at Kavieng, New Ireland, its worst pounding of the war, turned their guns on tottering Rabaul, New Britain, Friday, in co-ordination with a 112-ton aerial bombing.

An Allied communique reported the once-powerful fortress offered only sporadic return fire, for the sixth consecutive day and no Japanese planes rose to intercept raiders.

It was the second naval bombardment of the week on Rabaul and the third on Kavieng. The communique said the New Ireland base returned accurate and consistent artillery fire, although suffering considerabel damage to town, harbor, ammunition dumps and storage area and shipping.

Other aerial attacks were carried out on the Admiralty Islands and on Wewak and the Madang area in New Guinea.

At Pearl Harbor it was announced the naval raid on Truk in the Marshall Islands Feb. 15-17 sank 23 enemy ships—not 19 as first reported.

Cobourg Board Resigns To Town Council

COBOURG, Feb. 28.— (ENS).— Another headache has been handed to the town council in the resignation of four members of the Parks Board, including the chairman. The resignations were announced on Friday night at the meeting of the Board and followed the failure of the town council to re-appoint J. H. Lafay, secretary of the Parks Board, when the 1944 members were named. Council appointed Charles Adcock in the place of Lafay.

Chairman Robert Holland told the Board that he was disgusted with the treatment accorded Mr. Lafay by the town council. He had been a member of the Parks Board for five years, Mr. Holland pointed out. Mr. Lafay was ill at the present time but he was willing to continue on the Board if appointed.

Want Representative.

Mr. Holland declared that it was suggested that the Kiwanis Club wanted a representative on the Board and he did not dispute the right of the club to be represented on the Board but the fact that already the club was represented in one of the present members, Ed Campbell, he said that he saw no reason why they should want another. He had nothing against Mr. Adcock, he stated, but he thought it unfair that the council should have rewarded five years' faithful service of Mr. Lafay by dropping him from the Board. Too many men who have given their all in the service of the town, are turned down just when they are due to receive some recognition.

"It may have been my turn next and if some were awaiting the opportunity I am sorry to disappoint then. I am resigning," Mr. Holland asserted.

Austin Maher, William Jenings and Joseph Owens also resigned. Ed Campbell became temporary chairman and Charles Adcock, temporary secretary

Besides the job of replacing those who have resigned from the Parks Board, the town council also is faced with a depleted Board of Health, Eldon McFadyen and J. S. Walden having resigned from that board. Both members state that they told council last year that they didn't want to be re-appointed in 1944, but council went ahead and placed them on this year's board.

Previous to this the council had turned down last year's garbage collector, who had been doing a good job, and hired a new man. Later, when the new man fell down on the job, council had to hire last year's garbage collector back.

Hottest, hot potato of them all was the council's appointment of ex-Reeve Roy Dodge to the job of deputy-town clerk in the face of opposition voiced by those who wanted the job held open until the boys from Cobourg were back from overseas. The matter seemed headed for a small blitz until Mr. Dodge withdrew his name.

Everything taken into consideration, it has been no easy road for the members of 1944 council, and an open road appears far in the distance yet.

Two Bridges Closed Over Sunday

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Fb. 28— (AP)—Traffic was resumed today over two international bridges which were closed yesterday by bridge authorities as a result of a dispute concerning overtime Sunday pay for customs' inspectors.

The Rainbow Bridge from this city to Niagara Falls, Ont., was closed at midnight Saturday until midnight yesterday, the bridge authority having failed to post a bond as guarantee it would pay overtime for the inspectors' services.

The United States Supreme Court ruled Jan. 3 that Sunday work for the inspectors was overtime. The Treasury Department placed them on a six-day week, and notified bridge owners they would be responsible for the double pay on Sunday.

The same notice went to other bridges on the Canadian border, and the Thousand Island bridge, which crosses the St. Lawrence river from Alexandria Bay to Ivy Lea, Ont., was closed during the same period. It also reopened after a 24-hour traffic ban. Customs officials there said scores were turned away yesterday as a vehicular blockade was placed across the 90-foot span.

Appeal to Washington

Harry D. Suitor, attorney for the Niagara Falls Bridge Commission, said the issue was whether the bridge authorities or the Treasury Department should pay the extra wage. The commission provides quarters for the inspectors but has no voice in the hours they shall work or in their selection, he said.

The Niagara Falls Commission and the Thousand Island Bridge Company, public benefit operating groups chartered by New York State and Dominion governments, refused Friday to pay the extra wage.

Representatives of the two bridges with delegates from other bridge authorities affected, are conferring in Washington today with treasury officials in an attempt to find a solution to the dispute.

Although the owners of Peace Bridge, which crosses the Niagara River from Buffalo to Fort Erie, Ont., posted the bond and carried on traffic as usual yesterday, they also sent a representative to the Washington Conference.

Meanwhile, the Niagara Falls Bridge Commission has asked Canadian Federal Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell to protest the closing.

Mike Gahagan Rescues Canadian Lying Wounded In No-Man's Land

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY—(By Cable).—"Patrol activity," which goes on day and night when things are relatively static as they are on the Canadian front right now, seldom rates more than small mention in the day's communique. To the general public that phrase — patrol activity — doesn't mean much. For the men who do the patrols it holds a wealth of meaning.

Just what happens on a patrol? I'll let Private Arthur Mackett, of Montreal, describe it to you in his own words, just as he told me about it when I talked to him after his platoon had returned from a night patrol.

"We were in our billets a couple of miles behind the lines," he said. "It was about three o'clock in the afternoon when we saw the company runner come running up. That gave us a tip-off that something was going to happen that night. When he's bringing good news the runner just ambles along slowly. When it's bad news he runs full lick.

"He came to tell the platoon officer to report to company headquarters. The platoon officer went there and the company commander told him our platoon was to go on a patrol that night. When it's a patrol of only three or four men they call on volunteers for the job, but on a platoon patrol everybody goes.

"There are various sorts of patrols. A couple of men may go forward just to feel out the enemy. They don't figure to do any shooting; just have a look around. For instance, Jerry may have moved some of his big guns—he's always doing that—and they try to find out the new locations so that our artillery can do counter battery work on them. But when the whole platoon goes out it's a fighting patrol. You know the enemy's in strength ahead of you and you want to get fuller information. You aim to stir up trouble, and get him to fire his weapons so you can pin-point them. You have a little scrap, kill some Jerries, and bring back prisoners.

Platoon Briefed.

"When the company commander had briefed our platoon officer he came back and told the plan to our section leaders and they told us. We were to set off at five o'clock, which meant we had an hour or so to have supper, clean our weapons and get ready.

"We only get an hour or so of warning that we are going on a patrol. That is so that we won't have time to sit around and stew about it and get all worked up.

"You always get an extra good supper when you're going on patrol —things like pork chops, steaks or something.

"You're a bit on edge as you clean your weapons and get your grenades ready. Fellows say things like, 'If you get a German revolver, remember I haven't one.' And a guy will give something to a pal to keep for him until he gets back. The boys make wagers with each other as to who'll get back and who won't. And maybe a guy will say, 'If they get me don't forget to take my watch.'

"You travel light. You leave all your personal belongings behind, things like letters and other papers that might give information to the enemy if you're caught. All you take is your pay book and identity discs. A rifleman just takes his rifle with a bandolier of ammunition over his shoulder and grenades in his belt. You wear balaclavas, not tin hats, because tin hats make noise when they hit against trees and things. When it's fine and dry some of the boys wear running shoes.

"They issue you chocolate bars you don't need to carry any other food because you're just going in for a few hours and then coming out again.

No Man's Land.

"At five o'clock this night we got into trucks —about twenty-five of us— and were driven to forward positions of our battalion. In the darkness we moved out into No Man's Land, and lay doggo there about fifty yards from the enemy lines. You could hear the Jerries talking and see them smoking.

"We lay there until half-past two in the morning, and then we started to go into their lines. Jerry had three outpost, three heavy machine guns, each with two men. Those guys are stationed out there at night to stop uatrols from getting through. They didn't stop us; we knew where they were and went around them.

"We went in in single file with two scouts ahead of us. When you're moving in Jerry's territory you're on your nerves all the time. You each have a hand on the shoulder of the fellow in front of you so that you won't get lost in the dark. You pick out a tree or something on the skyline to act as a direction guide, so that you always have a rough idea of where you are. Your ears feel as though they have swelled up to the size of those aircraft detecеor things. If one of the boys coughs you could shoot him; you swear the sound will give you away.

"When we were a mile or so inside of the enemy lines one of our scouts came on a sentry. Harry Weinberg of Hamilton, who was next to me, understands German, and he translated for me. The sentry said "Hello, how are you?" to our scout, a corporal from Peterborough named Mike Gahagan. It must have been about the time the sentry was going to be relieved and he mistook Gahagan for his relief.

"Gahagan opened up with his tommy gun. He thought he had it on at automatic but it was set to fire single shot. It was just as well that he is a good shot, because the single bullet got the sentry.

"Then two more sentries arrived— they were the relief— and we got them too. Then we saw two Jerries in a slit trench, and a hand grenade finished them off.

"Then the Jerries opened up all around us. We dispersed and went to the ground. Tracers started criss-crossing over our heads, and mortars started landing in among us. I was with Stan Fowler and Johnny May, two other Montreal boys, and when we started answering Jerry's fire we had a hard job getting our weapons to work. It was raining, and we had got mud in them.

"Our platoon officer was killed and when Bruce Castel, of Peterborough, came over to us to tell us that one of our boys had been badly hurt, Mike Gahagan worked out a plan for getting the injured guy and all of us out. There were five machine guns against us and they had us hemmed in in their cross fire, so there was nothing we could do but get out.

"Gahagan had worked out a smart move. He told us to cease fire and went over to right where the injured chap was. He opened up with his tommy gun and made a helluva din. All the machine guns switched to him. That was our chance and we ducked out towards our own lines. After we'd gone a little way we started a racket with our weapons. The Jerry machine guns switch-

Women Urged To Give More Spiritual Help

ROSENEATH, Feb. 28 (ENS).— In an address delivered at the World Day of Prayer service on Friday afternoon, Mrs. T. S. Coyle said in substance, the nations that know not God, need not only material help but generous spiritual aid as well. She paid tribute to the great army of women in this and other countries who labor to preserve the way of freedom. The speaker is vice-president of St. James' Anglican Church W.A.

Ammunition FOR THE ARMIES OF THE UNITED NATIONS

Thousands of men and women behind the lines are risking life in many factories, turning out ammunition for every fighting front.

Included in this army of ammunition workers are those who make the gun-powder, TNT and other explosives; the makers of shells for all sizes of guns, of bombs; those who work on aerial and marine torpedoes; the producers of hand and rifle grenades.

Without the dangerous, exacting toil of these men and women, the fire power of our armed forces would dwindle; we could not be sure of victory.

Wednesday Recess For the House

The Prime Minister is anxious that the House of Commons should not meet on Wednesday afternoons, in order that the Cabinet may be able to meet for a whole day, and the committees to get on with their important work. The Opposition—the members of which, by the way, are anything but zealous attendants in the House—is opposed to it. We can see the Prime Minister's point; at present there is a vast amount of work to be done which is not done in the Commons, and that work is of such importance that the seemingly less pressing business of the House might be deferred in its favour.

But the question which is being asked is this: if the British House of Commons can meet every day at noon, and sit until late at night almost all the year round, why can't our own Commons do so? British Cabinet ministers do not feel themselves too pressed for time to appear in the House frequently, and the committees seem to work very efficiently. Why can't we do it if Britain can?

There are several explanations. Although we flatter ourselves in Canada that we are quicker than the British in many respects, we are certainly much slower than they in the conduct of meetings, large and small. Anyone who has had any experience of sitting on a committee or board, large or small, knows how apt we are to waste time in the dispatch of business. We also stretch out our deliberations by needless talk and repetition. Perhaps the Cabinet suffers from this fault; certainly Parliament does so. In Great Britain the vast amount of business which has to be discharged has forced them to cut their talk to the bone, and thus they save a great deal of time. It is also true that in Great Britain every Cabinet Minister has a parliamentary secretary, a trained man who can take much of the responsibility from his superior, answer routine questions for him in the House, and see that his time is not wasted. We have a few parliamentary secretaries at Ottawa, but they have not been on the job long enough for their full usefulness to be made apparent.

Perhaps the Ottawa Journal has hit the nail on the head in its summing up of the situation:

"The real trouble with our Cabinet Ministers, we fear, is not in the demand made on their time by Parliament, but in the detail with which they insist on cluttering themselves outside of Parliament. In their departments. Nearly 30 years ago a British administrative expert, Sir George Murray, put that fact into a report which he made on the Canadian administrative system; said that our ministers used too much time on petty details; and we fear greatly there has been little improvement since. Our cabinet ministers see too many people, and meet too many deputations, and read too many files; don't seem to have learned the knack of delegating responsibility".

We must not of course assume from this criticism that the Cabinet members waste their time over trifles; the details with which they worry themselves are important, but perhaps they are not important enough to take the time of a man of Cabinet rank. And, as we have said in these columns before, many of our legislators think that they are not doing a good job unless they are driving themselves toward nervous exhaustion with desk-work. Their job is to think, primarily, and they ought to arrange matters so that they have lots of time for that most important task.

An Interesting Press Bill

An interesting press bill has been introduced into the Legislature in British Columbia by Mr. T. D. Patullo, a former premier of that province. The bill provides that, whenever a newspaper publishes a reference to any person it must also publish "without deletion, alteration or addition, a reply of reasonable length to the allegation, report, criticism or condemnation". Mr. Patullo used to be a newspaper man himself, so presumably he knows what this means.

But Mr. Patullo, throughout his political career, has been a great protestor and replier to newspapers himself, and he has had a very fair show from them. It has been the custom of newspapers for a century to publish letters and replies from people who have been criticised in their columns. They are not always published without excisions, but complaints that anything vital has been cut out of them are very rare. The relationship between a newspaper and its readers is a subtle one, but it rests on a sure foundation; if the readers do not like the newspaper, or think it is unfair, they have only to stop taking it in order to put it out of business. That is an effective check on any high-handedness in the press.

Mr. Patullo appears to suffer under a sense of injustice which is rare among politicians. During the last election in Ontario there was not a single newspaper of any size which supported the C.C.F. party. Yet when the election was over the C.C.F. leader, Mr. Jolliffe, went to the trouble of writing to every editor in the Province to thank him for his fairness in handling the C.C.F. campaign news. We think that speaks for itself.

The press is very effectively controlled by its readers. We do not think that repressive laws will improve on that primary control.

Leapyear, Coming Once In Four

Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts will probably recall tomorrow the chant of the Pirate King from The Pirates of Penzance. We have not a copy of that operetta by us, and must quote from memory, but to the best of our recollection the King's explanation of the matter ran like this:

For some particular reason, to which however I have no desire to be disloyal,
Some person in authority, I don't know who, very probably the Astronomer
Royal,
Has decreed that although for such a beastly month as February twenty-eight days as a general rule are plenty,
One year in every four his days shall be reckoned as nine-and-twenty.

This is Leap Year, and tomorrow we shall greet the unfamiliar morn of February the 29th.

This calendar irregularity arouses the strongest rebellion in the breasts of calendar reformers who, like vegetarians and believers in the flatness of the earth, are of a tireless ferocity. They are now eager to have calendar reform included in all programs of post-war reconstruction, and have induced several governments to approve their World Calendar. One of these governments is China, which needs some sort of coherent calendar very badly; also included are six Central and South American countries, in which revolution is a way of life.

The World Calendar would give us a fixed year, beginning on Sunday, January 1, and divided into four quarters each containing 13 weeks; each quarter would begin on a Sunday and end on a Saturday; the first month in each quarter would have 31 days and the other two 30 days; month dates would always fall on the same weekdays and each month would have 26 days plus Sundays. The 365th day would be called Year End Day, and the 366th day in Leap Year would be put in at the end of June, and called June W; Year End Day would be called December W. The chief recommendations of the World Calendar is that it would make business reckoning slightly easier than it is now. But we would still have Leap Year, and the problem of the child born on June W would be just the same as that of the child born on the 29th of February.

We think that the World Calendar is ingenious, but no great improvement on what we have now. Also, it will probably never be a world affair. Who is going to force it on all the peoples of the world? Our advice to the World Calendar people, as to most post-war planners, is to root out the wickedness in their own hearts before they begin tinkering with anything else. Change for its own sake is mere restlessness.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There are few sadder spectacles than a lowbrow on a high horse.

A Chicago evangelist advertises himself as "The Lawyer Who Became a Christian". Intending, perhaps, to show what a man can do if he really tries.

The Japanese language contains no word for Hell. If the Pacific fight continues according to plan we suggest that they make it a secondary meaning of their word for war.

Charlie Chaplin has just completed a widely publicised revival of his early success, The Kid; it still remains to be seen how he will manage with his newest vehicle, The Toils of the Law.

We are strengthened to endure the Mairzy Doats outbreak by the recollection that not long ago the same people were squealing 'Hut cut rawlson on the rillerah'. And that also passed away. A little patience is all that is needed.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

I NOTICED a resolution recently passed at a Live Stock Shipping Association meeting protesting to the Federal Department of Agriculture against assistance in the form of free freight on Western cattle when brought to Ontario to be fed. The resolution in effect says: "We wish to point out that in the view of the fact that about 75,000 cattle brought from Western Canada during the past season are being fed on a large percentage of Western grain, in an effort to stimulate production, in a war effort, we object to being penalised by Western beef granted from 50c to 75c per cwt. to compete against our Ontario cattle, which is an injustice to the Ontario producers of beef, which action has resulted in a surplus of beef at the present time."

This is a rather extraordinary protest. The assistance given in free freight to Western cattle is given to "Ontario farmers." To get this assistance an Ontario farmer must buy these cattle and agree to feed them. If there is any "subsidy" about this arrangement it is to the Ontario farmer who wants to feed cattle. That these cattle are fed on Western grain is because both the Federal and Ontario Governments contributed toward the reduction of the carrying charges on this grain because the Ontario farmers wanted it done. Further than that the Federal Government fixed a price on oats and barley, by paying 10c per bushel subsidy on oats and 15c on barley, which enables the Ontario farmer to buy feed cheaper, and if any farmer can bring more cattle on to his farm and can feed them with grain brought to the farm he is bringing fertility to his land through these cattle and this feed that every successful farmer knows the value of. The Ontario farmer only buys feed, and cattle to feed it to, when it is good business to do so.

We need all our surplus beef and more in Canada's war effort and Canada is one country where trade restrictions are not made by any barriers between provinces. If an Ontario farmer wants a few steers to feed I hope he will not need a birth certificate to say what province they were born in. It has been good business to assist Ontario farmers to get good range steers without having too great carrying charges on them. It is good business in our war effort this year to have beef fed, and good for Ontario farms to have cattle fed on their farms. There is a world war on, it is by no means over yet, and while it is on, each country will have its meat animals killed at home and the meat shipped where it is needed most. Does this Shippers' Association think a little extra war profits might be made for them if it costs more for Ontario farmers to get Western steers to feed? The thing I am now curious about is what the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, and the Farmers' Co-operative Company, to whom this protest is made, will do about it.

SEVERAL irrigation schemes are being proposed for Western Canada in connection with after war agriculture. Before the Dominion Government undertakes plans to furnish any large areas with water for irrigation it will be well to count the cost and make careful investigation as to where it leads to. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has spent large sums of money in irrigation schemes which brought the company a great deal of grief, and a number of heavy investments were lost entirely. The number of millions lost by the C.P.R. in irrigation ventures would be difficult to add up, and I see by an Alberta newspaper that this railway company has managed to give away a large irrigation project but only after heavily bonusing the recipients. The Western irrigation district, lying east of Calgary, and between the Bow River on the south and the Rosebud creek on the north, comprising 218,000 acres of irrigable land, is to be turned over by the C.P.R. to an association of the farmers in the district. As a condition on their acceptance of this irrigation enterprise the C.P.R. is to pay this district association the sum of $400,000 toward the maintenance and operation of the irrigation, of which one half is to be paid cash and the balance in two payments of $100,000 each, one on April 1st, 1945 and the second on April 1st, 1946.

The C.P.R. is also to turn over the water agreements with farmers in this area and to pay a further sum to be computed on the basis of $20 per acre for the first 10,000 acres and $10 an acre in excess of this $10,000. There are some 1,500 individual farmers settled on this irrigation district. This does not appear to indicate that irrigation is a very profitable sort of farming to operate. Condition and character of soil has a great deal to do with this kind of farming. Under favorable circumstances it often becomes a fine class of agricultural enterprise, but it must be only undertaken when conditions are such that it can be carried on with reasonable hope for success. Getting water on to land and operating irrigation ditches is not only expensive but requires a great deal of skill and understanding on the part of the men who farm with water applied in this way.

A LETTER reached me a few days ago from Italy. It was written by a young surgeon. This young man was on the ship which with its cargo of nurses and doctors was torpedoed in the Mediterranean. All hands lost their belongings, including surgical instruments. He says the water was warm and so their hardships were not so very great. Only one life was lost.

Speaking of Italy he remarked that I would be interested in the agricultural methods of that country. All farm work is done with oxen and mules and he had seen some funny combinations both as to numbers and arrangement in these teams. When they were further south orange groves and vineyards occupied most of the country, while farther along were the olive groves. At the time of writing they were in a fairly hilly country and what the natives exist on is surely a mystery. Most of the towns are a curious combination of a few ultra-modern building and squalid medieval-looking huts. He added, "a few hundred feet above us at present is a monastery that has one of the most magnificent views you could imagine."

A FEW days ago when walking through a grocery and food store I noticed some potatoes which attracted my attention because of their shape. They were dusty and when I brushed one off found they were "netted gem." I asked a clerk about them and was told they came from British Columbia. I took some home. They proved to be up to their usual excellent quality as bakers, so I returned and got some more. On enquiry I found that two cars of these had just arrived from B.C. Last summer was not a favorable one for potatoes in Ontario and so we are getting tubers from P.E.I. and B.C.—Canada's extreme ends—and netted gems are welcome to any one who appreciates quality in this important food. Netted gem potatoes are said to do better on land inclined to be wet, sort of muck land. They yield well in B.C.

Prelude to Invasion

NEW YORK TIMES

WITH a confidence that no longer needs to assert the certainty of victory, but also with a sober appraisal of the strength of the enemy and the difficulties of the great tasks ahead, Mr. Churchill has made another one of his enlightening surveys of the war. It strikes a much-needed balance between undue optimism and undue gloom.

In tone and content it is perhaps the grimmest statement the Prime Minister has made since Britain emerged from the dark days following Dunkirk, though that grimness is no longer one of defiance of an overpowering enemy, but the grimness which prepares for the kill. However, the enemy is still strong, skillful and determined. He still has 300 divisions, depleted perhaps but of high fighting quality. The German people may have been pounded into dull apathy, and this, together with material damage done by the bombing, may have reduced German war production; but Hitler is still in control and the Nazi party and the German generals apparently have decided to hang together. What they can still do they are demonstrating in Italy, in Russia, and for that matter throughout Europe.

Under these circumstances, Mr. Churchill emphasizes that this is a time for deeds, not words; for preparation, effort and resolve. He gives no guarantee of victory in 1944, nor any guarantee of any sort. And this sober realism dominates both the military and the political picture which he paints. In fact, the difficulties and the prospective cost of victory are such that Mr. Churchill frankly subordinates all political issues, not to military expediency as some who are liberal with the lives of others term it, but to military necessity. That, he indicates, applied to French North Africa. It still applies to Italy, where the King and Marshal Badoglio now command the loyalty of the Italian Army and Navy co-operating with the Allies, and will apparently continue to do so until Rome has been conquered and a new and broader regime can be formed. The same considerations likewise apply to Yugoslavia, now rent by civil war, wher the Allies remain loyal to the King under whose auspices that country joined the United Nations, but support Marshal Tito, who is fighting the common enemy most effectively. These considerations also apply to Greece, where a similar situation prevails. And they apply to Poland and the border problems raised by the Russian advance. For though Mr. Churchill goes far in supporting the Russian claims for security and promises Poland compensation at the expense of Germany, he comes out strongly for a free and independent Poland and emphasizes Premier Stalin's pledge to the same effect.

IT IS perhaps disappointing that Mr. Churchill can report no more about the political situation than that no ground has been lost since the Conferences of Moscow and Teheran. And since he cannot report any progress either, he is forced to resort to the proposal of temporary working agreements which can scarcely arouse the same enthusiasm among the nations whose fortunes are affected as satisfactory permanent settlements. But above all political differences stand the demands of war, and in that respect at least Mr. Churchill can affirm with convincing confidence that all the United Nations are determined to fight side by side until their enemies have been crushed and total victory has been achieved.

How that victory is to be achieved is clearly indicated by his emphasis on the tremendous air offensive as the foundation of all plans for the projected mass invasion of the Continent. Hitler had two weapons on which he depended for victory — the submarine has been well-nigh knocked out, and the long overseas communications of the Allies are now more or less secure. The German air force has been badly knocked about, and counting all their air fleets the Allies now have a 5-to-1 superiority over it. But it is still a formidable force and, while it exists, an amphibious operation on the scale required by an invasion army of millions involves too great a risk of failure—failure which would be disastrous to the whole Allied cause. Hitler, whose recklessness has been his undoing, did not dare take that risk in 1940 when the German air force outnumbered the British in approximately the same proportion; and the difficulties of amphibious landings in Italy, in spite of all Allied air superiority, are further proof of the risk involved.

FOR those impatient with the speed of military operations, Mr. Churchill offers convincing explanations, which not only proudly emphasize the role played by Britain, but also show how greatly the Allied effort has aided the Russian armies. But in the strategy he outlines Mr. Churchill obviously agrees with General Montgomery that you must win your air war before you fight on the ground, and also with Generals Arnold and Spaatz, who have emphasized repeatedly that the main purpose of the Allied air war is to knock out the Luftwaffe. Then the invasion can start and, while Mr. Churchill repudiates the malicious assertions that Britain will hold back in it, he leaves no doubt that if the struggle is prolonged America, with its tremendous manpower reserves, will have to bear the brunt of it. This is in line with many warnings of our own spokesmen, and therein lies also the justification of our air war. For every curtailment of Germany's fighting power caused by the present air offensive will save that many American lives before the fighting ends.

Tenants Must Pay, Too

As a result of a survey of the vote at the municipal election in Peterborough early last month, it has been found that in the pools where the voters were mostly property owners, the vote was fairly heavy. But, in polls where most of the voters were tenants, the vote was light. Many of the tenants didn't bother to vote. Apparently many tenants feel that no matter what the tax rate amounts to, the property owner has to pay the bill—so why should he worry? This is a delusion. In the long run the tenants will pay and because of this they should have an interest in keeping the taxes within reason.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

A Bible Message

When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death: and when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate, the governor. . .

And Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest. And when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing. . . .

Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers. And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe. . . . And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him. (Matt. 27: 1, 2, 11, 12, 27, 28, 31.)

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. . . .

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. (Matt. 28: 1, 2, 5, 6.)

Unconsidered Trifles

When a worried-looking man applied for settlement of a claim for fire insurance, the agent asked: "Much damage?"

"Not much," the man said; "just a door."

"How much would a new door cost?"

"About five dollars."

"When did the fire happen?"

The man hesitated a moment, and then replied: "About 30 years ago."

"Thirty years ago?"

"Yes."

"And you've waited all these years to report it?"

"Yes."

"How did that happen?"

"Well," said the man, "my wife has been at me to do something about that poor ever since it was burned, and I couldn't stand it any longer."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier

Twenty-five years ago on February 17, 1919, Sir Wilfrid Laurier died. Looking back now over the tempestuous years to that day, one realizes what a void his going left in our story; the great part he played in healing differences, in steadying national morale. Laurier was more than a great Canadian; he was a citizen of the world with sense of history, one who could and did apply that sense to government with a depth of understanding matched by few of his contemporaries. In retrospect, with the passions and grudges of his day lost in the mist, we can perceive that more clearly.

May his memory remain with us. Joseph Howe somewhere spoke a memorable passage about great men being the inspiration of nations. We may be inspired and heartened by the memory of Laurier. He was a great man of our soil; the statesman, the patriot, the orator, and above all, the great gentleman. To all of us he belongs; not merely to a race or province or party, but to all with pride in Canada's past, courage in its present, faith in its future. In that spirit, and reverently, we think of him today.—Ottawa Journal.

Non-Secret Weapon

The panga may soon be as famous as the Gurkha's kurki and the Malay kris. It is a fearsome weapon with a short, broad blade, rather like a cleaver. In fact, in peace-time it is used very much as a cleaver for cutting through the bush and for digging. It is standard equipment for the African troops now in Ceylon ready for the coming offensive against Japan. The African soldiers carry their pangas in leather sheaths. The weapon is officially regarded as an entrenching tool, but the African soldiers make a practice of sharpening its edges for use in close hand-to-hand fighting, in which they swing the panga in the same manner they have learned to swing it in cutting through the jungle.—British Information Services.

40 Oddfellows Visit Millbrook Lodge

MILLBROOK, Feb. 28 —(ENS)— —Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 308, held a special meeting last week when over 40 brother Oddfellows from Peterborough and Otonabee lodges motored from Peterborough, bringing their degree team with them, and 13 candidates were initiated in the second degree of Oddfellowship.

Two of the candidates were from Peterborough, one from each of the visiting lodges, and the other 11 were from the local Lodge. Included among the guests of the evening was the District Deputy Grand Master, E. H. Padkham, of Bethany.

J. Lancashire, P.D.D.G.M. was captain of the Degree Team, and the Grand Herald was S. Rowe. Following the Lodge session, presided over by the Noble Grand, A. L. Sisco, speeches were made by visiting and local brethren.

Later refreshments were served, the members of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, assisting with this feature. The Rebekahs also had an initiation at their meeting the same evening.

A special honor in prospect for the local Oddfellows' Lodge is a two-day visit from the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, of Ontario, Byron E. Dundass, of London, Ontario, when it observes its fiftieth anniversary on Monday, May 1; the Grand Master will be here for the preceding Sunday also.

City Planning Authority Invited By Mayor To Visit Peterborough

Tracy LeMay, Toronto's Commissioner of City Planning, has been invited by Mayor Hamilton to come to Peterborough in the near future for consultation on a policy of local planning for the period after the war.

In his call upon Mayor Conboy of Toronto last week, Mayor Hamilton was carrying out the wishes of the council as expressed at its last meeting, and it is understood that Mr. LeMay is likely to be available about the middle of March.

"Can the council give thought and direction to the future development of Peterborough as it will be affected in postwar building and in subsequent expansion?" That was substantially the general question Mayor Hamilton, after introducing once more an idea which has been largely influenced by the munificent gift of W. G. Morrow to the citizens for the erection of a new city hall. Since then and as the war years have been passing with other promises of construction, including the Federal building which is projected for Charlotte street, the council and many citizens have been thinking of the pattern which may be followed when the works that are contemplated are actually laid down.

When Mayor Hamilton suggested to the council "we can think it over until the next Board of Works meeting"? Alderman Sands remarked "we've been thinking about it too long now."

At any rate His Worship lost no time in conveying the council's invitation to Mr. LeMay, who has been largely responsible for expansive planning of the Toronto of tomorrow, which has recently been receiving much attention in the press of the Queen City.

"It seems that most of the city's growth is extending to the southwest," Mayor Hamilton said in his statement to the council, "and as a council we are not doing much about that development." He supplemented that observation by mentioning the residential growth in both the Normal School and Ashburnham sections. "In the postwar years the city should make the best use possible of its progress."

Need Outside Counsel

Alderman Glover said he thought it might be best to obtain the advice of some "outsider who is qualified from experience to help us. We have been living here all our lives and some one from outside would probably be more open minded, and could give us a lead for building in the next twenty-five years."

Alderman Dutton said that planning could properly include areas for factory sites and general industrial purposes, parks and playgrounds and the location of public buildings. "These are things that are going to come to Peterborough, possibly in a short time. We realize there are possibilities for development, but it might best be done by bringing in some one with vision."

A Timely Project

Alderman Cotton referred to the city's annexation plans and commented that the discussion was even more timely on that account, because planning would coincide with the extension of the city's boundaries."

It was mentioned that the council might call a meeting of representative citizens presumably for advisory advantage, but nothing was said conclusively in that respect.

A Louisville Ideal

Since the council's discussion, the Examiner glanced over the latest issue of "The Listening Post," a publication of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities" which featured an article by Mayor Wilson W. Wyatt of Louisville, Ky. It applies particularly to some of the larger cities, but a few quotations indicate its planning content.

"Every professional planner has known for years that our cities are rotting at the core. We are developing ghost ideas. We call it blight. Our oldest residential streets are now lines of boarding houses. Their value is half, a quarter, a tenth of what it was. Our business areas are gradually moving away from the sections our fathers knew as the centres of thriving commerce...We are casting off our old buildings like old clothing, and leaving them to disuse and decay. We cannot just shrug our shoulders and call it fate. Some even put on blinders and call it progress. But, however you name it, it is waste and extravagance... And there is something that private enterprise, unaided and on its own, can do nothing about. If this is permitted to go its decadent way to its inevitable result, it means...the death knell of our cities.

But we have an alternative,—one that is bright and full of promise. We can provide properly located playgrounds and breathing spaces, adequate sanitation, schools and clinics. At the same time that we make our cities structurally sound we shall be preventing and curing human erosion. Here is a program both socially and financially sound.

Committee of Citizens

Where can you find a better place to invite the cooperation of your local architects, lawyers, builders, engineers, business men and just plain citizens? Provide the full assistance of your planning commissions, yes, and of your works department and your school board. But, let it become a citizens' enterprise as well. The people are vitally interested in becoming a part of their city's future. Democracy makes the mistake not of asking too much participation by its members, but too little...

I venture the prediction that where properly selected citizen committees, in cooperation with local officials, prepare a community's postwar plans, or area development, as I should prefer to call them,—a large part of the final projects will become realities, for they will represent the ambition of the people for their city. Theirs is a tremendous pool of ideas, technical skill, and energy for practical accomplishment —This means a working citizens' committee, not just a group of names."

Community Units

Mayor Watt says: "What's the use of hoping for a better world unless we can first build better communities! Here we educate our children, provide for health, build our homes, worship in our churches, develop our culture, and shape the destiny of the nation. It is here we must plan our way of life following this war..."

3 Churches Join In World Prayer

MILLBROOK, Feb. 28 — (ENS). —The women of the three local churches met for the World Day of Prayer service in St. Thomas' Anglican Parish Hall on Friday from three to four o'clock, theme chosen for the day being: "And the Lord wondered that there was no intercessor."

The hostess society had charge of the opening and closing sections of the official program, which had been prepared by Miss Margaret Applegarth, together with representatives of fifty different nations. Miss M. L. Collins presided at the piano, and following the period of prayer for forgiveness for individual and national sins, and for comfort for those in anxiety and sorrow, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, of St. Andrew's United Church, led in the section "Myrrh," during which intercession was made that bitterness and distress might be relieved.

Miss Agnes Johnston, of Grace Presbyterian Church, took charge for the section "Frankincense," when intercession was made for the alleviation of sorrow and suffering in all the countries of the world, Mrs. Walter Patterson taking the special prayer for grace amid the the storm and tumult of war, and Mrs. S. E. Eakins the petitions for those serving through the perils of war.

Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke had the concluding period, intercession for the refining of the spirit of mankind and a litany of praise and thanksgiving. The offering was received in this part of the service, Mrs. H. J. Russell and Miss Rose Macnamara taking it up, and all present joining in a dedicatory prayer.

Last year, throughout Canada, the Day of Prayer offering amounted to $10,000, and each year it is devoted to the publication and distribution of Christian literature.

Red Cross Needs $30,000 For Activities

Thirty thousand dollars, half of the $60,000 objective set for the Red Cross and Community drive, which began on Friday night and continues to March 3, is the allocation given to the Peterborough Red Cross Society. The announcement of the date and the allocation was made at the recent annual meeting of the Society, when the report given by the treasurer showed that the money received through the fund in 1943 was used in a variety of useful ways.

The expenditures of the Blood Donors' Clinic alone amounted to over $9,000 in 1943, showing the volume of work done in this line. Blood plasma is an invaluable aid on the battlefield, and Peterborough's contributions, through the Red Cross Clinic, have saved many lives. This worthy service is continuing, but funds are needed in order to maintain the Clinic.

Another large item in the list of expenditures was $3,336.04, which was paid to the Canadian Red Cross Society for supplies. During 1943, a total of 74,679 articles were packed and shipped from the Peterborough branch. Capture parcels, another important item, were also packed and sent to Toronto for distribution. Boys returning from prison camps have told the world of the capture parcel, and the part it played in keeping them alive.

One of the most important services, not often mentioned, is the tracing of prisoners of war. Many boys reported missing or lost have been located by the International Red Cross, and their relatives have been notified promptly. This plan is kept in operation by the Red Cross Society branches throughout the world, and depends on the help of each one.

The drive for the Red Cross and Community Fund which has begun, has canvassers who will be covering the city, soliciting donations from every citizen. It is hoped that this appeal will receive a generous response.

With 75 yards to spare and no competition after the 440-yard mark, Gil Dodds, Boston's flying parson, easily won the mile feature in 4:08.3, short of the indoor mark by .9 seconds at the national A.A.U. championship meet in Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Bill Hulse of New York U.S. mile record-holder, finished a poor fourth, behind Don Burnham of Dartmouth and Bob Hume of University of Michigan.

Canadian-born John Fulton of San Francisco was third behind Les Eisenhart of Columbus and John Roxborough of Michigan in the 1,000 yard run, the time for which was 2:15. With Ensign Cornelius Warmerdam's plane grounded at Cleveland because of bad weather, the pole vault title went to Jack Defield of Minnesota at only 14 feet.

Champs Missing.

The first 32 finishers in the 56-team football league, north, war cup qualifying competition will enter the cup rounds proper next Saturday but last year's winners, Wolverhampton Wanderers, will not be among them.

The Wolves did not win a game during the qualifying rounds which ended Saturday and finished with a tie 1-2 with Walshall. Wrexham ended on top of the list, edging out Crewe 1-0.

Cup participants play home-and-home meeting in the second round home, total-goal series, the 16 winstarting March 18.

Among the top-flight teams, Bath defeated Swansea 5-2, Stoke downed West Bromwich 5-4, Leicester tied 1-1 with Notts Forest, Sheffield United swamped Doncaster 7-0, Bradford lost 4-2 to Huddersfield, Manchester United drew with Oldham 1-1 and Everton trimmed the last-place Tranmere Rovers, 5-1.

The biggest crowd of the day, 20,000, watched Birmingham beat Aston Villa 2-1.

In the League South Saturday Charlton beat Brentford 6-3, Chelsea whitewashed Watford 3-0, Tottenham defeated Portsmouth 1-0 and Reading won from Clapton 3-0.

The Scottish Southern League, where Glasgow Rangers have clinched the title, is ended except for a few games. Rangers and Queen's Park drew 1-1, Clyde trounced Dumbarton 4-1 and Celtic, the runners-up, drew 2-2 with St. Mirren.

Sam Byrd, Birmingham pro and former Yankee outfielder, displaced Harold (Jug) McSpaden in the third round yesterday of the New Orleans $5,000 open golf tourney by doing a three-under-par 69 for a total of 212. McSpaden brought in a 73 for a total of 214.

The $100,000 Flamingo Stakes for three-year-olds at Hialeah Park resulted in a surprise victory when a Saturday crowd of 17,262 saw Stir Up finish a length and a half in front of another longshot, Skytracer, with the favorite Director J.E. a poor fifth. Stir Up paid $16 to win and Skytracer returned $37.20 for second.

Bob Wagner Looms Up As Real Threat

Strangler Bob Wagner of Portland, Oregon, made a short and not entirely popular trip into the Brock Arena ring last Tuesday when he overcame the good defensive work of Sailor Al Korman and pinned the Navy boy with his rather illegal-looking headlock.

Now Wagner has convinced Promoter Frank Tunney that main bouts are his special dish and got himself a match here Tuesday night night with long Vic Holbrook. Just whether that is doing Wagner any favor remains to be seen. The Strangler is a very tough character on a mat. In fact he claims that any of the hard guys that have been wrestling around here "are just so many babies compared to me."

Wagner is a well-travelled gent and seems to have had the ability to wrestle his way practically all around the world, meeting the best and handing out his strangling head-lock with great impartiality and equally consistent success. He weighs over two hundred and forty pounds, is built like a human tank and leaves no doubt in any one's mind that he can wrestle.

Wagner's opponent last week was a strong, tough boy but the Portland Pounder polished him off without really raising a sweat. Having watched the smooth and powerful Holbrook in all three of his bouts here, we thing the Giant Californian should come out on top, but not before Wagner has made many a mark on him. Holbrook is a joy to watch at all times but Wagner's reputation shows him to be a considerable threat any time he starts.

The great Frank Sexton, champion of the Pacific Coast and some think the "uncrowned champion" will also be here Tuesday night. The Columbus Powerhouse meets sturdy Jack Wentworth.

In the other bout Jan Gotch comes back to hook up with Tom Collins, a new Irishman.

Army Favors Boxing Tourney

MONTREAL, Feb. 28 — (CP). — The Montreal Herald says today that "an army sports plan that has been under close scrutiny by various Canadian army chieftains for the past five months will receive its big test in a proposed Dominion-wide boxing tournament, with the championship finals to be held at Ottawa during the first or second week in April."

"Boxing has been chosen as the first text of the possibilities of the plan because of the great military value in developing the fighting soldier and because such activity can be carried out on a mass scale," the newspaper said.

"One of the main reasons for the recent ban on national-wide competition," said the Herald, "was the necessary travelling of the teams. The proposed plans for the boxing tournament will whittle down travelling through inter-district competitions and this will at the same time avoid long periods of absence from the regular military training of the title-seekers.

"All district championships will be declared by April 15, and will be followed by an elimination tournament in western and eastern Canada."

SPORTS-Day by Day

They have finally stopped a team with Joe Stewart in the lineup for the first time this season in the Y.M.C.A. cage warfare. Pete McArthur's Orphans managed to beat C.G.E. 32 to 30 Saturday night in a City League battle that was about the most robust and exciting game of the season with the result in doubt until the final whistle. The target for the night was of course Stewart and the Electricians big scorer had to run a barrage of checking every step of the journey. They couldn't hold him off the score sheet, of course and he ran in 16 points and made the plays for three or four baskets but the manner in which they rode herd on the C.G.E. captain undoubtedly prevented him from running up a count that would have meant a win for his outfit. Orphans had all their regulars out and were fortified by the addition of Mike Rogow, home on week-end leave from Petawawa Camp, so that they had their strongest team of the campaign on the floor. At that it was about as close as any contest could be with the lead alternating and both teams driving hard all he way. It was the best cage game of the season at the Y.M.C.A.

Public School League authorities are hoping for a few frosty days for they have a playoff on their hands and trying to run off a final round on an open air rink in the midst of a mild spell is not the easiest thing in the world. The Public School League is now down to the last series for the championship. King George qualified for the final two weeks ago by sweeping through the regular schedule undefeated but there has been a merry battle for second position and it was not decided until Saturday morning when the King Edward team finally made the grade by taking Queen Alexandra into camp 3 goals to 1 in a game that was hard-fought and decidedly well-played in view of the fact that it had to be staged on a rough cushion. King Edward played smart hockey to earn a trip into the final round and they will now meet King George in a best-of-three series to decide the school honors. It is hoped to start the playoffs early this week, although it all depends upon the weather. King George team has had a long layoff but in spite of that fact will probably rank as favorites to take the title in view of the form they have shown all season and especially because of the scoring ability of Jeff Stock, the East City school's centre ice star. But they had better not take the King Edward team lightly. They gave the leaders a good argument when the two met during the regular schedule.

A Bouquet For Clapper

A lot of nice things were said about Dit Clapper in an interview Billy Westwick of the Ottawa Journal had with Art Ross, the Boston boss the other day and they will be read with pleasure by Dit's army of friends in Hastings, Peterborough and the district generally. Here is part of the Westwick story: "Signing of Eddie Shore was the best deal any hockey manager ever made," Art mused when the dishes had been cleared away yesterday and the talk swung to players and hockey moves. "Eddie had everything including the old customer appeal that other great players lacked. The others had skill and great competitive spirit. Shore had all that and more." Ross reflects with relish on the hockey fates that landed Shore in a Boston uniform. But the signing of Shore and other stars comes under the heading of "deals" or investments with Ross. A distinction is noted when the name of Dit Clapper is mentioned. There's a change in the Ross manner, a loosening up in the sometimes stern and scarred features of the Bruin leader. If he's pleasant enough while recalling some moves that netted handsome dividends, he positively mellows at the mention of Clapper. It isn't hard to discover he feels differently about his veteran rearguard.

* * * * * *

"I never like to look back and classify Clapper under the heading of a deal," he says, continued the Journal article. "Dit is practically an institution with the Bruins, one of these players in a million. No player with whom I have ever been associated has given me more pleasure from a manager's point of view. Some of them are good and hard to handle. Others are only of average ability and still tough to handle. Some of the worst offenders in the latter respect are players of inferior ability. But you come to Clapper and you have a great forward when he was up front. You put him back on the defence and he continues to star. And all the way he has been one of the best influences any hockey club ever had in its ranks. The older players like him; the younger ones admire him. But we won't stop there. After playing forward and defence with the Bruins, turning in one great season after another, I handed him a new role lately. I don't take as many trips as I used to. So Clapper takes the team and Lord knows we've had plenty of headaches with injuries and mishaps of one type or another. So what does Clapper do? He just makes a fine job of handling the boys and steps out there regularly and turns in a good game. If I had to name an all-star all-time Hart Trophy winner I'd name Dit. He typifies the true winner of that award. Left to me I'd name him for the trophy this year."

Bringing Them In

One of the features of junior hockey that amazes old-timers as they remember how carefully imports used to be scrutinized in the good old days and how the residence limit began six months ahead of the season is the manner in which teams are allowed to strengthen up from here, there and everywhere for the playoffs. Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald mentions some of the recent switches in the following paragraph: Galt Kist Canadains are still importing players in an effort to make them a contender for junior "A" O.H.A. honors, and have landed Stan Maxwell of North Bay, a centre and winger for the stretch drive. They may discover that they need more than that before they get by either Oshawa Generals or St. Michael's. Len Snider and Bob Brown of Brantford Lions are also seeking to bolster their club for the money series, and are hoping to secure Tom Tindal and Enio Sclisizzi of Stratford Kroehlers. Louie Pellasier of Hamilton Whizzers is another junior sponsor who has lines out for reinforcements, and one of the players he would like to sign is Eddie Kullman of Stratford Kroehlers.

Canadiens are N.H.L. champions. By winning 10 to 2 over Boston Bruins in Montreal Saturday night the Flying Frenchmen cinched the league title, their first since 1931. They went right on Sunday night, invading Detroit to win 5 to 1 and as result of their week-end performances increased their already enormous lead by four points. The Montrealers have only been beaten four times in 42 starts and make the rest of the league look like a bunch of selling-platers. Chicago Black Hawks were the other outstanding team in the games over the week-end picking off two wins to climb up to a tie with the Leafs—and they have played two games less than the Baymen. It was the ace line of Clint Smith, Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko that did the trick for the Hawks Saturday night, each of them scoring a goal to beat the Leafs 3 to 2 while in Chicago Cully Dahlstrom was the chief triggerman with goals. The fourth going to Clint Smith. The Hawks won 4 to 3 with a last period rally turning the trick for them.

Barons Retain Top Spot Defeat Bears

By The Canadian Press.

The leading Cleveland Barons strengthened their position atop the American Hockey League over the week-end by defeating Hershey Bears 3-0 Saturday night and Providence Reds 4-3 last night.

Buffalo trounced the second-place Bears 6-1 last night, after they battled Pittsburgh Hornets to a 3-3 draw Saturday. Indianapolis Capitals and Hornets also staged a 3-3 tie last night.

For Barons it was their first victory on Hershey ice since the 1941-42 season. The first and third periods were scoreless, but Cleveland's Norm Locking and Les Cunningham got two counters within 53 seconds in the second. Pete Horeck collected the third counter in the last minute of the period.

The cellar-dwelling Reds put up a strong fight with Barons last night which resulted in major and minor and match misconduct penalties. Clayton Lavell of Cleveland, and Amo Bessone, and Bill Whittet of Providence received majors, before Pete Bessone and Whittet were given match misconducts in the third period.

Horeck bagged two of Cleveland's counters and Earl Bartholome and Locking scored the other two. Harold Cooper, Jack Toupin and Roland Forget made the three Providence tallies.

Dede Klein slammed a hard 30-foot drive into the Pittsburgh net to give Bisons their 3-3 deadlock with Hornets.

Pittsburg went into the third period with a 3-1 lead but Fred Thurier, who had tallied in the opening frame, bagged another counter at 4:22.

Indianapolis Caps played their last game of the season against Hornets last night and a dramatic last half-second score gave them their 3-3 draw.

Player-manager Johnny Sorrell fired the puck into the cage just one-half a second before the final whistle. Sorrell also scored the only first-period goal. After a scoreless second frame, Cliff Barton, Tom Forgie, and Bill Gauff made the Pittsburgh counters. Red Kane scored the second Cap goal.

In the Hershey-Buffalo game, Walter Atanas, young Bison winger, scored three goals for the second successive Sunday to pace his team's attack. Fred Thurier, Larry Thibeault and Max Bennett contributed the other counters. Hershey's Johnny Harms scored Bears' lone tally at 14:28 in the final period.

Orphans Beat C.G.E. By 32-30

Pete McArthur's Orphans came from behind three different times in Saturday night's City Basketball League game with C.G.E. but finally won out in the closest and hardest-fought battle of the season 32 to 30.

The result made history for it was the first time either in the House League or the City Loop this winter that a team that included Joe Stewart in its lineup had been beaten.

It was a close fit. The Orphans threw up a checking barrage against Stewart and gave that ace scorer a busy night but in spite of the attention they paid the C.G.E. sniper he managed to rack up 16 points and set up three or four more baskets. However his efforts fell just short of what was needed for a win.

C.G.E. took the lead in the first half and at one stage was seven points in front but the Orphans began to get rolling near the end of the half and were down only 13 to 12 at the rest period. It was even going early in the second half with the Orphans finally going in front 18 to 17 for the first time in the engagement. C.G.E. struck back with a field basket to make it 19 to 18 but the McArthur clan tied it up at 19-19 with a successful free throw.

Then the Electricians staged a sudden scoring surge that saw them run in three quick baskets and go in front 25 to 19. That looked like curtains for the Orphans, but they had a kick left and in the closing moments of the game staged a rally that saw them open up a four-point lead.

It was still anybody's ball game. Joe Stewart cut two points off the margin with a field basket just as the final whistle blew.

Stewart's 16 points made him tops for the night. Baird with 10 points and Pete McArthur with nine led the winners. The teams:

Orphans (32)—Baird 10, Csumrik 6, Ferguson 4, Estlick, Kemp 2, McArthur 9, Rogow 2.

C.G.E. (30)—Stewart 16, Davis 4, Jones, Johnston 2, Keegan 4, McCuaig 4.

Referee—Ken Gillespie.

Canadiens Win N.H.L. Title; Defeat Detroit

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The gentleman who writes script for Montreal Canadiens must be knee-deep in dime novels to-day, working feverishly on a gusdy new angle for the success story of the first championship team to represent Canadiens since 1931.

It'll have to be good. Anything less than a clean sweep in the impending Stanley Cup play-offs would be a kindergarten sort of climax for Forum fans who have watched the Flying Frenchmen surge from one conquest to another in winning 31 of 42 scheduled games this season.

The same old story — Montreal first and the rest nowhere—was enacted during the week-end as the teams approached the final two weeks of National League competition. After routing Boston Bruins 10-2 Saturday to clinch the championship and remain undefeated in 21 home engagements, Canadiens showed there was no letdown by coasting to a 5-1 verdict in Detroit Sunday over their closest contenders, the Red Wings.

On a less lavish scale, Chicago Black Hawks emulated Montreal's two-ply triumph by defeating New York Rangers 4-2 on home ice Sunday after a 3-2 victory over Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday. The four-point harvest left Chicago six points ahead of Bruins and strengthened the impression that Montreal, Detroit, Toronto and Chicago will be the four teams to qualify for post-season play.

Chicago, deadlocked for third place with Leafs, appears to have a slight edge with two games in hand. They gained an equally slim margin on the season's play Saturday, the 3-2 victory over Leafs being their fifth against four defeats and a tie in 10 meetings with the Toronto club. All three goals were contributed by the formidable attacking unit of Clint Smith, Bill Mosienko and Doug Bentley, each scoring once while Tommy (Windy) O'Neill, wingman on the Toronto line assigned to shadow Chicago's ace trio, found time to score both Leaf goals.

Cully Dahlstorm took full charge Sunday, scoring two third-period goals within 18 seconds to clinch the verdict after sinking one shot in the opening frame. Smith pumped drives past Mike Karakas as Rangers accepted their 33rd defeat against six victories and three ties. Six penalties, including two majors, were doled out in a wild first period which saw Bob Dill and Bryan Hextall of Rangers tangle in the penalty box with Joe Cooper of the Hawks.

Maurice Richard, setting a hot scoring pace for Canadiens collected two tallies in each of Montreal's week-end successes. Phil Watson with two Saturday and Butch Bouchard and Fern Majeau with singles in each game also were prominent.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(CP).—That proposal in United States for two-way running on the bases in baseball was bound to have repercussions. Out in Vancouver the basketball boys propose to let teams score in either basket....As if the referees aren't dizzy enough now!....N. J. (Piffles) Taylor of Regina, president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, dropped in for a chat while here for the C.R.U. meeting. Piffles sees no chance of senior football in the west this year unless the service sports ban is lifted....Or the war ends....But after the war there is certain to be immediate revival of western football on a big scale.

Vale of Tears.

When Sacramento's eleventh-hour financial drive saved the Pacific Coast League baseball franchise from the Tacoma franchise snatchers, the crying towels were not confined to Tacoma....Eager sports promoters from Vancouver, B.C., had been scampering all over California with hope in their hearts and promissory notes in their fists in a vain effort to move the Class AA club into Canada.

Futures.

There's a move afoot to use Montreal's old Bonaventure station as a sports centre for service men. The idea is to instal a boxing ring and other gymnasium equipment.... Plans are under way behind the scenes for a Quebec Senior Hockey League re-organization. Jack Park of the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder reports a six-team circuit is under consideration with two French clubs from Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Cornwall and Montreal Royals. Jack doubts Cornwall will return to the league after the war and he says many believe Ottawa will quit temporarily to enter the Ottawa City League. Park figures Cornwall could make a go of an entry in the Ottawa city circuit rather than in the Quebec league.

Incidentally.

John McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leafs hockey player, was honor student in a class of R.C.A.F. pilots graduated last week at Brantford....Maj. Denny Whitaker, former Hamilton Tigers football star, has been promoted lieutenant-colonel, his mother reports. Denny captained the Canadian team which beat the American 16-6 in London this month. Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson suggests Bill Durnan of Canadiens for the Vezina, Calder and Hart trophies. Why not the Byng, too? Bill hasn't been penalized this season.

Ed. Conwell Ties World 60-Yard Mark

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(CP)—Ed. Conwell of New York University won the 60-yard run at the National Amateur Athletic Union indoor track and field championships at Madison Square Garden Saturday night, tying the meet and world record of 0:06.1.

Gil Dodds, Boston's student pastor, whirled 11 times round the plank saucer in 4:08.2 as he once more failed to break the world indoor mile mark of 4:07.4, but he won the meet race.

Conwell got away to a perfect start in the dash to tie the world standard which Ben Johnson of Columbia, first put on the books in 1938. He had a two-foot lead halfway down the straightaway, but was only inches ahead of Herb Thompson at the finish.

Dodds hugged the shoulder of the oval to pound through the first half mile in 1:53.8 and hit the three-quarter mark in 3:01. He had no competition after the quarter-mile mark and finished with a 75-yard edge over Don Burnham of Dartmouth. Bill Hulse of New York led at the end of the first quarter in 1:00.2, but then dropped behind.

Bob Hume of the University of Michigan finished third, with Hulse fourth.

Brantford Juniors Secure Play-off Berth

By The Canadian Press.

Brantford Lions gained a third-place playoff position in Group 2 of the Junior "A" Series as a result of the two final games of the schedule Saturday. Galt Kists trimmed Port Colborne 7-4 at Galt and the Lions worked out a tight 5-4 win over St. Catharines at the Telephone city. The final group standing finds St. Catharines leading Galt by four points; Brantford third with 21 points and the Port Corborne Recreationists just missing out by a lone point.

In the first of the playoff clashes to-night Hamilton Whizzers will be entertained at Brantford; St. Michael's College will go to Galt while Oshawa Generals travel to St. Catharines.

St. Catharines started out strongly at Brantford, leading 2-1 in the first period only to have Lions tie it up 3-3 in the second and notch two goals to one in the third to win out. Jack Jeffreys and Blue McGuire accounted for two each against Falcons. Evanshen getting the single. Scorers for Falcons were Phillips, two, and P. Long and Delmonte one each.

Running in five straight goals in the initial stanza, Galt made no mistake in dealing with Recreationists although the latter monopolized the second frame by registering the only two counters of the period, each team finding the mark twice in the third session. Ubriaco and Sullivan were double scorers for Galt, the remainder being distributed among Podolsky, McCarthy and Curik. Port Colborne marksmen were Gravelle, Kaiser, Savicky and Simpell.

Marmora-Stirling Combines Lose

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 28—In a free-scoring game in which there were fistic outbreaks on several occasions, Trenton Juniors evened matters with the Stirling-Marmora Combines on their home ice with a belated 6 to 5 win to force a third and deciding game for the district junior O.H.A. group title. Farmer Captures Second Wolf With Fox Trap

MARMORA, Feb. 28 —(ENS) — "Are wolves becoming less wily?" is the wonder expressed locally for news has come twice in less than a week of a wolf being caught in a trap set for a fox.

The Examiner representative received a call Saturday afternoon from William Aunger of Blairton, who asked him to inspect something in the trunk of his car. It turned out to be the carcass of a young timber wolf that was caught in his trap set for foxes on his property about a week ago. The trap was set about a mile from his residence and had already taken two foxes.

Still Alive.

"Imagine my surprise," said Mr. Aunger "to find on this occasion, reynard substituted by lupin." The trap was set near the foot of a stump. The animal when sighted, had apparently been captured for two days, for it had greatly reduced the girth of the stump, leaving matchwood and slivers within reach of the chain. It seemed to realize it was hopelessly caught as its captor approached it and was easily killed by a club.

The wolf measured twenty-two inches from the toe to the shoulder and weighed approximately twenty-nine pounds. This is the first wolf remembered as being caught in this vicinity. Mr. Aunger mentioned that there seemed to be more tracks around the fields than in former winters but he could not be certain as to what animals had produced them.

"O" FOR ORANGE RETURNS BATTERED BUT SAFE—Crew of "O" for "Orange," indestructible R.A.F. Lancaster which has made 60 operational trips over enemy territory. Note the cannon holes in the bomber received from an enemy fighter over Leipzig recently. In spite of being badly shot up during a sharp engagement, they went on to bomb the target and returned safely to their base. Both gun turrets were knocked out, the tail plane practically shot away, two tires burst, and the perspex of the pilot's cockpit and astro dome shattered, but FO. J. S. Lees of Chilliwack, B.C., flew it safely home with the bomb doors jammed open, and made a perfect landing. Left to Right, front row; PO J. F. Brown, wireless operator, Quebec City; Sergt. R. E. Pearson, mid-upper gunner, Burnley, Lancashire; FO. J. Horner, navigator, Blackpool, Lancashire. Back row: FO. J. S. Lees, pilot, Chilliwack, B.C.; FO. W. Boden, bomb aimer, Isle of Wight; FS. E. T. McLeod, St. John, N.B. (rear gunner); Sergt. C. H. Brow, flight engineer, Burton-on-Trent, Staffs.

man lines on both the main 5th Army and British 8th Army fronts.

West of Castelforte beyond the Garigliano on the main 5th Army front a British patrol engaged a small enemy force, inflicting a number of casualties.

Dive-bombing and strafing attacks by Allied craft on the Littorio and Guidonia airdromes near Rome, in which a hangar was exploded, highlighted Sunday air operations. Total flights during the day were reduced to about 400 by bad flying weather. Dive-bombers scored 16 hits on docks at Ladispoli, a little port north of the River Tiber.

Simultaneously with new air attacks on enemy shipping off the Yugoslav coast, the British destroyers Tyrian and Teaser shelled German batteries at Vela Luka, on the Island of Korcula. The enemy replied, but caused no damage or casualties.

Spitfires destroyed 11 motor vehicles and damaged others in an attack on enemy transportation in Central Italy.

Other Spitfires shot up 20 railroad cars in Yugoslavia, in the region of Sibenik, Kittyhawks scored near misses on two vessels near Sibenik Harbor on the Yugoslav coast, and coastal Air Force R.A.F. Spitfires bombed Corfu Harbor installations.

The enemy flew approximately 20 sorties over the Anzio beachhead, aiming at Allied ships and unloading areas. One Focke-Wulf 190 was shot down there. Two Allied planes are missing.

Sunday's Allied communique said 5th Army troops repulsed two light German attacks on the Cassino front.

Lively patrol clashes on the Canadian Corps sector of the 8th Army front were reported Saturday night. A Maritime battalion reported one patrol had killed three and possibly six Germans in one action.

Loans For Soldiers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(AP)—Government loans will be available to returning members of the United States armed forces to help re-establish them in business, it was disclosed yesterday by Commerce Secretary Jesse H. Jones in announcing extension of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's small business loan program to include those mustered out of service.

New Tax Bill To Collect Over 2 Billions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(AP) — The United States' tax bill was increased $2,300,000,000 to a new record total of over $42,000,000,000 annually to-day as the Senate followed the House in over-riding President Roosevelt's veto of the second Wartime Revenue Act.

First general effects of the new legislation will be felt when higher postal rates become effective 3 days hence.

Then, on April 1, an increased schedule of excise taxes become effective, jumping the levy on liquor from $6 to $9 a gallon, or about 11 cents a drink on 100-proof spirits, and extending through a list of other commodities and services.

Salient provisions of the new law include:

1. Increases in individual income taxes for 1934—to yield an additional $664,900,000. There is no general rate increase, the new revenue being derived through elimination of the earned income credit and removal of deductions for excise taxes paid out.

2. A boost in the corporation excess profits tax from 90 per cent. to 95—to yield $502,100,000 more.

3. Higher excises on items classified as luxuries—another $1,051,300,000.

Boost Postage.

4. Increased postal rates in several categories of mail—$96,900,000 more. The out-of-town letter rate remains at 3 cents. The in-town letters, beginning 30 days hence, must carry 3-cent rather than 2-cent stamps. Air mail charges rise from 6 to 8 cents per ounce.

5. The social security payroll tax rate is frozen at 1 per cent for the rest of 1944, instead of rising automatically to 2 per cent each against employer and employee.

6. Numerous changes become effective in the war contracts renegotiation law, including an amendment which opens the way for contractors to appeal to the courts from renegotiations they consider unfair. Next Dec. 31 is set as the termination date for negotiating war contracts for recovery of "excessive profits," although the President is given an option to set the date forward or backward as much as six months if he deems it secessary.

7. Labor unions, farm co-operatives and other organizations are required to make annual financial statements to the treasury, although no tax is imposed.

The new law makes duty free the importation of lighter weight newsprint, during the war emergency.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28 — (AP) — A realistic practical approach to the problems that will face mankind when peace comes, was urged by Charles L. Wheeler of San Francisco, president of Rotary International in an address here Saturday night.

He described the job of post-war reconstruction as "too immense and too far-reaching in its consequences" to be handled by any one group.

Industry Gives Boost To Community Fund

Early reports this morning from some of the city's industrial plants indicates that the appeal of the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund was receiving an immediately encouraging response as the annual campaign moved into action.

Peterborough's objective is $60,000 to be raised this week. Many of the pledge cards were distributed even a week and ten days ago, and their returns at headquarters on George street this morning inspired a feeling of confidence that the citizens were going to make a quick job of building up the Fund again for the Red Cross and local requirements during the coming year.

The work of the Red Cross Society alone is so thoroughly well known to the public through the operations of the Blood Donors Clinic, apart from its routine aid of parcels to prisoners of war, and its general support as an auxiliary organization to the war action, that the citizens hardly need to be reminded of the value and the importance of their contributions to the Fund.

The first impressions from the Monday morning reported response suggested that the factory employees are going to do a full share of generous giving, and that leaves the rest of the financing to the general public, to the individual citizen who has supported the Red Cross and Community Fund in the past and knows without any other facts than the press headlines that the demand is as necessary and compelling as at any other time since the war began.

The expected developments in Europe and elsewhere this year are expected to increase the need of Red Cross assistance, and that help cannot be given without the financial support of the people of Canada.

Peterborough's obligation in this fifth year of the war is to pile up a Fund of $60,000 during the brisk campaign of the week that began today, and all that the Fund committee asks is that each day's reports be as favorable as the cheery news that was flashed from the city's factory employees.

FIGHTING IN ITALY—Pte. Jack C. Drysdale, R.C.O.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Drysdale, 184 Lansdowne Street, has been in Italy for four months. He enlisted in August, 1941, and trained in Petawawa, Kingston, London, Barriefield and Owen Sound. Pte. Drysdale went overseas in June, 1943, and arrived in Italy at the beginning of November. He was formerly employed with the Coca-Cola Company here.

Madoc Veteran Returns On Hospital Ship

KINGSTON, Feb. 28 (CP)—Seventeen veterans of overseas service who returned to Canada last week on the hospital ship Lady Nelson arrived here yesterday. Several of the group have seen active fighting in both Sicily and Italy.

Eleven who suffered disabilities were taken to Kingston Military Hospital, while the other six were transported to District Depot 3A at Fort Frontenac.

Pte. James McPhee, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Smiths Falls has been in bed since last October suffering leg, head and arm wounds. He has seen the fighting in Italy and Sicily although he was overseas only 1½ years.

All the men from the Eighth Army who are now in Kingston Military Hospital were cheery when interviewed and expressed regret at leaving the scrap but happiness at being home.

Sgt. K. H. Craddock, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, of Trenton came home with his left arm in a cast and sling. He was wounded when a German 88 millimetre shell exploded too close to him. War in Italy he described as "nerve-wracking" with constant artillery barrages. "Sicily was fun by comparison" he said. "We were kept busy and on the move the whole time."

The Italian campaign had been organized in a different way and there was less guerilla-like individual fighting. 'Usually you thought of movements in terms of Brigades" this wounded veteran commented.

Sgt. Craddock enlisted as a private on leaving his job as shipping clerk in Trenton.

Thirty-year-old L-Cpl. Wilbur McCoy of Madoc, also of the H. and P.E.'s has been through four years of army service, in England, France, Sicily and Italy. He was hit by machine-gun fire below the knee in an attack on the Italian village of Assoro.

"I was with the transport that day and we stopped and when we did they opened up with machine gun fire," he related. Cpl. McCoy was a company storeman. Forty were wounded in this one action he said.

Food in the Mediterranean area was poor, he said, although troops did get a fair amount of fruit.

Formerly a farmer, this veteran would like to go back to his peace-time occupation but doesn't know whether his disability will permit his return to farming or not.

LOVES ARMY LIFE—A former C.G.E. employee, Pte. Merle Prevost, loves army life and says it is a wonderful experience and interesting because she meets so many people. The only drawback is getting up at 6 a.m. Pte. Prevost is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Prevost of Tweed.

Auburn School Again Helps Air Raid Fund

Good character building, while not on the list of subjects for examination in schools, is perhaps one of the finest opportunities that come before every teacher, and while to a certain extent it can be given to youth by precept, deeds and example carry much more weight, for young people do like to imitate their elders, particularly when it bears every aspect of being something that is for good.

The children at the Auburn School, No. 11 Douro, cannot help but feel how good a thing it is to help people in distress, for time and again their parents and the people of the district have rallied to support the teacher Miss Lena Dewart, in holding efforts mostly of a social nature, in order to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund.

Second Time This Year

During 1943, this fine school through various efforts of the afore mentioned type turned in a total of $82.87, and already they have made a good start for this year, for a previous effort in this column a few short weeks ago gave them another credit of $10.31, to which may be added another $15.70 acknowledged to their credit today, giving them a grand total of $108.88, a splendid testimony of their desire to help people in trouble.

This latest effort was held on February 18 in the school, when a social evening was held, and the lunch which goes such a long way towards making a success of such an event as this, was supplied by the ladies for the large number who were in attendance. Another social evening has been arranged under the same auspices to give further help to the fund on the evening of March 10, itself another proof of how whole heartedly this group is entering into the work of helping those whom the misfortune of war have stricken in Britain.

Friends Of Raid Victims

By far the larger number of gifts appearing under one heading are those listed under the name of "Friend" of which no less than three appear to-day. One of these came by mail post dated February 25 from someone in the city amounting to $2, while one handed in at the secretary's desk for $5 was credited to bridge club friends, and the other for $10 was received from one who has given on numerous occasions, the secretary of the fund recalling how at the past Christmas season two gifts were made by the same person, who then came forward with a third gift for the special donations at that time, when it looked as though the objective set might not be reached.

One could hardly wish for a better description of a friend than that supplied by these people, and particularly the latter who has helped in this manner all along the journey of the fund's progress.

Honor Memory Of Airman Killed Overseas

WARKWORTH, Feb. 28 —(ENS) —The first memorial service in this district since the beginning of the war was held Sunday afternoon in Morganston United Church for Sgt. Clarence A. Massey who was reported missing following an air raid early in December of 1942. Later for official reasons he was reported dead. A large number of friends and relatives were present to pay tribute to one who had given his life for his country.

This impressive service was conducted by Rev. Alfred Bishop of Castleton assisted by Flt. Lieut. Norman Knox, Padre of Trenton air station.

Rev. Bishop choose for his text: "He shall fly as a dream and shall not be found."

Messrs. Warren Atkinson, Ambrose Atkinson, Margaret Atkinson and Clarice Atkinson sang two beautiful quartettes: "The Better Land" and "God Understands."

Sgt. Massey was the older son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Massey, Morganston, and was born in Cramahe Township. He had a fine personality and high ideals and was highly regarded by all who knew him. He received his education at Warkworth Continuation School, Colborne High School and attended Peterborough Normal School. He taught school successfully for a number of years after which he spent one year at Queen's University, Kingston. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1940 but it was not until February 1941 that he was called into service.

He entered as a pilot and received training at Manning Depot, Toronto, Brantford, London and at Fingal on March 15, 1942 he received his wings. Following his graduation he took a six week's course in astro-navigation at Pennfield Ridge, N.B. Later he was transferred to observer. He went overseas in April 1942. After going to England, he was attached to the R. A. F. It has been learned that he had a number of successful flights to his credit.

Besides his sorrowing parents, he is survived by three sisters and one brother, Mrs. Walter Millar, Jean Brillant, Que; Mrs. Grant Vanblaricom, Warkworth; Mr. Donald Massey, Morganston and Miss Marjorie Massey, Toronto.

British Children Welcome Stamps

Last summer an appeal was made by Bob Everett for used Canadian postage stamps to be sent to evacuated children in Great Britain. It has been shown that the hobby of stamp collecting was a great boon to these children away from their parents and homes and in remote parts of the country.

There was a generous response to this appeal and over 100,000 stamps have been sent over. Many grateful letters of thanks have been received and donors of stamps should be gratified by the one, among very many, which is quoted below:

Arrangements are being made to send some views of the city and a short account of its growth and activities.

Used Canadian stamps of any denomination will still be gratefully received by Bob Everett, Y.M.C.A. and donors may rest assured that they will be transmitted to a reliable source for distribution.

Dear Mr. Everett:

As my evacuee children are very busy at the moment, I am writing on their behalf to thank you very very much indeed for sending them such a fine lot of stamps. This hobby of philately is a Godsend to the kiddies, especially their long winter evenings. And of course it is immensely educative in more than one direction.

In conclusion a few lines from Canada would provide them with a real thrill. Thanking you once again and hoping to hear from you soon.

Ever sincerely,

Head Master.

Men Wounded In Italy Arriving Home

KINGSTON, Feb. 28—(Special to the Examiner)—Canadian soldiers, casualties of war during bitter fighting in Italy and Sicily, and victims of accidents during military manoeuvres in England, arrived here Sunday morning by hospital train from the east coast where they arrived from overseas on the Canadian hospital ship, Lady Nelson.

Among the group were three members of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, veterans of both the Sicilian and Italian campaign. One of the trio Sgt. Ken Craddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Craddock, of Trenton, suffered injuries to his left arm in Sicily in August 1943, but after medical care was able to continue with the front line troops. However, during a heavy enemy bombardment at Molise in Italy, Craddock suffered a compound fracture of the same arm when struck by fragments of a bursting 88 m.m. shell.

The other two veterans of the Italian campaign were Pte. James B. McPhee, of Smiths Falls, and Pte. Tommy Forbes, of Picton.

McPhee, who enlisted at Brockville, proceeded overseas in March 1943, and landed in Sicily four months later. He suffered bullet wounds to the head and left leg during a daylight skirmish with the Germans on October, 1943, at Reggio Calabria, Italy.

Unconscious for five days, McPhee when sufficiently recovered, was flown from Italy to Sicily by hospital plane, and then to North Africa.

Pte. Tommy Forbes has been in all the major actions of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He was among the Canadians who entered France in 1940, and saw action in Sicily and also took part in the invasion of Italy. Forbes, who was invalided to North Africa, voiced appreciation for the splendid treatment he and his buddies had received on both the hospital ship and hospital train. "We were certainly well looked after," he commented.

Forbes recalled listening to a speech by General Sir Bernard Montgomery in Sicily. He said that while in Italy he saw some beautiful buildings, and pointed out that the "Itees" were very clever at mosaic work. "It was not uncommon to see a lovely shrine in the centre of a vineyard. I suppose it was here the Italians prayed for good crops," he stated.

Met By His Wife

It was a happy homecoming for L/Cpl. W. R. McCoy, of Madoc, Ont. He was met at the Kingston station by his wife, whom he left for overseas duty in December, 1939, two months after their marriage. McCoy, who suffered leg injuries during enemy machine gun action in Sicily in July 1943, was also met by his brother, Sgt. Blake McCoy, with whom he went overseas as a member of the H. and P.E. in 1939. Sgt. McCoy came back to Canada two years ago.

Other invalided back to Canada, as a result of action in Sicily, were Sgt. E. J. West, of Ottawa and Stratford, who terminated his studies at the Ottawa Technical High School to enlist in an Anti-Tank battalion; L/Sgt. E. F. Andrews, H. and P.E., of Campbellford, who received facial burns from an exploding enemy shell near Assoro; Pte. Frank Peters, H. and P. E., of Peterborough, who suffered injuries to his right knee and left arm when the Germans lopped mortar fire into Canadian positions at Grammichele in July 1943; and Pte. D. K. Riach, 48th Highlanders, of Wolsley, Sask., a member of the British Army since 1938, who transferred to the Canadian Army in 1941. Riach, who received back injuries during fighting at Mount Etna, was loud in his praise of the Red Cross Society for its splendid work, and also of the part other war service organizations are playing in "looking after the boys." Riach remarked on the efficiency of personnel on the hospital ship and train.

Gnr. Arthur Parker, Billings Bridge, Ont., and Tpr. Patrick Brezenskie, Killaloe, Ont., were injured during training manoeuvres in England. Parker, who proceeded overseas in November 1942, sustained leg injuries, while Brezenskie, suffered injuries to his stomach.

Gnr. Edwin Scotland, of Brockville, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Scotland, received leg injuries in a motorcycle accident in South Wales last summer. A former employee at the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, he was glad to get home, but sorry he did not get his chance at close combat with the enemy. Another soldier, from Military District No. 3, who suffered leg injuries during manoeuvres, and who arrived in Kingston, was Cpl. George Cowie, of Keene, Ont., a member of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

Pipe-Major Tommy Marshall, of Brockville, who was with the regimental band of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in England, and Sgt. A. R. Summerville, of Brighton, a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, were both posted back to Canada as a result of their categories being lowered.

Two Kingstonians arrived back in their home city among the soldiers who disembarked from the hospital train. They were L/Cpl. J. Cirtwell and Sgt. M. J. O'Grady. Pte. W. S. Westbury, of Windsor, Ont., also disembarked here.

Stamp Campaign Exceeds $26,000 Goal

Peterborough's food industry has exceeded its $26,000 objective in the national campaign to sell an additional $2,000,000 in War Savings Stamps this month.

Gordon Monkman announced at the armouries Saturday night that the people of Peterborough had another war financing accomplishment to their credit, and he warmly congratulated the Food Industry committee upon their success with several days left to swell the total.

The final event of the month is the dance in the parade hall at the Military Training Centre, Tuesday night. Everybody knows about it by this time. Warrant Officer Albert Croasdale and his band from Camp Borden will play for the dancers following an introductory concert until around nine o'clock.

During the evening Lieut.-Colonel Bapty will make the Food Industry's draw for War Savings Stamps, and that will be wind up of the month's campaigning in the cause of financing the war and Victory. Any of the prizes in this draw that are not claimed by March 18 will be donated to the British War Victims Fund.

Small Crowd

The bingo at the armouries Saturday night was a dissapointment to the committee who had put in a lot of time and work in preparation for the size and kind of crowd that appreciated the significance of War Savings Stamps. The attendance certainly did not come up to expectations, and one of the men present rather cynically commented that if prizes of Stamps had been sandwiched with some towels and flannelette blankets it might have helped.

However, that's a spectator's opinion. The committee appreciate the response of those who turned out in spite of the slippery streets and sidewalks.

YPU Discusses Ways of Helping Young Criminals

The Peterborough Presbytery of the Young People's Union will be asked to investigate the problem of young men who have served terms in reform schools, and to enlist public interest in finding some method of preventing young men and women from becoming habitual criminals. This decision was the result of a discussion on this acute social problem, held at the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Y.P.U., in the Church parlors Sunday evening.

The discussion arose from a story told by Miss Marion Chase, of a reformed criminal, and his vain attempts to find employment. The question of young men who serve brief terms in reformatories, and then have a stigma that handicaps them for life, was discussed in detail, and praise was given to Major A. Bunton, of the Salvation Army, for his fine work on behalf of young men who have been in prison.

Those taking part in the discussion were Pauline Humphries, Norman Allen, Leonard Wall, Alex. Munro and Dr. E. W. Young.

The president, Miss Margaret Emerson, gave an account of the recent Regional Conference, held at Omemee, and outlined the course in Old Testament History which was taken up by the members. Miss Marion Chase was in charge of the regular meeting, assisted by Walter Morrow at the piano. Miss Ailwyn Jones read a poem, "If I Had Known" and Miss Chase spoke of "The Gift of Friendship," and followed this idea in her talk.

Grenfell Mission Carries On In Newfoundland

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the happy warrior, waged war for nearly fifty years on disease and ignorance. He fought disease with all the modern methods and never lacked recruits; doctors and nurses stood in line awaiting the chance to battle with him against tuberculosis, beri-beri and all the ills that afflict a poorly-nourished, hard-working, fisher folk. Well-equipped hospitals, small at first but ever growing, were built; public health posts in little coves and lonely bays served a crying need; gardens started everywhere resulted in more nourishing food and better eating habits, in healthier babies and sturdier children.

Summer after summer schools were opened for six to ten weeks where boys and girls as well as fathers and mothers might come to learn to read and write. Undenominational, graded schools at various points brought new hope to many children who came as boarders or day-pupils. In those schools today the boys attend classes, take regular school subjects, also go out in a fishing dory to learn how to fish, how to make nets and care for their gear. They learn better ways to salt, clean, dry and cure their catch. At St. Anthony's a barn well stocked with cows and pigs, offers boys practical experience in the care and feeding of live-stock as well as the handling of milk. Together with the girls they learn how to preserve, can and dry berries, vegetable and fish. They also study marketing and the purchase of their food, clothing and other supplies; in fact are learning how to become better citizens of their own country.

A further weapon against poverty is the home industries. This, started as occupational therapy many years ago in the hospitals, is today giving work to thousands of men and women, also to young people, unable to take part in the fishery. These handicrafts include carving in wood and ivory, basket work, weaving, knitting, and rugs and floor mats hooked from old silk stockings. Gradually the young people are being taught not only to produce this work but to supervise it and to design their own patterns. In time they will take over the complete handling, the purchasing of raw materials as well as the marketing of the completed work.

The annual drive for members and funds for the Peterborough branch of the Grenfell Mission will begin in approximately one month. The work of the Mission is worthwhile, and deserves support. Mrs. G. R. Langley is the president of the local branch, and Miss M. R. Rannie is the secretary. Both will gladly give further information about the work and aims of the Mission.

MOST CHILDREN COPY PARENTS

Some May Take Warning From Indifference Or Cruelty Shown By Older Folks In Home

DEAR MISS DIX—We all appreciate a mother's responsibility in preparing her sons to make good husbands, but how can you teach a boy how to treat a wife unless his father helps by setting a good example? You can't say: "Bobby, I hope when you get married you will be kind and considerate and tender to your wife, and not treat her the way your father treats me."

Anyway, the young learn more from example than from precept, and if there were some way to counteract a bad example it would be of invaluable assistance to many of us mothers who want to rear our boys to be good husbands. Do you know of any remedy for the situation?

A READER.

Parents' Actions a Warning

ANSWER—Alas, no. Children are very apt to be rubber stamps of their parents, but sometimes father's and mother's example is an awful warning to them, instead of a pattern that they follow. Some of the most meticulous housekeepers that I know are the daughters of lazy slovens whose houses looked like pigsties and whose cooking would have poisoned an ostrich. And many of the wives who are the worst husband-spoilers are women who were so sorry for their poor, henpecked fathers that they cannot show enough tenderness to their own husbands.

And it is the same way with boys. The one who has seen his mother starved for affection is often the most loving husband. The one who has seen his mother cringe under his father's abuse is often the one who treats his own wife as if she were a Lady Love instead of a helpless slave he can kick around. And very, very often the most generous husband is the one who had a tightwad father who never gave his mother a nickle without accompanying it by a tirade about her extravagance.

There are exceptions to every rule, but it is only too true that children, as a general thing, do run true to form and they treat their husbands and wives as they have seen their parents treat each other. This is largely because they don't know any better. They think that it is the proper attitude to take in dealing wih a husband or wife, and they have no conception of the cruelty and injustice that they are practicing.

If a boy has heard his father curse his mother and speak to her as he would not dare to speak to any woman in his employ who could give notice and quit if she was not treated with common politeness, he naturally thinks that there is something in the marriage ceremony that gives a man the right to browbeat his wife.

In the same way, if a boy has always seen his father niggardly to his mother; if he has always seen her have to go to him for every penny of the money she has earned a thousand times over by her work in the home, and heard him insult her as he doled out the smallest possible amount to her, he grows up in the belief that wives are nothing but unpaid servants and are to be treated as such.

On the other hand, if his father puts his mother on a pedestal, the boy who sees him do it joins in his worship of her, and treats his wife as if she were a queen. And the boy who has seen his father give with both hands to his mother is generous to his wife when he gets one.

I think that every girl and boy before they marry should spend a week in the homes of the ones they are proposing to take on as life partners and see how their parents treat each other. It will give them a very trustworthy guide as to what sort of a husband and wife John and Mary will make.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am just 18. Have been married for a year and a half and have an 18-month-old baby. My husband is in the army. He has been gone five months. Since he has been away I have found out that I don't love him and have fallen very much in love with another man. This man is a bachelor 15 years older than myself. He could make me very happy and give me a good living because he is a Chief Petty Officer in the navy.

Should I write my husband and tell him how I feel and ask for a divorce?

W. J. N.

Young Women Undermine Army Morale

ANSWER—Whether a philandering wife should tell her husband, who is off in the army fighting for his country, of her disloyalty to him, I don't know. No doubt it is more honest for her to do so, and if she is very certain of her own mind that she has found her real mate and that she will not change, it may be the only decent line of conduct. But certainly the man who is facing all the horrors of war, who may be living in a fox hole in a tropical jungle, or facing Arctic snows, and who is braving danger and death has enough troubles to worry over without being further depressed by having his wife decide that she has fallen in love with another man and wants a divorce.

But the thing is happening continually, for with thousands of little child brides who were in love with love and thought it romantic to have a furlough wedding, it has been a case of out of sight out of mind. They have transerred their affections to the next good-looking soldier who came along and are asking for a divorce as casually as they might ask for a chocolate bar, with no sense of the enormity of the offence they are committing and how they are breaking down the morale of the army.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today I am going to give you some recipes for making meat loaf something the whole family will enjoy.

When you have found just the right combination of ingredients, there is nothing more appealing and satisfying than a rich, hearty meat loaf. Made with ground meat, they are grand ration stretchers, you don't have one ounce of waste.

Here are three new, deliciously different loaves. Each is made with a different kind of meat, beef, ham or lamb, and the extender in each is different, chosen to contribute delicious flavor of its own, while spreading the flavor of the meat.

The chopped raw vegetables give the beef loaf a moist, tender texture. The corn flakes add a rich nutty flavor to the ham and pork loaf, and the snowy white topping of mashed potatoes gives eye appeal, as well as taste appeal, to the richly seasoned lamb loaf. They are grand for entertaining or a simple family meal, and equally delicious served hot or cold. We suggest these recipes to help you make the most of meat and to make every ration point count.

Snowy Lamb Loaf

1½ lbs. ground lamb
2 teaspoons salt
1 onion (chopped fine)
1 cup milk
¾ cup cracker crumbs
1 egg, 3 cups mashed potatoes.

Combine the lamb, salt, onion, milk, egg, and cracker crumbs. Pack in loaf pan and bake in oven 325 degrees F. for one hour and 20 minutes. When the loaf is baked, turn out onto a cookie sheet, or flat pan, and frost with hot mashed potatoes. The loaf may also be left in the loaf pan and potatoes piled on top. (Will serve six or seven people.)

Beef Vegetable Loaf

1 lb. beef, ½ cup dry bread crumbs, ¾ cup milk, 1 egg, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ½ cup chopped onion, ½ cup grated raw carrot, 1-3 cup catsup. Combine bread crumbs, milk, egg and seasonings. Add green pepper, onion, carrots and ground beef and blend well. Place in a greased 8-inch ring mold and bake 50 minutes at 350 degrees. FOOD HINTS

by Martha Logan

Fish 'n Chips

Next time serve golden brown fillets with French fried potatoes for an out-of-the-ordinary party dish

Expecting company, and ration coupons scarce? Well they'll all go for this Old Country "poor man's feast." Almost any lake or deep-sea fish (fresh or frozen) is good this way. The secrets of success are:

1 Use a deep enough pan.
2 Use a frying basket if you can.
3 Use a high-smoke-point fat ... Blended Jewel is excellent.
4 Have the fat really hot. A cube of day-old bread should brown in the fat in 60 seconds.

Fry the fish first. To do this divide into fillets of convenient size (6" x 3" x ¼" is ideal). Wipe with a clean dry cloth. Dredge with seasoned flour. Dip into diluted well-beaten egg (1 tsp. water per egg). Then roll in fine breadcrumbs. Place as many fillets in your frying basket as it will hold without overlapping and lower into hot fat. (If you have no frying basket use a spatula). Fry for three to four minutes, turning once. Drain over the fat; then complete draining of fillets on absorbent paper in a warm place.

While fish is cooking, first parboil potatoes (8 minutes) then peel and cut into fingers. Wipe dry. Fry in basket for 5 minutes or until brown. Drain, sprinkle with salt and serve. Strain fat into a clean dry tin to use again.

Maj. R. C. Honey Acting Brigadier

SOMEWHERE IN CANADA, Feb 28 — (ENS). — In the absence of the Brigadier, R. H. Beattie, and Lt.-Col. R. J. Bolton, E.D., who are attending a conference, Major R. C. Honey, 2 i-c of the Prince of Wales Rangers C.A., is Acting Brigadier of the Brigade.

Mountain and jungle warfare highlight the training of the unit at the present time. Extended day and night mountain trips take as much as whole companies of men away from their warm quarters into the unknown precipices of the mountains where they train for the day when they will meet the Jap or the Hun on similar ground. Many of the officers and other ranks who had never seen a snow-cap, a glacier, or a real canyon are now old-timers at sliding down cliff faces and crossing canyons on Tyrolean traverses. Piton climbs and rescue work with everyone securely roped together are carried out on overhanging cliffs and deep crevasses. Dangerous glacier work and other hazards of mountain warfare will all soon be an ordinary day's training in the life of a member of the regiment.

Suitable areas are found for the jungle training and enduring hardships for sustained periods during exhausting manoeuvres prepare the soldier to consider the jungle as his friend in the task of destroying the enemy.

While in camp a rigorous sports program, including floor hockey, boxing, wrestling, and basketball keep the boys in shape between trips.

Many of the unit officers and N.C.O.s are now away on course, including Capt R. J. Juby and Capt. C. E. G. Whatley, who are at the Senior Officers' School of Infantry, Capt. J. L. Smith, who is an observer at Mountain School somewhere in the U.S.A., and Capt. J. G. Nichols, who has left the unit to accept an appointment at Division. Sgt. Henry Gray is attending a small arms school; Sgt. Henwood at Canadian School of Infantry, Sgt. F. R. Pammett has been transferred to Brigade Headquarters; Sgt. Spence has just returned from Camp Borden, and Sergt. J. K. Mervin is now acting company sergeant-major.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Group Committeemen's Conference

A conference was held in the Paragon Hall on Wednesday last for all members of the various group committees in the Peterborough district. The number out was rather disappointing but those present heard some good addresses and fine questions on the various activities in the work of the Scouts.

The president of the local Boy Scout Association presided at the meeting and took the question end of the evening in fine style. The speakers were Scout Stan Leggitt of St. James' on the History of Scouting; Commissioner E. Wolff on Organization and the Scout Group; Orval Kidd of All Saints' on the group committee at work; J. Johnson of St. Andrew's—the group and the Sponsoring body and Scouter Fred Ford, St. John's gave a talk on the Group Spirit.

The meeting gave a very cordial welcome to Mr. Snelgrove of Warsaw who was present to obtain some information as to the sponsoring of a Scout Group with the view of starting one in Warsaw.

Mrs. Langhorne with some of the officers present served refreshments following which Skipper Groombridge held a quiz program with questions on Scouting mingled with random subjects.

At Conference in Toronto

We are glad to note that Peterborough was represented at the Provincial Conference held in Toronto on Saturday. A. Hope and Mrs. Langhorne were the official representatives whilst Commissioner E. Wolff also made reservations for the occasion.

Chins Up Tea

St. John's Mothers' Auxiliary is holding its semi monthly Chins-up Tea on Wednesday, March 1 in the home of Mrs. Hooper, 563 Gilmour street. All Cub and Scout mothers are invited to attend. It is a good opportunity to support a good cause. Don't forget the date Wednesday afternoon, March 1.

Scout Leaders Training Course

A training course for the Scout leaders of the city will start on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Paragon Hall. This course will run for about four or five weeks and will be held every Wednesday evening. Scouter Fred Ford is in charge and has planned to have several old Scouters to give talks on the various subjects. We urge every scoutmaster and his assistants to take this course. Each one should come armed with note book and pencil and start reading "Scouting for Boys". The note books should be turned in complete at the last meeting of the course.

St. John's

It was parents' night at St. Johns' with weekly activities being carried out as usual. The parents got a good conception of what their sons do every week at the Pack and Troop meeting.

In the Pack, Dr. Mitchell, father of one of the Cubs was asked to take up the inspection with Raksha. Work of every discription was explained and the parents took part in some of the games. Red Flower demonstrated the singing of Cub songs and Akela told a story.

Drew Buckland, received his Second star during the Red Flower ceremonies. Weiners and hot Cocoa was served. The Scouts joined the Cubs for the evening.

Registration

At the Group Committeemen Conference last week, Secretary W. G. Shiner stated that there are only three groups that have not registered to date. They are the St. Luke's Scouts and Charter, the Knox Group and the Park Hill Community group.

Congratulations Park Hill

We received a copy of the Park Hill paper the "Mascot" this week and think that it is a good start on the right path. I trust that some more will be coming this way. The items were "Boy Scout Week" "The Founders Last Message", Father and Son banquet that is being held on Friday of this week in the Staff House. At this affair, Mr. Singleton of the Y.M.C.A. is the guest speaker and we can assure those who will be present that they will hear something worth while. The last items was "With Our Boys" and this gives some details about the boys in the Troop and how they stand in this Scouting game of ours. According to the list there are 26 boys in the Troop, one Second Class Scout, 11 Tenderfoot Scouts and the rest working on their first tests for investiture. Keep up the good work Park Hill, but don't forget that registration.

Calling All Old Scouts

Were you in Scouting 15, 20, 25, 30 or so years ago. If so, we would like to hear from you. We are trying to locate all the Old Peterborough Scouts that we can. If you are an old Scout and haven't heard from anyone yet, why not just phone 3067 and give your name and address.

The Provincial Boy Scout Association requests that we gather in what information we can about you Oldsters and so just call 3067 or write 296 Rogers street. Thank you.

At George Street

The Cubs and Scouts held a Church parade in commemoration of our Founder B.P., the Rev. Mr. Roberts speaking to the boys about their Promise and the aims of Scouting. Tuesday night a Supper was held at which Mr. Roberts was guest Speaker. The Group committee was out in force and a very good evening enjoyed. A ski hike was planned for Saturday.

St. Luke's

Meeting over the Jungle Trail, the Cubs, led by Jack King welcomed Akela with the Grand Howl. A whistling race was among the games played and instruction in the Six Corners carried out along the 1st star and Tenderpade tests. A deal of discussion was given on the Scout Craft show items. The officers and Cubs extend their thanks to Mr. Britnell for the Crown which he denoted to decorate the pole carrying the Parents' Auxiliary attended di-

Japanese Evacuating Oft-Bombed Rabaul

ABOARD A DESTROYER IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Feb. 28 — (AP). — Apparently the Japanese are evacuating personnel and ammunition from oft-bombed Rabaul, New Britain and Kavieng, New Ireland, Capt. Arleigh Burke said recently as he watched American sailors attempt to save survivors of a shell-sunk enemy ship. Burke is commander of a destroyer squadron.

The 4,800-ton ship, jammed with troops, was sent to the bottom by destroyers west of New Hanover Island in the Bismarck Sea.

Burke said most of the personnel aboard the stricken ship were aviation ground crews being evacuated from Rabaul and Kavieng.

He said the Japanese may be trying to remove needed munitions from the two strongholds now undergoing reduction from the air. Other ships sunk by the destroyer squadron apparently were carrying munitions away from Rabaul and Kavieng to bases closer to Tokyo and farther from the Allied airmen.

R. Everitt Heads Cribbage Club

Growing interest in the ancient and honorable game of cribbage is testified to by the formation Saturday night, at a well attended meeting of players of the game held in the board room of the "Y," of a local club to be known as the "Veterans and Y.M.C.A. Dormitory Cribbage Club." R. E. Everitt was elected president and the following slate of other officers was chosen: Alex. Smith, vice-president; A. E. McDougall, secretary-treasurer; and a committee of four consisting of Harold Freeman, chairman, and William Gracie, T. Guerin and Walter Suddard.

Formation of the club was the outcome of a discussion between Mr. Everitt, representing the Y.M.C.A. dormitory, and Mr. Smith of the Canadian Legion, as to the the relative merit of the cribbage players of the two institutions. It is expected that membership will be about equally divided between the two. The current Round Robin tournament which is in session will continue as at present organized until the winner is determined.

It is anticipated that the immediate membership will number close to 80 players, and cribbage players wishing to become members of the club are requested to contact any one of the officers named above. The membership fee has been set at $2 per member per year and it is hoped to hold several tournament games each week.

The ever genial and popular sportsman, Louis Yeotes, has very kindly intimated that he will donate a shield to be competed for during the season by members of the new "V and Y Cribbage Club."

Drunken Driver Is Given Seven Days

When Constable Andre Dalton noticed a truck on Monaghan Road Saturday night travelling without lights he stopped the machine to warn the driver, and as a result of what he found arrested Roland Miles, R.R. 2, Lakefield, on a charge of having been drunk in charge of a motor vehicle.

In police court this morning Miles pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to seven days imprisonment, after Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., had stated that he was not asking for more than the minimum penalty for the offence.

Miles said that the truck he had been driving was the property of the Albion Wood Yard and accordingly there was no order for its being impounding.

Joseph Drummond, who was in the truck with Miles, and was also arrested pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $10.00 and $2.50 costs.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

REDS NEW ROAD TO RUMANIA—Russian victory at Krivoi Rog, vital iron centre, and surrounding territory now imperils German positions (indicated on map by diagonal lines) east of the Bug River where they form a defence line to protect routes to Rumania. Important rail escape routes are also virtually tied up. How far and fast Red troops expect to progress is shown by the broken line which indicates the goal set by the official Russian blueprint for spring. Note that it includes Bucharest, capital of Rumania. The other line indicates the present battle line.

48 Horses Enter Rich Preakness

BALTIMORE, Feb. 28 —(AP) — Forty-eight three-year-olds were listed by the Maryland Jockey Club to-day as eligible for the 54th running of the rich Preakness Stakes at Pimlico May 13.

The list was more notable for the lack of good racers among the current mixed assortment of three-year-olds than for the competent racers on it, and it appeared probable that there would be a bumper crop of supplementary nominations for the $50,000-added event.

The Preakness, again following the Kentucky Derby by one week, will be run on the final day of a 28-day meeting to be conducted at Pimlico by Maryland's four major racing associations— Pimlico, Laurel, Bowie and Havre De Grace.

The list of 48 eligibles included one filly—Belair Stud's Pallene; and tow geldings—Walter M. Jefford's Westminster and John Marsch's Jezrahel. The other 45 are colts.

The outstanding colts, on the basis of past performance, were: Mrs. A. J. Abel's gramps Image, Brookemeade stable's Pressure, Mrs. Ella K. Bryon's Director J. E., Calumet Farm's Pensive, R. Sterling Clark's Smolensko, Longchamps Farm's Professor Lee, Marsch's Jezrahel, Crispin Oglebay's Boy Knight, Alfred P. Parker's By Jimmy and Lieut. Col. C. V. Whitney's Pukka Gin.

George D. Widener's Juvenile Star of last Fall's Consolidated Maryland meeting, Platter, was missing from the list, as were Mrs. H. J. Mohr's Royal Price, William Helis's Olympic Zenith, A. C. Ernst's Alorter, Harry Lamontagne's Rodney Stone and Marsch's Occupy.

The Preakness, run at a mile and three-sixteenths, has a current gross value of $60,210, and this is likely to approach $70,000 before the horses go to the post.

The Flag bearers were Jack King and Lynn Thain for the Cubs and Stewart Wigg for the Scouts.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 —(AP) — The Dodgers insist those new shiny uniforms for night games shouldn't be called 'Jockey" satin — both the manufacturer and Judge Landis would object.... nevertheless them bums likely will get a lot of "riding" when they wear them.

It's new here.

Did you ever know that the National Hockey League skims about $65,000 off the play-off "take" and cuts half of it among the first four teams according to their regular season standing and the other half on how they do in the play-offs?

Gunder Haegg and Arne Anderson, Sweden's mile record breaking rivals, will have their first meeting of the year at Gothenburg, June 14.

Take Different Route

"It was just getting to be dawn as we moved back through the Jerry lines. We went by a different route than the one we had taken when we went in. You always do that on patrol, because Jerry has a habit of letting you into his lines and then nabbing you on your way out.

"Apart from losing our platoon officer and having one man hurt we all got out safely, and we had killed six Germans for sure. We had brought back some useful information about the enemy's strength in this particular section, which was one our battalion would have to move though to get to the town up ahead.

"As we were making our report we smoked cigarette after cigarette. All the time you're in there you're dying for a cigarette to ease your nerves, so you chain smoke afterwards to make up for it.

GIVING UP THREE TRICKS

EVERY ONCE in a while we see the need of giving the lead to an opponent deliberately, presenting one trick to him so he will have to lead back to us. Less frequently, we find a need of doing this when that player can get two tricks before he has to lead something which we can win. Once in a coon's age, however, we strike the case in which we toss the lead to a player who can score three consecutive tricks before leading what we desire.

South had ample confidence in his partner when he bid only 2 No Trumps on that mighty collection of honors, with the ace of every suit, the king of one and the queens of the others. There was a good chance he might have been passed out shy of game, with enough strength opposite him to make it. As he butchered the hand, it was too bad his partner didn't leave him in the 2-No Trumps.

South let the club Q hold the first trick, hoping West would switch, but he repeated it, with the 10, so South scored with his K. Four heart tricks were run, and then South wondered which finesse to try, deciding on spades. West won and returned a third club to South's A. Unable to run more than eight tricks all told, South finally had to let West in again and be set.

Knowing, from East's follow on the first club, that West had only five of them, South had an easy way to make his contract. That was by taking four heart tricks, after winning the first club, then taking his club A and leading a third club to West. The latter could have had that trick and two more in the suit, but then would have been obliged to lead either a spade or a diamond to South, making a ninth trick sure thereby for the declarer.

Army Ingenuity Wins Race With Mr. Stork

HALIFAX, Feb. 28—(CP)—Radio Patrol Police Officers Tom Chambers and Bill Austen beat the stork three times to hospital in under an hour in pre-dawn emergencies here Friday. They thought they had created something of a record for humanity's sake until they heard about some combined operations of army and navy under Able Seaman Ross Brown, R.C.N.

It happened a few days ago at three in the morning at the height of a snowstorm and 40-mile gale, but it was told today for the first time. This is the story:

Brown trudged his way into an army camp near his home here and asked for help. His wife, he said, had to be moved to hospital right away, but the roads were blocked. So the army went to work.

They gathered in a navy plough, took two extra trucks along and broke the trail to the seaman's home. Mrs. Brown was carried out and placed on an improvised stretcher in one of the trucks, and the "convoy" fought its way back through blinding snow.

Ross Brown, Jr., weighing seven pounds, was born a few hours later.

Among those giving invaluable assistance in "convoy" duty were Lieut. W. Matthews of Montreal, and Gunners Ronald Pasquantonio and Anthony Robert, both of Niagara Falls, Ont.

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP)—Venereal disease has cost Canada's armed forces 700,000 wasted days and $8,000,000 in money in a 3½-year period, a defence department statement said Friday. The statement added that if completely accurate figures were available "unquestionably these totals would be very much higher."

Service statisticians have drawn up a picture of the scene to emphasize the seriousness of the problem. Here it is:—

"For the purpose of illustration we may suppose that a convoy takes 21 days for passage across the Atlantic accompanied by corvettes with crews of 50 men. The navy reports that 85,560 days have been lost because of venereal disease.

"Had this time been available to the corvettes on convoy duty, eight fleets of cargo carriers could have been escorted across the North Atlantic by 10 corvettes to each convoy. The time claimed by venereal disease is the equivalent of the crew-days of the 10 corvettes for a period of 171 days.

"In the Canadian Army campaign in Sicily slightly less than one division was engaged in a battle which lasted 38 days. Taking into account the fact that the Canadians were not actively engaged in the last few days of fighting, the man-days utilized by the 1st Division in its share of the conquest of the island tallies almost exactly with the amount of time lost by the Canadian Army to venereal disease—465,322 days.

"The R.C.A.F. has been engaged in the fighting in the skies of Britain and Europe for some time now, and maintains squadrons of its own engaged in bomber and fighter missions. For purpose of illustration, it may be said that a fighter squadron is composed of 400 men, including air and ground crews.

"Now, the time lost by the R.C.A.F. due to venereal disease has been 146,357 days. One might, therefore, imagine such a squadron being put out of action for an entire year, air and ground crews together."

The statisticians carried their illustrations into finance.

"Had the Navy, for example, been able to spend the $976,467 it was obliged to spend on venereal disease for depth charges, it could have purchased 11,000 of them.

"The Army could have equipped completely 32,000 infantrymen with the $5,309,324 it spent on venereal disease. The Air Force could have purchased 7,000 Browning machine guns with the money it spent on the disease."

New Car Demand To Be Heavy

DETROIT, Feb. 28—General Motors' Chevrolet division has just completed a survey of the postwar market, which reveals such a huge potential demand that officials of the company say you can cut the figures in half and still forecast "far above normal sales.

It shows that six and a half million former auto owners will be without cars by July, 1945.

Nine and a half million owners will be driving "junkers" worth less than $100 by that time.

Seventeen million owners, 53 per cent. of the pre-war total will be in the market for replacements.

A million former truck owners will be without trucks.

Production of 18.4 million new cars and trucks will be necessary to get this country back to its pre-war standards of motor vehicle transportation, the survey concludes.

Equally encouraging are the study's conclusions on the tremendous purchasing power which will be lodged in the hands of the public after the war. By the end of this year, for instance, it is estimated that the American people will have accumulated $100 billion in savings. Meantime the national income will have risen from $95 billion in 1941 to an estimated $150 billion by the end of 1944. Taking advantage of their high wages, individuals will have cut their aggregate indebtedness by $6.5 billion, putting many a family in a position to buy on the instalment plan when peacetime rolls around.

Moratorium Protects Abitibi Bond Holders

TORONTO, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Attorney-General Blackwell Thursday introduced a bill in the Ontario Legislature to amend the Abitibi Moratorium Act. The Minister explained it was an extension of previous Act, purpose of which was to prevent the Abitibi Power and Paper Co. property from being "sold under the hammer."

"The result of the moratorium to date has been that instead of the bondholder getting only 36 cents on the dollar, it now appears likely he will receive 100 cents," said the Attorney-General in explaining the bill, one of 14 measures introduced during the day.

Landing Lessons Learned The Hard Way

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Feb. 28 (AP)—A third and unique lesson in landing operations is being written today at the Anzio beachhead, vividly illustrating hazards which will confront Allied armies when they strike at Europe from the west. Anzio displays to advantage German speed in moving troops.

They plugged the gap with incredible swiftness. Some of their divisions came down from northern Italy. At least one was in France. Still another shot across from Yugoslavia. Their speed of movement probably averted a major disaster.

Experts used to calculate a full division moving in column at 25 miles an hour required five hours to pass a given point. The Germans obviously went much faster than that as they converged on the beach south of Rome.

If they could do this in Italy, with its comparatively few main highways and with its rail communications badly chewed by Allied bombing, how fast will German armies move toward the beachhead of western Europe?

This is the question that Anzio poses.

The North African invasion was the biggest in point of men, ships and armament involved in the landing. Salerno showed us what it will mean to hit prepared positions with the Germans waiting on the beach. Anzio, a complete surprise on an undefended shore, has proven that not even these two factors are certain guarantees of success.

At the same time, the three landings taken together constitute a story that will not fail to rob a good many Germans of a lot of sleep these nights.

In no instance have the Allies failed to put troops on shore. In no instance have they been thrown back into the sea, and in no instance have they failed ultimately to achieve their objectives.

Young Girls' Club Studies Grooming

MILLBROOK, Feb. 26—(ENS)—The junior girls' organization, which has adopted the name, "Stitch and Wear Club" for the current season, and which meets every Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. W. Ball, Centre street, has for its objective "Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed".

The officers are: Leader, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong; assistant leader, Mrs. Melville Ball; president, Melba Ball; vice-president, Ethelda Hubbeard; secretary-treasurer, Audrey Armstrong.

There are 10 members with only the three officers over 13 years of age, the others being 11 and 12. The final objective is to take part in the Durham County Achievement Day in July, usually held at Millbrook, with the local club having its rehearsal in June.

Besides studying good posture, proper manicuring, the correct care for the hair, and skin, all of which is demonstrated by the leaders, with the girls also doing the practical work. The members are each making a slip, and learning different finishes for this garment. For the next meeting the roll call will be to demonstrate one point in posture; and the girls will bring material for an overhand patch; practice patching, and work on their slips. Work on the individual record books, will go on.

Britain Ready For Big Raids

LONDON, Feb. 29—(AP).—Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary of State for Air, told the House of Commons today that Britain's defences are prepared for heavier German air raids before invasion time and added, "It may well be that historians will look back on the period between the February and March moons as one of the decisive stages of the war."

"We must not believe the forces the enemy has sent over are the greatest strength he can muster; his power of striking back is far from negligible," he said.

"We have foreseen the attack and whatever shape it may assume or in whatever weight it may come, we shall be ready to pit our forces against it."

Of the forthcoming western invasion Sir Archibald said: "The R.A.F. is preparing to play its part in combination with the Army and Navy for liberating Europe. We have made our dispositions."

R.A.F. and U.S. bomber squadrons, Sir Archibald continued, have compelled the Germans to concentrate four-fifths of their entire fighter strength in the west.

Huge Whisky Blanc Stock Gives Quebec Extra Ration

By HAROLD FREEMAN—Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Feb. 29—(CP).—Why is Quebec's liquor ration of 40 ounces each half-month higher than that of any other province? According to Quebec Liquor Commission officials, the explanation lies in the old Quebec love of "whisky blanc"—made of 65 overproof alcohol in pre-restriction days.

The Q.L.C. says that the large percentage of that 65 O.P. dynamite bought in Quebec during the basic period on which Federal regulations governing liquor are computed, plus the relatively minor purchases of overproof spirits in other provinces, is what accounts for the present difference in rationing.

This is how it works:

The wartime alcoholic order of 1942 specifies that each liquor commission may take out of bond each year 70 per cent. of the imported spirits taken out in the base period, November 1, 1941, to October 31, 1942; and may buy 70 per cent. of the domestic spirits purchased during the same base period. At the same time, it states that all liquor sold must be cut to 70 proof.

For other provinces, that means in effect that sales are limited to 70 per cent of the base period, plus whatever might be gained by cutting liquor to the 70 proof requirement. In most cases, the "plus" isn't much because the spirits sold in the base period ranged from 75 proof to slightly overproof. Not so in Quebec. During the base period the Q.L.C. bought domestic spirits, similar to those bought in other provinces, totalling 655,956 gallons. It also bought 432,810 gallons of 65 O.P. alcohol that other provincial governments didn't because they didn't have the demand for it.

Woman Charged In Baby Murder

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 29.—(CP).—Trial of Mrs. Annie McCumber, 46, on a charge of murdering the infant son of her 24 year old daughter Mrs. Reta Wagar, at nearby Wagarville last March, continued today before Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier and an assize court jury.

Walter Haley, 22 said by the Crown to be the father of the child, testified yesterday as the trial opened that he had seen Mrs. McCumber stuff a piece of towelling made of a flour sack, down the baby's throat, killing it.

Haley, who also faces a charge of murder in the baby's death and will be tried following Mrs. McCumber's trial, testified under the protection of the court and his evidence will not be used against him then. Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier appealed to the press not to report all Haley's evidence, saying that it might lead prospective jurors in his trial to form a pre-conceived opinion as to his guilt or innocence.

Mrs. McCumber's trial is the second on the charge, the jury having disagreed at the first trial last September.

Haley, Mrs. McCumber and Mrs. Wagar were arrested last April after the finding of the baby's body at Wagarville. Mrs. Wagar was sentenced last Nov. 7 to four months in jail following conviction on a charge of concealment of birth.

British Troops On Offensive

NAPLES, Feb. 29 —(AP)—British troops broke up a series of small German attacks in the ravine territory southwest of Carroceto on the Anzio beachhead front yesterday while Allied troops mopped up Nazis who wriggled through the 5th Army lines near Cassino, it was announced today.

For the British in the Carroceto region it was the second straight day of skirmishing with the enemy in the deep gullies surrounding the headwaters of the Moletta River. Allied artillery and mortars forced the Germans to fall back with heavy casualties, Allied headquarters said.

Artillery from both sides fired heavily throughout the day elsewhere on the beachhead front and patrols clashed at a number of points.

It was announced meanwhile that an American cruiser which stood off the Anzio coast Sunday and shelled the enemy had engaged in a series of seven duels with long-range German artillery with results described by front-line reports as "excellent."

Germans who tried their infiltration tactics in the mountains northwest of Cassino on the main 5th Army front were cleaned up where

Woman Goes On Trial For Murder

Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert Charged With Murder Of Husband

Trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert, 47, on a charge of having murdered her husband, John Edward Hubert, 43, Saturday, November 20, 1943, at their home near Nassau, five miles north of this city, began this morning before Mr. Justice J. A. Hope in the Spring assizes of the Supreme Court.

Hubert was found dead in bedroom off the kitchen by John Little, 70, a farm neighbor to whose house Mrs. Hubert had walked about one-quarter of a mile about 7:45 p.m. to get help, telling him that her husband was complaining of severe pains in his back.

Not until the body was removed to Comstock's undertaking room four hours later did the authorities find a bullet wound in Hubert's back.

The Huberts had moved into the Nassau neighborhood of Douro township early last May. The husband had been working throughout the summer at the C.G.E.-Genelco plant, and threw up the job four days prior to his death.

Mrs. Hubert is being defended by John Bradshaw, and C. P. Hope, K.C. of the Attorney-General's Department, Toronto, is in charge of the prosecution.

The noon adjournment rested at the examination of Provincial Constable Price Morris who said there were no signs of violence when the body was first cursorily examined in the room where Hubert was found lying on the floor, his head on a pillow, his arms folded on his chest. Witness said the body was brought into the city about 12:45 a.m. (Sunday) for an autopsy by Dr. H. G. Carleton. It was the succeeding revelation which gave the case an entirely different aspect from the simple "pains in the back" which Mrs. Hubert had related to John Little.

The first witnesses called by Mr. Hope, who said he did not have the

1,500 Japanese Killed In Burma

NEW DELHI, Feb. 29 —(AP) — British troops have continued successful mopping up operations during the past 24 hours against shattered remnants of 8,000 Japanese troops in the Arakan jungles, north of Akyab, Burma, where the Allies have announced their first major victory of the campaign.

A southeast Asia communique said areas east of the Mayu range were being cleared of Japanese and that one enemy column still offered resistance north of the 7th Indian Division had been forced from its positions northwest of Awlanbyin and was withdrawing.

Enemy dead were reported officially at 1,500 up to yesterday.

To-day's communique said it was apparent that the Japanese were preparing to make a stand on the line of their original positions from which they launched their disastrous drive to infiltrate British lines

Lonergan Letter Mailed Recently

By JAMES H. PORTERFIELD
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 —(AP). —Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet said today a letter in which Wayne Lonergan purportedly offered to renounce any claim to a $2,000,000 share of his slain wife's fortune was post-marked only about an hour before it first was mentioned in court yesterday by Lonergan's attorney.

Grumet, prosecuting Lonergan of first degree murder charges, said the letter was postmarked at 1.30 p.m. E.D.T., and received by the Surrogate of New York county today. The prosecutor declared Defence Attorney Edward V. Broderick's action in showing a copy to prospective jurors "was not in good faith," because they obviously couldn't have seen the letter.

In the communication, purportedly written January 26, Lonergan, a native of Toronto, was said to have offered to relinquish any claim to a share of his wife's estate if sole custody of his 22-month-old son was given to his relatives in Canada. The offer was made, Lonergan was reported to have said, because of newspaper stories that he was gambling his life against a chance of sharing in her fortune.

Broderick attempted to read a copy of the letter at the opening of Lonergan's trial yesterday but Grumet objected. However, Judge John J. Freschi permitted talesmen to examine the copy to determine whether they had seen the letter or heard about its contents.

Grumet's statement today came shortly after 100 additional persons were added to the special jury panel. Drawing of the extra talesmen was asked by the prosecution and defence after 73 of the original 200 were excused for personal reasons.

Russian Guns Hammer Pskov Troops Six Miles From City

By EDDY GILMORE—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Feb. 29—(AP).—All territory held by the Germans in northwest Russia is now gravely threatened by the Red Army drive on Pskov and there is evidence that the Nazi transportation system in some places is becoming disorganized, dispatches from the Baltic front said today. With the vanguard of the Russian forces less than 12 miles away, Pskov was reported to be already under fire from Red Army siege guns.

(Earlier, a London interpretation of the Russian communique placed the Russians six miles northeast of Pskov at the town of Toroshino, on the Luga-Pskov Railway.)

A dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star from the Pskov front said in many sectors the roads are so clogged with wrecked German transport, guns and tanks that special Soviet clean-up squads have been formed to clear them away to enable the Red Army to march through on the heels of the retreating enemy.

With colder weather prevailing on the northern battlefields, night fighting is increasing and Red Star said Soviet soldiers specially trained for night operations are pursuing the Germans through the dark hours.

Farther south, Gen. M. M. Popov's army was reputed smashing through an intricate network of German communication lines and fortifications just east of the border of the Latvian Republic. At one point Russian troops were only 12 miles from the republic's frontier.

This break-through, which has disorganized German defence plans and fighting lines, is seriously endangering Hitler's plans in the north and may shortly have far-reaching results, Red Star said.

With the Russians making great headway in this region, approximately 70 miles south of Pskov, it appeared evident that German positions around Pskov cannot long be held, dispatches said.

Blue Cow Case Engages Appeal Court Judge Not Impressed, Farmer Stays In Jail

TORONTO, Feb. 29 —(CP) — A mystery concerning a colorful cow, a white one said to have turned blue, was aired in Appeal Court here yesterday in the case of Herbert Anderson, a Stratford farmer convicted of theft of the cow from David Hanson and sentenced to three months in jail.

C. A. Gale, Appeal Counsel, declared if you cross a Holstein cow and a Guernsey cow, you get a blue one. This assertion was scoffed at by Crown Counsel W. B. Common, however, who declared there was a deliberate intent to conceal the beast's identity with a coat of blue paint.

Chief Justice Robert S. Robertson, not visibly impressed with such talk, declared "I never say a blue cow. I don't know what a blue cow is."

The conviction against the farmer was affirmed under another section of the code and his sentence reduced. He was ordered to spend 10 days more in jail, for a total of 15 days and pay a fine of $100 and costs or finish the remainder of the original sentence.

Verdict On Finn Armistice Expected After Secret Talk

By EDWIN SHANKE—Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 29—(AP).—The Finnish Parliament met in closed session for an hour this morning and heard Premier Edwin Linkomies explain the Government's position regarding an armistice or continued war with Russia, it was reported from Helsinki.

Members then recessed until afternoon, when another secret session was scheduled.

A routine open session was held during the morning before the doors were closed. Then the Premier spoke for a half-hour and members questioned him. Details were not divulged.

A reliable informant said Sweden would do its best to provide food for Finland if she quit the war.

While a Swedish Government spokesman refused to say whether an offer of food actually had been made to the Finnish Government, it was a good guess that the Government had given the Finns some assurance on that point.

It was believed here that nothing yet had happened that definitely would prevent a Finnish-Russian armistice even though the Finnish attitude had altered perceptibly.

The Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet's Helsinki correspondent said Finland's answer to the American admonition to get out of the war could not be delayed longer and hinted at some imminent development.

He added the Finns no longer have any illusions about their predicament and are aware that a decision must be made on the basis of cold realities.

A stiffening of the Finnish attitude likewise was reflected in a Helsinki dispatch quoting the newspaper Social Demokraatti as asserting that Russian air raids on the Finnish capital may have jeopardized peace negotiations.

An apparent reluctance on the part of the Finnish Government to abandon its present policy was further indicated in a freshly-signed Finnish-German trade treaty, announced last night. Finland has depended largely on Germany for food supplies throughout the war.

Evidence of the "wait and see" tendency in Helsinki was reported by an informant with contacts in the Finnish Foreign Office who has just returned from the Finnish capital. He said he also found hope "that American and British opinion still is on Finland's side and that sooner or later the Anglo-Americans would help."

He added the Finns seemed willing to discuss all points of Russia's reported terms except that calling

Brunswick Hit By U.S. Bombers

LONDON, Feb. 29—(CP). — U.S. heavy bombers in their 19th operation for February today attacked targets at Brunswick, classified as one of Germany's major manufacturers of aircraft components and engines, and an important communications centre.

A communique noted that "Brunswick targets twice were attacked in last week's record-breaking daylight offensive against Nazi aircraft component assembly and Allied industries."

British and U.S. fighter planes protected the bombers in today's assault.

The February total of 19 operations is even more than that attained by the Americans in any previous month.

It was the fourth great daylight blow of the month against Brunswick, the big airplane manufacturing centre 125 miles west of Berlin which turns out chiefly engines and other parts for the twin-engine Messerschmitt-110 fighter. That plane has been adapted into a rocket-shooter and in the fighter-bomber version has been participating in German raids on England.

Fliers reported on their return from Brunswick that they bombed through heavy clouds.

The first crews back said their escort of fighters was so big that their number well may set a record. A German fighter opposition was light but the Germans sent up a heavy anti-aircraft barrage.

"The Luftwaffe must be getting bashful because I didn't see a single Jerry all day," said one pilot.

US Subs Torpedo 14 Jap Ships

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 —(AP)—Destruction of 14 Japanese vessels by American submarines was announced today by Navy Secretary Frank Knox.

The sinkings, Knox said, included 11 medium cargo vessels, a small cargo vessel, a cargo transport and a large tanker. They brought to 611 the number of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by American submarines.

Knox also reported that for the month of February, not including today, Japanese shipping losses caused by all types of American action totaled 189 vessels sunk, probably sunk and damaged. In that total, he said, were 22 combatant and 167 non-combatant vessels.

"American submarines are doing an increasingly skilful job," he said in releasing a communique telling of the new sinkings.

"Well over 3,000,000 tons of Japanese merchant shipping," he said, "have been sunk by all causes."

It has been estimated that the Japanese started the war with 7,500,000 tons of merchant shipping.

He said that American submarine losses for the whole period of the war have been surprisingly small.

Badoglio's Demand Poses New Problem

73-Year-Old Warrior Anxious To Save Something For Italy

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Marshal Badoglio's insistence, as premier of the provisional Italian government, that his defeated country be made a member in good standing among the United Nations, presents the Allies with one of the extraordinary problems of the war.

The famous soldier—73 but still active and full of fight—told Richard G. Massock, Associated Press correspondent who visited the premier at Naples, that he is "ready to do everything necessary" to gain the alliance for which he was asked. Badoglio intimated that his idea was to protect Italy's interests at the peace table after helping to defeat Germany.

The situation isn't without its touches of humor and (to not a few) of extreme annoyance. It's hard to decide whether the old warrior's voice is that of the penitent prodigal (with a weather eye on the fatted calf) or whether it's an exhibition of nerve.

Anyway, if anyone but Badoglio had made such a proposition there likely would have been more adverse reaction than already has been registered—and there has been plenty. The French, for instance, don't easily forget that the treacherous Mussolini stabbed France in the back while she was struggling for her life with Hitler. The idea of making Italy one of the Allies now nauseates a lot of them.

France Resents Move

A good many people of other Allied countries also feel that there's no need to kill the fatted calf for Italy, even though there's no general bitterness against the rank and file of the Italian people who probably more sinned against by Mussolini than sinning. Then, too many Allied troops, who have had to fight the Italians, and have seen comrades shot down by them, have no desire to sit about the camp fire with the men who were so secretly their enemies.

Still, few people deny Badoglio the right to try to get all he can for his stricken country.

Italy, of course, already is recognized as a co-belligerent by the Allies. Whatever may be the decision regarding an alliance, there can be no doubt that Italy must pay dearly for her partnership with Hitler. Unless there is an amazing change of heart in the Allies camp, she will never get back the bulk of her empire. She will be reduced to one of the minor European powers.

100,000 Killed

LONDON, Feb. 29—(CP). — The German agency D.N.B., quoting the official agency of the puppet Italian government, Correspondenza Repubblicana, said yesterday in a broadcast dispatch that Italian killed and wounded up to July, 1943—the month in which Mussolini was deposed—totalled more than 100,000 men, with an additional 500,000 captured.

Canada To Use Red Ensign

Premier King Clarifies Point In House

OTTAWA, Feb. 29—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the Commons yesterday that the red ensign is the flag designated to be flown on every occasion when a distinctive Canadian flag is required.

He was answering a written question from Wilfrid Lacroix (L—Quebec-Montmorency) which asked in part: "Has the government at last decided to endow Canada with a distinctive national flag so as to replace definitely the Union Jack flag which now flies over all our public buildings?"

Mr. King said the question was "neither correct nor straight forward" Like other questions asked by Mr. Lacroix in other sessions, he said, it brought up the "advisability of raising a flag controversy in time of war."

The red ensign had been accepted for more than 70 years as the flag to be flown when it was necessary to designate Canada—for instance, on Canadian ships and buildings outside Canada.

The Union Jack could properly be flown in any part of His Majesty's dominions. A recent notable occasion when the red ensign was flown as the flag of Canada to distinguish this country from other nations was the Quebec Conference, said the Prime Minister.

Interned Airmen In Clashes

Poles And Germans On Bad Terms

LONDON, Feb. 29 (CP-Reuters)—Allied and German airmen interned at the Curragh race track in neutral Eire have clashed while on parole outside the camp, a Daily Telegraph correspondent reported today.

The correspondent said that to avoid further clashes the Eire government has moved Allied internees to Gormanston, a former R.A.F. airdrome located in County Meath north of Dublin.

Climax of the clashes was reached, the Telegraph said, when two German airmen ambushed a Polish pilot and kicked him until he was unconscious. This incident began in a hotel bar when the Germans attempted to fraternize with the Poles who told them they still were enemies.

Before the Allied airmen were removed there were many minor incidents at dances in the Curragh area, the Daily Telegraph said. At one dance the Germans remained on one side of the hall and the British internees on the other. After a while it was noticed that the Germans refused to dance with any Irish girl who previously had danced with a British internee. The Britons adopted the same policy and the dance almost stopped.

A number of Canadians were interned in the Curragh at one time but it was not known if any are there now.

Court Dismisses Theft Count Against Nazi War Prisoner

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 29—(CP).—Dismissal of a mail theft charge against a German paratroopers who escaped three times within 9 months from a Northern Ontario prison camp has been granted by Magistrate M. G. Gould on the ground that the prisoner removed articles from a mail bag while seeking means to facilitate his third break for freedom. After 13 Crown witnesses testified yesterday at the trial of 23-year-old Eckert Brosig, the charge against him of stealing several packages of cigarettes, a bottle of perfume and a package of chewing gum from a mail bag in a Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway train near North Bay last December was dismissed by Magistrate Gould, who expressed hope the case might be carried to a higher court.

"If anyone but a prisoner of war had committed this crime, it would have occurred when he removed the parcels from the mail bag," said the Magistrate. "But I conclude Brosig removed them while still

Mrs. Hubert Appears In Court Neat, Clean And Well Groomed

Behind the stone walls and steel of her cell in the county jail this morning, Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert prepared herself for her appearance as the cynosure of the court room where she was presently to occupy the spot light as a woman accused of the shooting and murder of her husband.

And there was something pathetically touching and human behind the image of this woman of forty-seven years primping in the harsh and drab atmosphere of the jail cell, making the most of herself for the ordeal of being paraded into the court room, and obviously in the desire to create the most favorable impression before the Judge and the jury that was to be called to determine her guilt or innocence of a capital crime, and thereby decide her fate, ordinarily a matter of life and death within the next day or two.

It has been said that Mrs. Hubert is 47 years old. She was wearing this morning a new plain black felt hat of medium size, a modified sailor style, and a neatly attractive black dress, figured with dots and other ornament of weaving. Her hair showed signs of much brushing, with the effect of being lightly blown off her neck, and several of the court attendants commented to a reporter that the woman's hibernation in the county jail had greatly transformed the Mrs. Hubert of last November, a minor miracle of rejuvenation and furbishing of the haggard woman who suddenly found herself surrounded by police at her squalid and dirty home after some one shot and killed her husband.

Nature never fashioned Elizabeth Hubert for the glory of glamour and pin-up tributes, but she looked at least presentable this morning, neat and clean and well brushed and groomed. Presumably her "ensemble" received a final once-over of appraisal by her solicitor, John A. Bradshaw, before she walked forth through the cell door and jail corridor to face the court room audience and the twelve men of the trial jury.

Possibly Mr. Bradshaw selected the new dress and hat which so modestly bceame his client this morning, indeed may have taken upon himself the assignment of a shopping tour in a thoughtful and kindly purpose of doing his utmost for the accused woman, who seems to have no friends or relatives in the district,—other than the jail matron.

Canada Losing One Great War

In prefacing his address on Sunday afternoon at The Salvation Army Temple, Lt.-Colonel Robert Hoggard said that while he was expected to speak on "The War We Are Losing" he could not forbear to speak briefly about the war we are winning on the Russian and Italian fronts. Then there were these important moral issues of which the British Empire has always been the champion. "Britain has given to the World," said the speaker, "The Magna Carta, Methodism, which saved the Empire from a revolution similar to that of France, the China Inland Mission, the Scout and Guide Movement, the Red Cross, the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Y.M.C.A., the Y. W. C. A. and many wonderful kindred agencies Every national day of prayer" continued Colonel Hoggard," has led to a victory on the battlefield or the high seas in the present war."

Granting all this, there was yet a War that we are losing. This, Colonel Hoggard said, was in the realm of juvenile delinquency, social disease and an increase in drunkeness. The deplorable rise of criminal tendencies among youth as revealed by prison statistics and emphasized by personal observation were cited. Social diseases afflict no fewre than 800,00 men in the armed forces of the British and United States Armies, the speaker said. Liquor is robbing the war effort in the sense that the money thus wasted could buy a tremendous amount of war material. In addition the homes and lives it is ruining is appalling.

The speaker was introduced by Alderman James Dutton, chairman, who made reference to early associations with the Salvation Army in a day when brickets were the order of the day rather than bouquets. D. V. Canning, member of the Board of Education, expressed a warm vote of thanks. Rev. Joseph Sutcliffe offered prayer.

This meeting was one of a series of events led by Lt.-Colonel and Mrs. Hoggard and Captain and Mrs. R. Hoggard, late of Trinidad, British West Indies. "Violent Christianity" was the subject of Sunday morning's address and that of the night services was "The Four Freedoms."

Drew Demands Conference To Settle Liquor Question

TORONTO, Feb. 29—(CP).—The Ontario Legislature, already well into its heavy agenda, swings back to the Throne Speech debate today, with Premier Drew continuing the reply he began Thursday to C.C.F. Leader Jolliffe's opening address.

The Premier, who yesterday put himself on record as favoring consideration of Canada's wartime liquor question by a Dominion-Provincial conference, will be followed in the debate by former Premier Harry C. Nixon, leader of the 15 Liberals in the House.

It will be Mr. Nixon's first speech of the six-day-old session and he may state the policy his party will follow in the closely-divided Legislature where the C.C.F. have 34 votes against 35 for Premier Drew's

Butter Ration Secured On Doctor's Order For Mrs. Hubert While Awaiting Trial

"It may possibly be that the Attorney - General's Department had a special copy of jail regulations for Peterborough," remarked Col. T. D. Johnston this morning, replying to a query about a rumor to the effect that Peterborough's jail was the only one in the province omitting butter from its daily dietary.

There was broad and smiling sarcasm in that answer relating to a rumor that a doctor's order had to be obtained by John A. Bradshaw, barrister, for the addition of butter to the jail rations of his client, Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert, held as prisoner since the fatal shooting of her husband last November.

"Jail bread isn't buttered here or elsewhere," seemed to be the substance of the jail regulations to which Col. Johnston alluded.

Hog Producers Name Officers

COBOURG, Feb. 29 (ENS)—Executive members, one of which represents each township in Northumberland County, of the Northumberland Hog Producers' Association, met at the home of Roy Darling at Morganston last week, and elected officers and laid plans for the coming year. The following were elected:

President, Roy Darling; vice-president, E. M. Herrington, Hilton; secretary-treasurer, R. G. Petty, Warkworth; directors, Ralph Benson of Bewdley; Archie Campbell of Roseneath, William Usborne, Colborne; Clarence Barnum, Campbellford, George Adams of Hilton.

The standing of Northumberland County was discussed by agricultural representative Ralph C. Banbury. Statistics showed that since the war the county has marketed an average of 40,000 pigs a year, with an increase of about 18% in 1943 over 1943, making total of 44,220. These are only the hogs graded in abbatoirs, and all killed on farms for home consumers or local butchers are not included. In regard to grade, Northumberland had 35.8% grade A. hogs in 1943 and 36.5% in 1942. 46% were B1's in 1943 and 49% in 1942. This grade may be considered satisfactory since many fed hogs last year who were not accustomed to them and more Western grains such as feed wheat, were used, with which, unless care was taken, hogs might be somewhat thicker. The total of 82.7% in these grades for which premiums are paid is felt to be fairly satisfactory as Haldimand County, which has the best grade in Ontario, totalled only 85.2% but had 42.6% A's against Northumberland's 35.6%.

The directors felt satisfaction in the marketing of hogs would be enhanced if grading slips were plainer and more uniform from all packing plants. The directors decided that a popular project for 1944 would be the placing of purebred boars, and each township should have one or more. It was felt that this would be most satisfactory by outright purchase by a group of hog men, but that the Dept. of Agriculture of Ontario, would be asked to assist with purchase, transportation, etc, and the representative was instructed to write to the Ontario Livestock Branch regarding cost of breeding age hogs. It was decided that the president and secretary should act as provincial delegates with power to select a substitute from the directors.

His SCIATICA has Never Returned

"I've finished with sciatica," says Mr. Faulkner. He's probably right, too. It's four years since he last had it. What did he take for it? Let him tell you:—

"For 18 months I suffered with chronic sciatica and rheumatic pains," he writes, "and was unable to walk without the aid of a cane. But after taking Kruschen Salts for a short time, I was able to throw away the cane. It is now 4 years since this happened, and I have had no return of the complaint, and have not lost a day from work. I shall never be without Kruschen Salts as they are worth their weight in gold. You can use this letter as you please, as I can honestly recommend Kruschen Salts to any sufferer."—C. Faulkner.

The shooting pain of sciatica is often due to needle-pointed uric acid crystals piercing the sheath of the great sciatic nerve. Two of the ingredient salts in Kruschen help dissolve uric acid crystals. Other salts in Kruschen help Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. Still other salts in Kruschen prevent uric acid and other body poisons from forming again. That is why Kruschen sometimes succeeds where other treatments have failed.

McGeer Resumes Attack On Banks

By FRANK FLAHERTY,
Canadian Pres Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Feb. 29—(CP) — A strong hint of battles to come before the Banking Committee over banking procedure and money reform was before the House of Commons to-day— a demand from G. G. McGeer (L-Vancouver Burrard) that the annual report of the Governor of the Bank of Canada be referred to the committee.

Mr. McGeer, who before the war was a constant advocate of monetary reform but recently has said little on the subject, urged National Government of currency and credit in terms of public need.

A lively debate developed out of a suggestion from P. E. Wright (CCF-Melfort) that the Government guarantee the value of all bonds, so purchasers would be sure of 100 cents on the dollar even if they had to sell before maturity.

The suggestion was made of a

Seeking Lawyer Witness To Club Murder

By JAMES H. PORTERFIELD
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—Extremely thorough examination of special talesmen at Wayne Lonergan's first degree murder trial forecast today selection of a jury will be long and slow—with heated clashes between counsel.

Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet, who indicated at yesterday's opening session that the state would accept only persons willing to decree the death penalty, predicted the jury would not be completed before the end of the week.

Only five persons had been examined when the trial was recessed until tomorrow. All were rejected—three by Grumet, one by Defence Attorney Edward V. Broerick and one by agreement.

At the close of the session Broderick repeated his earlier statement that he knew the identity of a lawyer who he said was in the room of Lonergan's wife, Patricia, last Oct. 24, when she was slain.

"We are still looking for him," Broderick said. "He has disappeared since we got close to the trial of Lonergan."

Grumet has denied the existence of any such potential witness.

Broderick said he will call Grumet and Assistant District Attorney John Loehr as defence witnesses regarding Lonergan's alleged confession.

"Lonergan never signed that confession," Broderick said, adding that any statement obtained was procured under duress.

Lonergan who is charged with bludgeoning to death his heiress wife, maintained a quiet composure throughout yesterday's court proceedings, following the procedure closely.

The defence attorney sprung his biggest surprise when he injected into the proceedings a letter disclosing that Lonergan had offered to relinquish all claims to a $2,000,000 share of his slain wife's fortune if exclusive custody of his 22-months-old son were given to his relatives in Canada.

Judge Freschie forbade the reading of the letter in court, but permitted talesmen to examine it. Lonergan wrote the letter to the surrogate of New York county while in city prison.

Doubles Domestic Quota

That 432,810 gallons, translated into the proof gallons on which the Federal quota is set, becomes 714,136 gallons. Take off the 30 per cent required by law, and there is still 499,865 gallons yearly that the Q.L.C. can add to its domestic quota. And as the domestic quota without including the alcohol is 459,169 gallons, the total domestic quota is more than doubled, all because of those high purchases of 60 O.P. alcohol in the base period.

There is another factor, resulting from the high reserves the Q.L.C. has always maintained, and the fact that alcohol is no longer purchaseable from distillers.

The Q.L.C. is still selling alcohol—70 proof now instead of 65 O.P.—but it cannot buy it. But as alcohol falls within the domestic quota, the commission is able to purchase a correspondingly higher amount of other domestic spirits, in lieu of alcohol, while still selling its reserves of alcohol.

Those things, say the Q.L.C., are what makes the difference in rationing. The way they figure it, the whole thing results from a freak situation based on the wide difference in drinking habits of the provinces.

All of which doesn't affect the supply of imported spirits. Every provincial commission is in the same boat there, with a 30 per cent smaller allowable supply coming out of bond. But fewer people in Quebec bother about imported spirits and the provincial quota on imports is only 208,701 gallons out of a total 1,169,765 gallons.

Britain Ready

Germany now is using the greatest concentration of guns and searchlights any power ever mustered, he said, and a fighter force greater than that with which Britain fought and broke the enemy in the Battle of Britain.

Sir Archibald acknowledged the "vigorous, imaginative administration" of the Canadian Government in the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, saying that without this help Britain could not have solved the early shortage of air crews.

Air losses are becoming progressively less heavy compared with the effect the Air Force is achieving, he said. The ratio of casualties to the weight of bombs dropped has steadily declined as attacks have been increasing.

Fighter aircraft for the invasion of Europe are ready, Sir Archibald said as he predicted the climax of the war in all probability is approaching.

While fleets of Allied bombers flew over London toward the Continent on renewed attacks, the Air Secretary said: "The R.A.F. is preparing to play its part in combination with the Army and Navy in the battle for the liberation of Europe. We have made our dispositions."

He said the forces available to support continental operations would be the 2nd British Tactical Air Force and the 9th U.S. Air Force.

The occasion for his speech was introduction of the annual air estimates.

Sir Archibald said that in the last two months Britain's Air Defences had inflicted on German raiders a higher rate of casualties than "all the massed fighter defences of Germany have been able to inflict on our far more numerous bombers penetrating deeply into enemy territory."

There were difficulties in defending Britain, however, but he told the House that "our superb night fighter squadrons keep themselves at the highest pitch of efficiency."

Went to Hubert Home

John Little, 70, Douro neighbor of the Huberts, said he was slightly acquainted with them. Their homes were on opposite sides of one hundred acres. "I saw her about 3 p.m. on that day, near Curtis' brickyard on the way to town. She was driving a horse and buggy. About 8 o'clock that night she came to my place. She said her husband was very sick and asked me to get a doctor. I went over to Leo Whibbs' place. It was about ten minutes to eight. I told Mr. Wribbs that Mrs. Hubert said her husband was very sick. The three of us got in Mr. Whibbs' car and drove to the Hubert house."

The Whibbs house is located between hte Hubers and Little houses out on the opposite side of the road.

"I followed Mrs. Hubert into the house. She had a lantern all the time. Hubert lay on the floor near a window in a room off the kitchen. He had a pillow under his head. One hand was on his breast. His legs were straight out. He was about a foot and a half out from the wall and window and parallel to the wall.

I said, "Why this man is dead." She never answered me. I took hold of his hand and found it was cold. I went out and told Mr. Whibbs what I had found. He drove away to get help."

"I went into the kitchen and sat down at a table. Mrs. Hubert had a cup of tea and a smoke. She poured me a cup of tea."

Mr. Whibbs returned in about three-quarters of an hour with John Kemp, another neighbor who had a telephone.

"Mr. Kemp and I went into the room where Hubert lay, but Mr. Whibbs said he didn't want to see him. A doctor and two policemen came. They asked me if Mrs. Hubert could stay at my home that night, and I said certainly."

Mr. Hope—"What time did she reach your place to stay?"

Mr. Little—"I couldn't say."

"But she did stay?" "Yes."

"The doctor dropped you and Mrs. Hubert off at your place?" "Yes."

Mr. Hope next called and examined Leo Whibbs.

Witness said he had known Mrs. Hubert since last May. They had come to live in the neighborhood a few weeks before that. "I met Hubert that day about 1.40 in the afternoon as I was on my way home. He was walking toward Peterborough, about a quarter of a mile east of the Curtis brickyard.

"When Mr. Little and Mrs. Hubert came to my place she said she didn't like the look of her husband. 'He is white and cold, and complains of pain in his back,' she said.

"I said maybe it would be better to get an ambulance. I thought it was funny as I saw him walking in the afternoon that he'd be in that condition at night."

Mr. Whibbs said that as a result of what Little told him at the Hubert house, he drove to Kemp's, the nearest telephone, and called the city police.

Dr. H. G. Carleton and Provincial Constables Morris and McClure arrived at the Hubert house about the time Mr. Whibbs returned there.

Corroborative evidence was given by John Kemp as examined by Mr. Hope. When he reached the Hubert house and sat down in the kitchen he noticed a couple of broken dishes on the table and heard some one say "the man's dead."

"Some one carried the lantern into the other room, and I saw it was Mr. Hubert lying near the window."

New Stage of Discovery.

Provincial Constable Price Morris amplified the Hubert story into a new stage of discovery.

"I had known Mrs. Hubert about ten years. I first knew her around Bancroft. I met her husband last spring at the General Electric works."

"When we arrived at the house on Saturday night, November 6, Dr. Carleton asked, 'Where's the sick man?' Mrs. Hubert said he was in the bedroom. Dr. Carleton and Constable McClure, Mrs. Hubert and I went into the room. We found Hubert lying dead. His arms were more or less folded on his chest. He was lying on his back, his head on a pillow, on the floor.

"Mrs. Hubert told us her husband had been to town, came home and started his supper. She then went out to the barn to do some chores and return to the house. She said she noticed a draft as she opened the kitchen door. Going in she noticed her husband was not at the table. She went into the south-west corner room, and found him on the floor. She said the window was open and he was lying with one leg on the window sill and the other on a rocking chair. Mrs. Hubert said she closed the window. She spoke to her husband and he complained about his back. Then she went to Little's."

Mr. Hope: "What light was there in the house?"—"A coal oil lamp, two farmers had lanterns, and Constable McClure and I had flashlights."

Constable Morris said there were no signs of violence. The body was removed to Comstock's undertaking rooms about 12:45 a.m. (Sunday).

Court then adjourned until 2:30.

COBOURG, Feb. 29.—(ENS). — Going out of control on King street at five o'clock Monday morning, a large transport driven by Earl Summers of Kingston, sideswiped a car owned by Benjamin Handelman, of Toronto, which was parked in front of the Chateau Hotel. Damage to the car was extensive. The accident was investigated by Constable Roy Doherty. Householders in that area were without electricity for some time while temporary repairs to the line were made.

MONTEVIDEO, Feb. 29.—(AP).—Diplomats in this South American listening post kept close watch today in restless Argentina, where the situation still was described as fluid following a political upheaval which left Gen. Edelmiro Farrell in the role of Acting President.

A development of major interest was a dispatch from Buenos Aires quoting Acting Foreign Minister Diego Mason as saying there will be no change in Argentine foreign policy under Farrell's regime.

H.M.C.S. Comber Is Adopted By Campbellford I.O.D.E. Chapter

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 29. —(ENS) — Newly installed officers of the Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E. took over at their meeting held here on Friday when the yearly report of the War Services Fund was given by the Treasurer, Miss Kae Bygott. It was also announced the negotiations which had been under way for several months had now been completed with the adoption by the Chapter of H. M. C. S. Comber, a patrol boat, on which the comforts of ten men will be looked after by the Branch.

Mrs. W. D. Ward, the retiring secretary, gave a comprehensive review of the year's activities. Three parties were held during the year for airmen stationed at Trenton. These were in charge of groups while at the holiday seasons of Christmas, Easter and in summer a large number were guests at various homes in Campbellford and Seymour. Tribute was paid to the Hospitality Convener, Mrs. E. C. Roberts for arranging these visits. Principal war work was the sending of 33 embarkation parcels; 33 embarkation and Christmas parcels combined; 150 Xmas parcels; 185 parcels to members of the services in Canada; 53 ditty bags.

Chief changes forecast for the current year were the increase in fees to $2.00 (which included subscription to Echoes and contribution to flower fund) and a heavier knitting quota which calls upon every member to hand in by September 1, 1944, 3 sweaters; 3 pair gloves; 3 pair socks. She concluded by saying "Although we had a very successful year, the returns from group efforts were smaller than last year. The returns from salvage were smaller, as was to be expected and although we had a special tag day for the Chapter, we were still short of our previous year's funds by several hundred dollars. This we should try to remedy since last year our gift and embarkation list was considerably longer, and we may expect it will be much longer this year, and also we may have many more calls on our funds."

The treasurer's report indicated a total of $396.74 carried over from the 1942 account, proceeds from entertainments, birthday tea, etc., $143.98; Group Money $201.47; Navy League, tag day, $168,60; donations, $14.80; cigarette fund, $15.00; quilts sold, $31.00; sale of salvage, $207.45; I. O. D. E. Tag Day, $170.25; Prizes won at Fall Fair on samples of

Edgar Andrews Arrives Home

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 29 (ENS) —Sgt. Edgar Andrews who has been overseas for the past four years, arrived in Campbellford Sunday night. He was among the group of soldiers invalided home aboard the Lady Nelson and he expects to return to duty in Canada after a 30-day furlough. Sgt. Andrews is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Andrews of Campbellford, and was wounded in Sicily on July 21 when he was struck by a machine gun bullet in the right forearm and subsequently was burned in the face by a blast from the muzzle of a 17-lb anti tank gun. Sgt. Andrews was riding in a Bren carrier when he received the facial injuries, which with the bullet wound hospitalized him for three weeks. He spoke in praise of the "miraculous" way in which a salve healed his burns leaving not the slightest trace of a scar.

His record of service dates back to March, 1940, when he enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and went overseas two months later. He landed with the invasion forces at Sicily July 10, 1943, and was a detachment commander with a 3-inch mortar platoon. Eleven days later he was wounded and taken back to a base hospital in North Africa.

Sgt. Andrew's wife and five year old son were on hand to meet him when he arrived in Peterborough, where they have been making their home with Mrs. Andrew's parents for the past two years. They intend to resume their home in Campbellford unless he is transferred to the coast as an instructor.

Chapter Admit 10 New Members

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 29. —(ENS). — Extensive plans were made for the ensuing year at a meeting of the Trent Valley Chapter, I.O.D.E., at its meeting held on Friday when ten new members were admitted to the branch, whose total roll has now climbed to 35. The Regent, Mrs. G. A. Ironside, conducted the business and revealed that each member would undertake to knit one pair of socks, one pair of gloves, and as many sweaters as possible during the year.

As group activities, each of the four groups will make a layette and endeavor as well to raise at least $10. Groups planned to meet once each month for a sewing meeting which will mean two meetings each month for members since the entire Chapter will in future meet once each month on the senamed as follows: Betty Adamson, cond Friday. Group leaders were Rhea Callaghan, Helen Beatty and Diane Ironside. The war work of the branch will be extended by adopting as their responsibility all members of the armed forces directly related to them which would mean approximately 17 more Christmas parcels in addition to the 14 girls' parcels already being provided.

The thanks of the Chapter was expressed to Miss Aileen Parker for a contribution of several babies' sweaters made by High School girls. These will be sent to England. The Regent announced that arrangements to hold a dance in the Masonic Temple on March 31 had been completed and it was expected an orchestra comprising Airmen from Trenton would provide the music.

The treasurer's report for 1943 revealed a total of $163 had been raised for their War Service Fund. In addition to several donations, including those from Loch Lomond Lodge, Echoes Bridge Club, etc., the Chapter raised money by holding two euchres and a bridge. There was $26 in the general fund. From the War Service Fund they spent $59 for wool, $12 for flannelette, $13.28 for items in ditty bags, $11.63 for girls' Christmas parcels. To headquarters last year they sent 86 baby garments, 18 pairs of felt slippers, 25 men's sleeveless sweaters, 19 pairs socks, 2 childs' dresses, 2 nursery bags, 9 scarves, 56 pairs mitts and gloves, 3 Air Force mufflers, 4 ditty bags valued at $14.

Farm Home Burned

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 29 (ENS) —Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed a farm home on the town line known as the 'Tosh Stephens property on Sunday evening. The dwelling, which is jointly owned by the Mrs. William Clark estate and Mrs. Robert Little, has been unoccupied for the past two months. Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn who lives about a mile north of the property was first to notice the flames at about ten o'clock in the evening. She phoned an alarm to William MacKenzie, whose farm adjoins the burned property, but when he arrived on the scene the fire was completely out of control. Damage was estimated at about $1,500.00.

Gardeners Urged To Increase Food Production

Victory gardeners of Peterborough were urged to produce on a scale exceeding anything they have done before in a rally Monday night that was addressed by George Rush, vegetable specialist of the Department of Agriculture. Asserting there was little likelihood of increased production on the part of commercial growers due to a very tight labor supply and the shortage of cultivating machinery, Mr. Rush said it depended largely on the efforts of individual amateur gardeners to help meet the higher food quotas set for the Dominion this year.

"Eleven million extra tons of foods to be shipped overseas this year is the objective of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association," Mr. Rush informed his listeners. "This country alone has been asked to increase its production of green vegetables by 19%, of root vegetables by 16% and of potatoes by 5%. On Canada and the United States, more than any other powers in the world, devolves the necessity of supplying starving Europe with food."

The commercial growers were up against it, the agricultural expert averred. They were not getting the same supply of labor as fruit growers, and it was unnatural to expect that they could. "Put a man new to the work in a vegetable field and you will find him tiring of it in a few days or weeks. He will go back to picking fruit," Mr. Rush said.

Salvation Army Is Working In 90 Countries

The work of the Salvation Army had expanded until it now touches 90 countries and colonies throughout the world. Lieut.-Col. Robert A. Hoggard, head of the Salvation Army Training College in Toronto, told members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel on Monday. Col. Hoggard was speaking on the subject "An Army of Peace in a World at War".

With him was his son, Capt. Robert Hoggard, also of the Salvation Army who has been on duty for some time in Trinidad, West Indies, after serving in Salvation work in London during the blitz, Capt. Hoggard contributed a much-appreciated concertina solo to the program.

During Col. Hoggard's address he referred to the fact that his son had carried on in London during the worst period of the German air raids and had had some harrowing experiences. "He wouldn't tell you himself" said the speaker, "but I can tell you. He conducted himself so well during the blitz he had the honor of being presented to the Queen at Buckingham Palace."

Introduced by Rotarian E. C. Braund, Col. Hoggard said that the Salvation Army was a unique organization that sought recruits in every land. Color, class or creed were not allowed to interfere with its operations. The Salvation Army, he said was always fighting, yet it carried no weapons. It never declared an armistice.

Col. Hoggard outlined some of the work done by the army throughout

W. P. Moore Named Dairy Instructor

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 29 (ENS) —W. P. "Bill" Moore, cheesemaker at Rylstone for upwards of fifteen years has been appointed to succeed the late W. J. Moore as Dairy Instructor for the Peterborough District. "Bill" takes over his new duties as a man well qualified for the position, since his many years as a successful maker mark him as a man who is well able to appreciate both the problems of the dairy farmer as well as those of the cheesemaker. His popularity among fellow cheesemakers was rewarded two years ago by his elevation to the presidency of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, a position he still holds. If evidence of his skill as a maker were needed it would only be necessary to recall that last season Rylstone maintained its usual good record and topped all other factories in the district with an average of 94.289. He was also a consistent winner at local cheese exhibitions held here in connection with the fall fair.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE
Farmers' Union Mutual Fire Insurance Company

FEBRUARY 26th, 1944, TOWN HALL, LINDSAY

President, Mr. Bruce McNevin

Mr. Vice-President,
Ladies and Gentlemen:

In one respect at least the year just closed represents one of the most important in the Company's long history of service of its policyholders. I refer to the action taken in the December last when your Board of Directors authorized payment of a refund from surplus of 10 percent on the premium notes on all policies which had been continuously in force for a period of at least three years, thus establishing a new milestone in our progress and as such I am convinced meets with the approval of all our members. As for myself, it means at least the partial attainment of an objective set 12 years ago when you first allotted a place for me on your Board. May I say, also, that in the light of our experiences of recent years I am lead to hope that this is not the last of such payments. However, as has been already pointed out in a letter enclosed with cheques being mailed to members eligible for the refund, the amount and regularity of such payments in future years will depend very largely upon the continued assistance and cooperation of every policyholder removing existing fire hazards and exercising the utmost care around buildings and in the use of equipment where the danger of loss from fire is ever present. In passing it might be advisable to reflect upon what has been largely responsible for the present sound and satisfactory position of our Company's finances. I have in mind that the following points have a very direct bearing upon this worthwhile achievement.

FIRST—The Board of Directors adopted and put into practice safe and effective underwriting principles.

SECOND—The agents of the Company in the discharge of their duties co-operated with the Board to the fullest possible extent in the actual application of these principles through exercising due care in the selection of risks and also in respect to the amount of insurance placed thereon.

THIRD—A well devised and continuous campaign of fire prevention authorized by the Board of Directors and promoted and supervised by the Secretary-Treasurer of the Company, and his office assistants. Then, last but not least, the assistance and cooperation given by the policyholders to the end that fire losses have been kept close to the very minimum through exercising due care in the removal of many known fire hazards. The elimination of many careless practices in the use of smoking materials, matches, equipment and keeping ever before their minds that it is much easier to prevent a fire than it is to put it out after it has started.

I now come to a review of our financial statement for the year 1943. You will note from the report mailed to all members that the net amount of insurance in force as of December 31st last of $18,529,052 shows an increase of $731,590.00 over the comparable figure of the year previous. Net profit for the year of $37,269.08 when compared with last year's figure of $35,094.12 shows an improvement of $2,174.96. With respect to losses total disbursements of $19,029.53 which includes all reinsurance loss payments, when it is recognized that we have net insurance in force of $18,529,052.00 and reinsurance accepted from our reinsuring companies of $3,150,018.00 presents a record which should be entirely satisfactory to all concerned.

In view of the fact that fire losses in the U.S. in 1943 were 12 percent above that of 1942 we have every reason to be gratified with the results of the year's operations.

Before concluding my remarks I have a few observations covering the field of fire insurance underwriting which I would like to make.

First being, that the effect of the transition period through which the Agricultural industry in the Province of Ontario is now passing upon the Mutual Fire Insurance Companies must be most carefully analysed. The trend of this period is towards substantially larger farms entailing the possibility that the essentiality of various classes of farm buildings may be substantially lessened, thereby increasing in some instances the fire hazard of these buildings. At the present time this may be partially corrected by the improved financial position of those engaged in the farming industry. During the past year our applications and policies have been amended to provide a wider coverage on farm implements for our policyholders. Turning to another trend that may have some influence upon the future, is it not true that the dearth of many items that made our lives so easy will give we Canadians a consciousness of values we have never before had. It is going to be a long time before the average citizen forgets the rationing of many commodities and the scarcity of building materials. Surely most of us will never again waste the many things that are so hard to get today. If one of the results is a more profound attempt to stop the ravages of careless fires then Mutual Fire Insurance will definitely be coming into its own. The annual loss of life and property by fire should induce all of us to stop and think. It is estimated that fires on farms in the U.S. take approximately 3,500 lives each year and destroy $100,000,000 worth of property.

The eight principal causes of farm fires are defective chimneys and flues, sparks on combustible roofs, lightning, spontaneous combustion, careless use of matches, smoking, careless use of gasolene and kerosene and faulty wiring and mis-use of electrical appliances. These eight are responsible for over 80 percent of all farm fires. Let us further our own interests through carefully checking up respecting these items as they affect the premises we occupy.

My final remarks are an expression on behalf of myself and fellow directors to the Secretary-Treasurer and office staff for their attention to the duties of our office and to our policyholders for the genuine and in a large measure successful efforts to keep the fire loss down to the lowest possible figure.

Respectfully submitted
BRUCE McNEVIN, M.P.
President.

IT DOESN'T HURT... AND YOUR HEALTH WILL NOT BE HARMED

Let's be frank about this. You can help save lives by donating some of your blood at any of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinics. That blood is used in plasma form for transfusions right on the field of battle and for every single battlefield transfusion, four or five men or women must each volunteer a donation!

There are only two reasons why those who know the need hold back. They think it will hurt. Or they believe it will harm them.

Here are the facts! The nurse will give you an arm anaesthetic if you are nervous. Your temperature, blood pressure and haemoglobin will be checked thoroughly. The volume of blood taken, a minimum, will be made up by your system in 48 hours, the blood cells within 14 days. And you may donate that much once every two months without harm of any kind.

Keep your appointment! Our soldiers keep theirs!

A Pioneer Railroad

We have received a most interesting communication from Mrs. Ruby J. Meggs of Gore's Landing, in which she gives an account of the Cobourg-Peterborough Railroad, and particularly of the branch line which ran from Cobourg to Harwood. This line was officially opened on Friday, December 29, 1854, at 1.15 o'clock; it was a moment of great excitement. A large crowd had gathered, and as someone shouted "Here she comes" the train topped the height of land between Cobourg and Harwood, a mighty train for the period, with two engines and twelve passenger cars! The latter were filled with railway officials and civic dignitaries from Cobourg who were on their way to Peterborough, where a banquet was to mark the occasion.

There was a little ceremony at Harwood. The train was halted with great screaming of whistles and brakes, and the conductor ran up to the engine to congratulate the driver, who had achieved a speed of 15 miles an hour at several points on the journey. The railroad company offered a free ticket to anyone who was willing to venture on the trip, which involved crossing Rice Lake by means of a bridge set on piers, stretching from Tic Island at Harwood, to the north side of the Lake and thence to Peterborough. There were many who were not ready to take the risk, and many preferred to walk from Cobourg.

Peterborough was gay with triumphal arches and evergreen decorations. Two hundred people sat down to the banquet, which was presided over by Judge Hall. The menu included fresh cod from Boston, Ontario venison, partridge and wild pigeon; it was not a teetotal affair.

The speeches appear to have been unusually interesting. The president of the railway, Mr. Scott, recalled the days when the only means of transportation hereabout was by canoe on the Otonabee. The Hon. Ebenezer Perry described Cobourg in 1815, when it was called 'Hardscrabble'. "And hardscrabble enough it was, too", he is reported to have said. The wit of the banquet was William Weller, the owner of the Weller stage line; he expressed his hope that future conditions would be "weller". This gentleman also owned the Royal Mail line on the Kingston Road. He urged everyone who could to subscribe for stock in the railroad, so that "the expense would not be like the handle of a jug—all on one side".

This railroad had a busy life while it lasted; the lumber industry was at its peak, and there were two mills busy in Harwood. Logs were warped across Rice Lake after coming down the Otonabee; from Harwood the train drew lumber to Cobourg for further distribution. The train itself would seem very odd to modern eyes. It was fired with wood, belched forth great clouds of smoke, and on a clear day its puffing as it made the grade of the summit could be heard at Gore's Landing. Once on the summit, the passenger coach was disconnected and ran down into Harwood by gravity, while the locomotive went to the mill for lumber.

When he was Prince of Wales the late King Edward VII travelled over this road: it was not thought safe for him to cross the Rice Lake bridge, and a steamboat was on hand to carry him over; a fine red carpet led from the station platform to the boat. When the train steamed in Tom Dixon, a well-known local resident, was dismayed to see a man in a gray suit walking on the pristine carpet, and he roared, "Hey, you—get off there. Don't you know this is for the Prince of Wales?" He was profoundly embarrassed to discover that the man in the gray suit was the Prince of Wales.

Mistrust of the Rice Lake bridge was at last justified in 1861, when it collapsed, and the railroad was closed by government order. However, traffic to Harwood continued for many years. The collapse of the bridge was caused by a sweep of ice pressing against it in a high wind. The railroad itself did not completely disappear until 1916, when its rails were taken up and shipped to France for military use. Let us hope that the old line ended its days in a blaze of glory.

The Monopoly Bogey

In his complaints against the Aluminum Company of Canada Mr. Coldwell does not seem to be able to see the wood for the trees. In his opinion, the most important thing about the Aluminum Company is that it is a 'monopoly'; but for most of the people of Canada the important thing is that the Aluminum Company can supply aluminum in large quantity, and we must have aluminum in order to get on with our war production. When the war is over we can look into the matter of the monopoly, discover whether it is a harmful monopoly or not, and deal with it accordingly.

Contrary to widespread opinion, a monopoly is not necessarily a bad thing. It might be said that our telephone system in a large part of Canada is controlled by a monopoly, but it is an excellent system for all of that, and interference with its monopoly would simply complicate the telephone communication system without doing anybody the slightest good. In a system of free enterprise monopolies are bound to spring up. The important thing is not whether the monopoly really monopolizes the trade in a certain commodity, but whether it does so to the harm and inconvenience of the country.

The Shipshaw aluminum contract was given to the Aluminum Company in order that we should be able to get aluminum which was badly needed for our war effort. Would it have been sensible to refuse to deal with a monopoly, and undertake years of reorganization and foundation-work in order to get aluminum from some other source?

Mr. Coldwell is still insisting that his complaints against the Aluminum Company were justified, and that the Parliamentary Committee which rejected them was wrong. He does not seem to grasp the fact that the important thing at present is to get the aluminum we need. We can wrangle about monopolies and cartels when the enemy is beaten.

Circulating Hansard

A motion is to be presented to the British House of Commons, signed by 246 members, to have Hansard supplied free to all libraries, information centres and news rooms. It will be interesting to see what becomes of this motion when it reaches the House; if it is approved we might think of doing something of the kind in Canada. At present Hansard has a small circulation, and it might be a good thing if it were more widely read.

This paper has opposed the frequent suggestion that the proceedings of the Commons should be broadcast for two reasons: first, men and broadcasting corporations are inclined to be niminy-piminy about what they send out on the air, and debate might suffer because the debaters were too careful of what they said; second, because few people are capable of following a rambling debate which they cannot see and which they probably do not understand. Hansard is the proper place to find out in detail what is going on in Parliament. It can be read at leisure, digested and appraised.

Free access to Hansard is surely a desirable thing. We have no illusions, however, about the number of people who would read it if it were more widely available than it is now. There are far too many people who are ready to grumble at Parliament, but are not prepared to take any steps to understand it better. Frequently those who profess a strong interest in politics shirk the job of keeping up with the parliamentary reports.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Musso Tells Japs He's Like One Of Them", says a headline. Yellow?

Razor blades are being used as currency in Germany. That seems to be cutting it very fine.

We go in for heavy artillery nowadays. But in the period when a fighting man wore armour weighing anything up to 200 pounds it was a case of heavy infantry.

The British officer who dropped by parachute into Yugoslavia to join Tito was, in peacetime, an Oxford don. Do we hear any remarks from those stay-at-home gentlemen who use "crackpot" and "professor" interchangeably?

London scientists are said to have discovered a way to double the size of fruits and vegetables. Let them take care. During the past twenty years apple-growers have doubled the size of some apples, but they have halved the flavour. Size is not everything.

Yesterday In A Barber Shop

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
In the Kingston Whig-Standard

ON Portage Avenue today I made a remarkable and a melancholy discovery. I found a man with a real old-fashioned neck-shave. Remarkable, I call it, because there is no record of any other neck-shave since pinch-back suits went out of style in the First World War. And melancholy because it recalls the age of our lost innocence.

When I was a boy every sporty fellow had his neck shaved regularly, leaving a beautiful, white, glistening line above his coat collar. Not to have a neck-shave was to be considered a rustic or a prig. Bank presidents, baseball players, bar tenders, professors, and ministers of the Gospel all had their necks scrupulously shaved; and small boys yearned for the same treatment, even if it inevitably involved washing your neck.

Yet today my colleague, Mr. Gray, assured me that he had never heard about this. Indeed, he had never seen a neck-shave before and marveled at the sight. He thought it was some new fashion from Hollywood. How hopeless it is to expect, therefore, that the present generation will recall the still earlier time when barberhood was in flower, when the barbershop was the authentic core of our North American civilization, when the barber was the best-informed man in the community.

A young man like Mr. Gray cannot remember, I suppose, when a barbershop was no mere workshop where hair is cut and fingernails manicured; but was a glamorous, racy and rather sinful place where a small boy could listen to the city sports talking about horse races, prize fights and stage folk, and where statesmen would unbend, in their shirt sleeves and discuss the affairs of the nation through a hot, steaming towel.

AN aged barber was telling me just today that the soul went out of the barbershop when the safety razor was invented. It is true, he said, that the barber shop is more scientific now-a-days with all sorts of new and shiny gadgets, but the soul has gone out of it. The reason, he thought, was that when men were being shaved, in leisurely and soothing fashion, their cares melted from them, they became human and their better nature shone through the lather.

That is why, he thought, that in the old days a man would tell his barber anything, the most intimate secrets of state and the private affairs of his own family; but now when men stay at home and use safety razors on themselves, they seldom tell the barber anything. A mere haircut, the old barber said, does not get under a customer's skin as the razor used to do.

The barber's eyes filled with tears as he told me about the departed glories of his youth, when, he said, his shop was lined with shelves containing no less than 73 separate shaving mugs, each with the customer's name on it, and usually with a gilt figure of cupid, a pink, naked Venus or some other cheerful design; the whole collection together, the vast sweep of china, the hordes of cupids and Venuses, forming a picture which did the heart good.

It was an inspiration to him, he said, just to look at it, to see how many friends he had, a friendship which, as I remember it, was often more than skin deep. But what happens today, the old barber asked. The citizen crawls out of bed with fifteen minutes to catch the bus, he smears a new kind of paste on his face, he lashes about with a safety razor and he peers at his sagging morning face in the glass with a kind of glazed horror. That is the real trouble, the barber said....instead of lying back with a hot towel over his face, the world and all its troubles shut out, the modern man has to look at his own face while shaving. A great deal of the current pessimism in the world, he said, is attributable to this.

TODAY, he said, shaving is a mere nuisance; whereas in a more leisurely time, it was an event, something to be looked forward to for days ahead, since a man only came to the barbershop two or three times a week; and in between times let his whiskers grow, as nature intended. When the time came to visit the barber there was a formidable job of reaping to be done and you could take your time over it and have leisure to discuss Reciprocity or the Johnson-Jeffries fight; whereas today a man glowing at his bathroom mirror and thinks about the income tax and then has no appetite for breakfast, and complains of the cooking and often, the barber said, ends by beating his wife.

In fact, he said, much of the present unrest in the world is due solely to the habit of daily shaving at home, and before the decline of the barbershop there were no world wars, and it is probable that if Hitler had had a barber at the right time in his life he might have turned out quite a decent sort, and certainly no barber would have ever created such a mustache.

I mentioned the disappearance of the neck-shave and the barber said, yes, this was part of the general deterioration of the world for a man who could create a really symmetrical neck line was an artist, indeed, whose work could be recognized a block off and was the pride and joy of its owner. But barbers now-a-days just cut hair, that's all, just cut hair, a mere mechanic's job like mowing the lawn.

Explosive Words

Major S. F. Markham, an Englishman who must have plenty of nerve and, no doubt, a solid fistic defence to back it up, made this statement in the British House of Commons:

"Some one should break down the fallacy that the Scots are a hardy race. They are not a hardy race. Their infant mortality is higher than in any other part of the British Isles. Their expectation of life is four years less than that of the average Englishman and their death rate is higher.

"Five thousand Scotsmen die every year through cold, dirt and ignorance."

This outburst may cause a storm in the British Isles, but if a similar statement were made at Ottawa by a member of Anglo-Saxon origin about the French, or vice versa, it would start a hurricane in this country.

Return to Courtesy

We suggest that the return to an observance of more courtesy in daily life could be led by merchants and their staffs. They should begin now to look forward to the post-war years when they will again have abundant stocks of merchandise to sell. They will then be eager to courteously wait upon the customers. We know of one large firm which regularly sends letters to its branch stores instructing the staffs to retain the courtesies which they showed the public before the wartime shortages began to be felt.—Tillsonburg News.

"SITUATION WELL IN HAND!"

Private And Public Worries

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

"THERE are no public worries, only private ones. No man ever lost a night's sleep over a public worry."

So said the 18th Century Dr. Samuel Johnson. It was one of his characteristic pronouncements—uninhibited by qualifications and so uncompromising as to be amusing.

It might seem that there are, indeed, no public worries. Who before this war (who did not have a professional concern) worried about the shape of the things that have come—worried to the point of losing sleep? Or who now stays awake at nights beneath the shadow that approaching events are casting before them?

For each man reality is the things that are most real to him. And these are the things that are nearest to him, and that belong most to his private peace. Reality is his own little world, steadied by his routine, consoled by his comforts, made hopeful by his reasonable anticipations. It is of the attractive essence of this personal world that it provides a shelter against the unaccountable forces without. In the midst of vast uncertainties, this much at least seems sound.

Yet the outer and the inner worlds are intricately connected. So are the public and the private worries. It was the powerful presentation of this fact that Charles Dickens's biographer, John Forster, thought the finest thing in "A Tale of Two Cities." When made conscious of the first sultry drops of a thunderstorm that fall upon a little group sitting in an obscure English lodging, we are witnesses to the actual beginning of a tempest which is preparing to sweep away everything in France, and to involve England in a quarter-century's war. "There is no book known to me," wrote Forster, "in which the domestic life of a few simple private people is in such a manner knotted and interwoven with the outbreak of a terrible public event, that the one seems but a part of the other."

"There are no public worries, only private ones." Like many other things that Dr. Johnson said, this made free with truth in order to win an argument. Actually the only demarcation between public and private worries is the line of realization. A public worry becomes real enough when it invades the private worlds, when it pursues and finds out even the most obscure and the most remote, the most content and the most at ease.

There is no isolation. It is a thing of the feelings, without existence in fact. And the private world is still defenceless if surrounded by the wider illusion of a national isolation.

Britain Fighting To The Last Briton

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

MR. CHURCHILL, half-American in origin, knows his United States; knows that with presidential election in the offing there will be the usual tail-twisting of the British lion, with the Bertie McCormicks and others telling how Britain is prepared to "fight to the last American." (Judging by matter coming to our desk they are already at it.)

Accordingly, and with all the instinct of an old journalist, Mr. Churchill in his speech this week took occasion to show that all through this war Britain has been fighting to the last Briton. Here are some of his facts:

1. Since January 1, 1943, ships of the Royal Navy and aircraft of the R.A.F. have sunk more than half of the U-boats "of which we have certain proof in the shape of living prisoners"; and destroyed 40 per cent of the other U-boats of which either corpses or fragments provide definite evidence of destruction."
2. During the same period there has been sunk by British action alone 19 enemy warships and also a large number of E-boats, escort vessels, minesweepers and other auxiliaries; not to mention 316 merchant ships aggregating 835,000 tons.
3. In the same period 7,678 officers and men of the Royal Navy and 4,200 merchant navy officers and men have lost their lives in British ships.
4. Since the beginning of the war, 41,000 officers and men of the Royal Navy have been lost—30 per cent of its pre-war strength.
5. Excluding Dominion and Allied squadrons working with the R.A.F., British Islanders have lost 38,300 pilots and air crew killed and and 10,400 missing, with over 10,000 aircraft.
6. The British army—"little more than a police force in 1939"—have fought in every part of the world—in Norway, France, Holland, Belgium, Egypt, Eritrea, Abyssinia, Somaliland, Madagascar, Syria, North Africa, Persia, Sicily, Italy, Greece, Crete, Burma, Malaya, Hong Kong.

That is the record and, as Mr. Churchill put it ringingly, history will show how much the contribution of British fighting men has been beyond all proportion to the available manpower of the British islands. It is not a question of making invidious comparisons; it is a matter of truth and justice—of meeting and destroying falsehood which, left unchecked, can only bring disastrous divisions.

Black Market Must Go

Motorists may be momentarily downcast at Hon. C. D. Howe's announcement that there will be no change in the gasoline ration for the coming year. But it should not take much reflection to come to the decision that the restrictions are not too bad considering the critical state of the war situation. What motorists will demand, though, is a more determined campaign against the gasoline black market all across the country. —Montreal Gazette.

Tremendous Production

Some idea of what is expected overseas soon is seen at Raritan Arsenal in Metuchen, New Jersey, with a present production of 1,000,000 pounds ordnance equipment a day and now starting to triple that output, with an immediate goal of 90,000,000 pounds a month. The present is tremendous production and, when it is tripled, according to the new order, the enemy, both in Europe and in the Pacific will get jolts they had never imagined to be possible.—Niagara Falls Review.

Men Do Queer Things

An American merchant ship was sinking in the Mediterranean. The third officer went to his cabin, deliberately put aside his watch and ring and picked up six handkerchiefs and a bracelet he'd bought for his wife; another officer searched frantically for the ship's cat, which was about to have kittens; a seaman calmly took off his shoes and put on two right ones; the purser opened a drawer below his bunk, took two packages of cigarets from a carton, left the rest, left two valuable watches and all his other personal belongings behind. Almost everyone left all of his personal belongings.

The queer part of it is that no one appears to have known what he was doing until it was all over.—Providence Bulletin.

A Bible Message

Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing.

Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. (Ps. 100: 1-3.)

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things.... For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring. (Acts 17: 24, 25, 28.)

The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God. (Rom. 8: 16.)

Letters To The Editor

THE POLICE ESTIMATES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—After reading the rejection by the Police Commission of the recommendation submitted by Chief of Police Samuel Newhall re salary increases I was struck by the fact that obviously Judge Smoke had influenced Mayor Hamilton to vote with him in his determination to reject the recommendation in its entirety. There are nineteen men on the police force and a police matron. Many have wives and families. This decision "vitally" concerns all of 50 or 60 individuals.

Most of these men have worked up from the bottom (not by appointment). The others at the bottom want to work up (where is the incentive). The citizens of Peterborough know we have a good police force. The clean record of this city proves that fact and a good measure of credit is due the police for this record.

Some few years ago the taxpayers in the city of Toronto were soaked over $200,000 for their police investigation. Crown Attorney Newton was brought down from London and his personal charge for services amounted to over $75,000 (compare this one time to our total police budget of $43,000).

The city of Peterborough has no pension or insurance plan whatever for their police department, the men have to pay all their own insurance and in addition set aside some means of pension to retire on. Could any one of us do this on the meagre salaries paid at present?

Now is the time to do something about bringing salaries and benefits in line with other cities, our police force are worthy of receiving consideration at least equal to cities such as Oshawa, Brantford, Kitchener etc., etc.

GEORGE W. HERON.
R.R. No. 7, Peterborough.

REPLY TO "SALVAGER."

Sir,—In defence of the very few salvage workers, I should like to answer "Salvager." Perhaps last summer, she did have to call more than once, but does she realize we had a warehouse with more than 30 tons of loose paper (householders just wouldn't spare time to tie it), and only half a dozen women to sort, bale and tie it, before we had room for further collections; also it was clearly stated last summer we did not want old rubber (other than tires), no bottle caps or mattresses. Maybe that is why they weren't picked up. In October last we had a drive and said it was the last until spring, so we cannot be blamed for the winter's accumulation. It was no easy task for women, in all weather, to drive a truck, collect and sort salvage (which all too often was garbage), and if those who criticized our voluntary efforts would have spared us a few hours of their time, perhaps we could have managed better. But even with so few volunteers we picked up over 1,376,128 lbs. of salvage, so I guess we didn't overlook very much. I have investigated several complaints during the present drive, only to find in most cases the salvage has been put out after the truck had passed, or on the wrong day; others have it in the basement waiting for us to call at the house, and this in spite of all our advertising and instructions, and yet citizens are quite provoked if we refuse to make a special trip. However, keep on saving and we will do our best to pick it up.

MRS. R. WHALON,
Chairman Salvage Committee.

Knox Y.P.U. Meets

John Donaldson was guest speaker at the regular meeting of Knox Young People's Union, held in the Ladies' Parlors. Mr. Donaldson gave a synopsis of the book, "The Robe," and pointed out how well the author brought the Biblical characters to life. He also stressed the fact that Marcus had to suffer a great mental turmoil before he could gain the peace of mind that only a knowledge of Christ's great love could give him.

The group decided to have a social evening, in place of the sleigh drive planned for Tuesday evening. The worship service was in charge of Connie Lewis, the Culture convener, and Roy Genge read the Scripture, and Glenn French led in prayer. Velma Stewart led in the singing of hymns which opened the meeting.

Leap Year Babies Mark Birthday

"But Leap Year coming once in four," says the poem, "February then has one day more," and that day certainly causes a great deal of disappointment, since people born on that day only have a birthday once in four years. However, February twenty-niners usually have quite a celebration on their day, and it helps to gloss over the disappointment of only having one birthday to the other fellow's four.

There are several people in Peterborough who celebrate their birthday on February 29. Miss Hilda Pearson, Weller street, is twenty years old today, although it is really only her fifth birthday, and she has received many gifts and cards of good wishes from her friends. Bill Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Morris, 12 Inverlea street, is sixteen years old today, although he is only celebrating his fourth birthday.

Darrel Ackford, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ackford, 297 Boswell avenue, is celebrating his third birthday today, but he is twelve years old. Patrick O'Toole, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. O'Toole, R.R. 6, Peterborough, and Patrick O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. O'Connor of Campbellford, are celebrating their first birthdays today, although both stoutly maintain that they are four years old.

Mrs. A. Murray, of Hanover, Indiana, is eighty-four years old today. She is staying with her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. W. Westington, in Hanover. Her son, Mr. Owen Murray, lives near Springville, and Mrs. Murray resided there until a few years ago when she went to live with her daughter.

Wedding anniversaries are also celebrated on this day. Mr. and Mrs. A. Malby, 303 Rubidge street, have been married eight years, but, due to the queer quirk in the calendar, are only observing their second anniversary, and latest stop-the-press news states that Mr. and Mrs. Jack Donaldson, 416 High street, are the proud parents of a leap year boy.

Norwood Girl Weds Ottawa Airman

The marriage of Blanche Marjorie Buck, daughter of Mrs. John F. Buck, of Norwood and the late Mr. Buck, to Flying Officer A. R. (Sam) Deir, R.C.A.F., of Ottawa, son of Mr S Deir, and the late Mrs Deir, was recently solemnized in Chalmers United church, Ottawa, with Dr. John W. Woodside officiating. Mr. Wilfrid Coulson was at the organ.

The bride wore a light blue crepe dress, in a jacket effect, with lace edging, a Sweetheart neckline, and long pointed sleeves. She wore a matching hat and veil and carried blue iris and yellow freesia. The couple were attended by FO. and Mrs. J. J. Fullerton.

Following a reception at the home of FO. and Mrs. Fullerton, the couple left for a trip to the Seigniory Club, Quebec, and Montreal. The bride travelled in a black coat over her wedding ensemble. On their return they will live at 193 Waverley street, Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. John F. Buck, and Mr. and Mrs. Russel Buck, Norwood, and Mrs. R. David Brown, of Peterborough.

WOMEN WANT FOUR MORE FREEDOMS

Liberty in Love, Economic Independence, Physical Comfort and No More Babying Husbands.

SPEAKING of the Four Freedoms, here are the four freedoms that women would like to have:

First, they would like to be free to pick out their mates. They would like to have the right to do their courting openly and freely, unhampered by conventions, and when they saw a man they fancied as a husband to be able to say: "John, dear—darling—will you be mine?" Of course, in reality, as a general thing, the women are the pursuers instead of the pursued in marriage, but, even so, no one can deny that it cramps the husband-hunter's style to have to stalk her prey under cover and to camouflage her every move. Also it enables many a man to escape into bachelorhood who would otherwise be a happy husband and father.

Were women free from this handicap of not being able to pop the question, it would make for more and better marriages because it would enable them to put up a good selling argument that would make many a man see that a sensible, domestic girl is a better matrimonial proposition than a living picture. Likewise, it would give every woman her heart's desire in a husband, instead of having to take what she can get. And a contented wife is a good wife.

Second, women want economic freedom more than almost anything else in the world, and the reason there are so many bitter, dissatisfied, disgruntled wives is because so many domestic women are frustrated in this desire. There are plenty of wives of even well-off men who never have a dollar of their own that they can spend as they please. The first money of her own that many a married woman ever has is her husband's insurance money, and perhaps that is the reason there are so many reconciled widows.

Freedom From Beauty Culture Would Help

The third freedom that women would like to have is to be free, as men are, to be even as Nature made them. If a man is bald, he is bald, and what of it? If he is fat, he is fat, and who cares? If he is intelligent and interesting and a gentleman and successful in his undertakings, nobody bothers about his looks. But, no matter if a woman has all the virtues under the sun, she is expected to throw in beauty and dress like a manikin, besides.

Nobody can imagine a bald-headed girl being the belle of a ball, and for his wife to get old and fat is still a husband's alibi for roaming. What women suffer in trying to keep young and beautiful would make another Book of Martyrs. And there is no privilege that they would enjoy so much as being able to let out their corset strings and eat mayonnaise and be their age.

The fourth freedom that women crave is being able to treat their husbands as reasonable human being and not to have to jolly them, or baby them, or cajole them along the matrimonial pathway. But no wife ever expects that to happen. She doesn't even hope to ever be able to handle her husband without putting on her velvet gloves.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

The classic casual coat has the well-bred smartness that time never dims. Who doesn't look well dressed in a casual coat? Practically no one, that's why a casual coat is always the fashion, always popular, always the best kind of an all occasion coat any woman can buy. The new spring casuals are a jump ahead of the crocuses and daffodils because many women like to start wearing them now, over suits and wool dresses. The smartest materials are lustra-shag, a beautiful soft material imported from England. Angora fleece that you will love the feel of and will never tire of the monotone oatmeal shade, which never lets you down, but always keeps your spirit high. Kynock tweed, shown in the sporty hounds tooth check, this worn with a felt beret very much off the face, or a larger hat of the tailored type. A smart one of the latter kind is called "Spring Afternoon." A hat rolled at one side with a high rather pointed crown. The brim of this hat is cut around the edge to look like fringe, and is finished with a suede band around crown.

For the young girl, she would wear one of the little Dutch bonnets either in felt or in tweed to match the coat.

As for dresses, the printed wool challis are tops for the young juniors. It's a perfect fabric background for the softer, prettier fashions of the new season. A pretty dress that the juniors love has a full skirt, and a deep moulded midriff. Another, a dress maker suit, with pretty pockets and smart button trim. Many of the new spring styles are showing a square cut neckline rather high and collarless. Color plays a big part in the new season's styles, bright prints, jerseys and as always the lovely pastels. Hats, gloves and purse should match to be right up to the minute in the spring picture.

Contrast is another new spring feature in dresses. A suave dress with that ladylike blouse and skirt fashion is so fond of. A gay printed top, all ruffled and bowed, made in rayon crepe, worn with print like the blouse as a pocket trimming. With this wear a small demi hat made of folded rayon, and a mantilla snood to give it glamor. This is a perfect style of hat to wear with the new long hair do.

The half hat, made entirely of flowers, with a very fine veil in two long loops at the back. This hat is either worn back of the pompadour or the hair is parted on one side, and the hat worn directly over the part, and well forward on the head. If the hat is worn forward, you will wear a face veil with it.

Sugar Rationing In Canada Must Continue Women Told

"Women have been given a great deal of credit for helping keep prices down," said Mrs. C. W. Laing, "and they are asked to keep up their work." Mrs. Laing presided at the regular meeting of the Consumer Branch, Wartime Prices and Trades Board, and showed the group a graph of the rise in prices during the last war, as compared with the rise during the present war. The graph showed very clearly the success of the price ceiling.

A summary of a panel on the average use of the D coupon was also read by Mrs. Laing. This panel was prepared to give authorities an idea of the approximate local demand for jams and marmalades. She said that the panel had been prepared from forms sent out to various localities, which housewives were asked to fill out and return to headquarters. Several questionnaires have also been sent to various members of the local Board, and they will be asked to fill them out and send them to headquarters, in order to make up another panel on the use of various coupons.

Canning Sugar

According to latest information, the first canning sugar coupon will become valid May 25, and all the rest will be valid July 6. Mrs. Laing explained the reason for the sugar shortage, and said that the rumors circulating that there was plenty of sugar were untrue. "Canada does not produce enough sugar for her own consumption," she said, "and therefore must get an allocation from the world pool of sugar, which was organized by England and the United States. Each country is given a fair share of this pool. Rationing in Canada keeps the demand below the supply, so that everyone is assured a supply of sugar for immediate needs.

"Rationing of sugar will have to continue," she went on. The West Indies are now the only major source of sugar we have, since the Japanese have taken over the other sugar-producing areas. In addition, as each country is liberated, it will need a share of the world pool, so that the allocation will grow smaller. The carry-over in the pool was only one million pounds this year, and compared to three million previously. This sounds like a very large amount, but the demands are ever growing."

The announcement was also made that the problem of getting maple syrup had been solved by giving each coupon a value of 40 ounces. Gallon containers will be available to producers this year, and four coupons, with their new value, will be sufficient to buy one gallon.

Mrs. H. H. Graham, district chairman, reported on the Central Ontario Regional Conference, held last week. District chairmen and officers were present at this meeting, which, she said, took the form of a discussion.

The travelling wardrobe was mentioned, and Mrs. Graham said that she thought that a visit to this city might be arranged.

Home and School

PRINCE OF WALES SCHOOL

A candle-lighting ceremony concluded the regular meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association, which observed Founder's Night in memory of Mrs. Ada Courtice. Mrs. J. Stuart conducted the ceremony, and Mrs. G. White lit the first candle, in honor of Mrs. Courtice. Mrs. L. Killingbeck lit the candle for health; Mrs. C. Godfrey for home life; Mrs. A. Harris for knowledge and learning; Mrs. V. Zufelt for citizenship; Mrs. C. Gardner, for vocational guidance; Mrs. G. Webb for well-spent leisure; and Mrs. R. Pierson for spiritual vision and character.

Guest speaker at this special meeting was Mrs. E. Chambers, president of the Home and School Council, who gave a history of the Home and School, and also a short sketch on the life of Mrs. Courtice.

A short program was presented. Miss M. Baird's class recited "Peterkin Spray" and Mavis Alexander played several piano solos. It was announced that the next meeting, to be held March 27, would be father's night.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, March 1

An eventful day, in which there may be surprise and commotion due to a suddenly presented opportunity to develop large, ambitious and enduring projects, possibly reaching into the distant future. This may involve change of plans and surroundings; but major contacts and affiliations should be decisively embraced, although with finesse and tact in dealing with certain types of influence and power. Innovations, ingenuity, and constructive ability should bring splendid results if based on sound and enduring values. Finances and popularity should gain, stability and intimate personal relations give joy and promise, with probable celebrations.

Those whose birthday it is may find a sudden opening to put their future status, powers, possessions and personal happiness and security upon a firm and lasting foundation. Change and travel, adventure and romance may be encountered along the way, with fresh and important contacts and associations that spell enhanced prestige, increased possessions and enduring rewards for good work well done, originality and progressive ideas. But use discrimination in approaching some in authority and influence who may not be easily convinced. There may be pleasant culminations or celebration of happy occasions or good fortune.

A child born on this day will be well equipped in ideas, originality, practical and constructive ability for a successful and happy life, although encountering some antagonisms from high places.

Declining Proposal Cost Englishman Silk Dress

Leap Year has always been regarded as the answer to a maiden's prayer, since it gives her a chance to "pop the question" to a gentleman of her choice. In olden days, laws were passed which made it easier on the gentleman so honored to acquiesce, rather than fight the wrath of a woman scorned and also of the law, but that wise-foresight of the lawmakers of olden times seems to be sadly lacking today.

In the year 1288, a law was passed in Scotland, saying that during the year known as Leap Year, ladies of both high and low estate had the liberty to propose to the men they liked, and if a man refused to take his suitor as his lawful wife, he would be fined the sum of one pound, or less, as his estate might be. However, if he could prove that he was betrothed to another woman, he should then go free.

Before the pride and ego of all womankind is deflated completely, because such a paltry sum was set as the price of freedom, it must be remembered that a pound had a great deal more purchasing power in those days, and that a fine of a pound was really quite a blow to the pocketbook. It must also be remembered that this law was passed in Scotland.

A few years after this Scotch edict, a similar law was passed in France, and received the approval of the King. It is also said that before Christopher Columbus left on his voyage of discovery, the maidens of Genoa and Florence were also given the privilege of proposing during Leap Year. However, there is no record of any fines imposed under the Scottish law, nor of the number of spinsters who availed themselves of the privilege in France.

It was also part of the unwritten English law, that during Leap Year, ladies had the sole privilege of making love, and that no man would be entitled to benefit of clergy, who slighted or in any way made light of her proposal. Up to a century ago, it was also an unwritten law that if a man declined a proposal, he had to soften the blow by presenting a silk dress to the unsuccessful suitor.

History has provided a great many examples of the rule about Leap Year proposals, but it is necessary to go into the realm of story and myth to find the origin of the custom. No less a person than St. Patrick is supposed to have given the ladies the privilege of proposing, and also imposed the fine of a silk gown on the hard-hearted wretch who dared to refuse a plea.

So ladies, although old laws do not force a man to accept a proposal, faint heart never won fair gentleman, and it's worth a try, with the shortage of manpower becoming acute. Men are generally flattered by attention, and, if handled the right way, might be surprised into acceptance. Therefore, "good hunting," and may the best man, beg pardon, woman, win.

East City Boys Shutout King Edward

King George school team which went through the regular schedule in the Public School League undefeated, got off to a flying start in the League playoffs Monday evening when it defeated the second-place King Edward team 2 goals to 0 in the first game of the best-of-three final series.

It was the best-played and most exciting school battle of the season and a big crowd gathered at the C.G.E. rink to cheer for their favorites. King Edward gave the undefeated leaders a real argument for the honors and until the winners got their second goal late in the last period it was anybody's game King George had the edge in territorial play but were closely checked and Byers in the King Edward nets held them out in great style.

There was no score in the first period. Miller the King George right-winger, who put up a fine game throughout, finally started the scoring in the second session when he slipped the rubber past Byers to make it 1 to 0 at the close of the second stanza.

Stock made it 2 to 0 late in the final period when the King Edward team was taking all kinds of chances trying to get the goal that would have tied up the game.

The contest was fast and clean. Referee Billy King having to hand out only one penalty.

Riches on defence and Byers in the nets were outstanding for King Edward while Miller and Stock were the pick of a clever King George team.

King George—Goal, Beavis; defence, Swanston, Van Allen; centre, Stock; wings, Miller, Anderson; alternates, Thompson, Ferguson, Crowder.

King Edward—Goal, Byers; defence, Riches, Murray; centre, Lawson; wings, Eakins, Floyd; alternates, Dolan, Bartley, Robinson, Dibden.

Referee—Bill King.

Other airmen still are sought, the dispatch said, adding it was thought some of them have died from extreme cold and heavy snowstorms.

Frank Tunney is trotting out quite a galaxy of talent for the benefit of Peterborough wrestling fans at the Brock Arena tonight. The main bout, of course, is the big item, bringing together the classy Vic Holbrook, the popular young giant from California and the long-haired block-buster Strangler Bob Wagner who likes to use what he calls a headlock but most other folk thing is the old time stranglehold on his opponents, after he has paved the way for its application by drop-kicking them around the ring until they are properly softened for the kill. Wagner has used such methods successfully all over the map, arousing the ire of fans but incidentally winning a lot of bouts. He will undoubtedly try to take Holbrook by similar tactics but popular opinion says the coast sensation has too much speed and cleverness to fall into the Wagner trap. But it should be quite a tussle. So too should the semi-final with another Pacific Coast wrestling star Frank Sexton showing his mastery of the grappling art against the sturdy Canadian mat artist Jack Wentworth who was seen here early last season. Sexton has made a tremendous hit with Toronto fans by his clean-cut methods. The preliminary brings together a new Irish star, Tom Collins, seen here for the first time and the pestiferous Pole Jan Gotch who has only one style and that a back-alley type of grappling.

The Public School Hockey League authorities moved fast Monday afternoon to take advantage of the quick dip of the thermometer and decided to launch out with the league playoffs without delay so King George, the first place team and King Edward, second-placers were ordered to meet at C.G.E. rink Monday evening in the first game of the best-of-three final series. It was a honey. The warning in this column that the King Edward team should not be taken too lightly was vindicated for the boys from the south-end gave the Ashburnham school representatives the toughest kind of a battle before bowing out 2 to 0. There was no score in the first period, the King George team grabbed off the only goal of the second session and it was not until well on into the final period that the winners made sure of their victory by sinking a second counter. The second game of the series will be played at the C.G.E. rink this evening. If King George team wins and they haven't been beaten this season it will be all over. On the other hand a King Edward victory would tie up the series and force a third game to decide the argument. The biggest crowd of the season saw last night's clash.

Developing The Kids

While the development of young hockey players, with the exception of what is being done by the Public School League is at a very low ebb in Peterborough, Oshawa with plenty of good hockey at which to look is able to report that in the realm of minor hockey important strides have been made during the current season. George Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette tells something of the 'teen age activities in his district in the following paragraph: "Oshawa and Whitby teams are making a splendid showing in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdowns. We "tipped" a Whitby friend of ours the other day that his Whitby lads would go a long way towards winning the Provincial Juvenile "B" championship. Since then they have eliminated Bowmanville and last night they blanked the strong Belleville team, 4-0, in the first game of the series, at Whitby. Oshawa Kinsmen Club bantams eliminated Whitby on Thursday, while Oshawa Dairy Juvenile "A" team upset the highly-touted Sammy Tafts Midgets of Toronto with a 6-2 reverse, 9-6 on the round. Hayden Macdonalds made it a clean sweep Thursday night by winning their playoff game over West Toronto Wings, 2-1. The second game of this O.M.H.A. midget series playoff round will be played here in Oshawa this Thursday while Oshawa Dairy is expected to meet the St. Clair Y Juveniles of Toronto and the first game may be here Thursday."

* * * * * *

Down at Belleville Scribe Ken Colling was not so impressed with the Whitby win over the Belleville juveniles and he intimates that the Whitby rink had a lot to do with the result and that the Ontario County representatives may run into a surprise when they play the return game in Belleville. Here is how he sees it: "Ever since hockey was played throughout Ontario, Whitby has been able to produce some of the best puck chasing clubs, as records can show. For instance last night Bill Dennis hauled the Belleville juveniles into the Ontario County seat for the first game of the second round of the O.J.H.A. playdowns. Some high class goal-keeping saw the Whitby kids emerge winners 4-0, which naturally means Whitby will return here next week enjoying a four goal lead. However, Skipper Dennis is not at all discouraged. "On the small Whitby rink, that is poorly lit, my boys were into the corner before they realized the position they were in. On the larger Hume Arena ice surface we should at least tie the round score next week, if not overcome it," prophesied Skipper Dennis.

A Memorable Game

Old-time hockey fans will be interested in recalling that just 30 years ago last night, the late Frank Heffernan, one of the greatest hockey players this city has produced, was playing one of the finest games of his career on the defence of the T.R. and A.A. team as it battled St. Michael's in the first match of the senior finals at the old Arena Gardens on Mutual street. That was one of the best-played and most exciting senior battles in the history of the O.H.A., with Heffernan's team finally winning 6 to 5 when Gordon Meeking of Barrie who starred on the forward line for T.R. and A.A. coming through with a sensational goal in the last few minutes. Meeking had been responsible for the winners getting an early lead and then finally won for them when he broke away from the Irish forwards, went around Dissette and Murphy the two rearguards, pulled the goalie out of the nets and then calmly poked the rubber in with a one-handed tap that was the acme of coolness. Frank Heffernan blocked with rare effectiveness on the defence for the winners and his speedy dashes down the ice were a constant threat. The game drew a capacity crowd, was one of the heaviest betting fixtures up to that time and the fans were about evenly divided so that the volume of cheering can be imagined.

The longest shots ever to win the Kentucky Derby, it is interesting to recall were Donerail, the winner in 1913 paying $91.45 to $1. Gallahadion in 1940, paying $35.20 to $1 and Exterminator in 1918 which rewarded the lucky plungers with $29.60 to $1. The 69 Kentucky Derbies have developed 24 odds on favorites. Of these, 14 won, 7 ran second, and the other three were out of the money. The shortest priced favorite of all time, was Himyar, held at 1 to 4, in the 1878 Derby. He finished second. The shortest priced favorites to win were Hindoo, (1881), Halma (1895) and Agile, (1905) all being 1 to 3. The shortest priced since pari-mutuels were introduced at Churchill Downs were Bimelech (1940) and Count Fleet (1943). The price against each was 2 to 5. Bimelech finished second; Count Fleet won.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: There are some good junior prospects in the Public School Hockey League this season. Such boys as Jeff Stock and Miller, star forwards of the King George team, Byers, the goalie and Riches, defence player of the King Edward outfit and others who might be mentioned look like real material for future O.H.A. squads. . . . Oshawa juniors got their worst bump of the season last night in the junior playoffs when the St. Catharines Falcons turned them back 8 to 3. . . . It was only the first of a best-of-seven round so don't give up on the Generals yet. . . . Hamilton Majors hadn't much trouble hammering the Toronto Navy 14 to 3 in the last game of the regular senior schedule. the world, the progress it had made in Japan, the work among the lepers in the Dutch East Indies, its efforts among the untouchables in India, its activities in Australia, South Africa and many other countries. Such an organization, he said, would naturally play a part in post-war reconstruction work and in this connection he declared that the Salvation Army had its plans complete now for going into the conquered countries of Europe on the heels of the coming invasion to assist in feeding and taking care of the people of those stricken lands.

Col. Hoggard said that too often the Salvation Army was regarded only as a relief organization. Its real mission was reclamation, not relief, he declared.

The speaker referred to the Red Shield work among Canadian troops and to the part played by the Salvation Army in London and other British cities during the worst of the blitz. As an example of its many services in Canada he said that during last year 800 inquiries had been made in regard to lost persons and the Army had succeeded in coming into contact with some 500 of them.

The secret of the success of Salvation Army activities, he thought, lay in the fact that no one connected with the work of the army was so engaged because of anything he might get out of it himself. "The Salvation Army officer is undoubtedly the poorest paid in his class in any community in which he is living" said the speaker.

Rotarian George H. Roper moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. Rotarian Gordon S. Matthews presided at yesterday's luncheon and the guests included most of the clergymen of the city.

A new member was introduced by Rotarian C. S. Cummer in the person of Firman Tufford, new manager of the Bell Telephone Company here who becomes the baby member of the Peterborough Rotary Club. He was welcomed to Rotary by Rotarian Matthews.

The latter incidentally declared that Col. Hoggard's visit was timely as it coincided with the opening of the Red Cross Community Chest Fund. Half the objective, or $30,000 had already been raised, the chairman said.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Nine "military replacements" involving three Junior "A" clubs of the O.H.A. engaged in the current playoffs were announced last night by Secretary W. A. Hewitt in an Association bulletin. Under the special wartime arrangement, Oshawa Generals have been reinforced by the arrival of James Oulham of Moose Jaw, who replaces Robert W. Hicks. Three players of Port Colborne Recreationists, eliminated from the playoffs, are transferred to Brantford Lions, the replacements being Vernon Kaiser for Earl Braithwaite; Leo Gravelle for Robin Hewson, and Lawrence Piper for R. J. Lovell.

Five players, three from Stratford Kroehlers and two from Toronto Young Rangers, become members of the Hamilton Whizzers under the replacement plan. The Stratford trio of Jack Jackson, Emio Sclisizzi and Thomas Tindal take the place of Harry Whitworth, Andy Brown and Mirzo Narducci. In the transfer from Young Rangers, Frank Rutledge becomes a Whizzer in place of A. W. Laidlaw and Albert Dewsbury for Sam Lazich.

Alfred Thurier of the Buffalo Bisons jumped from ninth to fifth place in the American Hockey League individual scoring race to register 55 points for his total to the close of last week. Three Cleveland Barons still led the drive, with Ted Burlington in first place with 70 points; Cunningham second with 64 and Trudel holding third with 62.

The American baseball league will open its 154-game scheduled season April 18 with Cleveland at Chicago; New York at Boston; St. Louis at Detroit and Philadelphia at Washington. A record number of 105 night games are listed, compared with 77 last season.

Manager Frankie Frisch yesterday announced a re-arrangement of the Pittsburgh Pirates' line-up to improve the team's playing punch. Third baseman Bob Elliott, who batted .315 last year, will be moved to right field; Jim Russell will replace Vince DiMaggio and Frank Colman, London, Ont., boy up from Toronto, will go to left field.

The combined Arlington-Washington Park race meeting at Chicago June 19 to Sept. 7 will offer $490,000 added money for 24 stakes during the 70 days, it was announced yesterday. Five $50 000 events are: Stars and Stripes Handicap, July 4; Arlington Classic, July 22; Arlington Handicap, July 29; American Derby, August 26, and Washington Park Handicap, Sept. 4.

Law As Basis

In the evolution of an ordered social life out of the chaos of savagery, the effective instrument of progress has been the law, His Lordship said. But, there are limits to the beneficial operation of law, "for we have seen in some countries and some places, attempts to tyrranize by law over the private life of the citizen, even over his thoughts and beliefs, with a revival of all the evils of persecution which such attempts engendered in the past."

"The Rule of Law"

"To know what we can lawfully do, and what we cannot lawfully do; to be subject only to laws constitutionally enacted and enforced; to be certain that infractions of the laws will be justly and impartially investigated and dealt with; to show respect for the rights of others; to observe good faith in the performance of our contracts; to possess the assurance of security in the enjoyment of our lives and property,—these are the things which are denoted by 'the rule of law'.

"History shows by what slow and painful processes this happy state was attained by our forefathers here and in the Old Land. It was only after centuries of contest that we achieved the supremacy of law over all alike, from the Sovereign to the humblest of his people. It is our duty and our privilege to maintain this priceless inheritance, and to hand it on undiminished, to our successors."

Enforcement of Law

His Lordship also discussed the element of force as the ultimate sanction of law in the State and also among nations.

"A judgment that cannot be enforced is a mere pious sentiment, and law without the power of compelling obedience is not law at all." And in the universal aspect: "If war is to be eliminated from the society of individuals, then it is essential that there be not only a code of international conduct, but also that there shall be a means of enforcing it. That is the great problem of the future of civilization, and the ultimate aspiration of law,—to bring about among the nations the collective security, which within the confines of each nation, has been achieved among individuals."

Vigilance of Citizens

Because law is enforced, it behooves the people to be vigilant in seeing the laws are just. "Force may be and has been in the past employed for the enforcement of what is unjust as well as what is just. The most hideous of social menaces in injustice enthroned in power. Hence the importance to the citizen of the methods by which the law which governs his daily life is created and administered."

All reform of the law, His Lordship stated, is brought about by the aggregate effect of the wishes of the people expressed through the exercise of the franchise. So the citizen has a duty to think about the law and to form his own opinion of it. . . The aim of the law must be the attainment of justice, and with it is linked liberty. "for the greatest injustice in the world is the deprivation of liberty."

"Freedom to think and to believe and to say what we deem right subject only to the recognition of that same freedom on the part of others, that is the charter of liberty which our ancestors won for us, not without blood and tears. . . . There can be no peace where there is not justice; no welfare where there is not liberty."

Grand Jury A Committee

Mr. Justice Hope concluded his address wtih an exposition of the functions of the Grand Jury as an independent committee of citizens participating as a unit of the law courts.

"There seems to be a tendency to forget the part played by the Grand Jury, and to regard with a certain hostility the Courts in which that law is administered, as if they were in some sense an institution imposed upon a subservient public by some autocratic power, rather than to know them for what they really are, —the machinery set up by the public through its delegates, Parliament and the Legislature, for the performance of a special part of the public duty.

There should be to the greatest extent that is practicable, public participation in the work of the Courts, and especially in the work of those Courts administering criminal law. It is desirable that the public should know how the work of the Courts is being done."

Gardeners Urged

was not an easy one, he stated, adding that what machinery was manufactured had been reserved for the use of the largest growing areas. For these reasons any increases in quantities of produce gardened in Canada would largely be a matter of the initiative and perseverance of Victory gardeners.

"No person should think of his endeavor with a small plot as being so minute as to be scarcely worthwhile," Mr. Rush said. "That should not dishearten him in the least. It is the contribution in the aggregate that counts, and if the individual's output be multiplied by a million, there is something certainly of considerable value."

"I think Victory workers have made a fine contribution to the national food supply," Mr. Rush declared, but at the same time he raised a note of caution regarding what he said were unduly optimistic reports carried by the press to the effect that amateurs were now producing at a greater rate than the commercial growers. This was positively not so, he went on, in explanation, saying that the experience of 30,000 commercial men in the province belied such reports altogether.

Stick at Job

He urged Victory gardeners not to jump to conclusions the minute they saw prices decline, taking that as a sign that the market was beginning to be flooded and their patriotic efforts were no longer required. "In view of our committments abroad and the utter improbability that Europe can be supplied with more than its basic needs, I would urge you that it is better to have more than enough on hand rather than not enough." In this connection he added that coming months were likely to witness a gradual depletion in the stock of canned goods on grocers' shelves, and that huge quantities of foods were being set aside to be dehydrated.

Mr. Rush proceeded to lay down a few basic principles in regard to garden work, problems of insects and the prevention of disease, and then the meeting became an open discussion forum where questions were asked and specifically answered by the speaker. Important among the problems broached was that of quality and quantity of fertilizer; and here Mr. Rush emphasized that there was no substitute for organic matter with which to enrich the soil. "Soil must have humus to retain its fertility," he said; "commercial fertilizers are good just to the extent that they serve as plant stimulants." He added that sondy soil required a larger proportion of fertilizer than clayey soil, and that in many instances transportation problems were proving a difficulty in getting the fertilizer to the fields.

The meeting, held in the Agricultural Room, was very largely attended and so much bigger was the crowd than originally expected that the organizers were hard put to it to find places for everyone. This was a point of favorable comment by Mayor James Hamilton, who paid tribute in a short address to the Peterborough Horticultural Society, sponsors of the rally. He said that Peterborough's reputation as a beautiful city was in no small measure due to the efforts of its members; and that the work of the municipal government in such matters as keeping the streets clean would count for little were it not for hometowners striving to beautify their own city lots.

Bivins Appears Tonight In Final Fight

CLEVELAND, Feb. 29 —(AP) — Army-bound Jimmy Bivins makes his farewell appearance as a civilian leather pusher in a return 10-rounder with Lee Q. Murray at the Arena to-night and the boss man of the active heavyweights intends to give a sell-out assemblage of 14,000 something to remember him by.

The Cleveland negro's main concern is to regain the prestige he lost in his first encounter with Murray. Bivins won the decision but Murray received the applause of a capacity throng for subjecting Jimmy to the roughest treatment of his 14-bout winning streak.

The gangling easterner came close to a technical knockout triumph when a right uppercut opened a deep gash above Bivin's left eye in the sixth round. The flow of blood from the wound virtually blinded the Clevelander in the ensuing rounds but Murray had broken his right hand and was unable to apply the finishing touches.

Lee Q. explains his right hand hurt him so much he forgot to use his left.

"But I'll not pass up an opportunity like that again" he promises. "I know now what Bivins can do at his best. I can beat him."

Falcons Upset Oshawa In Junior Tilt

By The Canadian Press

The playoffs of the Ontario Hockey Association to settle the Junior "A" championship started off last night with one real upset in three clashes with St. Catharines Falcons handing an 8-3 surprise package to Oshawa Generals at St. Catharines. In the two other engagements St. Michael's College showed strength in defeating Kists at Galt 6-3 while Brantford Lions delivered a 5-1 reverse to Hamilton Whizzers at Brantford.

With five hands figuring in the scoring, Falcons were impressive in their turnback of Generals who had been setting a hot pace all season. The first period wound up in a 3-all deadlock but the Junior Saints forged to the front after that, doing all the scoring in the other two frames. Frank Delmonte, Pete Long and Phillips were responsible for double scores while Steve Warecki and Frank Long added one each. For Oshawa, goals were netted by Bill Barker, Ken Smith and Bill Ezinicki.

Hamilton Whizzers held Lions 1-1 in the first period but the Brantforders scored four more in the subsequent 40 minutes. Leo Gravelle, the Quebec puckchaser picked up from Port Colborne as a military replacement, was the scoring star for Lions with two counters, Vern Kaiser, another added player, Powell and McGuire dividing the other three tallies. Comfort was the sole goal-getter for Whizzers.

St. Mike's Win

St. Mike's kept Kists at a distance all through the contest at Galt, leading 2-1 and 3-1 at the close of the first and second periods.

Johnny McCormack of the students was the only player to notch a pair of goals, other scorers for the Toronto team being Bob Schnurr, Frank Dunlap, Joe Sadler and Frank Melong. Galt's three were registered by Nellie Podolsky, Johnnie Curik and Kazarian.

The final scheduled game of the Senior O.H.A. season was staged at Hamilton where Majors trounced Toronto Navy 14-3. Doug Runions emerged the hero with four counters while Clarence Shillington, Robertson and Dillon Brady secured two each. The scoring parade included one apiece for Miocinovich, Turner, Davey and Johnny Conick. Navy's three went to Livingstone, Thompson and Cameron. Hamilton now goes to St. Catharines Thursday night for the first of the senior playoffs.

Boston Slumps On Last Lap

By The Canadian Press

The progressive decline of Boston Bruins as a National Hockey League power stands out sharply today in a survey of their record this season against Toronto Maple Leafs.

Grouped among principal contenders before the season started, Bruins justified that rating early by defeating Leafs in their first three meetings. They were rolling smoothly when military calls and injuries to key players left them one of the weaker clubs in the league, on paper and on performance.

Leafs capitalized, taking their next four games against Bruins by decisive scores to accumulate a total of 46 goals compared with 32 for Boston. The clubs meet for the eighth time this season in Boston tonight with Leafs strongly favored to move in undisputed possession of thrid place two points ahead of Chicago Black Hawks.

The Toronto club is six points ahead of Bruins, but a playoff berth is not yet certain. They have only seven games to play compared with nine for Bruins and Chicago.

The Toronto-Boston clash is the only N.H.L. game tonight.

Believes Hitler Should Be Tried For Misdeeds

Treatment of Hitler as a common criminal and his trial by regular process of democratic law if he is captured after the war are advocated by Doris Found, R. R. No. 1, Little Britain, in an essay that has been awarded first prize in the competition among school children sponsored by the Food Merchants' February War Savings Stamp drive in Lindsay.

In her essay Doris does not neglect the possibility that Hitler may die by his own hand when the Allies reach the heart of Germany, but should he surrender to the conquerors she believes he should be given a "fair trial and tried as any other criminal would be." The same treatment ought to be meted out to his colleagues, in her opinion, and all of them sentenced to death in an international court; "and we, as civilized people, should put them to death," she says. The prize-winning essay, entitled "Hitler's Future After the War" follows:

"The problem of Hitler's destony is to be settled by the intervention of many different facts. In this, I mean that the path that the war takes will have much to do with it. When the Allies succeed in reaching the heart of Germany, Hitler may exterminate himself by his own hand or he may surrender to the Allies.

"If Hitler is captured, he ought to be given a fair trial and tried as any other criminal would be. The events in the last five years are the prophesies of the Bible being fulfilled. Hitler had to come to power in Germany in order to carry out the prophesy of persecuting the Jews and scattering them to the four corners of the earth.

"On the other hand, Prime Minister Winston Churchill came to the leadership of the opposite side to conquer and defeat Hitler. Therefore, I think that Hitler and his colleagues should be tried and sentenced in an international court; and we, as civilized people, should put them to death, either by hanging or execution."

Flare-up Helps Clear Washington Air

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (CP)—An end to the sniping, hit-and-run warfare between the White House and the Capitol was seen today as one possible good that might come from last week's Congressional revolt against President Roosevelt.

There was a hope among some Democrats that the open quarrel would bring a new understanding between Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic groups in Congress and unite them in a fourth-term attempt in this year's Presidential elections.

One veteran Democratic representative, whose opinions are often sought but never quoted directly, foresaw the possibility that Senator Alben Barkley (Dem.-Ky.), who led last week's revolt, would be a candidate for vice-president and Mr. Roosevelt's running mate in the campaign.

Today Barkley is undisputed leader of the Democratic majority in the Senate and, in an exchange of letters with the President, has pledged his continued fidelity to Mr. Roosevelt, warning only that there must be no lack of confidence or respect between the Legislative and Administrative wings of government.

It is not uncommon for Presidents to be at variance with Congress in the United States but it is unlikely that the split was ever so wide as the gulf that yawned between them last week.

Seldom has Congress acted so quickly and so unitedly on any issue as on the Tax Bill veto.

Unless the breach is healed quickly the United States will be ruled for almost another year by a President who is scarcely on speaking terms with the elected representatives of the people.

However, there was a feeling apparent that all concerned, now that pent-up feelings have been relieved in a public outburst, will decide that the big issue is to win the war and make America safe for peace.

That cannot be accomplished if there is a continuing fight between the Legislative and Administrative wings of government.

Mr. Roosevelt remains the Democrats' best or only hope for success in the forthcoming elections. If he decides to run he will pick his running mate—the candidate for vice-president.

looking for something to aid in his escape."

The charges against the blond, slightly-built sergeant paratrooper was laid after Brosig's third escape from a Monteith, Ont., camp December 21, 1943, giving rise to what authorities regarded as a test case of the extent war prisoners are subject to civil law. Brosig made his first escape in June, 1942, and was recaptured in New York State. After his second bid for freedom, in August, 1943, he was recaptured in Ottawa.

Taking his stand in his Air Force uniform, Brosig described how he hid 10 hours in the mail bag "dirty and damp with sweat. He said he opened the bag from which he took the articles to find something to eat or drink."

Called Act of War

Asked why he repeatedly sought to escape confinement, he replied:—

"We are given general instructions before a battle that it is our duty to try to escape if possible. Anything that might further my escape I can take—but nothing with which I could get rich."

There were, he said, other things that might have been taken—cigaret lighters, fountain pens, cigaret cases and various Christmas gifts.

"Anything the accused did in connection with his escape was done as an act of war," said Defense Counsel G. A. Martin of Toronto.

"How would you feel if a Canadian boy in Germany tried to escape a prison camp and in so doing committed some theft in order to facilitate his escape?"

Prosecuting Attorney W. M. Flannery contended "one would have to stretch one's imagination a good deal" to believe Brosig needed the cigarets to help effect his escape.

McGeer Resumes

Government motion to resolve the House into committee of supply, which gives members a chance to bring up any question. On it M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said there was an "insidious campaign to the effect that in the event of a change of Government Victory Bond obligations would not be met.

Several Liberals in reply blamed the impression on the policies of the C. C. F. and said the best guarantee of bonds being repaid was to return a Liberal Government.

Mr. McGeer said he was not opposed to a floor under bond prices, but was concerned at growth of the public debt and the interest burden created under what he considered the defects of the present banking system.

He said he had felt for some time that advocates of monetary reform should not press their views too strongly until the job of winning the war was over. But the 1943 report of the Bank of Canada had raised important issues. It had disclosed that the interest charge on the debt had risen to $304,000,000 a year. No one could say where it would end.

The Government had nationalized the ownership of the Bank of Canada. It should go farther and nationalize its policy to make the bank an institution to serve the public and not just a "filling station for the chartered banks."

During the war, said Mr. McGeer the Bank of Canada had fed into chartered banks $82,000,000 in new notes. On this the chartered banks had built up an additional increase in deposits of $748,000,000 with which they bought interest-bearing Government Bonds.

Change Imperative.

"This is the fundamental basis of our whole banking system which must be changed before government . . . . can move along the fields of solvency and away from the bankruptcy that this false debt claim system will impose on us."

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said he regarded the C.C.F. move on the matter of bond values as "propaganda." The best guarantee of the value of Canadian bonds was the maintenance of a high volume of employment after the war, he contended.

"My friends to the left (the C.C.F.) are taking their usual defeatist attitude with respect to the whole problem which faces us after the war is over," Mr. Graydon said. "They talk about rationing scarcity and guaranteeing minimums; but our job is to see that maximums are provided for the people of Canada."

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, Arthur Slaght (L.-Parry Sound) and Thomas Reid (L.-New Westminster) said the C.C.F. itself was responsible for any belief bonds would not be good under a C.C.F. government. Mr. Gardiner cited a 1933 pamphlet issued under C. C. F. auspices which said bonds would be called in and discounted. Mr. Slaght blamed Mr. Coldwell's recent speech in the United States and Mr. Reid blamed the C.C.F. program of nationalization.

Douglas Abbott, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley, said bonds were sold for a term of years at a given interest rate. If the price were guaranteed there would be no difference in the interest rate on long-and-short-term money.

they had succeeded in getting through the Allied lines, a 5th Army spokesman said. Several sharp patrol clashes were reported along the lower Carigliano River.

Canadian patrols pressed toward Tollo, about eight miles inland from Ortona on the British 8th Army front, and British forces occupied a ridge three miles southeast of Guardiagrele. Polish troops routed a German patrol near Castel di Sangro and Indian mortars shot up enemy outposts near Orsogna.

Rome Dive-Bombed

Enemy aircraft failed to appear yesterday over the beachhead area, but despite bad weather American dive-bombers attacked the outskirts of Rome for the second day, hitting air fields at Littorio, Marcigliano and Guidonia. Twelfth air force medium bombers also attacked the Canino field northwest of the capital. Other aircraft twice attacked German guns north of the beachhead.

Close to the Canadian corps front, medium bombers attacked German positions near Chietti, about 12 miles west of Ortona, Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported. A later report said a railroad station and freight cars there were damaged.

Spitfires and Kitty Hawks sank two 100-foot merchant ships at Ancona, on Italy's Adriatic coast, and set off an explosion and a large fire on the docks. Others ranging along the Yugoslav coast set two schooners afire south of Split, and hit a 200-foot ship at Dubrovnik.

Coastal air force Spitfires shot up five troop trains in the Metkovic area south of Split, causing heavy casualties among the enemy troops, and destroyed or damaged four locomotives. They also hit a large freighter on the Yugoslav coast.

Kitty Hawks, Thunderbolts and Baltimores, on sweeps against enemy motor and rail transport, destroyed two locomotives near Terni, north of Rome.

Multiple Births

PITTBURGH, Feb. 29 (AP) — James Healy, already the father of two sets of twins, could only gasp yesterday when the nurse who found him pacing the waiting room at St. Joseph's Hospital told him his wife, Rose Marie, had just given birth to triplets, two girls and a boy.

The girls weighed four pounds, one ounce, and five pounds, nine ounces, and the boy six pounds, one ounce All apparently are in good health, attendants said.

Rocket Coast Battered Anew

LONDON, Feb. 29.—(CP).—Allied medium bombers and fighters struck at the northern French "rocket" coast in relays from dawn to noon to-day, following up a heavy attack by United States heavy bombers against the same area yesterday.

American heavies and R.A.F. and U.S. medium bombers hurled down a heavy bomb barrage yesterday, and six of the four-engined planes were lost.

It marked the 16th operation of the month for the heavy bombers, six more than in any previous month.

Progressive Conservative government. The Liberals already have intimated their intention of supporting any measures they consider in the best interests of the province.

The question of liquor rationing in Ontario was laid before the House yesterday when the Premier tabled an exchange of letters with Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Premier Drew wrote Mr. King that the Ontario Liquor Control Board holds large reserves of spirits and could obtain more wine and beer "without limiting any phase of the Canadian war effort."

"We are therefore unable to assure the people of Ontario that the limitations imposed by the Dominion Government are called for by any circumstance connected with the prosecution of the war."

He also drew attention to the fact that the liquor ration in Quebec is 80 ounces monthly against 26 ounces in Ontario. A basis of understanding should be reached at once so the Government would know "what agreements are binding and what are not." The liquor question was one of the pressing matters which should be taken up at the proposed Dominion-Provincial conference.

The Premier concluded the letter with a request for "the constitutional grounds upon which the Dominion Government imposed these restrictions which are contrary to the definite statement contained in Mr. Ilsley's letter of January 31.

Mr. Drew told the Legislature that Finance Minister Ilsley had written that it was not the intention of the Dominion to enter the field of regulation of the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Replying to Mr. Drew's letter, Prime Minister King said that Mr. Ilsley had referred to financial arrangements between the Dominion and the Province as regards to liquor.

In the matter of rationing, the Dominion had only curtailed the supply of alcoholic beverage released to the provinces and had made no attempt to interfere with their retail sale and distribution beyond making an appeal for a limitation in the hours of sale. Each province had made its own arrangements for distribution, the Prime Minister said in his letter.

Mr. King also stressed that the curtailment was enacted under authority of the War Measures Act. It was deemed expedient so that manpower and material resources might be released for the armed forces, war industry and essential civilian activity, and in the opinion of the Federal Government, there was no fundamental change in the circumstances which caused the government to enforce the alcoholic beverages curtailment order.

At another stage of yesterday's sitting, Premier Drew introduced an act respecting the setting up of a department of planning and development which he previously explained to the House. The department will act to co-ordinate the efforts of various planning groups now working on post-war programs. No minister for the post has yet been named.

WOULD HAVE BEEN 100 TODAY

Max Peters recalled this morning February 29 that if his father, A. Peters, who for years operated a grocery store at the corner of Townsend and Aylmer streets, had lived he would have been 100 years old but it would have only been his 25th birthday. However Mr. Peters died at 73 after only celebrating 18 birthdays.

WORK ON ESTIMATES

The Finance Committee of the City Council is holding three meetings this week, two of which are for the purpose of arriving at the estimates. Alderman Cotton and the Mayor have expressed the hope that they may be prepared and ready for the Council to pass and strike the tax rate at their regular meeting next week or at a special Council meeting soon after. The rate in 1943 was not struck until March 17.

EVERYTHING HELPS

Every little bit helps to swell the Red Cross and Community Fund coffers. This morning, a woman who had been studying the thermometer listing the results of the penny drive in the school, aproached Clare Collins and asked if she could donate 25 cents for that purpose. "My brother has three boys and three girls all serving in the forces overseas, and I thought I'd like to do something even if it's not very much," she said.

C.D.S. Captures Hamilton Trophy

The Canadian Department Stores Store display window arranged for the Red Cross and Community Fund drive by Roy Wilson, display manager of the store, has been awarded first prize in the window competition for the Mayor's Cup. In a close competition the C.D.S. window was chosen as outstanding among those in the city by the judges of the competition, who were Miss Mamie Langley MacCarthy, Miss A. Thompson and Mrs. R. F. Knott. The feature of the prize-winning display was a Canadian soldier in a German interment camp with a Red Cross prisoner-of-war parcel beside him.

Second prize went to Ed Riley and third to Richard Hall Limited, whose displays were judged to be very effective. It was noted by Miss MacCarthy, in charge of the judging, that many stores did not feature the various organizations which are included in the Community Drive, but had only one or two of the services in their displays.

Jail Is Visited By Grand Jury

Five minutes sufficed this morning for the appearance and discharge of the Grand Jury, after bringing in a true bill of murder against Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert, accused of having shot her husband, John Edward Hubert, November 20, 1943, at their side-line farm home near Nassau in Douro.

Mr. Justice Hope thanked the jury for their expeditious work, and noted that they had not found it necessary to visit other public institutions in the county, but the jail and court house premises "are in excellent condition."

There are 20 inmates at the jail, one a woman.

"It is all the more gratifying to find things satisfactory," His Lordship said, and the jury's assignment was concluded.

Members of the grand jury are: Thos. C. Ephgrave foreman; Harry Baker, Norwood; Albert Boorne, 205-B Sherbrooke street; Sidney J. Black, 408 Water street; Walter Blackwell, 200 O'Carroll avenue; Norman E. Crowe, 179 Park street; Thomas F. Doughty, Monaghan Road; Chris G. Graham, 595 Gilmour street; A. Blood Plasma Saved Life Of Frank Peters

Wounded by machine bullets and a German mortar bomb as a Canadian reconnaissance patrol was surprised at the outskirts of Grammichele in Sicily six days after the Canadians landed, Signaller Frank Peters, 24, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is home from overseas after many months in hospital in England.

"I guess we were a bit too cocky," said the young soldier this morning. 'We had not had any serious opposition since we landed—just a bit of skirmishing. That day we were on reconnaissance with a number of Bren gun carriers out in front of the battalion and were travelling along the road leading to Grammichele. Just as we got near that town, which we thought had been abandoned by the Germans, we suddenly came under heavy machine-gun fire. I was in the leading carrier and as I was a signaller it was up to me to get a message back to the unit.

"I had just finished doing so when I got a machine-gun bullet through the arm. The fire was heavy and I realized I had better get off the road and into the ditch as quickly as possible. As I ran for the side of the road I got another machine-gun bullet through the left knee and almost simultaneously a bomb from a German mortar dropped almost on top of me.

"When I came to I was lying in the ditch and I realized that my clothing was on fire. I managed to tear some of my uniform off before I went under again. Jimmy Ireland, of Peterborough, who had been with me in the leading carrier, was lying in the ditch just in front of me and I think he was hit by the same mortar bomb. We lay there for an hour, they told me afterward, with the fire from both sides flying overhead as the battalion came up, and after a tough fight drove the Fritzies out of Grammichele.

"When I recovered consciousness again I was in hospital in Algiers with bullet wounds in the arm and leg, shrapnel wounds and my right side badly burned. This was on July 23, eight days after I had been hit. They told me I had six blood transfusions, and they undoubtedly saved my life. I had been picked up by the regiment, taken to Sousse in an hospital ship and then flown from there to Algiers. Afterwards I was flown to England in an ambulance plane with seven other wounded soldiers, a doctor and nurse, and since then have been in hospital twenty miles from London. It was close enough for us to hear the ack-ack barrage over London when the German bombers were over."

Signaller Peters will have to undergo treatment for some time at the military hospital in Kingston. His arm and leg are still stiff, although he is able to walk with a cane and says he is improving rapidly. He lost a lot of weight after he was wounded, but has put it all back again now.

Signaller Peters, who was on the Armouries guard here for a while at the beginning of the war, enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at Picton in May, 1940, and went overseas later in the same year. His brother, Victor Peters, was in the same unit and was killed in action in Italy, and another brother, Gunner James Peters, has just arrived in Italy. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters, live on Hurley avenue.

Merchants Back Community Fund With Fine Window Displays

A Canadian soldier stands behind bars in one of the windows of the Canadian Department Stores store. He is not a real soldier nor are the prison bars the real thing; he is only a dummy dressed to represent thousands of Canadian lads who live behind the enclosures of a German prison camp today. And beside him as he stands there day and night in the window—at night he is lighted up so passers-by will not forget his presence—are laid the contents of a Red Cross parcel for a prisoner of war. He is a reminder to all in the city to do their part during this week of the Community Fund drive; and he exemplifies what is by now a well-proven fact—attested to by men returned from those very prison camps—that as long as his counterparts in real life receive the Red Cross prisoners-of-war parcels, they have a much better chance of surviving and remaining well.

But his effigy of a Canadian soldier is not the only model in the city advertising and illustrating the need for citizens to contribute to the Red Cross and Community Fund drive. In the same window of the C. D. S. may be seen a dummy dressed to represent a nurse of Victorian Order of Nurses, carrying her medical kit and stepping out to visit some patient at his home, in the same manner as is done daily by the V. O. N. nurses in the city.

Up at Richard Hall's there is a full window display of flags and placards that make appeals for various of the services which are to benefit by the collections of the Fund, the Red Cross, the Navy League, the Canadian Institute for the Blind and so on. Conspicuous in the display are an attractive blonde and brunette—only dummies, though — dressed in nursing uniforms. And again at the Uptown Silk Shoppe there is a nurse model, flanked by a full array of patriotic colours.

Ed Riley's carries a set of stark, realistic pictures showing the use to which the blood that civilians contribute at the local clinic is put, in the course of operations on wounded men in emergency hospital tents not far behind the actual battle lines of modern war. These and other photographs of transfusions may be seen, too, at Grafton's and the Metropolitan Stores. The moving reminder of General Eisenhower on the need for blood plasma remains in many store windows, perhaps as great an appeal as any ever made to the consciences and patriotism of the folks back home.

The placard for the Institute of the Blind, the Navy League poster, the card outlining the objectives of the current drive, these and other reminders stand like sentinels this week in the windows of downtown stores. Among the many merchants carrying a display of one type or another are the following, of necessity not pretending to be an exhaustive list:

Deyell's, Tip Top Tailors, Chesler's, Ed Riley, Agnew-Surpass, Robert Fair, Grafton's, Woolworth's, Metropolitan Stores, Zeller's, Kresge's, Richard Hall, Bank of Nova Scotia, John Buck, locksmith, P. Turner, Fish and Chips, Goodrich Tires, Simcoe Sales, J.Micolucci, Banks Bicycle, A. Fine's Clothing Store, W. Nugent Real Estate, Cecil Lapp, Lansfields, the C. D. S., Comstock's, C. N. R. ticket office, Harold Coleman, the Nuttery, Centre Theatre, M. A. Wesley's, Rexall Drugs, Loftus Ladies' Wear, Dunn's Tailors, Uptown Silk Shoppe, Northam's Bakery, Finnie's Taxi.

Lakefield Agent Hurt At Station

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 29 (ENS) — Walter Yale, 67, C.N.R. station agent here suffered a bad fall on Monday afternoon at 4.30 while pushing the truck from the baggage car to the station. One wheel went over the side of the platform causing the truck to tip and strike Mr. Yale knocking him unconscious. He was removed by ambulance to his home, where Dr. Alex Fraser found him suffering from concussion and generally shaken up. He remained unconscious several hours. Mr. Hale has been agent in Lakefield for about 17 years.

Law As Very Basis Of Civilization A Primary Concern Of Citizens

"Law is as essential to our social well-being as the air around us is to our physical well-being."

Mr. Justice J. A. Hope employed that simple analogy in stressing the importance of public understanding and knowledge of the law and its courts and administration in his address to the Grand Jury at the opening of the spring assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario Monday afternoon.

Although His Lordship was directly speaking to the Grand Jury it seemed that he was using that associate panel of the Court with desire to convey his message of counsel and warning to a larger audience of citizens than those within his immediate hearing.

"The law and its proper administration is of the gravest import to every citizen," Mr. Justice Hope said. "Mention of the 'Law' conjures to the average citizen a confused vision of the Courts mixed with recollections of sensational criminal trials, sordid matrimonial disputes, or police court penalties for what be considered minor infractions of some rule or regulation.

Taught In Schools

"Every citizen should have a general conception of the legal system under which he lives, and, to that end, it should be a part and the aim of our educational system to impart to every child a full and true appreciation of our institution and the general principles of our laws.

"The reason for this is because the law is the very foundation of human society, the very basis on which our civilization is founded. Has it ever occurred to you to inquire how it is that the vast throng of human beings who crowd our cities and populate our countryside manage to live together at all? If you think of them, each individually with ambitions, passions, rivalries and jealousies,—and all in competition, and also of the endless opportunities for conflict which daily life presents, you may well ask yourselves how is that we all go about our several vocations undisturbed, and live our lives in peace and freedom.

"The main reason is that, by the slow growth of law, the warring instincts of mankind have been accommodated and subdued to order.

"We are not conscious of this influence regulating our lives, and we have grown so accustomed to its operation that we no more think of it than we do of the air we breathe; but it is equally true that it is as essential to our social well-being as the air is to our physical well-being."

Brinton Carpet Reach $900 For War Victims

During December of last year the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund received a gift from a former employee on the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd. who is now serving in the active forces, and was at that time stationed Somewhere in Western Canada.

In sending in this contribution he wrote and stated how glad he was to see that his former fellow-employees at this industrial firm were keeping up the good work, the letter and gift being an indication of what he and his former fellow-workers feel in regard to its importance in the war effort.

With a much reduced circle from which to draw for some time now, they still keep the vision of the good they are capable of doing before them, this being amply demonstrated through the 69th contribution, which constitutes a record in number from any one group, being listed to-day.

This particular gift amounts to $16.10, being made up to that amount when it was found that only 45 cents was needed to bring their total to the $900 mark. So that when next they appear on the scene, it will be with a start on the final lap towards reaching the four-figure mark, giving them a per capita average which is an inspiration to others in what is possible through a collective effort.

Sympathy for Londoners.

Last Friday a donation appeared "In Sympathy for Those Stricken in London," and another appearing under the same heading today suggests a follow-up, and might be emulated by many others to whom the sacrifice would be of small account, but in the aggregate do a great deal of good.

One other personal gift is also listed as coming from "J.D." following what must have been nearly a score of similar ones from the same interested helper in the work for good the fund endeavors to carry on.

Concert March 13.

A little over a year ago the choirs of the Salvation Army, Mark Street United Church, and Park Street Baptist Church united to give a concert in aid of the fund, which was quite successful in every respect. Another event with two first named joining with Murray Street Baptist Church choir is now planned to take place in the Salvation Army Citadel on March 13, from which the fund stands to share the proceeds with another worthy cause on behalf of the war effort. Tickets are now on sale for this event, which shows every prospect of being as successful as the former event, and these may be procured from any member of the respective choirs.

Won't Change Paper

OTTAWA, Feb. 29—(CP).—Newsprint lighter than the standard 32-pound newsprint which Canadian factories have been making in recent years may not be manufactured or sold for delivery to North American consumers between now and April 30 next, the Prices Board announced last night. The temporary prohibition was ordered by Guy E. Hoult, newsprint administrator, who said that there "were numerous technical problems involved in any shift in production from 32 pounds to 30-pound paper." He feared that any sudden changes in Canadian production would make serious administrative and production difficulties.

Red Cross And Community Fund Passes $40,000 Mark With Industry Taking The Lead

As in former years, the citizens of Peterborough are rallying generously to the support of a good cause, the Red Cross and Community Fund, recognizing that they are not only helping the men and women in the forces, but themselves as well. $43,422.50 had been turned into Headquarters, a record which it is hoped will be maintained for the remainder of the campaign, it was reported at a dinner at noon.

However, authorities are quick to point out that the picture is not as optimistic as it appear. A large part of the amount turned in came from the industries which have a high quota. Canvassers fully expect that the last few days of the canvass will prove much harder.

Many of the retail canvassers have good sized collections ready from their advance ground work, but have not yet had an opportunity of turning it in. It is the aim of canvassers this year to get the money rolling in even faster than usual and complacency is a word which they are not tolerating.

Final reports for the day are made about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and that of Monday appears as follows:

Retail Division	$1,145.00
Ladies' Division	137.50
Special Names	12,101.00
Industries	22,952.15
	$36,335.65

The men of the Retail Division moved slowly the first day with W. Hamilton making the best showing for the group. He has achieved more than 50 per cent of his objective of $826 by collecting $489.

In the verbal reports given at the dinner, the Women's Division, held the centre of the stage as they stated they had $2,100 of their $3,000 objective. Up till that they were credited with $242. The Retail Division credited with $1,940.50 of their $12,000 objective, said they had about 25 per cent collected or $3,000. The Women's Division reported that they had broken down their total in sections as follows: South, $172; West, $596; Centre, $412; and North, $435.

His Worship Mayor James Hamilton presented the trophies for the window dressing contest to Roy Wilson, of the C. D. S. for having the best window in the contest. He also expressed the thanks of the committee to the canvassers for all their cooperation.

The totals amassed following the dinner, when new reports superceded the official statement at noon were:

Industrial Division	$23,822.50
Retail	3,000.00
Women's Division	2,100.00
Special Names	14,500.00
	$43,422.50

Ross Dobbin acted as chairman throughout the program and Quirt McKinney, was in charge of a sing song for which Stan Northrop played. Reports on the poster contest were given and it was announced the winners would receive their prizes Friday night.

Proposed National Park Scheme Meeting With Stiff Opposition

The suggested National park in the northern part of Peterborough County is running into a lot of opposition from settlers, owners of summer cottages, hunting clubs and lumbering interests, who feel that the proposed park would not be in the general interest.

Among the organizations taking a definite stand in opposing the development are the members of the Ketchecum Hunt Club, who for over 50 years have had a camp property in the proposed area and have hunted there for over half a century.

So strong is the feeling in regard to the matter that the following petition is being circulated among the people who would be affected by the establishment of a National park and it is expected that it will be largely signed:

'We, the undersigned owners, occupants and interested citizens of the county of Peterborough and vicinity, do hereby register our unqualified disapproval of the establishment of a National park in the northern section of the county of Peterborough. Such establishment would result in a tremendous expenditure on the part of public authorities, which would be far from justified, and the loss to the inhabitants of the district and citizens generally of the city and county of Peterborough of the tourist business which has taken many years to establish and the revenues incidental to the lumbering operations in the said area."

Letter To Minister

In addition the following letter has been addressed to Hon. W. G. Thompson, Provincial Minister of Lands and Forests in regard to the matter.

"There has recently been brought to your attention a proposal to establish a National Park in Peterborough County. This proposal would mean the acquirement of probably one-sixth of the entire County of Peterborough and the moving of a very large number of settlers and residents of the district for many years and the acquirements and demolition of large number of summer properties. The proposal came without any notice to the public and particularly to the persons who will be effected by any such arrangement. This is itself is a very serious matter because in addition to the individauls effected there are a number of lumber operators in this district, who have brought along the timber limits to the point of production and the acquirements of these will be a most expensive matter. In addition to this when conditions return to normal it will mean a tremendous loss to the City and County of Peterborough of revenue during the summer months as the area proposed to be used is the area which visitors from the United States almost exclusively come to as well as being the residence of a large number of American cottage owners.

Since the presentation of the proposal to you and the announcement thereof the general public have evinced a great opposition to the matter and a petition against any action whatever being taken in connection with the matter is being circulated and will be presented to you in due course.

Letter From Member.

In connection with the proposed par, Harold R. Scott, member for Proposed National

Peterborough in the Legislature writes as follows:

You will remember that Senator Duffus proposed at the Kinsmen's meeting that Peterborough should ask for a Federal Park as part of our post-war rehabilitation projects. The territory that seems most adaptable for this site would be bounded on the south by the Oregon Trail; on the west by the Buckhorn-Gooderham road, and on the east by the Apsley road, with its northern boundary resting somewhere around the Burnt River. This gives an area of about 250 square miles, which seems to be in line with other Federal parks in size.

As I suggested to Mr. Duffus when he called me up about making an appointment with the Minister of Lands and Forests, this is a matter which should come before the County Council and the Fish and Game Association before any small group of citizens could decide as to the area and location, but Mr. Duffus felt that we should make the appointment at once with the Minister. At the present time the Department is looking into this area to give me information as to the amount of timber lands held under lease, privately owned property and Provincially owned land. When I have this information I will pass it back to the County Clerk and the Fish and Game Association.

I am having quite a few people write me and call upon me regarding this matter and I have suggested that they write letters to the "Examiner" so that we can get the reaction of the public.

Catholic Pupils Sweep Grand Prizes

St. Peter's Separate School and St. Peter's High have walked off with all the grand prizes in the poster contest on the schools in connection with the current Community Fund campaign. Awards of $5 War Savings Certificates for the best of all Public or Separate School posters, both senior and junior divisions, and for the best of all High School posters were made to students of these two schools. Winning in addition to the $5 grand prize another $5 War Savings Certificate for top honors in their own individual classifications, were Teresa Houlihan, St. Peter's High School, Terence Wolff, St. Peter's Senior Class and John Cameron, St. Peter's Junior Class.

So close was the competition for the grand prize between the junior and senior grades divisions that the judges could not decide on a winner, and Reg. Faryon of the Quaker Oats kindly donated an extra $5 grand prize so that both contestants might be declared winners.

Beside the $5 Certificate awarded for first place in each classification, there were awards of $2 in War Stamps for second place and of $1 for third place. These winners were as follows.

St. Peter's High School: 1, Teresa Houlihan; 2, Teresa Garvey; 3, Margaret Rodger. The Collegiate: 1, Leda Rostocky; 2, Ray Allen; 3, Ruth Fisher. Germans Produce Longer Range Gun

ON THE CASSINO FRONT, Italy, Feb. 29 (AP)—The Germans have a new 17-centimetre (6.69 inch) gun mounted on a railway car that outranges any Allied artillery pieces in action here, an Allied officer said today.

This gun has a high muzzle velocity but its shell is not so heavy as those thrown by larger Allied guns, he said, adding that the Allies have superiority over the Germans in artillery on the Cassino front.

The Germans also apparently have developed a new powder that is said to give off practically no flash—an advantage at night when gun flashes reveal location of artillery. The German powder does give off a maximum of smoke, however, and has no more power than ordinary powder.

Aussies Claim Major Part New Guinea Show

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 29 (CP Cable)—Overseas publicity for Australia's war effort has been a matter of some discussion here and one writer charged lack of publicity about Australia's part in the Southwest Pacific was largely "our own fault."

"Obviously the superb job done by our land troops in New Guinea is not getting much recognition outside this country nor is even the increasingly big part of the R.A.A.F. is playing publicized overseas," said an article in the Sydney Daily Telegraph by one of its staff now in the army.

This writer complained against the rule making Australian correspondents treat all officers above the rank of lieutenant anonymously while United States correspondents were able to treat their war leaders as public figures. American correspondents, he added, naturally concentrated on American activities because that is what their papers want.

"There is little doubt that the American public regards the New Guinea land campaign as virtually a United States show, although actually it was almost entirely Australian," he added, urging more vigorous placing of Australian photographs and better editing and distribution of news reels.

A few days ago Australians were able for the first time to see exact figures showing the drop in food exports to Britain. Issued by Commerce Minister William Scully, they showed last year's exports were the lowest since 1938-39. The drop in meat exports was the largest, with 1942-43 exports being only 248,000,000 pounds compared with 488,000,000 in 1939. Butter dropped from 244,000,000 pounds in 1939-40 to 110,000,000 in 1942-43.

It would be correct, however, said the Sydney Morning Herald, to infer that the Commonwealth in that period fell down on the job of replenishing Britain's larder. The German submarine and air campaign against shipping limited tonnage available in the early part of the war and Britain had to obtain food nearer home. Then came the Pacific War with its tremendous demands on Australian manpower and the obligation to feed not only Australian servicemen but increasing numbers from the United States.

Sir Earl Page, a member of the Country Party, said in the House of Representatives that in his large rural constituency in New South Wales aged people were struggling to keep dairy farms going and died at their work because the army did not liberate their sons to help them.

Pay Extra Taxes

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 29 (CP)—The majority of Oxford County's 5,000 farmers will pay an extra one-fifth mill — voluntarily — on their 1945 taxes. A survey shows 75 per cent willing to pay the increased levy, proceeds of which will go to support the federation of agriculture.

F.O. W. C. MORROW.

Word has been received by Mrs. W. C. Morrow, 274 Braidwood Avenue, that her husband, F.O. Morrow, has been promoted to Flying Officer. Formerly employed at J. K. Hughes, he went overseas in July, 1943. Two brothers are also serving overseas, Harold with the R. C. A. F. in Africa and Grant with the Army in Sicily. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. G Morrow, Water Street.

Two recent leaves to Peterborough, England and the New Forest, proved of great interest to P.O. [illegible] Marshall, stationed with the R. C. A. F. overseas.

The highlight of his trip to Peterborough was a visit to the Cathedral with an American and R.A.F. flier. Afterwards an old man, about 98, volunteered to take them around. He had spent about 50 years learning about the cathedral and knew the answer to everything, he writes.

Many of the ancient carvings in series around the walls tell the story. It took 400 years to complete and the building done in each century is marked by carvings depicting in the first century "winter" by the carving of a bare branch; the next century by a bud, signifying spring; third an open flower for summer; and the last century of building, a leaf for autumn.

"What is amazing, is that different builders should build this into their work through 400 years, when they did not respect each other's work and each builder had his own ideas."

Well Looked After.

"I started a week's leave by catching a train to the New Forest where I would find my hostess and the home where I was to stay. I arrived at the village somewhat warily, after a ride in a traditional English compartment, for I didn't know quite what I was stepping into. And so I landed in the arms of a middle aged Englishwoman, who took the situation well in hand.

"I loaded my bag on her bicycle and shoved off. The one thing that really shook me right off was that I was walking into a gossip session and afternoon tea on my arrival. The prospect of balancing a cup of tea on my bony knee was enough, but being the only essence of youth in the place was downright alarming. Later, the Colonel, who is a smart man, suggested taking a walk and so I was introduced to Brockenhurst.

"The first morning I spent by finding Jimmy McClenaghan of the 'Y' who used to teach me gym. He is in charge of 'Y' work for the 3rd Division which includes the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and the Field Park Regiment from around home. My second day was spent helping Mrs. Samuel in the morning in her weekly jobs for the Women's Institute. She sold meat pies to the citizens while I doled them out. I dished out pies for everybody up to duchesses and ladies. Selling these helps the Government to get rid of extra food and helps the people to get a little more, so everyone is happy.

Beautiful Church.

"I cycled to Beaulieu Abbey, where I gazed with awe and reverence at those ancient and beautiful stones and spent a day in the New Forest where I visited an ancient Norman church in a small village. The church has been added to somewhat, but it is still very small. The original floor, arches, and much of the main church is still in use. It was built around 1000 A.D. and its is remarkable to think that religion is still going strong in a home built for it by men who have themselves changed and revolutionized the whole world. It certainly makes you think.

"We went back down to Lyndhurst and then through the scenic way, where the trees grow massive and the great fir trees brought over from Canada, make the place look much like home. We met the forester on this road and I got the "gen, on the big woods.

"For my return to London, Jimmy got me a reservation at an officers club, the Constitutional Club, of which Winston Churchill is president, and a great string of notaries, looking like Who's Who, acting as assistants. At a theatre show, a Brigadier General and his wife, who had been to Canada, talked to me and invited me to their home on my next leave."

The censors are right on the job when it comes to keeping up a soldier's morale. Recently a Peterborough girl wrote to a friend in the forces overseas and described the picture, "Naughty Marietta" which she had seen. One of her comments included the name of the song, "I'm Falling in Love With Someone," and when the boy got the letter the quotation marks were left, but the title deleted and he wrote home asking what terrible thing she had said, to make the censor take such a stand.

Peterborough boys overseas never can receive too many cigarettes, and their grateful thanks comes in a steady stream of members of the Canadian Legion here.

Gnr. Stuart Montgomery wrote that they were a real treat and he appreciated the thoughtfulness of the the people at home. He explained that when he was writing, things were pretty dull, only livening up a bit when the Germans come over.

"The other night they dropped a few eggs. One hit a store in the city and you should have seen the glass. It knocked out all the windows for two blocks around, completely covering the road. They also dropped a bomb on theatre, and it was a good thing it failed to go off because the place was packed. There were a few hurt and some killed, but it is nothing to what they are getting now."

The price and scarcity of English cigarettes, plus the fact that most service personnel prefer Canadian brands, has led many others to write the Legion after they had received their bingo smokes. Some of the men who have written are: Pte. F. Schofield, Pte. Max Doughty, Spr. J. M. Neish, L. Bdr. A. Russell, B. K. Stewart, Drv. Wilfred Saunders, Pte. G. Gainey, L./Cpl. M. Dingman, Edward J. Courneya, AB. Thomas Bradley, Pte. D. S. Chambers, Pte. Andy McDowell, J. Kerr, Stanley James, Bdr. H. M. Dodds, Bdr. R. B. Mewry, Cpl. R. Sutherland and Sgt. W. Jones.

The Air Force Auxiliary also received thanks for a Christmas parcel from Cpl. Stanley McCormick. Not only did he enjoy the box and the cigarettes, but the boy in his billet found the cake swell, and they cut it into 18 pieces. Danny Collins, of Peterborough, in the billet next to Cpl. McCormick's also received a parcel.

PTE. JEAN METCALFE

Among the group of members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps from Military District No. 3, who have arrived overseas with a recent C.W.A.C. draft is Pte. Jean Metcalfe of Peterborough, who reverted from the rank of company sergeant major so she could proceed on overseas service.

Pte. Metcalfe was former company sergeant major of No. 39 Company, the headquarters of which, prior to being moved to Brockville, were in Kingston. She enlisted in November 1941, and has worked as a driver and a barrack N.C.O. She has four brothers in the armed forces, three of whom are overseas. Pte. Metcalfe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Metcalfe of Peterborough.

Others who arrived overseas in the same draft included Cpl. Catherine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Smith, of Cornwall, Ont., who enlisted in December 1941.

PTE. MARSHALL SOPHA

Mrs. G. W. Henderson of Marmora was cheered recently when she received a letter from her son, Pte. Sopha, somewhere in Italy, the first to be written since he received his second wound in the Mediterranean battle.

Marshall wrote that his left arm had been broken, but he expected the cast to be taken off soon. He was an original member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. A brother, Nerman Sopha, is overseas with the R.C.A., and Mrs. C. Clarke, 199 Reid street, is a sister.

A Super Fleet

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb 29 — (AP). — The strength of the United States' fighting fleets will be equal to that of all other countries combined by the end of this year, Rear-Admiral Edward L. Cochrane declared in an address here yesterday. He added that "maintenance of that relative strength in the post-war period is our surest guarantee of something approaching world peace."

LEAP AT YOUR CHANCE

ON THIS ONE day in every four years, it is timely to think about seizing your opportunity to get the jump on your opponents with a lead of the suit which must get run in order to beat their contract. That principle of play can be so important that it justifies violating another basic principle about avoiding a lead up to a tenace. Sometimes one principle must be violated in order to cash in on another.

Upon winning the first trick with the spade A, East reasoned from his partner's 2 that the four-card suit was hopeless as a defense, so studied to find some other return. Deciding that the only chance was to run the diamond suit, he pondered then on what should be his lead. Even if a club or heart could get West in the lead, that would not do the trick, as the dummy's three cards would stop the run of diamonds if West switched to them.

In a few moments it dawned on East that he could run his suit if he gave up an immediate trick in it, and West later got the lead. So he returned the diamond 5. South got this in dummy with the J over West's 9. Seeing that he couldn't get nine tricks except by scoring two or more in clubs, South tried the obligatory finesse of that suit at once. West won it with the K and returned his diamond 3. Consequently East ran four diamond tricks, setting the contract two.

New Army Plan Allows Many To Compete

OTTAWA, Feb. 29— (CP) — Thousands of Canadian Army men are swinging haymakers this week in an elimination tournament leading to national championships here in May as the Army's new mass participation sports program gets under way.

Aimed at getting away from the dull "one, two, three, four" of drill square PT exercises the new sports program, evolved by Maj. Ian Eisenhardt of Vancouver, senior auxiliary services sports officer, envisions competitive sports for all the troops and not just the stars.

"We are developing a practical program which will result in mass participation and we hope make this side of the training program more interesting for the soldier," said the Major, who will devote his full time to his new job of National Director of Physical Fitness after he gets the Army sports program "well launched."

Many of the sports will lead only to area and district championships but some like boxing and swimming, where few men are left in the finals, will carry on to national titles.

The boxing program will be succeeded by cross-country running with the best 10 in every unit taking part as a team in district championships and any other soldier who cares taking part as an individual.

Track and field and all the team sports will follow in seasonal order.

Maj. Tisenhardt took pains to stress that in no case would the sports program—"which is strictly a practcal part of the ordinary training program"— interfere with the transfer of troops from one point to another or into the reinforcement stream.

Philpott Raps Manner War Being Run

VANCOUVER, Feb. 29 (CP)—Elmore Philpott in his radio news commentary last Wednesday which was criticized in the House of Commons, said "our leaders are still having to fight the same kind of behind-the-line battle as in World War One."

The commentary, broadcast over a CBC national network, was criticized by J. G. Diefenbaker (P.C., Lake Centre).

Mr. Philpott to-day declined to comment on the criticism, but supplied the text of his broadcast.

The section under criticism reads:

"Any one who knows anything about war knows that our fellows are almost certain to find themselves in positions harder to hold than the Rome beachhead ever was last week or is now. So we ought to be forewarned by what too many of us did lately. We ought to make up our minds in advance, not to do anything, say anything or think anything which will make the job harder for them.

Raises National Issue.

"For that reason I am saying little today about the Canadian event of the week of deepest international significance. That is the background on the return to Canada of Lt.-Gen. Andrew McNaughton.

"I have not had second-hand access to the papers the Prime Minister showed the leaders in Parliament, but I have received reliable information on this case, which shows that it raises some issues of deep national concern.

"As I said several weeks ago, we can well afford to postpone all such discussions as to the wisdom of Allied high strategy; the splitting of our forces overseas; or the relationship between leaders of Canada and other countries.

No Comfort to Boys.

"For it won't comfort our boys who are going in there to do the fighting and dying to be disturbed because Canadians still have to fight two kinds of battles. In this war as in the last our fellows are trying to do their bit by land, sea and air. It is not too little a bit— as, for instance, our proportion of the losses on last night's record raid on Germany will show. But behind the scenes our leaders are still having to fight the same kind of behind-the-line battle as in the first Great war. Then Sir Sam Hughes and others had to fight everybody up to and including Kitchener himself to get the right for Canadians to fight together under our own direct command, and later to have some say as to the general plan of conducting the war.

"We haven't won that fight yet— not by a long shot—even though it has been better covered up in this war than in the days of the roaring Sam Hughes. Whatever may be the constitutional theory, the fact is that we are still in double colonial status — not just to Britain as formerly, but now also to our good neighbor the United States.

"We still have to win the last round of the historic Canadian battle for responsilbe Government. That is on the highest level in international affairs.

(In the House of Commons Friday Mr. Diefenbaker, said that Mr. Philpott had left the impression after one of his broadcasts that Canada is fighting two wars, "not only one with the enemy but another with the war office over the question of the right of the Canadian army to fight as a unit." Mr. Diefenbaker said War Services Minister LaFleche whose department includes the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation should explain whether the Philpott broadcast was subject to censorship and if so by whom the manuscript was censored.

(Answering Mr. Diefenbaker, Gen. LaFlache said the Philpott manuscript had not been submitted to Ottawa for censorship. He said he did not know if it had been examined by the station manager at Vancouver where the broadcast was made. The Defence of Canada regulations were in the hands of the station manger and he could examine them when a question arose, the General said.)

Japs Defeated Along Arakan

NEW DELHI, Feb. 29 (CP)—British and Indian troops "have scored a major victory over the Japanese for the first time" on the Arakan front in Burma, the Allied command for the southeast Asia announced today in an account distributed by the ministry of information.

A Japanese force on the front now has been largely destroyed, the statement said, with "a conservative estimate putting their dead at over 1,000 and their wounded at 2,000 out of an original task force of approximately 8,000."

Allied pressure through the jungles of Burma has pushed the Japanese back on nearly all the fronts scattered along 500 miles from Akyab to the Hukawng valley in the north.

African troops thrust deeper to the south from Kyauktaw, 30 miles north of Akyab, after seizing that point ouflanking Buthedaung to the west, but were meeting with increasing enemy resistance.

Five hundred Japanese have been killed in clearing the Ngakyedauk Pass, the communique said.

To the north in the Chin Hills British troops captured positions in the main Japanese defensive system, the communique said, but were forced to withdraw from some of them when the Japanese counter-attacked in force.

Still farther north, the Japanese evacuated positions without a fight in the Atwin Yomas areas.

A Chinese communique declared Chinese forces fighting South of the Tanai river in Northern Burma had captured Lakygnaga, February 23, and "during the last three weeks our troops have recovered 75 miles of territory on the Tanai river front. Our advance units are within 10 miles of Maingkwan and still are pushing forward."

Capture of Lakygnaga, the Chungking bulletin said "successfully concluded operations in the important sector covering the Taro valley and areas traversing Yawngpang Ga and northeast of the Tanai river."

WOMAN PILOT KILLED.

LONDON—(CP) — One of the five women pilots in the British Air Transport Auxiliary, which ferries airplanes for the R. A. F. and the R. C. A. F., Jane Winston of Wanganui, New Zealand, was killed in a crash.

GIVEN COMMISSION — Flt.-Sgt. Louis Prete, who was killed in October in a crash at Mountain View, when two training planes collided, has been awarded his commission as pilot officer, posthumously. His widow, formerly Dorothy Midgeley, and three-year-old son Ronald live at 149 Rubidge Street.

U.S. Must Call Married Men To Meet Needs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 —(AP)— Manpower shortage for the United States armed services which President Roosevelt has called "grave" must be made up from family men and others—not by lowering physical standards—a special medical commission reported to the White House today.

The commission was created at the suggestion of Congress because of belief that a relaxation of induction requirements, especially for limited service, might delay drafting of fathers and others with dependents.

It reported existing standards could not be reduced "without impairing the efficiency" of the armed services and no more limited service inductions are needed.

The report will be sent to Congress tomorrow. It follows publication Saturday of a memorandum President Roosevelt sent to manpower officials saying the nation's manpower pool has been "dangerously depleted" by liberal deferments.

He said the deficit should be made up from those with occupational deferments, especially in the younger classes. A review of this group was ordered last night.

Maj.-Gen. Miller G. White, army assistant chief of staff, said there were only 7,482,000 officers and men in the army as of Dec. 31, 1943, a deficit of 218,000 in total authorized strength of 7,700,000. Part of the deficit he attributed to inductions falling of 211,000 or 31 per cent. of the call for 675,000 in the last four months of 1943.

"After the army reaches its authorized strength," he said, "there will be a continuing need for from 75,000 to 100,000 men per month to replace losses, and the majority of these men must be qualified for combat service."

He added the present standards for general service produce a quality of men lower than desirable, but this situation has been met by careful attention to personal assignment.

"Even so," he continued, "during the period from Pearl Harbor to Oct. 31, 1943, 474,000 enlisted men were discharged from the army because of physical or mental reasons."

He pointed out these discharges are largely from combat units and replacements from now on should be of the best possible physical calibre "since they will all be potentially front-line troops."

Scouts And Cubs Entertain Dads

The Scouts and Cubs of the No. 14 Murray St. Boy Scout group held a Father and Son Banquet last week, prepared and served by the Mothers' Auxiliary with music furnished by the Sunday School orchestra.

A sing-song was lead by Dr. S. J. Graham with Mr. W. A. Smook at the piano. The chairman Mr. W. G. Shiner welcomed the boys and their father and then called for a toast to the King, proposed by Scout Jim Nicholls who read the Christmas message given by the King three years ago.

The next toast "The Chief" was proposed by Scout Jack Sutcliffe by giving a brief history of the life of the late Lord Baden Powell, from the time when in 1907 he started the Boy Scout movement at Brownsea Island just off the south coast of England to the day when he died, February 1941. Commissioner Ernest Wolff responded with an earnest appeal to the boys to obey the Scout law. to the dads to help them to do it and to help the Scout movement in Peterborough whenever and wherever they could.

A toast to "The Church" was proposed by Scout Don McNab who recalled to the Scouts present all that the Church had done for the boys in providing a splendid Scout hall with all conveniences for their use. In replying to the toast Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe drew attention to the fact that religion and the Scout movement are inseparably united and the union has undoubtedly made for the permanence of the Scout movement.

Time out was declared for 15 minutes to enjoy the sleight of hand tricks of Magician Mr. McKinley. His skill in doing the apparently impossible held the rapt attention of the boys. A toast to "Our Dads" moved by a member of the Wolf Cub Pack, David Mitchell, was responded to by Mr. R. Mills, who pointed out the responsibility of the dads to the boys, also the boys to their dads. Mr. B. Ottewell, president of the Local Association introduced Mr. Carl Browne, M.A., principal of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School.

In his address Mr. Browne intermingled humor and advice to good effect suggesting that to succeed one must forget altogether the words "I can't do it". This attitude so often taken by boys in their studies is one of defeat and the boy is beaten before he starts. Also the finest training a boy or man can have is to have to do the things that one does not want to do.

"A boy who grows up always and only doing the things he likes to do will not have much strength in his character it is the overcoming of oneself that makes for true manhood."

He also stressed the need for independence inculcated by earning, not receiving money from dad and urged the dads to remember this. Give his boy the money he needs, but let him earn it first.

A vote of thanks was moved by Assistant Commissioner A. Hope, referring particularly to Mrs. W. H. Frise the president of the Mothers' Auxiliary.

Shells Paralyze Nazi Gunners

OTTAWA, Feb. 29 —(CP)—Canadian artillery fire during the Sicilian campaign was so heavy and deadly that German and Italian soldiers "were paralyzed with fear," Sgt. Orville G. Kenny of Ottawa said upon arrival here during the week-end with a group of repatriated Ottawa and district men, including 25 soldiers and one airman.

The men arrived in Halifax Friday aboard the hospital ship Lady Nelson. Nine were stretcher cases, while the others were able to walk from their hospital train.

"During the capture of one village, which had been shelled for two days previously," Kenny added, "we found a Nazi soldier tightly clutching his machine-gun that he couldn't fire because of his overpowering fear."

Kenny, who left the southern Italian battlefield in October, said the Canadian troops were told not to be "too free" with the cheering Italian civilians "because they had cheered the Germans only a short time before."

Sgt. M. C. Blanchard of Cornwall, Ont., who spent four years with the R.C.A.F. service police in England, was included in the returning group. He suffered an injured foot in a motor accident.

Britain Approves Proposals Given Finns By Russians

LONDON, March 1—(CP).—It was reported in official circles here today that after consultation with Soviet authorities, British Government officials agreed to the peace terms submitted by Russia to Finland yesterday.

To the question of whether Britain would still be at war with Finland if that country accepted the Russian terms, an authoritative source replied that under the terms of the Anglo-Soviet treaty "a separate peace cannot be negotiated."

He explained that under the treaty one of the signatories cannot negotiate for peace without consulting the other. He called Russian peace terms published thus far "press description" stipulations, rather than formal terms.

As a preliminary to a Russo-Finnish peace, Moscow has demanded the Finns cease military operations at once and break relations with Germany, interning all German troops and ships in Finland—with Soviet aid if necessary.

Terms Generous.

The Moscow radio broadcast these armistice demands last night and said that if Finland accepts the conditions immediately the Soviet Government is ready to open negotiations for a "concrete agreement" at once.

There was no immediate comment on the Russian proposals from Helsinki, where the Finnish Parliament held two secret sessions yesterday to debate the question of peace or continued war with Russia. An official communique gave no indication a decision has been reached.

The British press termed the Russian proposals "generous" and the Daily Mail said they "should be accepted without delay."

The Stockholm newspaper Morgon Tidningen said the proposals "can very well be taken as a starting point for further steps looking toward an armistice." The paper which has close contacts with the strong Finnish Social Democratic party, added the terms "are harsh, but one must admit they do not mention Russian occupation or any threat to the country's independence."

In other words the newspaper said, they are terms which the Finns constantly have said they could accept.

Jury Selection Slowing Trial

By JAMES H. PORTERFIELD
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP).—With the first juror still to be seated, rival attorneys tackled again today the job of choosing 12 persons to decide the fate of Toronto-born Wayne Lonergan, R.C.A.F. aircraftman, charged with slaying his 22-year-old wife, Patricia, heiress to millions.

The resumption brought no indication of a truce between Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet and Defence Counsel Edward V. Broderick, whose frequent clashes have highlighted the case.

A special panel, many of whose members are social luminaries and top-ranking business executives, was reinforced with an additional 100 talesmen drawn during yesterday's one-day recess to replace persons excused. A total of 222 were ordered to report.

Broderick, who criticized the original panel as "hand-picked by the prosecution," still had 29 peremptors challengers left as the trial resumed. The prosecutor had 26.

Both sides agreed examination of the talesmen probably would continue through the week.

As the questioning was renewed, the case still echoed with charges over a letter in which the 26-year-old defendant offered to relinquish any claim to a $2,000,000 share of his wife' estate in return for sole custody of his 22-months-old son.

GEN. FRITZ KUEHN KILLED

Livestock Consumes Wheat

New Feeding Plan To Reduce Carryover

OTTAWA, March 1—(CP).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that the livestock population in North America is consuming wheat bushel for bushel with the human population. Wheat, hitherto the preserve of human beings, has been "pinch hitting" for oats, barley and other feedstuffs and has made possible the maintenance of record numbers of livestock on North American farms.

In a review of the world wheat situation, the bureau said it is estimated that a total of 590,000,000 bushels of wheat will be fed animals on this continent during the crop year 1943-44, while the civilian and home military requirements of Canada and the United States may total only 580,000,000 bushels.

In Canada, the use of wheat for livestock feed in the year ending July 31, 1944, is expected to be 2½ times the quantity fed during the crop year 1939-40. But Canadian wheat is moving in large quantities to the United States to be used there as livestock feed, so that the quantity of Canadian wheat fed animals in both countries might easily reach a total of 315,000,000 bushels.

Should maximum delivery of 360,000,000 bushels be realized, the bureau said, stocks of wheat remaining on prairie farms will be down to "almost normal" proportions, but on the basis of current estimates of domestic and export disappearance, the Canadian carry-over of wheat is expected to exceed 400,000,000 bushels next July 31.

Shooting Is Admitted In Statement

Signed Confession Read To Jury At Murder Trial

(Tuesday Afternoon's Evidence—See Pages Two and Eight)

"I had an awful life with John, but I suppose I should not have killed him. Well, it is done now, and they can do what they like with me."

That is a quotation from the confession of Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert which Police Inspector H. Storey related to the jury today after Mr. Justice Hope announced his decision that the written statement of the accused was admissible as evidence in her trial for the murder of her husband at their home near Nassau last November 20th.

The despondent phrases were not part of the written statement which Inspector Storey received from the accused, according to his testimony, in the Provincial Police office at the court house.

The trial picked up some of its coarse threads of evidence this morning as Inspector Storey began the recital of his evidence after a three-hour interruption in the absence of the jury yesterday afternoon.

Acknowledged Slaying

The damaging and delaying feature of this evidence was the acknowledgment by Mrs. Hubert that she shot her husband as he attacked and threatened her with a bread or "butcher" knife which he grabbed up from the supper table in the evening of Saturday, November 20.

A "hot argument" during the evening meal was the climax to a life of distress and misery Mrs. Hubert affirmed in a disclosure of her husband as a lustful spouse with excessive sex demands through the five years of their marriage.

Followed Doctors

Inspector Storey followed Dr. C. B. Waite and Dr. H. G. Charlton on the witness stand, and was examined by the Crown Prosecutor C. P. Hope, K.C., who resumed his testimony from the "I'll tell all" stage "if you get the reporters and police out of the house," which he ascribed to Mrs. Hubert.

"I couldn't stand it any longer," Mrs. Hubert told Storey as recorded in the statement. "We had a hot argument about 1.30. He went out shouting "You're no damn good. I'm going away. I'll never come back." He went away. He came back two or three hours later." She asked him where he had been. He said "none of your damn business." The argument got hot and he picked up the butcher knife. "He tried to strike me with the knife. I hardly know what happened but I picked up the gun and it went off. John fell on his side. I said "are you hurt." There was no reply but he groaned. I asked him again and all he could say was "back, back. It's my own fault." That was the last word he said."

Mrs. Hubert then said she set out for the John Little home.

Inspector Storey said that he then charged Mrs. Hubert with the murder of her husband and cautioned her about anything she might say.

Peace Kills More

TORONTO, March 1 (CP).—W. E. O. Duncan, chairman at the annual dinner of the Toronto Transportation Safety Committee, said last night losses from accidents among Canada's civilian population totalled 25,000 killed and 1,600,000 injured during the war period. He added that in the same period Canada suffered approximately 12,000 killed and 12,000 wounded, missing or prisoners from among her armed forces.

Canada Wants Policy To Prevent War

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 1—(CP cable)—Canadian co-operation in the establishment of any postwar international system which will keep the peace can be taken for granted, George V. Ferguson, Executive Editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, told the people of Britain last night.

One of a party of eight Canadian editors touring Britain for the last few weeks, Ferguson spoke on the BBC postscript program after the evening news broadcast.

Canada as a small nation is fortunate in escaping the fate of many small nations in this war, Ferguson said, adding: "We do not want another war for we know what would happen to us, and hence our greatest interest is not creation of an imperial policy but creation of a real international system which will keep the peace. And our co-operation in such a system can be taken for granted."

Canada's policy always would be directed at bringing Britain and the United States closer together, he said, because "only thus can we resolve our difficulties."

One consequence of this policy is that it is difficult for Canada to fall in with plans and ambitions for what he called a common Imperial foreign policy.

Canadians are likely to feel that the dominant voice in framing a common Imperial policy is bound to the voice of Britain, he said, and will ask if British policy is running square with or counter to American policy. If Anglo-American agreement is solid, then Canada's difficulties are overcome. If such agreement does not exist then Canada's

Quell Revolt Of Regiment In Argentine

Fighting Believed Underway To Oust New Chief

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 1—(AP)—The Argentine government announced today it had quelled a revolt by an army colonel and his infantry regiment seeking to oust Gen. Edelmiro Farrell from the presidency he assumed last week in a palace coup engineered by the country's strongly nationalistic elements.

Lt.-Col. Tomas Duco, a close friend of Gen. Pedro Ramirez who delegated his presidential powers to Farrell last Thursday, massed his 3rd infantry regiment on the outskirts of Buenos Aires, but did not move on the capital.

Instead, he entered the city himself on a government invitation for a conference with Farrell and War Minister Juan Peron, known as the man behind the throne in Argentina's turbulent politics.

The conference was held in the War Ministry.

Duco was arrested and held at headquarters of another regiment, a dispatch direct from Buenos Aires said this morning, and his Regiment was returning to its headquarters under command of officers loyal to Farrell's government.

The regiment camped this morning at Lomas De Zamora, 20 miles from Buenos Aires. A Maj. Molinari, heading sentry duty forces, said: "Our commander left for the War Ministry, called by Farrell, who gave his word of honor he would release him after talking with him. As hostages, we are keeping here two colonels who came with the vice-president's (Farrell's) message. That is all. Now please leave."

The newsman saw light artillery and several machine-guns on both sides of the main avenue in Lomas de Zamora where the regiment had taken up combat positions.

Apparently the attempted revolt did not extend beyond Duco's own unit, but the Argentine Navy was reported to have demanded that power be returned to Ramirez, who resigned ostensibly because of his health, or to the supreme court.

There was a strict censorship in Buenos Aires.

Claim Peace Proposals Are Fair

MOSCOW, March 1 (AP).—The Russian people awaited further word today on the negotiations for peace with Finland but Red Star and Izvestia gave them nothing more than last night's official statement from the Soviet foreign office.

The foreign office statement apparently left further progress in the negotiations for peace up to a quick acceptance of the Soviet proposals by the Finns.

Allied diplomats in Moscow, expressed surprise at what they said seemed to them to be the "fair terms" of the Soviet statement, saying they expected the Russians would be far more exacting than they were.

Moscow is ready to receive Dr. Kuho K. Paasikivi, Finnish diplomat who has been in touch with Mme. Alexandra Kallantay, Soviet Ambassador to Sweden, it was learned today, but Soviet authorities are aware it will be no easy task to clear Finland of the Nazis even with the help of the Finnish Army.

However, it was pointed out that it is going to be difficult for the Germans to remain in Finland without paying heavily because the Red Army's northwest campaign has given the Russians excellent bases from which to blast the Nazi communication lines to that country.

Germans Using New Type Tank

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, March 1 (AP)—German troops, armed with a new "secret weapon" tank loaded with explosives, have struck in new assaults against the Anzio beachhead, and Allied headquarters said this may be a third great offensive aimed at driving the invasion troops into the sea.

The Nazis opened a heavy attack midway between Carroceto and Cisterna Tuesday morning, and this was growing stronger.

Artillery duels thundered, and front dispatches last night said the enemy pounded the beachhead with the heaviest bombardment since the initial landings.

Headquarters disclosed the Germans had used new radio-controlled tanks, bearing 1,000-pound charges and designed to blow up within Allied lines, in their second major offensive against the beachhead, but Allied artillery exploded 14 of them before they reached the Allied line. The blasts probably caused great damage to Nazi positions instead.

The Germans struck at the beachhead at two points Monday and Tuesday night, and continued to "exert pressure" without result, headquarters said.

There were no details on the thrust against the eastern half of the beachhead between Carroceto and Cisterna, but if it develops into a major offensive, it would be the third attempt to wipe out the strongly-held Allied sector.

Allied artillery and bombers lashed back, with United States planes hammering Nazi troops and tanks massed in the Cisterna area.

The Germans were probing the beachhead lines, apparently seeking a soft spot, and Nazi tanks appeared in increasing numbers.

Artillery and mortars broke up a small but determined attack on British positions in the ravine-cut Moletta area southwest of Carroceto, where close fighting continued. This was the third attack

Cost $12 Plus Percentage Of Taxable Income; For All Health Services

Contributions From Employers Eliminated Ease Levy On Those Married Contributions Collected With Income Tax

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, March 1—(CP).—Complete health services will cost Canadian adults $12 a year, plus a percentage of income for those in the income-tax paying classes, under a revised health insurance plan submitted to the Commons Social Security Committee today by Pensions Minister Mackenzie.

Compared with the plan on which the committee worked last session, the new one provides a simpler financial structure, lower cost to contributors and a scheme of Dominion Government assistance to the provinces which takes into account the unevenness of financial capacity in different provinces.

The changes also eliminate all contributions from employers and ease the levy on married men.

The draft bill studied by the Social Security Committee last year called for contributions of $26 a year for all adults, with a plan for downward adjustment for persons of low incomes.

The new plan makes no change in the essential features of the original proposal: complete medical, dental, hospital and drug services for all citizens; administration by the provinces under provincial statutes and a Dominion enactment authorizing financial assistance in providing the services and also special grants for public health work such as research, cancer, tuberculosis and mental illness facilities.

Over Age 16.

The flat contribution of $12 a year would be payable by every adult resident in a participating province over the age of 16 years. Thus, it is proposed that a person with adult dependents pay the flat contribution for them.

The new draft also proposes the provinces make what arrangements they wish for abatement of payment of this contribution in cases of persons unable to pay but the cost of such abatements will be borne by the province.

In addition to the flat contribution, single persons with incomes of more than $660 per year would pay three per cent. of the income up to a maximum of $30 and married persons with income of more than $1,200, five per cent. up to a maximum of $50.

Thus the maximum payment for a man and wife with no adult dependents would be $74 a year.

Contributions would be collected along with the income tax.

Federal financial contributions to provincial health services under last year's draft were based on the principle of population. In the new draft, they are based on the average per capita cost of health services in all provinces less contributions collected from residents of the province.

Tax Takes Up Slack.

Thus in effect the Dominion assumes the cost of health services for children under 16 and the excess of the average cost of services to adults over the amount collected in contributions.

Mr. Mackenzie said:

"It is estimated that the costs of benefits would amount to about $250,000,000 a year, that the health insurance fees of $12 per adult would amount to $100,000,000; that the contributions of three and five per cent based on income would amount to $50,000,000, leaving about $100,000,000 to be provided by the Dominion.

"The Provincial Governments would have to bear the cost of any of the $12 fees abated, any excess of costs of benefits over the esti-

Russians Stab Into Estonia Pskow Totters

LONDON, March 1—(CP)—The Red Army rolled on toward Pskov today with one force just six miles north of the Nazi bastion guarding the Baltic states and another approaching from the southeast while far to the south a new Russian Ukraine offensive was under way.

Stockholm, meanwhile, reported without confirmation that the Russians made a new westward stab into Estonia by crossing Lake Peipus and establishing bridgeheads. The Russians were striving to strengthen the foothold, said the Stockholm report, and also were attacking across the narrows separating Lakes Peipus and Pskov.

The northern force on the outskirts of Pskov got to within six miles of the old trading centre by taking Pogoreika. The Russians also took Kutuzovo, 11 miles southeast of Malkova, 28 miles southeast. Makova, 26 miles from the Latvian frontier, appeared to be the spearhead of a drive to cut the two railroads leading south from Pskov.

Moscow reported the Germans putting up strong resistance in an effort to stem the Russian advance "but by skillful manoeuvres and resolute blows our troops are overcoming German resistance and advancing swiftly."

In one engagement on the highway from Pskov northward along the shores of Lake Peipus to Godov the Russians routed two German battalions.

To the southeast, the Russians put the German 218th infantry division to flight and captured Novorozhev, 65 miles southeast of Pskov, after a sudden manoeuvre.

All Mosquitoes Return Safely

LONDON, March 1—(CP)—R.A.F. Mosquito bombers attacked objectives in western Germany last night, an Air Ministry communique announced today. The planes returned from their mission without loss, the communique added.

The overnight assault followed a heavy daylight attack by United States heavy bombers on the German aircraft centre of Brunswick and another American raid on the Pas-de-Calais coast of France. These operations were carried out at a cost of one bomber and eight fighters.

It was the third assault in 16 days on Brunswick and was a different story from the raid January 11 when 60 heavy U.S. bombers were

Allied Pincers Tightens Against Japan

Weight Of Allied Arms Starting To Tell As Jap Holdings Shrink

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Allies continue steadily to tighten the great Pacific pincers which one of these days will seize and crush the Mikado's island kingdom.

Further successes are reported from the geographical extremes of the southwestern Pacific and southeastern Asia—the Bismarck archipelago and Burma respectively. Progress in both instances represents vital preparation for the all-out offensive to smash Japan. Each presages other important operations—probably in the near future.

General MacArthur has brought home another handsome victory in the capture of the strategic airport of Momote in the Admiralty Islands, on the northern border of the Bismarck Archipelago. The general watched the preliminary bombardment aboard a warship, and then followed his troops ashore, disregarding danger from Jap snipers.

This operation severs the regular Japanese supply lines to their bases in the New Guinea area to the south, including the key base of Rabaul on New Britain. It will greatly speed completion of the conquest of this whole vast zone and thereby open the way to the East Indies and the Philippines. MacArthur, whose mind is riveted on his oath to free the Philippines, pointed out significantly in the opening sentence of his communique that the Admiralty Island are 1,300 miles from that goal.

As a result of this success, some 50,000 Japs are surrounded, mainly on the island of New Britain. Other troops are trapped in the Solomons to the south. All of these enemy forces are doomed to death or capture.

While MacArthur has thus been successfully busy, his counterpart in southeast Asia—Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten — also has had his thumb in the pie and pulled out a plum. At long last the Allies have achieved a first-class victory over the Japs in the Burmese jungle.

This is in the Arakan region, north of the important enemy base on the island of Akyab which is the objective of an Allied offensive that long has been working along the coastal region on the Bay of Bengal. Akyab is one of the entering wedges for an amphibious invasion of Burma, to open this great back door to China.

What has happened in the present instance is that a Nipponese force of 8,000, which set out to annihilate two Indian divisions and then stage a drive into India, had itself been torn to shreds. Lord Louis announced this morning Allied troops killed or wounded 4,500 of these schemers, and mopping-up of the remnants of the enemy force in the jungle is continuing successfully.

GERMAN ATTACKS START WITH THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD FORCE IN ITALY—Expected German attacks along the perimeter of the beachhead have begun and fighting is continuing but so far the Germans seem to be relying on steady pressure and occasional jabs rather than an all-out offensive.

Greek Patriots Wreck Train

British Officer Leads Daring Band

CAIRO, March 1—(AP).—Greek patriots led by a British officer derailed a German troop train Feb. 22 near Mount Olympus, killing 400 men, including a Nazi general and members of his staff, it was reliably learned here today.

The first 11 cars plunged into the icy Pinios River when mines placed under a 300-yard stretch of track were exploded at night during a heavy snowstorm. None of the 400 men on 10 passenger coaches escaped, British reports said, but apparently there were a few survivors from the 11th car, an armored one placed immediately behind the engine.

The Patriots then attacked the armored car with automatic weapons, grenades and sticks of bombs. Many were killed. German S.S. troops who were rushed to the scene later evacuated wounded, numbered by one British report at several hundred.

The train was en route from Athens to Berlin. It was learned a senior general and many officers aboard were going to a conference.

Instructions were issued from Cairo for the carefully-planned attack.

Only three casualties were reported among the Patriots. The name of the British officer who led the attack was not disclosed.

Meatless Tuesdays Discarded Storage Supplies Tremendous

By JAMES McCOOK—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, March 1—(CP).—Canadians today can buy all the meat they want following temporary suspension of ration of about two pounds a person a week in effect since last May. Meatless Tuesdays also are dropped for the time being. Effective from last midnight, no ration coupons are needed for meat purchases. Canned salmon also has been removed from the ration list but it is not as abundant as meat.

The announcement was made last night by Douglas Abbott, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley, amid applause of members of the House of Commons.

He emphasized that rationing was suspended—not abandoned. The action was made necessary by enlarged Canadian livestock production and shipping difficulties which prevented movement of surpluses to the United Kingdom.

The suspension will continue until "the congestion in both storage and transportation is cleared up," Mr. Abbott said.

Answering questions by Opposition members he said he could give no idea how long that might be, but in his statement he noted that heavy livestock marketings are expected to continue for the next two or three months.

Retain Books.

The Prices Board, as rationing authority, followed Mr. Abbott's statement with a notice that all machinery for meat rationing will be retained ready for prompt operation again as soon as the supply position requires.

"Accordingly, all ration-book holders should keep meat coupons that have not expired and the meat trade is urged to retain coupon value charts and other documents used in connection with meat rationing," said the board.

Slaughterers with permits must continue observing provisions of a Prices Board order covering the slaughtering and stamping of carcasses but temporarily they will not be limited by quotas and need not report to local ration boards. During the suspension, farmers may slaughter for sale direct to any household consumer.

Mr. Abbott said the mere existence of surpluses would not be a good reason for suspending rationing if the surpluses could be moved to seaboard and overseas.

During the first eight weeks of 1944, compared with the same period in 1943, slaughterings of hogs were up 80 per cent., cattle 50 per cent., calves 20 per cent., and sheep and lambs 35 per cent. Packing plants had been able to handle this increased volume only with great difficulty.

More than 102,000,000 pounds of meat were in cold storage, almost twice as much as at the same time a year ago and 65 per cent. more than normal. There was no cold-storage reserve to take up any unforeseen backing up due to unpreventable delays in shipping.

During the past eight weeks shipments overseas had been of record size, but any delay in shipments would cause a "very difficult position."

"There are very real dangers of a backing up of supplies and movement to a point where actual spoilage of meat might occur," said Mr. Abbott.

A British company on parol captured prisoners in this area.

The Germans heavily shelled American positions southeast of Carroceto Monday night and then two strong enemy patrols pressed forward, but were thrown back. Allied shells scored hits on what seemed to be two enemy ammunition dumps.

Weather Murky

Artillery also repulsed a German patrol in the coastal area along the northern part of the beachhead.

The beachhead battle was developing in cloudy weather with showers.

On the main Cassino front to the southeast, British troops threw back a Nazi attack near Mount Ornito in the lower Garigliano River Bend, and Allied guns successfully shelled German motor-borne troops on Highway Six near Cassino.

Along the Adriatic Sector, 8th Army forces improved positions on a ridge south of Guadriagrele and Allied patrols felt out Nazi lines. Heavy guns were active.

Low Silhouette

An official announcement described the Nazi radio-controlled tank as having a low silhouette, with a radio aerial for directing it and then exploding it by remote control against a chosen target. Used in the second offensive against the beachhead, none of the tanks actually reached Allied lines, falling victim to artillery fire.

Allied airmen flew some 700 sorties over the beachhead yesterday — — compared with 30 by the Germans — — and delivered their heaviest blow at enemy concentrations around Cisterna.

Dive-bombers dumped 14 tons of bombs in an hour's attack there. An average of 500 pounds of explosive a minute ripping into the Nazi camp. Fighters drove home the blow with 1,000-pound bombs, and just before dusk fighter-bombers pounded the town of Cisterna itself.

Six Allied and six German planes were lost during the day.

lost. At that time 152 of the swarms of Nazi planes which rose to battle with the bombers and escorting planes were shot down. Yesterday the opposition was weak and only three German planes were shot down.

The Germans made a weak retaliatory attack on London last night and one raider was shot down.

During February the 8th Air Force carried out 19 missions against enemy territory—seven more than the previous record. At least 632 enemy aircraft were destroyed, while 245 American heavy bombers and 68 fighters were lost. The bomber loss exceeds by 69 the previous record loss for the Americans set last October.

British Lose 193.

The R.A.F. was hindered by heavy weather last month but made seven heavy assaults, in company with R.C.A.F. squadrons/ In a giant attack on Leipzig the night of February 19, the record number of 79 planes — including 18 Canadian bombers—was lost, to help send the month's debit total to 193.

Following up the night attack on Leipzig the U.S. strategic air force hit the same city and other targets the next day with more than 2,000 planes in what was described as the greatest daylight aerial undertaking of the war.

Another aerial record set up last month was the simultaneous smash on Regensburg, February 25, by American planes based in Britain and Italy. The bombers participating in yesterday's assault were heavily protected by fighters but the losses contrast sharply with the heavy cost of the other blows against Brunswick and emphasised the loss of German fighter defences since the Allies opened their campaign against Nazi aircraft production.

"It must be emphasized that these estimates are intended only to present a very general idea of the probable magnitude of the sums that would be involved."

The original draft provided that in cases of persons employed on incomes too low to warrant their being called upon to pay the $26 annual contribution, the employer would be required to pay it or whatever part was not paid by the employee. This provision has been dropped.

"It has been suggested that a completely free or non-contributory system should be adopted," said Mr. Mackenzie. "But it is considered that such a system encourages the pauper mentality and may create a delusion that the public purse is bottomless, thereby encouraging extravagance and maladministration.

"It is more consistent with the dignity and independence of many that he should purchase the necessities of life with his own money."

As in the original scheme, it is proposed that "qualified persons"—those entitled to receive benefits—choose their own doctors and hospitals within their own localities.

Mr. Mackenzie said the financial committee whose recommendations were adopted found the $26 annual payment formerly proposed was too high and adjustment would be required for the majority of contributors. It also reported the provision for contributions from employers would fall mainly on small employers and in the case of farmers using unpaid labor would be "doubtful of collection in large part."

A communique broadcast from Buenos Aires said:

"The head of the 3rd Infantry Division, Lt.-Col. Tomas A. Duco, acting in an inexplicable and unconscientious manner, tried on the evening of Feb. 29 to raise some of the members of the regiment to rebellion.

"The officers and petty officers refused to follow him so he failed in his absurd purpose.

"The most absolute order reigns in the country. The news divulged by radio broadcasts from Uruguay in regard to clashes between the armed forces and mobs in Buenos Aires in protest against the Government which is solidly supported by the people, the army and the navy, which repudiate unanimously the attitude of the aforementioned chief, is absolutely false.

"The Ministry of War has ordered the proper investigation made."

Last night's confused events in Buenos Aires followed close upon a day of tension during which elements of the Argentine Navy, long displeased with the chaos existing in the government, demanded either that Ramirez be permitted to resume full presidential powers, or resign his power to the Supreme Court instead of to Farrell.

These proposals were reported to be still before the Argentine ruling faction when Duco decided to march his troops from the Arsenal to the city.

It appeared he acted either without the co-operation of the Navy, or at least before the Navy was prepared to move.

The Navy had not shown any sign of activity by mid-morning.

The following picture was given of the hectic night in the capital and its outskirts, where several regiments were garrisoned:

Police chief Col. Filomeno Velasco arrived at the police department at 10.40 p.m., and 10 minutes later received Peron, who was sworn in as Acting War Minister on Monday.

Police Stand By

Col. Peron left police headquarters at 11.10 p.m., refusing to make any statement, but at the same time the police broadcasting station instructed all precincts to wait for orders.

When Velasco left headquarters at 3 a.m. to day, he said, "tomorrow I will make a declaration on the events of tonight, but today all newspapers must abstain from publishing anything. Those which do will never appear again."

The 3rd Regiment moved out of its regular barracks on Garay street in downtown Buenos Aires during the night towards Lomas de Zamora.

Meanwhile Peron went to headquarters of the 1st Division of the Army inside Buenos Aires. There were other troop movements, but their import was not clear.

Police and military patrols were vigilant around military barracks and the docks.

Farrell assumed the executive post last Thursday night in a sudden political upheaval generally interpreted here as a palace coup engineered by the reactionary colonels' group headed by Gen. Juan Peron, who subsequently was installed as Acting War Minister.

Ramirez, who is said officially to have "delegated" his authority to Farrell because of poor health, had been under fire by Nationalist elements ever since his government broke with the Axis last Jan. 26.

Another report from Buenos Aires today said Gen. Arturo Rawson, who occupied the president's chair for 48 hours after the revolution which ousted President Ramon Castillo La June, had been removed from his home early today and taken to the War Ministry, before which an artillery field piece had been set up.

Later Rawson was permitted to return to his home, this report said.

"I asked her what she did with the rifle." She said she hid it on the roadside going to Little's to get a doctor. She said she would show me. We went down a lane to a clump of trees and she kicked leaves and snow off it. She told me the shell Constable Morris found in the ashes of the stove was not the one she had fired. She said she threw it away somewhere on the road to hide the gun.

Mrs. Hubert said to me: "I had an awful life with John, but I suppose I should not have killed him. But, it is done now and they can do what they like with me."

We came to Peterborough and Mrs. Hubert repeated the statement in the presence of Constable McClure. I took it in writing, and she signed it."

The written deposition was then read to the jury by Mr. Hope, Crown Prosecutor.

Inspector Storey said he examined the walls of the house, inside and out. "There were a few marks on the outside, but they did not penetrate the wall."

Cross Examined

To Mr. Bradshaw witness said he saw a hole in the plaster of the outer wall near the bedroom window, but did not observe anything on the inside that might correspond with the hole in the exterior stucco.

Mr. Bradshaw: "Did you say you'd get bail for her if she made a statement?" —"I did not."

"Did you, when alone with her, tell her you suspected Albert Woodcock "—"No Sir."

It was said that Woodcock had been a boarder, and was tossed out by Hubert for alleged advances to his wife some time during the summer.

Provincial Constable Lloyd McClure gave evidence supporting the Inspector's story.

The bullet hole in the sweater worn by John Hubert the day he was killed was fired at a short range of less than three feet, J. A. Churchman, Ottawa, ballistics expert with R.C.M.P. told the court. His examination and tests disclosed evidence on the sweater of the evidence of the discharge of a firearm at short range. Witness said he made tests with the rifle produced in court. There was a great resemblance of the engravings on bullets used in tests with those on the bullet produced in court, as having been found in the Huberts' stove. Mr. Churchman said he could not state positively that the exhibit bullet had been fired from the exhibit .22 calibre rifle.

Dr. C. B. Waite, autopsist, stated that Hubert's death was caused by shock and hemmorhage from the bullet wound in his back.

Dr. H. G. Carleton, coroner, who was called to the Hubert house with police the night of the shooting, said he had thoroughly examined the house and could not find any signs that might have suggested violence. Mrs. Hubert told him of finding her husband on the floor of a bedroom, complaining of a severe pain in his back.

To Mr. Bradshaw, he recalled that Dr. Waite remarked at the beginning of the postmortem "it must have been a spent bullet."

Witness said he went out to the Hubert house last Sunday, walked around it "to observe things." I found, about two feet north of the west window, a piece of stucco, about the size of a silver dollar. I looked around and found a small hole through the lath. The outer surface of the house is of stucco. I went into the room where Hubert was found and saw a small hole. I used a stick to probe the hole. It slanted upwards towards the corresponding outside hole. It might have been a space between the laths."

Dr. Carleton said Mrs. Hubert showed no signs of emotion that Saturday night, no tears. "Her face was like a mask; that was a characteristic which struck me. She could not make up her mind about an undertaker and Mr. Morris suggested one. I asked her about a clergyman. She did not seem to be able to make a choice."

Mr. Bradshaw: "Did she readily follow your suggestions?"—"Yes she did."

His Lorship checked a question by Mr. Bradshaw as to whether Dr. Carleton regarded Mrs. Hubert as peculiarly susceptible to suggestion. He pointed out that the witness was not called as an expert.

Jury Is Excluded Three Hours At Murder Trial

Progress of the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert on the capital indictment of having fatally shot her husband, John E. Hubert, on November 20 last, was virtually suspended for three hours Tuesday afternoon while, in the absence of the jury, the court debated the admissibility of a written statement alleged to have been made by the prisoner to District Inspector Harry Storey of the Provincial Police, Belleville, November 22, a Monday afternoon.

The interruption for what was mentioned as "a trial within a trial" continued from about three o'clock until the day's adjournment at six by His Lordship Mr. Justice J. A. Hope.

The opposing counsel are C. P. Hope, K.C., of the Attorney-General's Department, Toronto, and John A. Bradshaw representing Mrs. Hubert.

When the examination of Inspector Storey by Mr. Hope reached the incident of an oral statement by Mrs. Hubert at her home near Nassau, Mr. Justice Hope directed the jury to retire until he decided whether he should eventually permit this highly important evidence to be recited to them.

Upon the jury's retirement, Crown Prosecutor Hope continued his examination of Inspector Storey relative to the confession which he said Mrs. Hubert voluntarily made to him first orally at her home, and subsequently that Monday afternoon in the presence of Provincial Constable Lloyd McClure in the office of the Provincial Police at the Court House. Witness said he had carefully warned the accused that this statement might be used against her, and after he had written it he read it to Mrs. Hubert and she signed it, with Constable McClure as a signatory witness.

The question of admissibility was not decided at the adjournment of the Court when Mr. Bradshaw was proposing to medical evidence to show the degree of the intelligence of the accused woman. In the meantime he had called Mrs. Hubert to the stand, and received from her a general although not a complete denial of the Crown's allegations through the evidence of Inspector Storey and Provincial Constable McClure.

Empty Shell Found.

Resuming his evidence at the opening of Court Tuesday afternoon, Provincial Constable Price Morris said he was present at Comstock's when Hubert's body

Board Awaits Report Of Inspection

CAMPBELLFORD, March 1, —(ENS) — The Board of Education took its first step to insure cooperation with the Home and School Association formed here recently when at their February meeting members authorized the use of the High School Auditorium for meetings each month.

G. G. Stephens, Secretary of the Seymour Agriculture Society, asked the Board to continue its cooperation (one-half the prize money) for the school exhibits of Shop Work, Home Economics and art which had now become an annual feature of the Fall Fair. He felt it was an excellent way to display the fine work being done by pupils and said the Society was willing to continue offering fifty per cent of the prizes which last year had cost the Board $30.90. On motion of McKeel and Richardson the grant will be continued and the allocation of prize money was left to be worked out by the school principals in cooperation with representatives of the Agricultue Society. Principal E. H. Greig asked permission to use $2.48 from the Strath cona Fund to enter a shooting team in the Empire Competitions. The request was granted.

In reply to a communication the Board sent to the Board of Health, last month, requesting a check-up on conditions at the Public School, secretary Stephens read a letter from the Board of Health. In this it was stated an investigation would be made at the school as soon as (the Board of Health) members could arrange to visit the school in a body. "There is nothing more we can do," commented Dr. Richardson adding that reports in the press indicated similar troubles from lice were being experienced in the Toronto schools where the matter had been referred to the Board of Health to be cleaned uup. It was revealed that the local Board of Health had not yet conducted its investigation as the M. O. H. had been indisposed. Replying to a question by Trustee A. K. Loucks as to whether or not the Board of Education would receive a report when the investigation was made, the Secretary stated that in Seymour such reports were filed with the Council.

"The School Board is getting all the blame for conditions there," said R. J. Locke. He recalled reports of the Board of Health meeting indicated it was the responsibility of the school trustees to appoint a nurse.

"A school nurse won't get rid of the lice," said Dr. Richardson. He declared it was up to the teachers to examine pupils and send them home if the principal deemed it necessary. "I don't think its any worse than it has been. Its just that a mountain has been made out of a mole hill."

Referring to press reports of a speech made by Mr. W. A. Hogle, in which he referred to the public school as "A deplorable monstrosity ...." Dr. Richardson declared, after reading the piece in full, "That was the worst piece of advertising Campbellford has had in many years....I think it was poor judgment to put it in the press."

"I for one think we should do something about it," said Trustee H. A. McArthur, "I don't feel we should take this without some response. If we had a new heating system and lighting system, I think we would have as good a school as any in the County. The school has been completely re-decorated within the past three years, and the only reason the playground (at the east side of the school) has not been improved was the shortage of labour.

Trustee Locke suggested he would like to see some of the lighting in the Public School improved this year. He said he had recently visited one of the rooms and found there was but a single drop cord to provide light for the entire class. "We can't do it all, but if we do a little bit every year it won't be so bad."

Mr. McArthur observed that it was a poor time to make any expensive changes since after the war he felt most lighting would be of the fluroscent type. Other members were also cool to the proposal feeling that wartime costs of the work would be higher than in peace time.

Locked In Theatre

TORONTO, March 1 (CP).—A trembling female voice greeted a Toronto telephone operator late Saturday night. "We're locked in an empty theatre and all the lights are out," it said.

The operator called police and a constable went to the theatre, in North Toronto, to investigate. He found that two girls from nearby Thornhill had been locked in. "Almost scared to death" they had lighted their way with matches to the manager's office and called the operator.

Nixon Questions Promises Made By Drew

TORONTO, March 1 — (CP). — The Ontario Legislature to-day receives its first official inkling of the political stripe of the newest party to joint its fold when A. A. MacLeod, Labor-Progressive member for Toronto Bellwoods, speaks in the continuing Throne Speech debate.

Mr. MacLeod is expected to tell the House what line he and his fellow party member, J. B. Salsberg (Toronto St. Andrew) will take in the Legislature where party lines are clearly drawn. He may also make some reference to Premier Drew's speech yesterday in criticism of C.C.F. Leader Jolliffe.

At the outset of his continued address, Col. Drew referred to the charges made in the Legislature by Mr. Jolliffe that the Government was responsible for evicting the family of Alfred Griffiths from farm property near DeCew Falls, near St. Catharines, Ont.

He said that if the C.C.F. Leader meant what he charged, there was a question whether Mr. Jolliffe was "fit for the responsible office he holds." An apology was owed the House and if it was not forthcoming," there will be no reason to look upon the future statements he (Mr. Jolliffe) may make as having any higher value."

Col. Drew said the facts were that the Griffiths family was given $19,000 for the property, assessed at $4,450 and sought by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for development purposes. The Griffiths house, he added, had been unfit for habitation, the family had made no serious effort at farming and there had been a fire on the property.

Liberal Leader Harry C. Nixon, who also spoke yesterday, was critical of the Progressive Conservative government mainly on education and taxation matters. But he said his party is prepared to support progressive legislation on its merits, regardless of its party origin.

The Liberal leader said there was a "startling" difference between pledge and performance in the government's promised revisions in education and taxation.

The throne speech had mentioned only that the matter of financing schools had been unsatisfactory and that studies were being made prior to a full house discussion. He recalled that the ninth point in the Progressive Conservative's 22-point program during the election campaign last summer had said that the government would take over at least 50 per cent of school taxation, now assessed against real estate.

He added smilingly that the fact had almost caused him to vote Progressive Conservative himself.

COBOURG, March 1—(ENS)—Corproal Clarence McMillan has arrived home from overseas, having been over there since October 21 of 1941. Following a leave spent with his family he will report to the Medical Board. He enlisted in August of 1940 with the Royal Regiment in Toronto and later transferred to the Westminster Regiment of Vancouver, which was stationed at Camp Borden. After arriving overseas he was transferred to a holding unit and was engaged in instruction work in connection with motor mechanics.

Not a Bluff

LONDON, March 1 (CP)—Gen. Kurt Dietmar told the German home front in a broadcast last night that Allied invasion preparations have been completed, that gigantic land forces and sea and air armada are standing by and "they're no bluff." The transmission was recorded by The Associated Press.

Timely Return

LINDSAY, March 1 (CP).—Ivan McLean of Cannington probably will never cease congratulating himself on the timeliness of his return to work yesterday afternoon. After lunch he approached the pond where he was cutting ice to see a boy's head bobbing in the open water and, with a pike pole, rescued the drowning lad. It was his younger brother, fallen into the pond on his return from school.

Town Council Receives 5 Resignations

COBOURG, March 1—Council received resignations at their meeting Monday night of five of their appointees to civic boards. The resignations were chairman Robert Holland, William Jennings and Joseph Owens of the Parks Commission and those of Eldon McFayden and J. S. Walden of the Board of Health. Another member, Austin Mather, has resigned from the Parks Commission, but his letter of resignation did not arrive in time for the council meeting.

A letter from Chairman Robert Holland pointed out that he was most disappointed in the action of council in not returning to the Commission, the secretary-treasurer, J. H. Lafay. William Jenings' letter cited ill health and demands of his business as reason's for his resignation.

Council had no comment in regard to the resignations and those of the parks commission were accepted immediately in a motion of Reeve R. Love and Councillor Mrs. Clara Delany. The resignations of the Board of Health members were accepted upon motion of Councillor E. Morton and Deputy-reeve D. Glenn.

Councillor Delany then proposed the name of Harry McGuire, former member of the Utilities Commission, for appointment to the parks commission. However no action was taken in regard to naming new members.

Council passed the by-law appointing Harry Jenkins as garbage collector at a salary of $250 per month, payable semi-monthly. The contract does not provide for Jenkins taking care of the dump as this is done by another man.

Increase Of $5

Councillor Delany and Deputy-reeve Glenn sponsored a motion that the caretaker of the dump receive an increase of $5 a month, which was approved. However the council was not sure what his wages were now, but it was thought that they amounted to $360 a year.

The Park Steamship Co. of Montreal wrote council to enquire the names and histories of local parks so that they could use the name on one of the steamers in the Canadian merchant service. The matter was laid over for some research work.

Two claims for injuries received in falls on the street, were received by council. Mrs. Gerald Turpin claimed damages for a broken leg sustained in a slip on the ice. Miss E. I. Clarke also had a claim for injuries received when she slipped on the icy sidewalk. The following committee accounts were passed:

Highways and streets, $303.05; public buildings and printing, $6.67; police, $17.26; water and light, $500.18; health and sanitatio,n $12; finance, $415; direct relief, $197.68.

"I owe my life to the RED CROSS"

SUCH is the grateful testimony of countless fighting men who kept their "rendezvous with Death" and live to tell the tale. Every Red Cross triumph over death, wounds, disease and human agony is that in which you may take pride. Because it is YOUR Red Cross. Thus it is you who succours those in pain and peril.

Now as the dreadful carnage of war increases—as more famine-stricken countries are made accessible to your Red Cross, the need grows at terrific pace. So much money is needed to maintain a steady flow of parcels to war prisoners, blood serum, medical supplies and dressings, surgical instruments, hospitals and hospital equipment, food and clothing, to name but a few of the demands on your Red Cross. Raise your sights—give MORE—your Red Cross needs your mercy dollars NOW!

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1944

St. David's Day, 1944

St. David's day this year finds the Welsh people strongly united in three ambitions. The first of these is that Wales should have a Secretary to direct its local affairs; the second is that Princess Elizabeth should become Princess of Wales; the third is that plans should be made to preserve the wartime prosperity of Wales and avoid the return of unemployment and its attendant miseries in the coal-mining districts.

Regarding the appointment of a Secretary the prospects are brighter than they were six months ago. When the matter was first broached to Mr. Churchill he dismissed it brusquely on the count that the time was not propitious to such discussion; that is an excuse which serves many politicians well these days. But at a time when the claims of small nations outside Britain are being examined with the most solicitous care it seems odd to deny a hearing to the small nation which has lived so long in western Britain. However, since that time Mr. Churchill has reconsidered his decision and the Welsh Parliamentary Party has hopes that it may be more graciously received when next it attends on the Prime Minister. Sixty years ago a Scottish deputation waited on Mr. Gladstone to ask for a Secretary for Scotland; Gladstone at that time said that his government was "greatly impressed with the value of decentralization and the desirableness of having, within certain limits, a variety of centres of opinion, influence and action in a country like your own". Addressing the Scottish deputation he said, "on this point we all occupy common ground". Gladstone foresaw that a request for a Secretary for Wales would follow the establishment of such an office for Scotland, and he favoured it; "Wales", he said, "has no seperate administration or representation of any kind in the administration of the country".

Now if the idea of decentralization put forward and acted upon by Gladstone and later by Salisbury had been continued the tragedy which split Ireland from the rest of Britain might have been avoided. Wales has no desire or intention of creating trouble for the rest of the United Kingdom; Wales wants such recognition as was granted to Scotland, and it is long overdue.

The desire that Princess Elizabeth should become Princess of Wales springs from the strong sentiment which the Welsh people have always felt toward the British Throne. Temperamentally the Welsh are monarchists and the link between the court and the principality is not one which they will readily allow to fall into abeyance. Affection for the ancient tie and affection for the Princess herself leads them to make this sentimental request.

Before the war South Wales was one of the most desolate parts of the United Kingdom; it had been suffering from the most intense depression for more than a decade and the situation in the mining areas could hardly have been worse. For some reason which has not yet become public very little was done to remedy this situation; some readers may recall that during his brief reign as Edward VIII, the former Prince of Wales, visited South Wales and made a vigorous public statement that something would be done to relieve the misery there; that statement caused great dissatisfaction in governmental circles, and may be recalled as a contributing cause of King Edward's abdication.

The war has brought better conditions to South Wales, and its parliamentary representatives are anxious that the bitter days should not return with the coming of peace. Coalowners are cooperating with scientists in laying the basis of a well-organized industry and in the exploitation of the by-products of coal. But many developments depend on a good supply of hydro-electric power and one of the chief aims of the Welsh Parliamentary party is to make sure of that aid to industry. North Wales, the great sheep and dairy country of Great Britain, is quite able to look after itself.

The ambitions of the Welsh Party are modest enough, but they will have to work with all their might if they hope to see them realized.

Doubling The Life Span

Although we have not the actuarial figures on the subject at hand, we think it safe to say that a reasonably healthy man or woman of today may hope to live to be 75 years old. How would you like to live twice that long? A Russian research scientist has evolved a serum which he thinks might do the trick. He is Dr. Alexander Bogomolets and his serum is reported to heal, destroy noxious microbes, form hormones, restore bone-elastic tissues, and fortify man against the diseases of old age.

Of course the serum has not had a real trial, as yet. Its popularity will stand or fall by what happens to be the first hundred people who take it and live to be 150, or die on the way to that goal. The effects might be novel. For instance, would the mind fail normally, while the body continued in health? If so we should witness the astonishing spectacle of strong and hearty, but quite senile, people imposing their whims on their relatives by force of muscle. And how would these ancients earn a living? We cannot imagine that in these days when a man is considered fit for retirement at 65 that a man of 130 would have much chance of getting a job.

And there are other dangers. Aldous Huxley wrote a novel a few years ago about a man who discovered a secret of longevity, and indeed lived to a fabulous age. But the longer he lived the more he regressed in the scale of evolution, until at last he was indistinguishable from an ape. Dr. Bogomolets will do well to keep his eye peeled for any signs of undue friskiness in his patients.

Most people, we think, are quite happy to take their 75 years, and whatever chances they may have of living to be 100. Life is sweet, but it is possible to have too much of a good thing.

Thinking About Victory Gardens

Several articles in the popular magazines urge us to get busy on our victory garden now. We look out of the window, admire the winter prospect and return to our magazines; they are written, we suspect, by idle dreamers who live somewhere in California or Florida —certainly no farther north than Washington. Still, we are not angry with them; they give us a chance to do a little armchair gardening, which is one of our favourite pursuits.

However, there are a few things which a gardener can do now, if he wants to be thoroughly prepared for the first real gardening weather. For instance, he can test his home-raised seed. Home raised seed frequently gives poor results because it has been gathered before it was mature. It is a good idea to give home-raised seed a germination test by putting some of it between sheets of damp blotting paper; in a week or so you should be able to tell from the amount of the seed which has germinated how good it is.

For the armchair gardener March is one of the best months in the year. It is practically impossible to do anything outside, but he can sit by his fire and read seed catalogues for hours at a time. The rich colour of the illustrations, and the lush Byzantine prose of the descriptions should rouse him to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. Later in the year the produce of his garden will bear a direct relation to his toil and skill. But at this time of year his cultivation will take place entirely in his imagination—perhaps the best sort of gardening there is.

A Publisher's Centenary

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

LAST year the publishing house of Macmillan celebrated its hundredth anniversary, and marked the occasion by having its own history written by Charles Morgan, one of the most popular of its authors. Mr. Morgan has done Macmillans proud; not mind you, that his task was a hard one; Macmillans is an easy company to do proud. But without puffing or breaking into flowery passages Mr. Morgan has told a good story with great distinction, and his book is a fitting testimony to a hundred years of first-rate work. Macmillans is now a flourishing empire, with branches in New York, Toronto, Melbourne and Bombay, and Canadians who are interested in books know how much the Canadian branch has done to encourage the production of good writing in this country. The Toronto branch was opened in 1905, and under the late Hugh Eayrs it became the most lively and flourishing publishing house in the country. Hugh Eayrs sought out and encouraged Canadian authors, and he was rewarded by at least two great successes: the first, an artistic success, was the publication of "Maria Chapdelaine" by Louis Hemon, perhaps the best book ever written with a Canadian setting; the second, a great financial success, was the publication of the Jalna books, written by Mazo de la Roche. Other successes, both artistic and financial, have followed, but these two were of particular note.

DANIEL and Alexander Macmillan scarcely thought to found a publishing empire when they brought out their first book, a solemn work on education. They were ambitious, but their ambition knew definite bounds; they wanted to publish good books and they wanted to make money by so doing, and with the Scotsmen's ability to reconcile the desirable with the practicable they set to work. Their background was humble, but they had distinction of character, and by a stiff process of self-education they gained distinction of mind as well. Daniel did not live to see the company of Macmillan in its great days, but Alexander never forgot the eagerness or the practical wisdom of his brother when he himself carried the firm on from strength to strength. In his time he was publisher for Lord Tennyson, Matthew Arnold, Lewis Carroll, Sir James Frazer, Professor Huxley, Thomas Hardy, Henry James, Charles Kingsley, Rudyard Kipling and W. B. Yeats, to mention only a few of the greatest names. Like all publishers he made mistakes, and probably the greatest of these was when he failed to become the publisher of Bernard Shaw. And since Alexander's death the firm seems to have lost nothing of its sagacity in picking winners, whether in the artistic, scholarly or commercial lines. The service which this firm has done to English letters cannot be calculated; may it flourish for another century, greater than ever!

HAVING concluded a paean of praise for one exceptionally interesting Macmillan book I hope that it will not seem ungracious to pass directly on to a condemnation of another. The condemned book is "Man And Literature," by Norman Nicholson, and it bears the device "S.C.M.", which might mean anything but which I presume means Student Christian Movement. When this body went in for literary criticism I do not know, but the result is not happy. Mr. Nicholson attempts to value the works of the most celebrated modern writers according to a novel scheme of his own. In his introduction he says, "This book is not an attempt to measure modern literature by a Christian yardstick," and then he proceeds to do precisely that. Now there is nothing wrong with applying the standards of Christian ethics to literature; it may be a very revealing process. But in Mr. Nicholson's case it leads him to make impudent and impertinent judgments about his betters which rob his book of any significance which it might otherwise have; the Christian virtue of humility and the grace of charity simply are not in him. He patronizes great men who do not live by the same light as himself, and the effect is not of youthful iconoclasm, but simply of an unpleasant holier-than-thou attitude of mind.

THIS is all a great pity, because Mr. Nicholson has several interesting things to say. It is obvious to anyone who reads a great deal of modern writing that few authors attempt to deal with people as they actually are; they deal with romantic ideals, or with philosophical concepts of what men and women are, rather than with men and women as they are encountered in daily life. This explains in part the strange emptiness, unsatisfactoriness, and repulsiveness of their work in many cases. But it is not easy to accept Mr. Nicholson's implication that they would do better if they accepted the Christian idea of man's nature and wrote from that point of view. Novels written in that way have never proved successful as works of art for that reason alone. For art is what Mr. Nicholson leaves out of his interesting—if disagreeably expressed — argument; a writer is first of all an artist, and even his philosophy must take second place to his standing in that respect. Desirable as it may be that writers should take a Christian view of mankind, that view alone will not make them write well. It must always be vexing to the moralists that artistic ability and virtue are unrelated, and the former cannot be counted upon as a reward for the development of the latter.

The Danger Did Exist

In a word, this Dominion was in actual danger of an invasion attempt on the East Coast and in perhaps more acute peril of bombing assaults from German bases in prospect of establishment on the Labrador or around James Bay. Warnings of such threats were considered as foolish and fantastic by most Canadians. But the danger did exist, though it may have passed in the last year or so. Just the same, there can be no relaxing of defence patrol activities — either along the Atlantic coastline or at the Pacific.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

The Island Race

Our war "privations" in Canada are utterly trivial when compared to what the people of Britain have had to bear, and what many of them are now facing in the evacuation of their homes.

One has rightly said that what we in Canada, spared from the cruel and devastating ravages of war, owe to "those sturdy Islanders who could not be cowed or driven into panic" is beyond all computation. They have won and richly deserve our deepest gratitude and affection. — Halifax Herald.

Slipshod Reporting

(MONTREAL STAR)

A FEW weeks ago, in a sensationally-displayed story, the Boston Herald reported that hundreds of unemployed Canadians were loafing on the streets of Quebec towns near the American border. The story was intended to prove that Canada was retaining men who might profitably have been used in the Maine woods, where a labour shortage exists.

Last week in the House of Commons the Minister of Labour denied the story in every particular. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the Boston Herald will make amends for the unfavourable publicity it gave this country. The Boston paper alleged that Canada had a labour pool existing in Canada. Mr. Mitchell denied that, too.

When the story was first published the mayors of municipalities close to the border hastened to assure the Labour Minister that the charges made were untrue. What appears to have happened is that the paper sent one of its reporters to visit the town and villages close to Maine. He naturally saw a number of men in the streets, but he appears to have approached no official person to discover why they were there; he assumed that they were unemployed, and so reported in sensational terms. Such a cursory investigation is hardly in the best tradition of either Canadian or American journalism. We do not close available sources of information to visiting journalists, and it would have been possible for the Boston reporter to have ascertained the facts had he taken the trouble to do more than trust the unreliable evidence of his own eyes.

Canada has an agreement with the United States to permit 3,500 Canadians to cut wood in the United States for munitions and pulp. We made that agreement at some sacrifice, and we have fulfilled our obligation. As Mr. Mitchell points out, 60,000 persons are engaged in woods operations in Quebec and 7,700 more are needed. Given this shortage in our own territory, we can hardly be expected to release more men to the United States. Perhaps, in the circumstances, the Boston Herald would now like to send another reporter to Quebec to report the truth.

Women In War Industry

(From MONTREAL GAZETTE)

IN recent discussions of post-war problems in English-speaking countries, the matter of women in industry has been coming considerably to the fore. Women have ably responded to the call of wartime factory duty, and it is safe to say that the magnificent production records of the United Nations could not have been achieved if women had not left their homes in large numbers and filled vital roles along the production lines.

But some day the war will be over and then the prospects of these hundreds and thousands of women will have to be considered. For a great number there will be no problem. Many a married woman will glady return to her family and her household duties; many a single girl will marry one of the returning war veterans and settle down; many another who has worked in industry largely for patriotic reasons will find occupation and recreation elsewhere.

Still, there will be large numbers who will want to go on working, and after the splendid contribution they have made in the present war their desires and ambitions for the future must be given first-rank consideration.

Mr. Ernest Bevin, Britain's Minister of Labour, recently said: "The Government called women from their homes and other occupations to war industry. We shall not forsake them when the war is over."

Senator Iva Fallis, speaking in the Canadian Senate last week, remarked that the problem cannot be lightly dismissed. "Believe it or not," she said, "there still are some prominent men in Canada today who believe the problem can be solved by shrugging their shoulders and saying 'Let them go back to the kitchen; that is where they belong.' I should like to remind any who share that sentiment that women in the first place did not choose to enter industry."

And on the same day in the Quebec Legislature, Rene Chaloult was saying that it was useless to seek to maintain civilization abroad if we were driving the "queen of the home" out of her realm into industries. This had come about because too many men had been inducted into the armed forces, he charged.

On the same day, too, in the New York Legislature, a bi-partisan sponsored bill was introduced requiring that women receive pay equal to that of men for equal work. "The principle of this bill cannot be challenged," said the New York Herald Tribune in commenting thereon. "Women's response to war's demands, and the excellent record they have made at tasks for which no previous experience or knowledge conditioned them, make clear the need to establish this principle in law."

In Australia, again on the same day, Miss Muriel Heagney, honorary secretary of the Council for Equal Pay, expressed the conviction that far reaching changes in the status of pay and opportunities for Australian women workers have been achieved by the Women's Employment Board. "Whether women stay in industry or withdraw to the home, they will demand full recognition of the value of their economic-social contribution to communal life and they will receive sympathetic consideration from the Labour Government," she said.

These happenings in different parts of the world show the widespread attention that is being given to some of the facets of this largely new problem. It is one that will require much thought and considered action in the days ahead.

Three Items of Civic Interest

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—We would like, with your permission, to mention three items of civic interest, to which we feel the attention of taxpayers of the city of Peterborough should be drawn. They are:—

1st, The civic surplus of some $37,000 from 1943. What a pleasant surprise it was to hear that this immense surplus, representing about 1½ mill on the tax rate, was on hand to commence 1944, but how much more pleasant it would have been, if the powers that be had not budgeted in such a lavish manner last year, and had allowed this sum of $37,000 to stay in the pockets of the taxpayer. This would have brought the tax rate to 28½ mills, and would have been something to boast about. However, it is rather a pleasant prospect to know that this 1½ mills reduction is there to commence the budget for 1944, and if a few more items of this nature can be found, we may have a tax rate of 25 mills for 1944. Wouldn't that be a wonderful drawing card to induce new concerns to locate in Peterborough after the war? It's worth while making an effort for.

3rd. Proposed grant of $40,000 to Nicholls Hospital from the city treasury during 1944.

On the public platform and in the press, the writers of this letter have consistently opposed the present financial set-up at Nicholls Hospital, whereby any deficit, no matter how large, is paid entirely by city taxpayers, although 40 per cent of the said deficit is caused by patients from outside the city. We have pointed out how unfair it is to expect the city taxpayer to pay, not only his own hospital expenses, but also part of the hospital expenses of every patient from outside the city, including the county of Peterborough, and elsewhere. We again wish to emphasize our stand in this matter, and to call upon all city taxpayers to insist upon a change in the present financial arrangement at Nicholls Hospital, and compel every municipality to pay the deficit which may be incurred by patients from such municipality.

When all is said and done, Peterborough taxpayers cannot carry every person's burden, and it is not right to expect it. It is difficult enough to carry our own burden without having to carry the "other fellows" particularly when the "other fellow" is well able to carry his own, and how absurd and unfair it is to expect city taxpayers to pay deficits caused by patients from the counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Northumberland and elsewhere?

There is no problem of hospital accommodation for the city of Peterborough. There IS a problem of hospital accommodation in the county of Peterborough, but the county is perfectly able to solve it without the assistance of city taxpayers, and we should let them solve it.

It cannot be stressed too strongly, that Nicholls Hospital was not established to take care of the hospital needs for that part of Ontario south of Hudson's Bay and east of Lake Simcoe. It was established to take care of the needs of the city of Peterborough, and it has taken care of those needs splendidly, and can take care of them for many years to come, even should the city grow considerably.

We would like to meet every taxpayer in the city (and that includes tenants as well as property owners) and say to them, "The deficit of $40,000 at Nicholls Hospital, is not entirely your problem. It should be shared by other municipalities, and the matter of a new Nicholls Hospital, is not your problem at all, and don't let anyone thrust it upon you."

With many thanks to you, for the use of your valuable space, we are,

Yours truly

A Bible Message

And Elihu the son of Barachel the Buzite answered and said, I am young and ye are very old; wherefore I was afraid, and durst not shew you mine opinion....

Great men are not always wise: neither do the aged understand judgment. Therefore I said, Hearken to me; I also will shew mine opinion...

Wherefore, Job, I pray thee, hear my speeches, and hearken to all my words....

The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breadth of the Almighty hath given me life.... Behold, I am according to thy wish in God's stead: I also am formed out of the clay. (Job 32: 6, 9, 10; 33: 1, 4, 6.)

Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them.... Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.

Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it. (Eccl. 12: 1, 6, 7.)

Canada The Eye-Opener

Rationing in Canada is so well-regulated that it surprises visitors from the United States. It has been in effect since the first few months of the war and the price ceilings have never budged since they were set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Supplies of butter and meat are an eye-opener to U.S. citizens. The low, almost pre-war price that prevails for these foods is another surprise to Americans. Six T-bone steaks of aged, prime beef cost about $1.65, while a four-pound pot roast comes to around $1.

Meat and butter ration coupons in Canada are separate, and they are good until the end of each month. Each person is allowed two pounds of butter a month. Shortenings, such as lard and other fats, are not rationed.

Furs have skyrocketed in price and are almost 100 per cent higher than they were last year.

But this does not bother Canadians. Their homes are warm, they are well fed and they are thriftily making their good clothing from early war days do until shops can replenish their stocks.—Chicago Sun.

Fond Recollection

Sometimes an average American, after listening with attention to a long symphony or other classical effort, is inclined to think that he has heard nothing lovelier in his life than the violin, flute and harp trio that was a feature of the excursion steamer of his youth. — Washington Star.

PRACTICE INVASION TACTICS — This 75-mm. assault gun unit of the U.S. Army is shown in action during the invasion training which American and British forces are now getting, under battle conditions in Britain. The Allied forces have been welded into a hard-hitting team with which Gen. Dwight Eisenhower is confident he can crack through the defences the Nazis have set up around Europe. As far as we know this is the first time a picture of the above gun has been released. It is mounted on an M-5 tank.

TORONTO, March 1—(CP)—On the opening day of a campaign to raise $10,800,000 for relief purposes, the Canadian Red Cross Society through its Toronto office issued a statement from Prime Minister King in which he said the present year will witness the heaviest fighting in which Canada's armed Forces have yet been engaged.

Asking Canadians to respond generously to the appeal, Mr. King said:

"The activities of the society are so varied and so beneficent that it is difficult to single out one phase of its work more than another for commendation.

"I would, however, direct special attention to the need of providing food parcels for Canadian prisoners of war, of maintaining voluntter blood donor service and of furnishing hospital supplies and comforts both for the Armed Forces and for civilian victims of the war.

"Having in mind the nature of the society's work and the needs of those to whom it ministers, I warmly commend the appeal of the Red Cross to the people of Canada."

Stitch Club Taught Need For Good Shoes

MILLBROOK, March 1 — (ENS)— The proper care of the feet, and the necessity of correctly fitted shoes, suitable as to style and time of wearing constituted the study taken up at the Saturday meeting of the 'Stitch and Wear Club', held at the home of Mrs. M. W. Ball, the leader, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, presenting the material, and also demonstrating pedicuring.

Included in the demonstration of the day was also the proper method of washing a woollen garment, and at the next gathering the repairing of rayon and silk materials will be shown. Darning on wool, and double hemstitching, were taken up, two slips were finished and two more were cut out. Already the shell hem, faggoting bias binding, and different types of sleeves, have been part of the practical work accomplished.

In the coures of the darning study, a run in a sweater sleeve, taken up with a crocket hook, was demonstrated and in the other sections under "Proper Darning," the correct way to mend a square, a round, and a three-cornered hole.

The work on the individual record book is largely done at home, because of each group meeting being regularly written in, and illustrations, cut from magazines, or wherever else procurable, showing some of the practical activities.

The World's Day of Prayer was observed in the Presbyterian Church last week, when leading parts were taken by Mrs. Clifford Hall and Mrs. Harold Tate of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Blanche Dawson of the United Church, and Miss Louise Jackson of the Anglican Church. Individual prayers were offered by Mrs. Charles Dawson, and Miss Clara Seens and Mrs. Harold Howson gave the devotional address on "Prayer."

The quilt committee, including Mrs. W. Fell, Mrs. E. Dawson, Mrs. W. Thompson, Mrs. N. Thompson, Mrs. W. Bateman and Mrs. B. Dawson, have been especially energetic in preparing quilts for sale and met at the home of Mrs. W. Bateman, quilting a basket quilt and cutting blocks for an Irish chain. Quilt tops were received as donations from Mrs. Wesley Thompson and Mrs. Arthur Bateman, for which they planned to hold a quilting at Mrs. Arthur Bateman's on Wednesday.

Zone Planning Saves Trucks

OTTAWA, March 1—(CP)—Zoned collections of milk and cream have resulted in reductions up to 44 per cent in the number of trucks used for collecting these products, with consequent large savings in gasoline, rubber and trucking equipment, the Services Administration of the Prices Board reported today in a review of operation of its order on transportation of milk and cream, issued a year ago.

The largest reduction was reported from Saskatchewan where zoned collections of churning cream were begun last May. Difficulties were experienced in Ontario and Quebec, the report said, since the greatest duplication of truck services was found in those provinces.

The order was issued as a part of a general program to conserve gasoline, rubber and trucking equipment to protect and maintain essential civilian services.

TAMBLYN
Concentrates on "B" Vitamins

National Health, or the promotion of the highest degree of Health to all individuals comprising the nation—is today receiving the greatest attention. Vitamins, of course, have a most definite place in the promotion of that National Health, as unfortunately most of us are inclined to be guided in our selection of foods rather by taste and preference than by Food or Calorie value. Our modern methods of food preparation also contribute to Vitamin deficiency, as in many cases the natural Vitamin content of our various foods is either greatly diminished or entirely dissipated. The taking of additional vitamins or vitamin compounds is, of course, the common-sense method of preventing the rather dire results which may well ensue from continued unbalanced or inadequate diets. In particular it has been found that many of us come woefully short of an adequate intake of the Complex B Vitamin (a term used to designate a particular group of Vitamins usually found together in natural foods) which exert such a definite influence on our general "well being." It has also been found that due also to our various likes and dislikes of certain foods, many of us suffer from a systemic lack of necessary minerals. From these findings the necessity of the combination of B Vitamins and Minerals was plainly seen and many such preparations have been devised. This week your Tamblyn Drug Store is featuring these products, and have included a representative number in this list of

Jimmy Bivins... top man in his trade — Lee Q. Murray... ranked No. 3

SETTLED ARGUMENT — Two of the three top men in the heavyweight division currently in action met in a 10-round return bout in Cleveland's arena Tuesday to settle an argument which began when the favorite, Jimmy Bivins, uncrowned "duration" heavy king, received the disputed verdict over Lee Q. Murray, Norwalk, Conn., battler, several weeks back. Bivins, Cleveland clouter, who has whipped every good heavyweight in the business except Joe Louis, now in the service, received a bad cut over one of his eyes in an early round of their last scrap and was forced to cover up most of the rest of the way. When he was given the decision over Murray the crowd booed and booed. Last night Bivins won by a decision.

Bob Wagner Defeats Vic Holbrook In Wild Tussle

Villany triumphed in Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena last night when the main bout came to an abrupt and, to the majority of fans, a disappointing end.

When as popular a hero as Vic Holbrook, the Pacific Coast sensation, is beaten by one of the aces of skulduggery in the person of Strangler Bob Wagner, the Portland block buster it is not to be wondered at that local wrestling enthusiasts filed sorrowfully out of the arena when it was all over.

Holbrook, after taking the first fall in 16 minutes with a quick application of his pretzel or abdominal stretch hold, ran into a barrage of punches, drop-kicks and a Wagner headlock to lose the second after five minutes. Aroused by that bit of hard luck Holbrook came back for the third round in fighting mood and for a few seconds it looked as if they were going to wind up the affair in quick order. He did too but not in the way the crowd hoped.

He sailed into the long-haired Wagner with a series of punches and body slams and had a side headlock on the Portland battler, ready to toss him again when Wagner suddenly lifted the tall Californian, raised him above his head and slammed him down squarely on the ropes. Holbrook straddled the top strand for a moment, then rolled off, struck the apron of the ring and dropped to the floor of the arena where he lay motionless.

He was obviously hurt and sympathetic fans who rushed to his assistance could not get him back to the ring. Referee Bert Maxwell counted him out after some trouble in chasing Wagner back and then raised the Portlander's arm in token of his victory. The crowd greeted the decision and the winner with a booing barrage that lasted until they changed it to a chorus of cheers as Holbrook was lifted to his feet and half-carried to the dressing-room.

A Good Bout

In spite of the unfortunate ending it was a good bout. Wagner, a seasoned campaigner who has fought about everybody and about everywhere, proved plenty tough. He not only wrestled Holbrook but fought a verbal duel with Referee Maxwell and a long-range fight with the crowd besides during that strenuous first round. Wagner was on the attack a great part of the time but Holbrook showed his usual cleverness in breaking out of jams and finally ended the round in a hurry when he got a chance to use his favorite stretch hold and the Portlander was powerless to do anything about it.

It was different in second round. Wagner was in a fighting mood when he recovered from the effects of the stretch-hold and he proceeded to give the people's choice the works. He punched the tall Californian around until he had him groggy and finally threw him with a head lock and spread to even up the battle.

As already described Holbrook's attempt to get quick revenge in the third back-fired and the slam he got on the ropes and the fall out of the ring knocked him out of a victory that he seemed well on his way to achieve.

Another Wrestling Star

The card gave the fans a chance to see another outstanding member of the wrestling profession in the person of Frank Sexton, the Ohio power-house and holder of the Pacific Coast title. Sexton, powerfully built, fast and clever, carried too much power for the Hamilton strong man, Jack Wentworth, although to give the Canadian full credit he never stopped trying and actually was the bad man of the bout, even against such an ace of the grappling art as the Columbus O. athlete.

Sexton made an instantaneous hit with the fans who cheered his adroit moves as he broke out of trouble repeatedly when Wentworth was putting on the pressure. He was satisfied to try out his opponent's repertoire in the early stages and then to demonstrate how effectively he could break when danger threatened. At last however the Coast champ decided he had enough of that kind of thing and wound up the bout in a hurry. He caught Wentworth coming off the ropes to launch a flying tackle, met him with a charge that knocked the Hamilton grappler to the mat, picked him up by the heels and gave him a giant swing, whirling him around three or four times before letting him drop with a thud on the mat. All he had to do then was to drop on the helpless Wentworth for the fall, which came in 19 minutes.

One For The Book

Last night's crowd saw something new in wrestling. They saw Referee Maxwell being pulled out of the ring by an irate spectator, who grabbed him by the leg. The official had started to count Irish Tom Collins out and he finished the count as he was being dragged out himself. Collins, a new face in local programs was stacked up against the pulverizing Pole, Jan Gotch, who belted his way to a win after 21 minutes of lively going in which Gotch lost any friends he might have had left among the fans. Jan got away with hair-pulling, elbow smashes, a neat bit of gouging and a few other unorthodox moves but Collins held his own for a long time and even retaliated with some of Gotch's own stuff. At last however the Pole declared total war on him and after a series of punches in which he held Collins with one hand while he swung hay-makers with the other he finally bowled the Irishman over and dropped on him for the fall. It was at this stage that the over-excited fan took a hand in the proceedings by trying to haul Referee Maxwell out of the picture, but the official terminated the count and then almost kicked the cigarette out of the intruder's mouth with a mule kick.

Maxwell was the very busy third man in the ring with the introduction of the wrestlers and the timing duties falling on the shoulders of Fred Scates.

In the first of a best-of-three series for the hockey championship of the Canadian Army Overseas at Brighton, England, yesterday, a reinforcement unit walloped the Camerons 8-4, the latter representing a Canadian division in the finals. Sprinkled on the line-ups of both teams were a number of former N.H.L. players, including Capt. Gordon Poirier, with Montreal Canadiens before enlistment, who scored two goals for the winners.

Also former Canadiens Lieut. Terry Reardon scored once in leading the Camerons' attack and Cpl. Ken Reardon played prominently with the winning sextette. A former member of the Bruins, Lieut. Gordie Bruce of Ottawa, played for Reinforcement Unit. Counting two goals for the losers was Pte. J. A. Cassidy of Galt, Ont.

Garden City Park at Camden, N.J., newest of the Eastern tracks, yesterday announced the addition of a $50,000 purse to the Trenton Handicap or three-year-olds August 25 in an apparent bid for big-time racing. It will be the feature event of a 50-day meeting from July 5 to September 9.

Jack Toupin, 30, was yesterday purchased by Chicago Black Hawks of the N.H.L. from the Providence Reds as a replacement at centre for Clifford (Fido) Purpur, who is out for the balance of the season with a kidney injury.

Betty Nuthall, British girl who won the U.S. women's tennis singles championship at Forest Hills in 1930, yesterday took over supervision of Union Jack clubs throughout the United States for British naval personnel after having directed the Union Jack Club at Asbury Park, N.J., for the past 18 months.

Baseball is due to boom in Mexico this season, it was reported at Mexico City last night, following the signing of Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Vera Cruz team in the 20-year-old Mexican circuit, his announced salary being $10,000. The league is arranging an international series with the Pacific Coast League champions as an annual post-season feature.

Bivins Triumphs In Ten Rounds

CLEVELAND, March 1 (AP) — Jimmy Bivins' right to wear the duration heavyweight diadem was unchallenged today after he had disposed of Lee Q. Murray in a return 10-rounder.

Lee himself paid homage to the Cleveland negro with the assertion, "he gave me a good whippin' and I don't have any alibi."

The dusky six-footer from Norwalk, Conn., had created some doubts about Bivins' superiority in the ranks of the active heavies when he almost triumphed by a technical knockout in their first tussle but Jimmy dispelled those uncertainties before a capacity crowd of 13,774 at the arena last night.

The 202½-pound Murray had an 11½-pound pull in the weights and also owned the advantage of reach and height but the Clevelander abandoned his usual style and carried the attack to his opponent.

Bivins also was the more alert warrior and it paid off in the form of a nine-count knockdown in the ninth round.

Quebec Aces Stopped

MONTREAL, Mar. 1 (CP) — The powerful Quebec Aces, who won 15 straight games in the present Quebec Senior Hockey League schedule were finally stopped by Montreal Royals who were terminating their home schedule here tonight.

Gaye Stewart's solo rush through the Quebec defense late in the overtime period was resonsible for Royals' hard-fought 7-6 victory over the Aces.

King George School are champions of the Public School Hockey League—and worthy champions for they have gone through the regular schedule and the playoffs undefeated and have prove themselves the ace club of the school loop during the current season. The Ashburnham representatives cleaned up the final series in two straight games last night when they defeated the game King Edward team, the runners up by 3 goals to 0. King Edward tried hard but their best was not good enough to hold the unbeaten King George team who have played smart hockey all season and won their games by convincing margins throughout the regular schedule and then finished up by refusing to allow a goal in the two playoff games. King Edward, too, deserve a lot credit for their performance. Not conceded much of a chance at the beginning of the season the boys from the south-end school battled their way into second place and earned a berth in the final and then gave the new champions two of the hardest games they have had all season. The league has had a good year and uncovered some very promising material. The regrettable feature is that for the present at least there is no O.H.A. hockey here for the youngsters who are being developed.

As the Ladies' City Five Pin League started away on the third section of its schedule Monday night Westclox who have been setting the pace recently drew further away from the second-place Outboard Marines and have now opened up a lead of six points with a total of 48 as against 42 for the Outboards. The Big Bens who have been riding along for weeks taking a clean sweep from all opponents grabbed off three games from the Lucky Strikes while the best the Outboard Marines could do by way of reply was to take two out of three from the third-place Brintons. The best team bowling of the week was not however done by the leaders but by the Generals who put together a total of 2851 in winning three games from the Beavers. The Outboards also passed the 2,800 mark piling up 2,817. Individual honors for the week were scored by Marion Timm of the Outboards who had high three with 730. Although on the whole the quality of the bowling in the loop slipped a bit this week there were some fine performances. M. Johnston also climbed into the 700 circle with a score of 705 and there were six bowlers in the 600 class.

How He Was Signed

Art Ross has been telling Ottawa newspapermen of how he came to sign Goalie Frankie Brimsek and the story is worth repeating for the benefit of local fans. Here it is: "Tiny Thompson came to me one day and said that if I could line up a young goaler, the fellow could play a game here and there until he found himself. 'I'd bewilling to take less money if you carry an extra goaler so that I can have the odd rest.' Thompson told me. "Well, a scout tipped me off about Brimsek, who was with Detroit Holzbaughs in the Michigan-Ontario League, and we grabbed him. I used to get out on the ice every so often and take about 25 snap shots at Thompson from close range to see how many I could get past him. One day, after Brimsek arrived, I stationed them at opposite ends of the rink. I beat Thompson about six times and then turned to Brimsek. It took me about 35 shots to get one past Brimsek and I knew I had a goaler. Incidentally," Ross grinned, "Thompson forgot all about his decision to take less dough when the next year rolled around. I eventually sold him to Detroit when the Wings found themselves in need of a goal-tender. We gave Thompson a good bonus when he left us and paid Jack Adams a small sum for Brimsek because Adams claimed Detroit had some kind of a string on Brimsek. Adams actually wasn't entitled to any money but Brimsek was worth 25 times what we paid Detroit."

Kingston hockey authorities are having themselves quite a time planning ways and means to get together enough funds to finance the Hockey Hall of Fame to be established in the Limestone City. At that however they are not doing too badly for a number of professional teams have already rallied to their support and other games are in the offing. Toronto Maple Leafs are not among those who have up to now lent a helping hand to the Kingston authorities. Probably they believe that the Hall of Fame should be established in the lobby of Maple Leaf Gardens. Anyway Bill Walshe says of the latest moves toward financing the proposition: "Kingston's senior soldier team will return to hockey arms tonight with a workout in preparation for the game next Saturday with Toronto Navy in aid of the Hockey Hall of Fame. An invitation had been extended to Canadiens, N.H.L. leaders, to visit but Manager Tommy Gorman replied that all open dates between now and playoff time were booked. The Canadiens have exhibitions arranged in Ottawa and in Quebec, but Manager Gorman promised to come to Kingston again. Kingston Hockey Hall of Fame officials will meet Leo Dolan today and appeal for help from the Canadian bureau of tourist travel. The hockey shrine should develop into a big attraction for visitors from across the border as well as Canada."

Cannot Hope To Win

No Peterborough skier can hope to become a world champion according to Dink Carroll of the Montreal Gazette who quotes George Larsen, Montreal expert. In the first place he cannot win because he doesn't live in the country and secondly he can't win because he lives in the East. Anyway the article is interesting. Says Carroll: "George is no great believer in the possibilities of city-born and city-bred youths as future champions. They ski only during the season and vegetate for the rest of the year. The winners in the early history of ski races in Europe were university undergraduates, he told us. But in recent years the prizes have all gone to skiers from rural districts....fellows who worked hard all the year round. The Wurtele girls are standouts here because they are all-around athletes. They are always in condition. George says that if a Canadian finishes on top in the world's championship races in Europe at some future date he will not come from this part of the country. He will come from the West, George states flatly. He will have learned his skiing in the Rockies. The Rockies are more like the mountains in Europe and the courses over there won't seem so different to him. Remember Louis Cochand? He was a fine skier and he used to win regularly in competition around here. But when he went to Europe and entered the competitions he always finished among the last. You couldn't expect him to win. Conditions were too different."

Despite a gallant effort by the crippled Bill Cowley who fired one goal and helped to set up two more Boston Bruins were beaten 7 to 2 at home by the Toronto Leafs last night and their chances of making a playoff berth dwindled considerably. In spite of the lowly position of Art Ross's club 12,630 fans saw them taken into camp. Bill Calladine started the Bruins off on the right foot by scoring the first goal early in the opening period but Carr and Boothman snapped in two goals for the Leafs before the end of the period and Toronto ran in four more more in a row in the second session before Cowley registered the second Bruin goal. Both teams scored once each in the final period. Boston are six points behind the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks and have played one game more so that their hopes of entering the playoffs were practically extinguished last night.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: History repeated itself at Boston last night when Goalie Bert Gardner of the Bruins was officially given an assist on a goal scored by Bill Cowley. Gardner passed up to centre ice to Cowley who went down and scored....Tiny Thompson, former Boston goalie was the only other N.H.L. net guardian who was ever given an assist....Roughhouse Dick Hogan who wrestled here on many occasions in recent months is now filling a series of mat engagements in Texas.... New York Yanks have signed a 16-year-old Allentown, Pa., schoolboy pitcher....Jim Hopper, the right-hander who won 16 games for the Toronto Leafs last season has signed his contract with the Pittsburg Pirates.

Spring Training To Start Mar. 20

ST. LOUIS, March 1 (AP)—The National League Champion St. Louis Cardinals and the Browns of the American League joined today in postponing the start of spring training until March 20 to allow more time in getting their squads together.

The Browns' pitchers and catchers were to have reported at Cape Girardeau, Mo., March 10, with the other players due March 13. The Cardinals had set March 15 for the start of their training at Cairo, Ill.

Asked if the postponement indicated some doubt about baseball this season, President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals said: "No, you have to be an optimist in this business and I am optimistic about the prospects. We will certainly have a team on the field for the start of the schedule April 18."

However, Breadon and William O. Dewitt, vice-president of the Browns, agreed the cubs were in the dark about the number of players who would be available and both said this uncertainty was only reason for the training delay.

Sign School Boy

ALLENTOWN, Ha. (AP) — The New York Yankees yesterday signed Johnny Kimock, 16-year-old High School boy who played first base for the State American Legion Junior Baseball champions in 1942. Kimock will report after he leaves school in June. St. Louis Cards, Philadelphia Phillies and Cleveland Indians were all trying to secure his services.

Hornsby Signs To Manage Mexican Team

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—(AP). —Rogers Hornsby's signing as the 1944 manager of Vera Cruz in the Mexican Baseball League gave the circuit its biggest publicity boost in the United States just as the 20-year-old loop was enjoying its greatest popularity at home.

Prior to the Rajah's signing the Moguls had limited the number of foreigners on a team to five instead of six because of the tremendous interest among the home-talent athletes and an all-Mexican staff of umpires was hired for the first time.

Prospects Rosy.

On the whole, the season which opens March 16 has rosy prospects. Parks have been enlarged, lineups bolstered and franchises moved to within easy travelling distance of United States fans.

Jorge Pasquel, president of both the Vera Cruz Club, and of the league, said he "immediately accepted" Hornsby's salary terms, reported to be $10,000. It is the record salary in a loop where the players' pay averages $150 monthly and the team limit a month is $2,400.

Mexico City's Delta Park, home lot of both the Vera Cruz nine and the Mexico City Reds, has been enlarged to accommodate 16,000 spectators. At Nuevo Laredo, across the Rio Grande from Laredo, Tex., a large plant has been erected and the management is negotiating with Marty McManus, formerly with the Boston Red Sox, as leader.

The league's commissioner, Col. Octavio Rueda Magro, has proposed an annual international series between the league champions and the Pacific Coast circuit.

"I believe we play about Class AA ball," he commented.

Canadians Whip Lindsay Team For Fell Trophy

LINDSAY, Ont., March 1 — (ENS)— Two fast games were played at the Lindsay Arena, semi-finals of the Fell Cup last night as Peterborough Canadians defeated Lindsay Arsenal 5-4 and Oshawa City Ice defeated Lindsay Silverwoods, 6-1.

In the first game Peterborough took a little time to get started and Arsenal had a 3-1 lead at the end of the first period. However with a line up with Tompkins, Heal, Burton and Godfrey, on it your never beaten till the final bell. These boys of Peterborough's last year's senior team held their own in the second period, each team tallying once but in the third they scored three times to put the game in their pockets.

Lindsay Arsenals stayed with Peterborough right up until the last but the speed of the Quaker City team was too much for them to contend with. Fisher in the Lindsay nets was a standout as was his team mates Deyell, Roy Crawford, Jack Crawford and Williamson. For Peterborough, Tompkins, Heal, Burton and Godfrey were good.

Line-up:

Peterborough: Goal, Jones; defence, Godfrey and Burton; centre, Brooks; wings, Tompkins and Heal. Subs: Barnes, Hodgson, Kennedy and Roberts.

Lindsay: Goal, Fisher; defence, Kelly and Williamson; centre, Roy Crawford; wings, Jack Crawford and Jack Hood. Subs: Eakins, M. Hood, Lucas, C. Gerver, Cub Gerver, Deyell, Bradley, Huston and Chatan.

Peterboro, Tompkins (Heal). 18.23

Second Game.

The second game was a rougher game with the checking being very hard. A couple of fights were started in the third period but nothing much came of either of them.

Silverwoods drew first blood after a little over four minutes of play but seemed to fall apart and Oshawa walked well over them. Sequire in the Lindsay nets saved too many goals to mention, playing a sensational game in guarding the Lindsay nets. For Oshawa Locke and Lawson were very good.

Line-up:

Oshawa: Goal, Nash; defence, Locke and Demerse; centre, Marsh; wings, Trim and Lawson; subs, Jenkins and Rocker.

Silverwoods: Goal, Sequire; defence, Grills and Kelly; centre, Gassien; wings, Coombs and Workman. Subs: Green, Karrs, Sproule, Crowley, Western, Deyell, Schell, Growden.

Cowley Returns To Gain Three Points

BOSTON, March 1.— (CP).— A berth in the post-season Stanley Cup series still was a distant vista to-day for Boston Bruins.

Despite a three-point performance by Bill Cowley in his second game since Jan. 8, the bruised Bruins suffered their 12th defeat in 15 starts last night by a 7-3 count to Toronto Maple Leafs, who thereby shattered a third-place deadlock with Chicago Black Hawks.

Ted Kennedy, stick-handling young centre from Port Colborne, Ont., scored two goals as Leafs drew eight points ahead of Bruins, who have only eight games in which to overhaul either Toronto or Chicago for fourth place, the League's last play-off berth.

Cowley, side-lined for several weeks with a shoulder injury and subsequently with a knee ailment, had dropped from first to 10th place in the individual scoring race prior to last night. Flanked by new linemates in youthful Norm Calladine and Armand (Bep) Guidolin, he pumped one goal past Paul Bibeault and weaved plays for two others to vault into seventh place in the point-getting pool, one ahead of Carl Liscombe and Joe Carveth of Detroit.

Cowley's former partners, Buzz Boll and Herb Cain, were centred by Art Jackson and the line went pointless, but Cain retained his hold on the scoring leadership three points ahead of Lorne Carr of Leafs. Carr scored his first goal in four games last night.

Other Toronto scorers were Elwin Morris, George Boothman, Gus Bodnar and Russ Johnston, replacing Tommy O'Neill on Toronto's kid line with Jackie Hamilton and Don Webster. Calladine, Cowley and Guidolin scored for Boston.

The 12,000 crowd saw a freakish development late in the second period when Bert Gardiner, Boston goalie, was credited with an assist. He stopped a long shot and passed through a clear lane to centre ice, where Cowley gained possession and stickhandled through for a scoring shot.

Toronto—Goal, Bibeault; defense, R. Hamilton, Pratt; centre, Bodnar; wings, Carr, Davidson; subs, Poile, Boothman, Kennery, Morris, Johnstone, Webster, J. Hamilton.

Boston—Goal, Gardiner; defense, Egan, Clapper; centre, A. Jackson; wings, Boll, Cain; subs, Cowley, Guidolin, Calladine, Labrie, H. Jackson, Brennan, Schmidt.

Second Period

NEW YORK, March 1 — (AP)— Latest Dodger rumor is that two wealthy manufacturers of radio and communications equipment — one from Boston and one from Chicago —are gathering information preparatory to making a bid for the club....Maybe they're interested in Leo Durocher's way of broadcasting without a microphone.....Auburn, which may sign Pete Cawthon as head coach most any day, is the only South-eastern Conference school that lost its entire football staff to the armed forces.

Well named:

Recent mention of Battling Nelson's full name — Oscar Mathew Battling Nelson—reminded C. G. Abbey of Geneva, N.Y., of his conversation with the Battler's father when Nelson fought Jimmy Britt in 1905 (the only time Nelson beat Britt)....Between rounds Abbey asked the elder Nelson how he came to name his famous son "Battling."......"The old gentleman smiled," Abbey relates, "and said in his broken Danish: 'Well, when he was a baby in the cradle he was always making his arms flail about and we knew he was going to be a battler, so we named him Battling.' ....Just about then Nelson knocked Britt for a goal."

One minute sports page:

Mel Ott, who went to work in a New Orleans shipyard at the close of the 1943 baseball season (to forget, maybe?) has been granted his release so he can manage the Giants again......Although the build-up for Friday's Beau Jack-Bob Montgomery lightweight "title" fight includes minimizing Bob's recent knockout by Al Davis, Nat Fleischer held a stopwatch on that one and claims Montgomery actually was down for 25 seconds.

King George Wins Hockey Title

King George School won the Public School Hockey League championship Tuesday evening when they defeated King Edward 3 goals to 0 in the second game of the final series and thus won the title in two straight games.

The battle, staged at the C.G.E. rink, was even more closely fought than the first clash between the two finalists although the score on end was one goal larger. The King Edward team, lighter than their opponents battled all the way and were not beaten until well on into the final period.

There was no score in the first two sessions and the last stanza was running out rapidly before the Ashburnham youngsters finally beat Byers in the King Edward nets. Anderson, left-winger of the winners was the successful marksman and that was the hockey game. Forced to open up in an attempt to sink the equalizer the King Edward kids opened the way for two more King George goals, both from the stick of Anderson, to put away the game and championship. The winners were quick to take advantage of the opportunity when it was offered to them and Anderson's feat in performing the hat trick made the win certain.

It was hard, fast and clean hockey, with both teams earning brackets for a good performance. Beavis in the King George nets was a standout in both games, refusing to yield a goal while the first string forward line of Miller, Stock and Anderson turned in a great card. For the first time this season Stock failed to find the nets but he was in on a couple of goals and was always a threat. There was no particular star on the losers' lineup, although Byers in the nets again covered himself with glory and Lawson at centre played fine hockey in spite of hard luck when in a scoring position.

King George: Goal, Beavis; defence, Swanston, Van Allen; centre, Stock; wings, Miller, Anderson; subs, Thompson, Ferguson, Crowder.

King Edward: Goal, Byers; defence, Riches, Murray; centre, Lawson; wings, Floyd, Eakins; subs, Bartley, Dibden, Robinson, Dolan.

Claims Dentist Choked Wrestler

CHARLOTTE, N.C., March 1. — (AP)—Dr. Henry C. Parker, a dentist, and Lee Sikes, dental laboratory operator, were indicted on murder charges yesterday as a result of the death Jan. 29 of Jim Clinstock, Indian wrestler from Oklahoma.

Solicitor John G. Carpenter said he planned to seek conviction of Parker and Sikes on either second degree murder or manslaughter charges.

The State has indicated it would contend that the 240-pound wrestler was strangled to death with a towel in the dental laboratory of which Sikes is a co-owner after an outburst in which he was alleged to have struck and kicked some women in the office.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, March 1 — (CP).— Some persons regard the bicycle as a somewhat archaic vehicle now manufactured chiefly for use of drug store delivery boys. Anyone desiring an exciting half-hour and without regard for physical well-being, should express the aforementioned opinion to a sportsman cyclists.

Mention the world's outstanding sports without due reference to cycling and bicycle Bill Gladish of Toronto, former secretary of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association, will eye you sternly and deliver a half-hour lecture. By that time you know better than to argue.

"In fact," says Bill, "with all the talk of sport shrines and Halls of Fame, I might as well crowd in a suggestion for a memorial for the bicycle pastime. You can make it either Montreal, where the Montreal Bicycle Club (later the famous M.A.A.A.) was formed in 1878, or Chatham where the C.W. A. was organized in 1882 by the late Dr. Perry Doolittle, of Aylmer, Ont."

Gladish gave out with the facts of bicycling life. Among the first cycle clubs in Canada, in the early '80s, was the Wanderers Bicycle Club of Toronto. P. D. Ross was president until he moved to Ottawa to become a newspaper publisher. There he sponsored the Ottawa Bicycle Club.

First bicyclists in Canada were reputed to be the late Tom Lane of Montreal and Doolittle, both in 1876 The latter made the first recorded country trip when he pedalled 40-odd miles from Aylmer to Strathroy via St. Thomas, Ont. The old C.W.A. started the good roads movement with the slogan, "We want good roads."

The first bicycle track meet was started at London, Ont., in 1882; St. Thomas introduced the sport the same year and eventually the C.W.A. championships became an annual July 1 fixture on the banked track at Waterloo, Ont.

The late Ald. Louis Rubenstein of Montreal was perennially president of the C.W.A. In 1901 he went by train to Vancouver to referee an important card, spending less than half a day in that city to officiate. There were board tracks at Toronto, Montreal, and elsewhere; society vied for places in the "Diamond Row" at six-day races; prizes for road races varied from a six-roomed house, thoroughbred horses, diamond-studded medals to five-foot silver cups.

An event to stir imagination was the early bicycle tour of Europe led by such Toronto enthusiasts as the late Harry Ryrie, A. F. Webster, and Howard Chandler.

Yep. Grampaw even did his courtin' on a tandem.

was unclothed for an autopsy by Dr. C. B. Waite. He said he noticed a small wound in the back near the spine. At the Hubert house on Monday, November 22, he sifted the ashes in the kitchen stove and found pieces of broken plate and an empty .22 calibre shell.

A month after the autopsy he received from Dr. Waite a bullet which was produced in court.

Rifle Produced

Witness also produced a .22 rifle which he got from Inspector Storey on December 20. He took the rifle bullet and empty shell to Staff Sergeant Churchman of the R.C.M.P., Ottawa, on January 3.

"They were returned to me just a few minutes ago," witness said. He also gave to Inspector Storey the sweater that was taken from Hubert's body.

"From Comstock's that Saturday night I went back to Hubert's, fastened the windows and padlocked the door. Inspector Storey arrived at noon the next day, Sunday.

Mr. Bradshaw: "I believe you investigated some hunters who were out in the neighborhood that Saturday afternoon?"—"I did later."

"They were using .22 rifles?"—"Yes."

'Do you recall Mrs. Hubert saying her husband had said to her before she went to Little's, 'It's not your fault'?"—"No sir; she did not say it in my presence."

Witness said the window in the bedroom would not stay up without something under it.

Mr. Bradshaw: "When did you decide it was a case of murder?"—"When we found the bullet hole in his back early Sunday morning."

No Suspicion Of Woman

"When did you first have a suspicion of the accused?"—"I didn't have any suspicion."

To Mr. Hope in re-examination, witness said the ground outside the bedroom window was soft that Saturday night. He examined it carefully but there were not footprints near the bedroom window.

"I spent about an hour going over the ground that night, because there was a suggestion that Hubert might have been killed by a shot that came through the open window."

Mrs. Hubert had told Mr. Little, her neighbor, the bedroom window was open when she returned from the barn to the house; and her husband was lying on the floor near the window.

Inspector Storey

Inspector Storey said he arrived in Peterborough about noon Sunday, November 21, to take charge of the enquiry into Hubert's death. He had his first conversation with the accused that afternoon at her home when she arrived about half an hour after the witness and Constables Morris and McClure reached there.

"Mrs. Hubert told me she and her husband started for Peterborough about 1 p.m. Saturday with the horse and buggy. On the way the horse went lame. Hubert got out to walk the rest of the way to the city, and she turned the horse around and drove back home. Her husband returned about 6.30 p.m. They had supper together. She got up to go to the barn to do some chores, leaving him sitting at the table.

Mrs. Hubert told me she got back to the house in about twenty minutes. When she opened the kitchen door she felt a draft. Her husband wasn't in the kitchen. She heard a noise in the bedroom. It sounded something like a groan, or she thought it might be the cat. It was dark in the room. She went in and found her husband lying on his back on the floor close to the window. The window was open. She said her husband had one foot on the window sill and the other on a rocking chair. She said she asked him what was wrong. "All he said was 'back,' and was groaning." She said she tried to make him comfortable and then went to Little's to get help. When she got back to the house with Mr. Little and Leo Whibbs she said "John was dead."

Inspector Storey said he noticed a butcher knife and some dishes on the kitchen table, and there were some broken dishes on the floor. Mrs. Hubert told him the cat was on the table. She made a sweep at the cat to put it off, and knocked a dish or two onto the floor.

Mr. Hope: "Did you have any suspicion of Mrs. Hubert up to that time?—"No, sir."

"If she had put on her hat and coat, and left what would you have done?"—"I'd have let her go."

Witness said two men had boarded at the house for a short time during the summer, and his suspicion turned to one of them.

Accompanied by several constables Storey went back to the Hubert place on Monday, November 22, to make a general search. At that time he knew the result of the postmortem, although the bullet had not been located in Hubert's body.

Mr. Hope: "Did the new fact of the shooting change your mind toward Mrs. Hubert?"—"No, sir."

Storey said to the accused: "Do you know your husband was shot in the back?" Her answer was "No; I certainly wouldn't shoot my husband. I think too much of him."

"Constable Morris showed me the 'fired shell' he found in the ashes of the kitchen stove. I asked Mrs Hubert if she knew anything about it. She said: "I've told you all I know," and walked out. When she came back she told me she was married to Hubert in Toronto in September, 1938. She was keeping a rooming house in Toronto. Then they went to Bancroft."

"Mrs. Hubert was moving about doing some kitchen work. I again referred to the empty shell and said: "Are you sure you can't throw some light on it?" She paused and said to me: "If you put the reporters and police out of here, I'll tell you everything from the start."

Storey said that even then he did not suspect Mrs. Hubert of the shooting. "She took me into the front room. I noticed several bags of potatoes in there."

At that point Mr. Justice Hope asked the jury to retire.

Park Hill Road School Opened

The new school, situated in the Park Hill Road Wartime Housing area, were opened this morning when about 64 pupils ranging from kindergarten to Grade 2 pupils, moved from Queen Mary School to the building which is much closer to their homes.

Last fall when the congestion at Queen Mary School became desperate, the Board of Education approached War Time Housing requesting that they erect a two-roomed school as they had in other cities for the junior children in the Park Hill Road section. They agreed to and the building is now in use. All the pupils have been transferred from Queen Mary School and no new pupils are being accepted in the beginners class, until September.

The Junior room, in charge of Mrs. Leo Copp, whose room was closed at the other school, is divided between kindergarten and Grade 1. They are using a new type of furniture here, tables and chairs which are a primary type, unlike kindergarten. Four children sit at each table and there is a place for their books and rulers. Inspector Wightman said this morning they are trying an experiment with the kindergarten. Instead of coming for half a day, the children are to attend for a while in both the morning and the afternoon. They will be in class from 9 o'clock until 10.30 in the morning and in the afternoon from 1.30 until 2.45. This plan is being followed because of the Grade 1 pupils. The second room is divided between Grade 1 and Grade 2 pupils, and is in charge of Mrs. Doris Brotherston, a supply teacher.

Inspector Wightman told the Board of Education Tuesday night that he would like them to suggest a name for the new school, because Wartime Housing School sounded too awkward.

350 Chicks Are Lost In Fire

LAKEFIELD, March 1 —(ENS)— Three hundred and fifty two-months-old chickens were destroyed in a fire about 2 o'clock this morning when a stove in the brooder house of Charles Bennington set the building on fire and turned it into a mass of flames. Only the gallant efforts of the Fire Department, which sent out two trucks and all its men under Chief Allan Clarke, prevented the flames from spreading to the Bennington home and saved a large hen house which contained 150 laying hens.

Mr. Bennington, who lives near the northeastern boundary of the village, said he had inspected the stove at 11 o'clock and that everything was in perfect order then. Less than three hours later the building was going up in flames.

Penny Drive Totals $142

After two days of the penny drive in the Peterborough schools in aid of the Red Cross and Community Fund, donations lag $16.30 behind what they were for the same period a year ago, and authorities are hoping that the youngsters will take a spurt and put themselves ahead of the record.

Queen Mary School was ahead in Tuesday's donations with $9.48, but Prince of Wales leads the schools in the cumulative total with $18.48 as against Queen Mary's $17.54. The Collegiate more than doubled their first day's collection and St. Mary's Convent dropped slightly.

Board Of Education Adopts Plan Of Superannuation Of Teachers

A plan of superannuation for remunerating teachers for long service in Peterborough, quite apart from any other superannuation now in force, was adopted by the Board of Education Tuesday night with the stipulation that the applicant must have served this community for at least 20 years.

Four plans were submitted for consideration and after careful study the Board, on a motion by Alex Sollitt and T. J. Carley, decided to adopt the following plan. Teachers will be retired at the age of 62 for women and 65 for men with the possibility of extension from one to three years, but no more, to be granted annually at the discretion of the Board, for the purpose of qualifying for their grade and pensions. After retiring they will receive annual payments equivalent to a certain amount times the number of years service in Peterborough, said terms to be decided and all subject to whatever regulations may be adopted.

Although the general plan has been adopted, many matters have yet to be decided, and the plan was turned over to the Supervision Committee which is to report at the next meeting. Among things which they will have to settle are when the plan is to go into force; how much will the teachers be granted per year, the age limit when a teacher may start; the maximum to be received under the plan.

Four plans outined

The four plans outlined were as a basis for investigation. The first one recommended that teachers be retired at 62 and 65 for women and men. After retirement they would receive annual payments sufficient to raise the Ontario Pensions to the following levels: Public school women, $1,000; Public School men, $1,250; Public School principals, $1,500; Collegiate women, $1,200; Collegiate men, $1,500; provided that in no case shall the payment exceed $400. A second one had much the same terms with the addition that teachers were allowed one to three years extension to qualify for Grade A Ontario Pensions.

Another plan presented gave the same retiring age for teachers, with the idea that they would receive annual payments equivalent to $1 times the number of years service in Peterborough times a number to be decided later. The final factor not being chosen, did not appear in the calculations. It was this plan with the addition of extensions of one to three years for qualifying for Grade A pensions, that was finally adopted. Members also felt that this plan should include the public school inspector and the Collegiate principal, and their names will be added.

After careful consideration, members of the Board declared that in the long run, this superannuation scheme would save money. They agreed that in some years the outlay would be large, but that in others comparatively small, and that not only would it balance up, but would accrue a surplus. C. S. Browne, who with Inspector K. Wightman, worked out the plans, said that the increase in the rate for tax payers would be so small as to be almost negligible, in any one year. Teachers retiring at a maximum salary would be replaced with those at a lower rate.

Increased Efficiency

Another of the prime motives behind the scheme was the idea of the increased efficiency which it will produce. It was emphasized that the Board must be assured of the efficiency of the applicant before any extension would be granted and that the members must be in a position to say no, if the teacher could not measure up to the required standard.

Mr. Browne pointed out that such a scheme as had been adopted would make it harder for other schools to get Peterborough's good teachers. It would also, he pointed, make it harder on those found to be inefficient.

"It might be well to consider a maximum age for hiring teachers. It would work well with the plan," Inspector Wightman suggested.

"Such a rule is in force in some places now. In Ottawa, I believe the maximum hiring age is 35 years," Mr. Browne added.

"I think we should have a maximum age," G. W. Craw, chairman of the Board, agreed.

"I don't think it's the right thing to do. You are freezing a teacher in a position for good," Mr. Sollitt interupted and he was backed up by Mr. Carley.

Maximum Age Limit

Mr. Craw suggested that the age limit might be set at 43 and 45. Mr. Sollitt immediately differed, pointing out that there might be an outstanding man of 48 or 50 needed for a senior position and such a rule would mean a distinct loss to the community. H. G. Walker held the same opinion, and added that in some future time, it might be necessary to bring in a high school principal, and age might count there.

"I don't think you would need a rule, for with the plan you have in mind, the tendency would be to hire younger teachers," Mr. Browne declared.

The Supervision committee is meeting next Wednesday to draft the regulations, which will be submitted to the Board. It was felt that an intensified study of the general plan was needed before just terms could be achieved.

The report of the Supervision committee was read by D. V. Canning. He reported that the committee had made a thorough investigation, of the proposed Teachers' Profession Act and approved of it with the following changes most important (1) that the Board have the right to employ any duly qualified teacher and (2) that the Board have the authority to employ qualified teachers for occasional supply, who are not actively engaged in the teaching profession and who are therefore not members of the Federation. If such teachers have taught the equivalent of 20 teaching days in any calendar year, they would be required to assume the responsibilities of membership and pay their fees accordingly on a pro rata basis. The board would also make it compulsory for all teachers to belong to the federation.

The idea of radios in the school was laid aside for the present on a "no action" motion by Mr. Canning and F. J. Reed. A request from G. Reader for the use of the Collegiate auditorium for the week of May 7 for a group of Christian business men. This was agreed to with the rent set at $105. This is in agreement with the new regulations governing use of the auditorium, which have just been revised by this committee.

In urging the adoption of the revised auditorium rules, the committee suggested that F. E. Johnston be paid $5 for any night when he has to take complete charge of the stage and other property at the time the auditorium is being used by an outside organization, other than schools.

A copy of the agreement prepared by the Board's solicitor, J. F. Strickland, whereby the Board of Education can collect its share of the money owed on the Hatton property for educational purposes, has been forwarded to Wartime Housing for their approval, on a motion by Mr. Reed and Mr. Walker. The secretary was also asked to write the Peterborough M. P. P., Harold Scott, requesting a copy of the bill before the Legislature on Wartime Housing.

Keene Young People Plan Skating Party

KEENE, March 1—(ENS). — The Young People's Society held its regular meeting on Sunday evening, with Tom Gall in charge. It was decided to hold a social evening on March 3, and if weather warrants there will be skating on the local rink. The topic was in charge of Lois Humphries on the subject, "Christian Citizenship," with Agnes Nelson and Lenore Mather assisting. An interesting Bible quiz was held with the meeting divided into two sides. Next Sunday evening former members will be in charge of the meeting, which promises to be an interesting program.

MADE PILOT OFFICER—Melford Gummer, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gummer, Warkworth, received his wings at Brantford last week, and has also been made a pilot officer. He was born in Milestone, Sask., but when he was a year old, moved to Warkworth. PO. Gummer attended Warkworth Continuation School for three years and then took a machinists's course at Belleville. Before enlisting in the R.C.A.F. in 1942, he was employed for about a year at the C.G.E. here. He took his training at Toronto, St. Catharines and Brantford.

Strano Is Refused Leave To Appeal

The Ontario Appeal Court has given judgment in a local case of considerable interest when it refused leave on Monday to B. R. Strano to appeal against his conviction by Judge Smoke here on January 12 on a charge under the Wartime Prices and Trade regulations of having sold potatoes to a local retail store at a price higher than the ceiling price.

When Strano was originally charged the case was dismissed in police court by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

An appeal was made to the county judge and Judge Smoke found Strano guilty of the offence.

His council W. J. A. Fair thereupon applied to the Ontario Appeal Court for leave to appeal against the county's judge's decision.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. appeared for the prosecution here and at the appeal hearing J. D. Arnup of Toronto acted.

The Appeal Court after hearing arguments on the merits on behalf of the appellant refused leave to appeal without calling on counsel for the crown. There was no order as to costs.

A number of other similar charges against Strano and also against his wife have been adjourned from time to time in police court pending the result of the appeal.

Sign Petition Against Park

Opposition to the suggested National Park for the northern part of Peterborough county continues to increase as owners of property in the district affected realize what would be involved if the proposed development were to be undertaken. Petitions opposing the plan have been distributed and it is expected that in a short time they will be largely signed.

Copies have been placed in Brown's store, Apsley, Shearer's at Buckhorn, B. Simpson's store, Rockcroft, N. A. Moore's store, Lakefield, J. Jopling's, Bridgenorth, and Kingan's Hardware Store, the Empress Hotel and Chamber of Commerce, Peterborough.

WEAPONS OF GLASS.

Savings Clubs Add $20 To Good Record

When the Stamp Out Hitler clubs first commenced to operate, there was little idea that this relatively speaking small number of people would be responsible for the raising of over $1,000 to help with the financing of the war, let alone the fact that by so doing they also would raise over $250 to send on its way to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

Yet that is the picture today, for their latest contribution of $20.00 to fund recorded in today's receipts gives them a total credit of $256.50, while by the same token they have now purchased a total of $1,024.00 worth of War Savings Certificates by this means.

Centering around Bob Everitt who has put so much enthusiasm and work into this work to advance the sale of War Savings Stamps and incidentally give a boost to the fund, the Kiwanis Club this time take a double part by holding two draws each week for the past three weeks from which the winners were W. Derry, Dr. McKee, Stan Longhurst, Jack Comstock, whose very young son as a guest drew his father's name, Morley Heard and Jack Sinclair. Some of the club members think that Stan Longhurst carries a rabbit's foot around, since he has won on a number of occasions.

Canada Packers in at Start

The most consistent and steady work can be attributed to the Canada Packers Club, who have been in this worthy work from its very inception, and they never miss, for excellent leadership is given by Nurse Yelland, who in this report also happens to be a winner with H. E. Ellis and D. Ellis, while this time the office staff ran a draw on their own which had Miss McCauley as its winner.

Then a new club at Ackerman's led by Roy Everett, gives every promise of doing a splendid work for since last reporting they have made four draws giving the prizes to Ron Davies, Roy Simons, J. Learr and Edna Thompson who turned up a winner after feeling badly over being missed from the restricted number the draw allows on the previous week.

Then the Empress Hotel comes to life in this worthy work again with three winners, which included W. Metherall, C. Wasson and M. Pringle, the latter of whom as a winner has turned in the hat trick. While Bob Everitt himself drew a lucky one in the City Men's Bowling League.

Selkirk's Men's Store Club is a consistent worker, and this time they report W. Fitzgerald as winner, and a club at the C.G.E. Co. Ltd. had J. Sands as its winner to make up the full number of clubs from each of whom $1.00 was received to make up the total amount credited in their names.

The penny box located at the Bell Telephone Office on Hunter street is among one of the better producers in this type of fund activity. Today its regular monthly collection is recorded at $3.00, which reached that amount through the interest of B. Conley the cashier, and now gives them a total credit of $106.73.

Finance Committee Recommends Paying $28,540 Hospital Deficit

Nicholls Hospital Board will not receive this year any relief from the city council toward its estimated deficit of $42,000 on its 1944 operation.

That was the decision of the finance committee of the council on Tuesday night, with Alderman Cotton presiding.

A resolution by Mayor Hamilton, seconded by Alderman Glover, approved payment to the board of $28,540, the operating deficit for 1943, including $1,225 for a laundry wringer.

The committee declined to contribute some $4,500 for repairs this year, interior and exterior painting and reshingling a section of the roof.

The attitude of the council has been that it is not required to make any progress payments to the board during the year. The trustees had informed the council of the estimated deficit for 1944 and had suggested that this amount be paid in monthly instalments.

Alderman Sands remarked that if the board went ahead with the painting the council would have to pay for it next year.

"I'd like to help them to that extent of getting the painting job done this year," Mayor Hamilton said, proposing total payment of $30,000.

"I'd like to see us take over the hospital this year, but I can't see how we are going to do it," Alderman Sands commented.

Form Local Youth Committee As Branch Of Commission

Alan E. Hugg, executive assistant to the Canadian Youth Commission, addressed a group of about 25 representatives of various youth groups in the city, including church Young People's of all denominations, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Collegiate Students' Council, athletic associations, I.O.D.E., industries, etc. The purpose of the meeting was to outline the work of the Canadian Youth Commission, which is an autonomous body of leading Canadian educators, business executives, group and social workers studying the needs of youth as a two-year project. The project fas initiated by the National Council Y.M.C.A. and R. E. G. Davis of their Personnel Committee has been loaned to the Commission as chairman.

Following a conference of youth between the ages of 15 and 24 years, held in Toronto last November, about 12 local youth committees have been established throughout the province, and similar branches are being organised across the Dominion. The purpose of the local committees is to stimulate groups to form discussion groups on the various commissions—Education, Health, Recreation, Job Opportunities, Family, Citizenship, Religion, Minority Group Problems. The findings of discussion groups will be brought to the central committee for further discussion and ratification. In the spring youth hearings will be held in each centre by the Canadian Youth Commission, and if it is desired, specific recommendations may be incorporated in their report.

At the meeting a temporary executive committee was set up, with Warren Trotter, president United Church Presbytery Y.P.U., as the chairman and composed of one representative from each of the major youth organizations to discuss ways and means of organizing a local Youth Committee. Another general meeting will be held on Thursday, March 9, at 8 p.m., in the Y.M.C.A., to which all recognized youth organizations are asked to send their two delegates.

Minister Visited Mrs. John Hubert

A story in the Examiner referring to the appearance in the Assize Court of Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert, as her trial on a charge of murdering her husband was beginning, suggested that she seemed friendless excepting an attending matron. It was pointed out to-day that the account overlooked the attentions to the accused by Rev C. E. Moore of St. George's Anglican church, who has cared for the accused woman from the time of her husband's burial, which he conducted. It was also stated that Rev. Mr. Moore had been a frequent visitor at the Court House since Mrs. Hubert's arrest last November to the present week.

The Examiner was informed that Rev. Mr. Moore had been constantly solicitous for the care and comfort of Mrs. Hubert during her detention and that he was a faithful friend and minister to her.

Corvette Kenogami Makes Rescue Saving Personnel Of Freighter

OTTAWA, March 1—(CP)—The story of a collision in a blinding sleet storm at sea with a freighter crew fighting searing chemical flames before they were forced to abandon ship and accept rescue of the Canadian corvette Kenogami, was told today by naval headquarters.

Lieut. J. Leslie Percy, 41, of Toronto, handled Kenogami 'like a bicycle' to get close enough to put a tow line aboard after the collision. The other merchantman in the collision continued on to port, damaged but seaworthy.

The tow was abandoned when the fire got out of control, but first the corvette crew aided in attempts to extinguish the blaze.

The burning ship later broke in half and the next day was sunk by gunfire and depth charges from the H.M.C.S. Wallaceburg, new escort vessel, which was standing by.

The collision occurred in a convoy. A big hole was torn in the freighter's starboard side and the boiler room and engine room were flooded, leaving the ship without lights and unable to steam or steer.

Kenogami, ordered to stand by, closed the disabled ship and, on the captain's request, passed a line, taking her in tow.

Eleven hours after the collision, great pillars of blue-white flame engulfed the freighter. Lieut. Percy ordered to tow cast off and came alongside to fight the fire.

Throughout the firefighting, AB. Roy Hutton of Windsor, Ont., was at Kenogami's helm. Lieut. Allan Griffiths of Toronto was the navigating officer.

As the ships closed, seamen began pouring streams of salt water on the flames. On the freighter, the crew formed a bucket brigade and attacked the fire with hand extinguishers as well.

The chemically-stoked flames reacted "like incendiary bombs," one of Kenogami's officer said. "The more water we threw at the fire the hotter it burned." In less than an hour the freighter's deck was untenable and the captain ordered "abandon ship."

The freighter crew skilfully lowered lifeboats and pulled over to the corvette.

It was Kenogami's third rescue exploit in 2½ years and brought to 215 the total of persons she had saved.

FOUND WAY OUT.

Above you see British reconnaissance troopers, trained in every angle of modern warfare, making their way through a practical minefield. A mine has just let go a few feet from the man in rear. Leaders work shoulder to shoulder, pricking every inch of the ground they cover and marking the path, made safe with white tapes. Flower Pirates Of Penzance Smuggle Gay Daffodils

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 29 — (CP) — The Pirates of Penzance who used to run rum for the Scilly islands off England's southwest tip has developed into the streamlined suitcase smuggled of 1944 who brings out instead daffodils and narcissi. He finds it infinitely more profitable, which is easy to understand—you have to be something of a financial giant to keep your wife or sweetheart in flowers these days.

Flowers supplanted rum principally because little rum is to be had on the islands (as elsewhere) and flowers are growing as thick as wheat on the Canadian Prairies. The war and restrictions of all kinds of growers sent the price of flowers soaring (roses at $15 a dozen in London), and a daffodil that cost a penny before the war now costs five times as much, and more.

A London newspaper (Hilde Marchant of the Daily Mirror) stalked the modern pirates and found they were easy to identify on the boat between Penzance and the islands. They are slick city gents with dark suits, fedora hats and kid gloves and they get seasick.

The trip takes four days and they take an extraordinary amount of luggage, huge trunks and suitcases anybody could sling with one hand—they are empty.

Flowers are easy to get and the risk is getting them away. The agriculture ministry has put strong restrictions on the growers. Bulb acreage was cut by half and the farmers were told to grow food. Then exports were restricted to 12½ per cent of the pre-war figures. This is worked by a coupon system and no box can be accepted for the boat unless there is a coupon to go with it.

Some growers found a way out. They sent them by mail, but a few days ago this was stopped.

The tighter the restrictions the higher the price soars, and the more ingenious become the pirates from the mainland.

They get their flowers in bud because they keep better and pack them in suitcases in layers of damp paper and cotton wool. The customs officers at the wharf have practically no power over these cases. Even if he is suspicious he cannot search them as they are no dutiable goods from the islands.

The newspaper woman watched one trunk for several days. It appeared on the boat and in spite of its size was easy enough to lift. Once at Penzance it was worth $225. The cost of the flowers was negligible. The cost of the boat fare for the owner was $2.50 each way.

It is permissible of course, to take off the island a large bunch of flowers as a present. These presents are another leak.

Black market touts were seen talking to soldiers. Later these same soldiers came aboard with $45 to $70 worth of flowers in their arms—rather larger bunches than their wives or sweethearts would require.

The boat also takes a great number of laundry baskets. There is no laundry on the island and it all has to be sent to the mainland. Laundry also is as light as flowers. With two dirty sheets on top, these baskets can carry about $350 worth of flowers.

Lantern Explodes, Allen McDonald, Farmer, Dies

WATERFORD, Ont., March 1—Allen McDonald 26, was burned to death early to-day in a fire which destroyed his home one-half mile south of Boston on the Cockshutt Road.

Allen apparently had lighted a lantern to go to the barn when the lantern exploded, saturating his clothing with oil. His father, who had not yet arisen, heard the screams and rushed downstairs. He attempted to drag his son from the house, but was unable to do so.

The house was occupied by the McDonald family consisting of William McDonald, 53, who was burned trying to rescue his son, his wife, Victoria McDonald, 46, the son who was fatally burned, and a daughter, Mary, aged 20. The home, the old Lewis Barber estate, was a landmark in the district. Loss was estimated at $3,500.

BANCROFT, March 1—(ENS)—Mrs. John Thornton, a well-known and highly esteemed resident, who resides at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John McCormick, celebrated her 91st birthday on Monday. Mrs. Thornton was born in England, coming to North Hastings County with her husband, the late John Thornton, many years ago. A greater part of their life was spent operating a farm in Monteagle Township, retiring a few years prior to Mr. Thornton's death, and making their residence at Bird's Creek. Since her husband's death Mrs. Thornton has resided with her daughter.

Possessing a most remarkable memory for one of her age, she recalls many changes which have taken place in the county since her girlhood, recalling incidents relating to the pioneers who travelled by ox teams and horses over mere trails. Mrs. Thornton is a staunch member of St. John's Anglican Church and attends quite a number of the services during the year.

Would Abolish Word Illegitimate

TORONTO, March 1—The procedure of placing the word illegitimate on birth certificates of children born out of wedlock is going to be abolished, Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell told the Legislature yesterday. The question was raised by Joseph Salsberg (L.P., St. Andrew's) during committee discussion of the amendment to the Legitimation Act. This amendment permits an illegitimate child to inherit the estate of a mother who dies intestate, or vice versa.

Mr. Salsberg said his attention had been drawn to the fact that the birth certificates of children born out of wedlock were marked with the word illegitimate. While this had no bearing on the amendment under discussion, he felt that if the Legitimation Act was going to be overhauled a thorough job ought to be done and a change made in connection with the point raised.

The Attorney-General said the problem was already receiving the attention of the Government, and he was glad the matter had been raised.

"It does not come within the scope of the Legitimation Act," said Mr. Blackwell. "The matter is not only being looked into, but the Government believes it can be cured without the necessity of enabling legislation."

E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. Leader, said many painful incidents had been caused as a result of the practice of marking birth certificates in this manner. He expressed satisfaction at the decision of the Government to eliminate the practice.

Archbishop Owen Marks Welsh Date

TORONTO, March 1 (CP)—Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Anglican Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of all Canada, Tuesday night told St. David's Society of Toronto that St. David, patron saint of Wales, represented an extraordinary combination of mystic and practical qualities.

"He was a man of real character," he said in an address at St. James' Cathedral where special services conducted by Very Rev. G. E. Riley, rector of St. James, were held to honor the great Welsh patriot who helped preserve the native customs and language of Wales during the Saxon invasion of Britain in the fifth century. Archbishop Owen is of Welsh descent.

The choir sang English hymns to Welsh airs such as "Aberystwyth," and "Cwm Rhonvda." The Welsh national anthem, "The Land of My Fathers, the Land of My Choice," was rendered in the native tongue.

Grenadier Guards Unit Holds The Anzio Station

By NORMAN CLARK
Representing the Combined British Press—Distributed by The Canadian Press.

AT THE ANZIO BRIDGEHEAD, March 1—For two days and a night a handful of Grenadier Guards fought off an overwhelming force which in an all-out assault on the Anzio bridgehead battled to cut the main highway from Anzio to Carroceto, 10 miles north.

The guardsmen faced a continuous attack. The Germans came in screaming like dervishes and flinging grenades but the British forces held and the enemy eventually withdrew after suffering heavy casualties.

This battle on a wooded ridge opened in moonlight February 7 when the enemy counter-offensive against the bridgehead had been in progress two days. Only the guards battalion headquarters, established in a gully, stood between the Germans and the highway.

The enemy overwhelmed the British outposts, infiltrated behind the lines, and penetrated in battalion strength into a gully lying west of the road. At battalion headquarters as the situation became worse staff officers rallied a few guardsmen and hastily organized defences.

With an American company which later joined them, the guards battled tirelessly to repulse the assault. Clerks, batmen, cooks, drivers and staff officers joined in the fighting, most of which was at close quarters.

It was the Grenadier Guards who a few hours after the first landing some miles north of Anzio captured the "factory" as they christened Carroceto's agriculture centre. They held it all the next day against determined enemy resistance.

Values

The services of any executor cost about the same; in fixing the fees, the Courts take into consideration the "care, pains and trouble" devoted to the estate by the executor whether it is this trust company or a private person. This trust company, however, can give you extra value for your money—stability under present day conditions, business experience and business efficiency and, most important, personal service to your beneficiaries through its estates and senior officers.

You CAN have brighter teeth!

Impartial laboratories made hundreds of tests. Scientists checked their findings with photoelectric measuring devices and authorize this statement: Pepsodent Powder produces a lustre on teeth twice as bright as the average of all other leading brands . . . brighter than any of them — bar none! These results have been double-checked by identical twins who made practical in-the-home tests . . . by technicians in dental clinics . . . by dentists in their own offices. The result is always the same: Pepsodent Powder makes teeth far brighter. Get Pepsodent Powder to make your teeth brighter . . . today!

You Can have a new Face!

Teeth give shape to mouth and face, but crooked, improperly spaced teeth need not permanently affect your looks. Today, dentistry can do wonders in straightening crooked teeth. Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth recapped. Your dentist can tell you what needs to be done and how quickly you can expect to see results. Yes . . . it's the truth . . . modern dentistry can help you have sound, good-looking teeth through a series of corrective treatments: but it's up to you to keep them clean and bright through careful daily brushing!

PEPSODENT MAKES TEETH FAR BRIGHTER

Of all Tooth Pastes and Tooth Powders only Pepsodent contains Irium!

Protecting Canada's Workers with FIRST AID

A sound knowledge of First Aid as taught by the St. John Ambulance Association, is playing an increasingly important part in the lives of industrial employees today. Many thousands of workers in every field of industry are now competent to render First Aid to their fellow workers in case of accident—as a result of instruction by the St. John Ambulance Association.

In Canada the basic First Aid course of St. John is taught not only to industrial workers and railway employees but also to the Armed Forces, Civilian Defence personnel and to Voluntary Aid Detachments. During the war this First Aid course, as well as the course in Home Nursing, is given by the St. John Ambulance Association jointly with the Canadian Red Cross Society.

DO YOU KNOW . . . that the Order of St. John which controls the St. John Ambulance Association and Brigade, initiated and organized throughout the British Empire the science of First Aid? The Venerable Order of St. John was founded in 1099 A.D. and is the oldest order of chivalry in the world.

Pinafores Are Quite In Style

Pinafore fashions are once more coming into their own, and more stress is being placed on aprons, since housewives have less time to launder housedresses, are turning to aprons again to protect their dresses from soil. A dainty snack apron can be made from muslin, organdie, or voile, with pastel bindings. Also, aprons made from handkerchiefs are still popular, and take very little skill and effort.

For a woman who sews a great deal, a gay crazy-quilt effect can be obtained if an apron is made from gay pieces left over from making housedresses or kiddies' clothes. Bright bands of bias binding or tape liven up any apron, and give it the color which is predominant in all styles this spring.

For more practical use, an apron made from a large square of flowery chintz, with a pocket running the full length of the hem, will keep lint and threads from sticking to clothes while sewing of knitting. Also a sturdy wrap-around of checked denim will prepare the housewife for the ordeal of spring housecleaning, and yet keep her spirits gay and bright as itself.

Lady Bowlers Hold Party

The ladies of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club excelled themselves Tuesday evening, when they had almost a full representation of members at a card party, held at the Y.W.C.A. The event was convened by Mrs. A. Boorne, assisted by Mrs. L. Bearne, Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. A. Leach, and a great deal of the credit for the success of the evening was due to the efforts of Mrs. Boorne and her committee.

Mrs. W. Kay was in charge of the kitchen, and the following ladies served: Mrs. Fred Hall, Mrs. H. Martin, Mrs. T. Doughty, Mrs. F. Staunton, Mrs. H. Bently, Mrs. R. Hendry, Mrs. G. Spence, Mrs. M. Killingbeck, Mrs. L. Bearne and Mrs. A. Leach.

Mrs. Leach made the draw for the prizes and the winners are as follows: Mrs. E. DeLong, Mrs. W. A. Davern, Mrs. G. Borland, for cards; and Mrs. L. Campbell for the lucky number. The ladies were indebted to the male members of the club, who generously donated the prizes.

At the close of the evening, the birthday cake, which was to have been presented by Mrs. Boorne to the person whose birthday fell on February 29, was given to Mrs. J. Reid, whose birthday fell in the first week of March. This was the first social affair the ladies of the club had had for quite some time, and they were greatly pleased with the response.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

We are to-day going to give our column over to those who have to pack a lunch box each day, for we all know how hard it is to get something that is different, yet tasty and nourishing. These cakes of which there are three, are very easy on such scarce items as shortening, eggs and sugar. The toppings are baked right on the cake and use neither butter nor eggs, and are such good carriers in a lunch box, and will stay beautifully moist for a week, that is, providing you can keep them that long, which will be difficult, for not only the one who carries the lunch will want more of them, but the family as well.

Golden Cake.

¼ cup butter, ½ cup corn syrup, 1¾ cups flour, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, ½ cup cooked mashed sweet potatoes, 1 egg, ¼ cup milk. Place shortening and corn syrup in a bowl and stir until thoroughly creamed. Sift together three times flour, baking powder and salt; add with remaining ingredients to creamed mixture. Pour into greased 8 x 8 x 2 pan and spread on orange topping. Bake in moderate oven (350) about 1 hour.

Orange Topping: Combine ¾ cup grated orange rind, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until the moisture is absorbed. Then spread on batter.

Spicy Molasses Cake.

¼ cup butter, ½ cup molasses, 2¼ cups flour, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ¾ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon of cloves, 1 cup unsweetened apple sauce.

Cream butter and sugar and molasses, Sift three times, the flour, baking powder, salt; add to first mixture, stir in spices and apple sauce to which the baking soda has been added. Put in square cake tin and put peanuts on top. Arrange peanuts in fancy design, put in the oven and bake about ¾ of an hour (350 degrees).

Lemon Cake.

¼ cup butter, ½ cup corn syrup, 2¼ cups flour, ½ cup sugar, 2 easpoons bakig powder, 2 teaspoons grated lemon ring, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, ½ cup milk.

Cream butter and sugar together; add corn syrup. Sift flour and baking powder three times and add to first mixture. Add lemon rind, vanilla and milk and stir until smooth. Put in square cake tin and on top put flaky topping made of 3 cups corn flakes, 3 tablespoons favorite jam, and spread evenly over cake batter. Place in oven and bake at 350 degrees.

Skinless Frankfurters and Mashed Potatoes.

My next recipe is a delightful supper dish which I am sure the family will enjoy. It is what one might call a favorite he-man dish and yet it takes so few of your precious ration points. Cook four medium-sized potatoes, drain and mash. Beat in 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 teaspoon salt, a little pepper, and enough hot milk, to give a fluffy consistency. Pipe potato nests on serving plate using a pastry bag. Fill with hot buttered peas. Take and fill the kettle with enough water just to cover frankfurters. Let come to a boil, then turn off flame and drop in skinless frankfurters. Cover and let stand 5 or 7 minutes. On a platter put a potato nest on each corner, in centre pile the frankfurters and garnish with parsley. When you have once served this to your family, it will be number one on the supper dish parade. This, with one of the cakes I have given you the recipe for, will make a very tasty, palatable supper.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: I am a farmer's wife and we recently butchered one of our yearling lambs. My husband has frozen most of it, but I roasted one whole hip for our first feed from it. What I did with the leftover is what I am writing to tell you.

Sliced Yearling Lamb With Currant Jelly

(Mrs. Cy. Haddon)

Skim the fat from leftover lamb gravy and measure I cup gravy. To it add ½ cup currant jelly and if you have 1½ tablespoons sherry—I use my own homemade grape wine. Add pepper and salt and a little curry powder to taste. Slice the lamb in large thick slices. Lay them carefully in the sauce, heat through over low heat or in oven and serve as soon as heated through.

The next is also a favorite with my family.

Casserole Of Rice and Meat

Use either minced lamb or veal. Line a greased mould with steamed or boiled rice. Fill the centre with 2 cups cold minced meat, highly seasoned with salt, pepper, cayenne, celery salt, onion juice and lemon juice; then add ¼ cup cracker crumbs, one egg slightly beaten, and enough hot stock or boiling water to moisten. Cover with rice, cover rice with buttered paper to keep out moisture while steaming, and steam 45 minutes. Turn out on hot platter and surround with tomato sauce.—Mrs. Haddon.

Thanks again, Mrs. Haddon. These leftover ideas should be welcome to my readers; I know they are to me.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 2

There is promise of some definite progress and production, with important projects and ambitions under moderate prospects of worthwhile advancement. This against some stubborn obstacle, delay or frustration, which may postpone final successful issues. However, there is a sign of aggressive and trenuous attack which may be able to batter down such obstruction if properly planned and forcefully carried out along practical lines and not impulsively, intemperately and rashly. Moderation and logic should win against force and impetuosity or strife. Keep calm.

For the Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of good prospects, and ultimate good fortune, against some phases of delay, opposition or stubborn obstacle. Well-executed and developed plans, along reasonable and tangible lines, should break down this impeding or difficult circumstance. Wild and impulsive moves, with strife, illwill and bitter antagonisms would prove futile, while poise, restraint and aggressive tactics promise eventual, enduring and far-reaching returns. Solid benefits seem ready for grasping in reason and intelligence.

A child born on this day will have much sound ability, with practical skill and initiative which may win its fair fortune and progress against obstacles.

RESCUED—When the motor of his fighter plane "conked out" over the Pacific recently, Pilot Officer F. D. Hague of London, Left, was unable to use his parachute and had to "ditch" his aircraft. It fell into the icy water west of Vancouver Island and sank almost immediately. PO. Hague managed to release his tiny self-inflating dinghy, unbuckle his harness, struggle to the surface and clamber in. Fortunately for him, Pilot Officer Wilkie of Vancouver, in another aircraft, saw him forced into the sea and directed an air-sea R.C.A.F. crash boat, Right, to the spot. About an hour after his plane sank, PO. Hague was bundled in warm blankets, speeding toward shore.

GIRLS ENJOY FREE TRAINING

War Work Will Enable Many to Support Themselves All Through Life.

The shortage in manpower has thrown so many little Jills into industry that it has made the business section of every city and town in the land look like the rosebud garden of girls visioned by the poet. Behind practically every counter and every desk is a pretty little subdeb who is a treat to the eyes, but who is, with rare exceptions, a pain in the neck to all who have to deal with her and who must drive her employer to drink.

For most of these little teenagers have not the slightest idea of what they are trying to do, and apparently have no desire to even get on speaking acquaintance with their jobs. Their minds are on their dates and their new hairdos, and they are so busy telling the girl next to them what they said to the Boy Friend that they haven't the time or the inclination to bother with a mere customer.

That this should be the case is no cause for wonder. The miracle would be if these ignorant, inexperienced girl children, who have never thought about anything but play in their lives, should suddenly be transformed into competent business women. So I am finding no fault with Toots. I am only trying to tell her what an invaluable educational opportunity she is throwing away in not making the most of the training that he employer is trying to give her.

Girls Must Be Able to Support Selves

Of course, Toots doesn't think it worth while to make herself a crackerjack business woman because she expects to get married, but that universal dream of girls of marrying a meal ticket has not always come true in the past, and it is still less liable to come true in the immediate future. Hence the young women of today should wake up to the fact that the great majority of them are not only going to have to earn their own bread and butter as long as they live, they are going to have others dependent upon them.

After the war there will be vast numbers of girls who cannot marry because there will not be enough husbands to go around. And after the war vast number of wives will have to support the maimed and crippled husbands who have come back to them so shattered by all that they have been through that they are incapable or making a living. And whether these women are going to be able to meet these responsibilities and turn defeat into victory, or whether they will break under them, depends altogethez upon how well they have prepared themselves for the ordeal.

That is why I urge all of these little girls who have gotten war time jobs not to think of them as something to play at until they can make enough money to buy a new crazy hat, but as a God-given opportunity that is being vouchsaved them to prepare themselves for the future. For every woman who has a good trade at her fingers' ends has taken out the best insurance that is possible against the hazards of life. She need never fear poverty nor want, for she can support herself and those near and dear to her.

So I beg of you Toots, to get busy. Make yourself expert in your line. Now is your chance to get free training. Make the most of it.

TRUCK TRANSPORT

Those brawny legs the Infantry used in the last war are still one of the prime assets of the Infantry today. But now they are complemented with equally resilient rubber tires on big, troop-transporting trucks. The use of transport trucks for long hauls has turned the Infantry into Storm Troopers, striking hard at one spot, shifting quickly and dealing a vital blow in another section of the enemy's defences.

Too, the trucks are used as a means of rapidly deploying a company of infantry across a wide front. The men drop off the vehicle at spaced intervals while it lurches across the uneven terrain. They land ready to fight, preparing their advance under protective camouflage of swirling clouds of smoke. Their attack will be deadly, equipped as they are with several types of rapid-fire weapons, mortars, and light artillery. They are Shock Troops in every sense of the word.

CAKE TRIUMPHS

... yet Save on Rationed Ingredients!

Here's inspiration for wartime meal-planners! Three "hit" cakes that will make you forget restrictions of eggs, shortening and sugar ... and show your family what a clever manager you are. They're easy-to-make, sure-to-succeed, and as wholesome as the ingredients that go into them! A sound way to put extra interest and energy value into wartime meals.

No Eggs!

If you've always thought that it takes eggs—and lots of eggs!—to make tender, delicate cakes, try the Eggless Devil's Food given here ... and learn one way Swans Down helps out scarce ingredients. Swans Down's superb fineness gives you feather lightness and even texture with just one or two eggs—or none at all!

No Shortening!

Low on shortening? No matter! With Swans Down you can make cakes with little or no fat, yet be sure they'll be tender, moist and flavorful as can be! And amazingly, Swans Down low-shortening cakes can be low in eggs, too, yet high in goodness—as you'll see if you try Swans Down's Orange Sponge Cake. But don't expect Swans Down results with any ordinary flour!

No Sugar!

If your family likes home baking(and what family doesn't) sugar rationing is a matter of real concern. But—here's good news! Swans Down helps you make velvet-crumbed, delicious cakes with absolutely no sugar! Try the Sugarless Spice Cake, and see how Swans Down, plus a tested and approved recipe, takes the trickiness out of sugarless cake making!

Eggless Devil's Food

2 squares Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate
1 cup milk
1¾ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
¾ teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup butter or other shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine chocolate and milk in top of double boiler and cook over rapidly boiling water 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend with rotary egg beater; cool. Sift flour once, measure, add soda, salt, and sugar, and sift together three times. Cream shortening; add flour mixture, vanilla and chocolate mixture, and stir until all flour is dampened. Then beat vigorously ½ minute. Bake in greased pan, 8 x 8 x 2 inches, in moderate oven (375°F.) 50 minutes, or until done.

Orange Sponge Cake

1¼ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1¼ teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 eggs and 1 egg yolk
¼ cup orange juice
⅛ cup water

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add ½ cup sugar and orange rind to eggs, and beat with rotary egg beater until thick and lemon-colored; add remaining sugar gradually, beating very thoroughly; then add orange juice and water. Add flour gradually, beating with rotary egg beater until smooth. Bake in ungreased tube pan, in moderate oven (350°F.) 55 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and invert pan 1 hour, until cold.

Sugarless Spice Cake

2¼ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2¼ teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup corn syrup
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and spices, and sift together three times. Cream shortening with lemon rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add ¼ of flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 minutes or until done.

GOOD CAKE DEPENDS ON THE FLOUR!

Give real baking insurance to other precious cake ingredients! Use SWANS DOWN, the flour that makes ration-wise cakes truly party cakes ... the kind you'll serve proudly to your most critical guests! Made from selected soft Canadian winter wheat, Swans Down is sifted again and again through silk, until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Let your next cake be a superb Swans Down cake! 9 tested recipes on every Swans Down package.

IN MEMORIAM.

CURRY. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Mary Curry, who passed away one year ago, March 1st, 1943.

Sweetest of words, remembrance,
As these few lines will show,
She will always be remembered
In the years that come and go,
One year has passed, and still
We miss her more and more,
Never shall her memory fade,
The dearest, sweetest mother
Ever God to children gave.
To you who still have a mother,
Treasure her with care,
For you will never know her sweet love
Till she is no longer there.
—Sadly missed by her Daughters and Sons.

CONNORS.— In loving memory of our dear father, James Connors, who passed away March 1, 1941.
Always in thought,
Sacred in memory.
—Sadly missed by sons, Leonard, Frank, Charles, Gordon and Ed.

McGEE. — In loving memory of Mrs. C. H. McGee, who died March 1st, 1943.
Oh, what would I give to clasp your hand,
Your dear, kind face to see,
Your loving smile, your welcome voice,
That meant so much to me.
No one knows the heartache,
Only those who have such can tell
Of the grief that is borne in silence
For the one I loved so well.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Sons, W.K. and E.F.

McCURDY.— In loving memory of James T. McCurdy, who passed away March 1, 1942.
Gone into that light that shines so fair,
Gone from this world of sorrow and care,
Resting those hands that did their best,
I think of him still as the same, and say:
He is not dead—he is just away.
—Ever remembered by his Wife, Emma McCurdy.

Curling News

By HERB. MARTIN

After a lay-off for about a week, the boys turned out in full force last night to take advantage of the cold dip and also to pick up play in the Neill Trophy. It is expected that by 9 o'clock this evening we will reach the finals in the main event.

There were many good games but two games caught the eyes of No. 8. On ice six C. Shaughnessy, subbing for S. Lowe just about had the Lakefield boys scared stiff. He helps himself to a big three on the ninth end to tie the score. On the last end it was nip and tuck with the Lakefield druggist getting the verdict by one shot. Over on ice No. 3 another Lakefield rink lead by D. Charlton almost pulled his game away from Tobby Westbrooke. He was behind all the way but managed to come along fast during the later stages of the game and finished only one down. But boys those two games were awfully close.

In the semi-finals at 6.45 o'clock this evening T. McArthur clashes with C. Westbrooke and Dave Grant, last year's winner, tangles with Bush Northey. These games should be worth going a long way to see.

The ladies also took advantage of the ice and turned out on Tuesday afternoon to carry on their schedule. In the semi-final of the Waddell Trophy, Mrs. Turner won from Mrs. Munro and in the Vice-skips bonspiel Mrs. G. Green won from Mrs. D. Davis and Mrs. O. Steer won from Mrs. J. Fanning.

Bill Cowley, Boston's great playmaking centre, took part in all three Bruin counters last night, when his team was defeated 7-3 by Toronto Maple Leafs, to put himself in the National Hockey League's high-scoring list on his first game after a month of idleness, enforced by injuries. Lorne Carr, Toronto, scored one goal to climb three points behind Boston's Herb Cain who leads the league with 66 goals and assists. Other scoring leaders were idle.

Von Mannstein Must Answer For Kiev Deaths

LONDON, March 1—(CP)—Field Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein, German Army Commander on the Russian Ukraine front, must answer for the destruction of Kiev and the deaths of more than 195,000 Soviet citizens during the Nazi occupation of that city, the Moscow radio said last night.

A Soviet investigating commission has found the citizens were "tortured to death, shot or poisoned in murder vans" by the Germans during the occupation of Kiev, said a broadcast recorded here by the Soviet monitor. The central section of the city was demolished and 1,742 communal dwellings and 3,600 private homes were destroyed, the Commission was quoted as reporting.

In addition, according to the broadcast, hundreds of thousands of Soviet citizens were sent to Germany along with factory equipment, while 200,000 persons were made homeless and nearly 1,000 state institutions destroyed.

The Commission held that Erich Koch, German Commissioner for the Ukraine and other Nazi officers shared Von Mannstein's guilt "for bestial crimes perpetrated against the Soviet people."

Rush Shells Overseas Via Navy Bombers

WASHINGTON, March 1—(AP)—United States Navy air transport pilots who flew through North African weather so bad combat planes were grounded helped beat back the Germans in Italy with shells only 34 hours from the United States.

The Navy, telling of the flight yesterday, said the two planes carried the biggest load of shells ever transported by air.

It started when French warships bombarding German lines in support of ground troops, began to run out of ammunition.

No shells to fit their guns were available nearer than America.

Emergency radio calls to the French Naval Mission in Washington set the Naval Air Transport Division in motion.

42 Canadian Squadrons Serve Overseas

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, March 1 — (CP). — A vision of impending decisive events in the field of air warfare is before members of Parliament as they prepare to consider air estimates in the War Appropriations Bill when the House meets again Thursday.

Last night Air Minister Power pictured United Nations air forces, with powerful Canadian participation, as being almost within reach of "complete" final, conclusive and lasting air supremacy in every theatre of war so that our planes will fly through the skies of any part of Europe unharmed and unmolested."

In his annual review of Air Force developments, the Minister spoke of a 'paucity of public information" about the achievements of Canadian airmen in the British and United States press and in official communiques and set out to let the world know of Canada's air contribution which stems from the 10 or more schools of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in this country.

Maj. Power's statement came as the House passed the first major hurdle in the War Appropriation Bill, approval of Defence Minister Ralston's Army estimates after many days of discussion.

As the day's deliberations opened Munitions Minister Howe has told of the Government's decision to assume the cost of all permanent improvements in North-west Airways, some of which have been borne so far by the United States.

"It is far from my wish to make any boastful statement about the part which Canada is playing in the war," said Maj. Power. "It has been borne upon me, however, that the interests of the alliance as a whole may be prejudiced if its other members are left in ignorance of the Canadian share in the great events which are unfolding

"The United Kingdom Government and our American Allies also have the right to know that Canada is playing her part."

The Air Training Plan, he said, was conceived with a view to attaining air superiority over the enemy. That had been achieved, thanks to commonwealth efforts and those of the United States and Russia.

The next step was the final and complete degree of superiority which he envisioned. At probably heavy cost, the issue should be settled in the next few months, Maj. Power said.

Canada's share in the objective achieved and the one yet to be achieved consisted in raising an air force of more than 200,000 men from a start of 4,000; and in training 114,000 ground men and 86,000 aircrew men, 48,000 of whom were Canadians.

Paid For Most

Canada had managed, staffed and largely paid for the vast training enterprise, played a major role in North Africa defence, in the air campaign against submarines, and overseas contributed thousands of men to the global war.

While the Air Training Plan did not originally contemplate Canadian squadrons overseas, there were now 42 of them. Had they not been set up, Maj. Power said, he thought even the Canadian people might be ignorant of Canada's air contribution.

Of all the varied nationalities serving in the R.A.F. under British tactical command in the European and Mediterranean theatres—Britons, Australians, New Zealanders, Poles, Free French, Norwegians, Czechs and Belgians — Canadians comprised between 22 and 25 per cent of the total.

"That proportion will tend to increase rather than decrease as the men whom we have overseas proceed through their final courses to the operational squadrons until Canadians comprise about one-third of the total content of this British-Dominion-Allied aircrew strength," he said.

Maj. Power gave R.C.A.F. casualties as 11,342 up to Feb. 18. Of these 9,667 were overseas. The dead and presumed dead numbered 7,958; the others were missing, prisoners or interned. They were young men from every walk of life, the most gallant of citizens.

"Looking at the future as they did," he said, "with the wisdom of ages peering out of boyish eyes, they counted the cost, they calculated the risk yet remained through it all serene and undaunted. Let their selfless endeavor, their unswerving purpose, be an example to us in our Canadian task."

For the coming fiscal year Maj. Power placed air force manpower requirements at 26,000 compared with an intake of 36,000 from last April to February this year. The reduction was due to a reserve of aircrew and to the stabilizing of the ground crew situation.

Reviewing previous announcements about the closing of some air training schools, he said it would not mean any reduction in the fighting force. The fighting force would increase. Expansion would be met from the present reserve and from the moving forward of training personnel.

Mr. Howe said Canada is to pay the United States for all permanent improvements to northwestern Canadian air routes, making them entirely Canadian property. This will cover the Edmonton - to - Alaska northwest staging route, the Mackenzie River route and subsidiary routes. The total cost of wartime development of these airways to Canada will be $58,500,000.

WIVES, NOTE! — Army cooks are resourceful! Pte. Fred Howarth of Picton, with the Canadian Army overseas, uses an ordinary jackknife to carve a few handy kitchen gadgets from discarded tin cans. Germans Help Prisoners Stage Dinner

NEW YORK, March 1—(CP). — From a German prison camp, Oflag 7B, word came to-day about a prisoners' Christmas celebration which Lieut. Art Hueston of Sarnia, Ont., described as "the most enjoyable Christmas in the history of their captivity."

"Thanks to the efforts of charitable institutions such as the International, British and Canadian Red Cross Societies and the British community in the Argentine, food was more than plentiful," Hueston, an Essex Scottish officer captured at Dieppe August 19, 1942, wrote a friend here.

The 1,500 officers were able to devote their week's issue of fresh meat to provide a roast beef dinner for the 250 other ranks in camp.

The dinner was served at night, after a light lunch of bully beef and potatoes. A fair sample of the dinner menu would be: Noodle soup, salmon, steak and kidney pie, plum pudding, crackers, cheese, nuts, chocolate, coffee, cigars and cigarettes, Hueston wrote.

Hueston said the Germans cooperated with the prisoners by cancelling parades from the evening of December 23 until the morning of December 27.

"Prisoners did not get the Fuehrer's parcel to German troops, but something just as good—two rolls of toilet paper and a box of matches," he said.

Religious services were popular, and the space at them so cramped that communicants had to have entrance tickets and go at specified times, starting at 7 a.m.

During Christmas week the men presented an original pantomime, in which the plot, music and dances were prepared by the prisoners. The Germans also allowed visits to the cinema to see the film spectacle "Munchausen" (a fabulous character noted for his tall tales).

"It is understood his exploits have been exceeded only by those recorded in the German papers," Hueston quipped.

4,000 Boys And Girls Needed For Farms

TORONTO, March 1—(CP)—Alex MacLaren, director of the Ontario farm service force, said here yesterday 4,000 boys and an equal number of girls will be required by the organization this year.

Half a million dollars was paid to the 3,500 young people who worked in the camps last year, he estimated.

"An order-in-council was passed last week permitting pupils to leave school after April 28 to work on farms," he said. "These pupils must have a 50 per cent. standing on the year's work, must have a job to go to and must undertake to work at least a minimum of 13 weeks."

Girls last year averaged $10 a week and boys $15. The girls pay $4.50 a week for board in the camps and the boys pay $5.

Britain Likely To Be Canada's Best Market For All Products In Post-War Period

TORONTO, March 1 —(CP)— Britain will probably be Canada's greatest market for products of industry as well as agriculture after the war and Ontario House in London is a start in strengthening trade and empire relations between Canada and Britain, Premier Drew told the Ontario Legislature yesterday.

"When you consider that 5,000,000 homes and other buildings in Britain have been destroyed or will have to be replaced because of the war, you realise the great possibilities for overseas trade after the war," he said.

The premier said there was a need for highly-skilled draftsmen in Canada. In Britain hundreds of these skilled men had made applications to emigrate. If they were allowed to come to Canada they could be the means of starting an entirely new field in the Dominion, one which would create employment.

NICE IF YOU CAN DO IT

IT MAY pay you big dividends to go smart and pass an overcall by the opponent who bid just after your partner. Your apparent show of weakness may lure the other side into some higher bid which you can double with highly profitable results. But suppose they don't fall into your trap. Suppose the next two players pass and the opponents get a chance to play the hand at a not doubled low bid, when your side could make a game. Then the smart passer looks pretty silly, whether he feels that way or not.

Everybody who got into a No Trump game on that duplicate deal made it, regardless of whether North or South was the declarer and no matter what was led. One pair even landed in 4-Spades and made that, by getting a discard on a heart.

Worst of all scores for North and South was that where North decided to play for big game by passing the 2-Club overcall from West. His idea was that somebody would surely keep the bidding open, perhaps East, and that later he would get a crack at something higher than 2-Clubs.

But East couldn't find any kind of bid in his hand, and South decided not to monkey with the buzz-saw when he was vulnerable. If North could not bid over 2-Clubs, the easiest suit overcall to top, with two of anything, then, reasoned South, North must be pretty weak. Under those circumstances, sticking his neck out while vulnerable might get him in a lot of trouble, perhaps drive the opponents to a game they could make. So he passed. The 2-Clubs got set, but for only a pittance compared to a vulnerable game.

Quebec Blocks Socialism Bracken Says

QUEBEC, March 1—(CP)—John Bracken National Progressive Conservative leader, told his first Quebec Province political audience last night that they formed "one of the most substantial obstacles to the prevalent danger of a socialistic ideology" and said he did not believe "rumors of a spirit of separatism growing in Quebec."

Mr. Bracken said that no advantage could come to French Canadiens if they formed themselves into a separate block in the Dominion, because "we must stand or fall together—all the Provinces, East and West and Centre."

"It is my hope," he said, "that we in Canada may yet stand before the world as an example of unity in diversity and that two predominant races in this country may continue to give what is best in their respective cultures to the enrichment of Canadian life and to the progress of the human family."

Mr. Bracken said that the people of Quebec formed a bulwark against socialistic doctrines because of a strong attachment to the soil and a sense of justice.

Wants Empire Unity.

"In speaking to the people of Quebec," he added, "I shall express exactly the same views as I would in any other part of Canada.... I come to you with no special favors. I shall not insult you with bribes nor deceive you with promises."

Speaking of Commonwealth relationships, Mr. Bracken said that if wisely developed, such relationships "could favorably affect the future peace and security of the world" but their virtue would disappear if dependent upon "any form of coercion."

"There will be no reversion to Colonialism," he said. "We shall preserve our autonomy. We shall take a positive stand for increased trade and peace in the world and we shall co-operate fully with the Commonwealth to meet these ends ....

"We Canadians now are a strong well-equipped people and our voice will be listened to with respect wherever we shall speak through a Government capable of making wise decisions and acting on them in good faith."

Of relationship between groups, he said: "You were guaranteed certain rights and privileges under the Constitution of Canada. We propose to see that these rights are protected .... I am as much against Government by a single class as I am opposed to domination by one ethnic group."

Bert Houle Hurt In Battle With Hun Planes

On The Anzio Beachhead, Italy, March 1 (CP Cable)—Sqdn. Ldr. Bert Houle, D.F.C., of Massey, Ont., suffered a wound in a recent dogfight over the beachhead, it was disclosed today, a wound that came within a fraction of an inch of ending the brilliant career of the fighter pilot who has led the City of Windsor Spitfire Squadron, R.C.A.F., with spectacular success.

A combination of fortitude and good flying of his damaged aircraft brought him safely to base.

Houle was attacking a Focke-Wulf when he was caught in the fire of another German aircraft and a shell smashed into the armor plating behind the pilot's back. The stout steel stopped the projectile but the heavy plate struck him on the head and one piece of metal penetrated the base of his neck, lodging directly against a vital spot.

Though unaware of the exact nature of his injury, Houle refrained from calling his companions for help or escort. He flew home alone and walked unaided into the mess where he was persuaded to go to a Canadian general hospital. Within 48 hours of an operation for removal of the metal the husky former electric engineer and athlete was out of bed and clamoring to be released from hospital.

Although the wound was not serious, the Northern Ontario pilot expects to be sent soon for a rest to Canada which he has not seen for almost three years.

It was announced last week that Houle has been succeeded as head of the crack squadron by Sqdn. Ldr. Keiver Magee of Moncton, N.B.

Since assuming command of the squadron in Italy last November, Houle led its pilots through the most successful three month period in its history. It shot down more than three times as many aircraft as in any similar period since its formation. Its most successful showing has been in the last few weeks over the beachhead in which it destroyed 10 enemy aircraft, probably destroyed four others and damaged six, a total considerably greater than any other Empire fighter unit on this front.

Houle's own score since taking over the squadron had risen from five to 11 destroyed by the time he was wounded. He is also credited with one probable and seven damaged. His record has made him one of the best-known squadron commanders of the desert air force in Italy.

FIGHTS FOR CHILD—Joan Manners, former British movie actress, is shown leaving court in Washington after she had won a court order directing John Langan, Miss Manners' former husband, to appear in court with his 10-year-old daughter, Joan. Miss Manners won custody of Joan in a Maryland court early in the week. But Langan saw the child in a Washington hotel and she left with him.

A Rich Hermit

CHICAGO, March 1 (AP).—The coroner's office today said it will investigate the death of Joseph Diller, 95-year-old former hotel operator, who police said had withdrawn $11,400 from a bank in the last eight months and had been living in a shabby flat in the Loop district. Police said 14 cats and four dogs were sleeping in the room where Diller was found dead.

42,000 Unfilled Jobs In Western Canada

CALGARY, March 1 — (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission had taken 1,000 unemployment insurance claims in the Drumheller Valley last week and 400 at Lethbridge, but there were still 42,000 unfilled jobs in Western Canada, said F. J. White, Western regional representative Unemployment Insurance and National Selective Service, speaking to the Calgary Trades and Labor Council, during the week-end.

It was not possible, he said, to equate the jobs and jobless because many of the unemployed had not the physique or training for the unfilled positions.

It was estimated that 85 per cent of Canadian workers were covered by unemployment insurance and the reserve in the unemployment insurance fund was now in the neighborhood of $182,000,000, said Mr. White.

Air Taxis Fly Wounded Out Of Burma

By SAM JACKETT
Reuters News Agency Correspondent.

NEW DEHLI, March 1 — (CP-Reuters). — During the just-concluded Arakan battle in Burma more than 500 wounded or ill British troops were flown from the Mayu Range front by British and American airmen, it was announced to-day.

The air-taxi method of pulling out casualties from under the noses of the Japanese was introduced into this area six months ago by a former organic chemist, Wing Cmdr. A. J. M Smyth of Wolverhampton, England.

Types of planes used were the British Fox and Moth, and the American Stinson. The R.A.F. planes each brought back a single stretcher case and two sitting patients on each flight; the Americans had two types, one able to take two stretcher cases and the other transporting two sitting passengers.

Smyth said that forward troops reported the rescue craft were the biggest factor in keeping up the morale."

Assistance of all branches of the tactical Air Force in the battle which spelled a major defeat for the Japanese was officially described as "an almost perfect example of successful co-operation with the Army."

Warrant Officer Philips Macfarlane of Sudbury, Ont., had an unusual experience during an air battle. He was shot down in a paddy field, climbed out unhurt, and a Japanese fighter started to machine-gun him. But the Japanese flew too low, hit a tree and his aircraft blew up. Macfarlane walked to the scene, picked up the enemy pilot, and carried him to base, as a prisoner of war.

Finns Disappointed In Terms

By EDWIN SHANKE—Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, March 2—(AP).—Russian peace terms, published in Finnish newspapers for the first time this morning, fell like a "cold shower" on the people, the Helsinki correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet reported. Even circles opposed to a "wait-and-see" policy of the Government regarding armistice terms took the view that the conditions were impossible of acceptance, the correspondent wrote. He added that recent developments in the move for peace were clothed in such secrecy the people were under the impression that there was evidence of great disappointment today.

Russian terms called for restoration of the 1940 boundary, immediate cessation of hostilities, no occupation or change in the Finnish Government, internment of German ships and seven Nazi divisions with or without Red Army help.

Even as the peace issue was disclosed, a Finnish communique reported lively activity on the fighting front with both sides attacking. The war bulletin said Finnish troops penetrated Russian positions at four points on the western portion of the Aunus isthmus and that the Russians had pierced Finnish lines near Uhtua after a heavy artillery barrage. A counter-attack was said to have restored Finnish positions.

Finnish newspapers called the Moscow terms disappointingly severe and declared they gave Finland no hope of negotiating an honorable peace.

Advantage Sought.

Ususi Suomi accused Moscow of publishing the terms in order to "gain a political and moral advantage so it can say 'you are unreasonable and stubborn if you don't accept.'"

The Liberal Huvudstadsbladet, leading Swedish-language newspaper in Finland, said the Soviet terms "do not open those perspectives to peace we so eagerly wanted."

"Real peace," it said, "must create

Defence Claims Confession Of Lonergan Was Faked

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP).—Defence strategy in Wayne Lonergan's fight for life began to take shape today with heavy emphasis on a contention that his purported confession was faked and that a third person visited his wife's apartment the day the heiress was bludgeoned to death last October.

The young R.C.A.F. aircraftman's first degree murder trial entered the third day with the jury box still empty but with the record already crammed with references to the confession, the cafe society background of the case, sexual abnormalities and "stool pigeons."

When the session opened today Judge John J. Freschi adjourned the trial until tomorrow to determine whether he had legal authority to declare a mistrial.

The unexpected adjournment came after Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet demanded that the special panel of jurors be discharged and a mistrial granted because of the conduct of Edward V. Broderick defense counsel.

At the beginning of today's session Broderick and Grumet conferred with Judge Freschi, after which the court announced he had been asked to consider a ruling he made Monday when he denied a defence motion for dismissal of the jury panel as unfair to the defence.

Lonergan, neatly dressed in a dark blue suit, sat calmly at the defence table as Defence Counsel Edward V. Broderick led six special talesmen through a searching examination yesterday.

Turned Down By Army.

Occasionally Lonergan consulted in whispers with his counsel but at no time did he show concern over questions touching upon his sexual habits. He twice was turned down by the army, the district attorney's office had said, because of his own admission of homosexuality.

Vigorous prosecution objections blocked Broderick's first attempt to characterize the purported confession as a "fake" but he later succeeded in getting into the record a flat statement that he expected to prove his contention.

The alleged confession—regarded as a strong prosecution weapon — quotes Lonergan as saying he killed his wife in a rage over her taunts that he never again would be permitted to see their son, now 22 months old.

From almost every prospective juror, Broderick sought reaction to these, among other, questions:

"Have you heard or read that a young lawyer was in Mrs. Lonergan's room the day she was killed?"

"If you heard testimony by young police officers assigned as fake prisoners to gain the confidence and play cards with Lonergan to ascertain something about the case, would you give more weight to their testimon than to that of ordinary stool pigeons?"

Torpedo Hits Jap Carrier

LONDON, March 2 — (CP). — British submarines ranging "Far Eastern waters" torpedoed and probably sank a Japanese aircraft carrier of 7,000 tons, and scored torpedo hits on a Japanese cruiser, the Admiralty announced to-day.

A Royal Navy submarine first sighted the carrier, escorted by five submarine chasers, in the northern approaches to Malacca Strait, and fired a salvo of torpedoes. No hits were observed, and the subchasers drove the submarine off temporarily.

The British ship returned to the attack, scoring a hit and stopping the carrier.

"A further torpedo which struck the enemy amidships caused a violent explosion. The ship heeled over and is believed to have sunk," the communique said.

The cruiser was successfully attacked in the same area, but full results were not observed.

British submarines also torpedoed and sank a medium-sized supply ship, and destroyed a smaller supply ship by gunfire.

Submarines which carried out these actions were commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. R. M. Favell, R.N., Lieut. D. S. McN. Verschoyle-Campbell, D.S.C., R.N., and Lt. D. J. Beckley, D.S.O., R.N., the Admiralty reported.

Repatriates Return

LISBON, March 2 — (CP). — The Spanish liner Magallens docked here yesterday with 144 British repatriates who had taken refuge in Canada and the United States during the blitz on Britain.

The repatriates include 102 children and 42 mothers. They will travel to Britain by air.

Japs Repulsed On Momote Field

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, March 2.—(AP).—Japanese troops were bloodily repulsed in a pre-dawn counter-attack yesterday against Americans entrenched at Momote airdrome in the Admiralty Islands, an Allied communique reported to-day.

A Headquarters spokesman said the enemy counter-attack apparently was "pretty sharp." The Japanese possibly are receiving reinforcements from Manus Island, which lies across the narrow strip of shallow water east of Los Negros.

American heavy and medium bombers blasted Japanese rear positions in support of the ground fighters.

No reports have yet been received of any Japanese aerial effort against the invasion which has put the Americans inside the perimeter of the enemy's South Pacific defences.

Allied aircraft continued hammering the weakened Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, and other enemy air installations on the northeastern New Guinea coast.

Chinese Troops Take Makaw

Japanese Resistance In Burma Is Stiffening

NEW DELHI, March 2—(AP).—Chinese troops captured the town of Makaw, north of the Tanai River in Northern Burma, and West African forces driving south in the Kaladin valley met stiffened Japanese resistance north and northwest of Apaukwa, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today.

British troops yesterday stormed Japanese positions east of Htingdaw on the eastern slopes of the Mayu Mountain range and killed many of the enemy, the communique said.

Other Allied forces met strong opposition when they attacked enemy positions east of the Kalapanzin River and northeast of Buthedaung.

The column which occupied Makaw moved south to take Lamungzup, Ga., 4½ miles away near the Tawang River.

R.A.F. and U.S. fighters and bombers ranging over North and South Burma since Monday, attacked Japanese communications, transports and troop concentrations.

Jury Is Given Hubert Murder Case

Lengthy Charge Given Trial Jury By Mr. Justice Hope

(For Wednesday Afternoon's Evidence—See Pages Two and Eight)

The Hubert jury in Mr. Justice Hope's assize court retired to their room at 1:20 this afternoon after receiving His Lordship's charge, an exhaustive explanation of the law relating to murder and manslaughter, followed by his remarks on the evidence.

The noon recess was to continue until 2:45 p.m. "There is no place for weak sentimentality in the jury room any more than there is on the bench," His Lordship said in concluding his long address which began at 10 o'clock, and continued with one intermission.

The jury was faced, he added, with a stern duty to be honestly and fearlessly carried out. The petit jury had long been regarded as an important institution of British justice, and its retention of public confidence as a keystone of the law would remain as long as juries could be depended upon to fulfill their oath: "to give a true verdict according to the evidence."

His Lordship pointed out that the jury might bring in a verdict of guilty of murder, or manslaughter if they considered provocation entered into the crime, or of acquittal if they believed the prisoner's statement. He also mentioned to the jury that this statement which Mrs. Hubert made to Inspector Storey was not submitted to her on oath.

3 German Divisions Repulsed By Allies

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK—Associated Press Correspondent.

NAPLES, March 2—(AP).—Allied troops fighting fiercely against a three-division German attack on the centre of the Anzio beachhead defence lines have thrown the enemy back 1,000 yards and are still making progress, it was announced today.

The Germans were said to be resisting strongly near a road junction slightly south of the midway point between Carroceto and Cisterna after having lost two-thirds of the ground they gained Tuesday in the early stages of their assault, apparently their third all-out effort to wipe out the beachhead.

More than 500 German prisoners have been taken in the battle in which the Germans threw heavy tanks at the Allied lines under strong artillery fire from both sides.

A dispatch from the beachhead by Edward Kennedy, Associated Press war correspondent, quoted Allied troops as saying the battle was the stiffest they had yet encountered and enemy artillery fire was the heaviest laid on them since the beachhead was established. Kennedy said the situation was well in hand last night.

Along 1,000-Yard Front.

Nazi Field Marshal Kesselring's forces launched their attack Tuesday morning along a 1,000-yard front almost in the middle of the 10-mile stretch between Caroceto and Cisterna.

The enemy threw two battalions, supported by tanks, into the initial phase with American forces bearing the brunt of the attack. By late afternoon three German divisions were plunging against the Allied lines.

The Nazis broke through to a depth of about 1,500 yards but the rest of the Allied lines stood firm against pressure exerted all around the Anglo-American defence perimeter. American troops launched a counter-attack Tuesday night and up to noon yesterday had won back 1,000 yards.

In the opening hours of the attack German infantry rode tanks into battle and helped lift Allied mines. A steady rain, however, turned open fields into a quag-

Russian Army Encircles Nazi Fortress

LONDON, March 2.—(CP).—Narva, German-held Estonia fortress, was virtually encircled to-day by Red army forces while farther south Soviet troops pounded suburban streets of Pskov, gateway to the Baltics. In still another sector of the long Russian front — Vitebsk, in White Russia—the Red army also was on the move.

The only rail escape route from Narva was cut as the Russians smashed a bridgehead across the Narova river south of the city. Escape by sea through the nearby Gulf of Finland is still possible for the Germans but a highway westward is parallel to the severed railway line.

Moscow announced in its midnight communique that the Narova was crossed along a 22-mile front "several days ago." Soviet troops battled through powerful German resistance to reach the rail station of Auvere and cut the railway between Narva and Tallinn (Revel) capital of Estonia. The Russians thus were about 15 miles inside Estonia.

The communique reported two German regiments routed in the bridgehead battle. In another sector, 1,200 Germans were killed in two days.

Berlin itself admitted establishment of the bridgehead but claimed it had been "further reduced" after "lively" fighting.

Father Of Quads Rejoins His Unit

HEANOR, Derbyshire, England, March 2—(CP). — The soldier-father of the Heanor quadruplets, who was present at the time of birth and helped name the babies, has rejoined his unit, unable to take a farewell look at Britain's most-discussed quartet.

The father's name was not officially disclosed, since the births have not yet been registered at City Hall. British law allows three months for registration. The mother is 23-year-old Nora Carpenter. The Daily Herald quoted Nora Carpenter's mother as saying the couple is not married.

Nora's mother said the quadruplets' father had not been permitted to see the youngsters again before leaving because Macdonald, youngest and frailest of the four, has a cold and visitors had been prohibited. The father "has now rejoined his unit," she added.

Macdonald, whose condition has caused some anxiety, is making good progress, and the other three are "flourishing," said Mrs. Edith Matthews, superintendent of the nursing home to which the quadruplets were moved Tuesday.

No Cause of Anxiety.

"Macdonald is definitely better today," she said. "I don't think there is any cause for anxiety about him or the others."

All the babies now are taking ordinary food. Macdonald had been given brandy for a time. Gifts and messages arrive hourly from well-wishers.

An official said the Heanor Urban District Council is seeking a new house for the Quads because the home in which they were born is too small.

"We have been given the promise of a new nurse to look after them," he added.

Madeleine, Maureen and Michael were reported to have lost a few ounces since their birth Monday, but to be in good condition. They are getting cow's milk and glucose in water every few hours, plus vitamins.

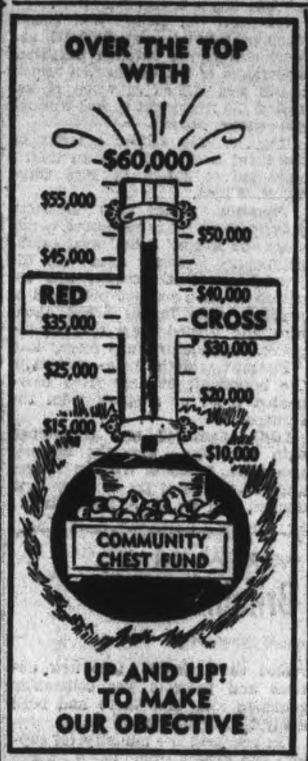
Nora will not see her babies for at least two weeks. She is in bed at her father's home on the outskirts of this coal mining town of about 15,000 persons.

Dutch Submarines Active In Pacific

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP).—A ghost fleet of Netherlands submarines, gallant remnants of a once-powerful naval force, has reformed and is harassing the enemy's supply lines to Burma. This was disclosed here today by Capt. L. G. L. Van der Kun of the Royal Netherlands Navy.

"In 20 months we sank 55,000 tons of Japanese shipping, and probably 25,000 tons more in Malacca Straits, north of Sumatra and in the Andaman Islands area," he said. "This was accomplished despite the fact that we could average only two submarines in operation at one time."

The Japanese in Burma get about 90 per cent. of their munitions, food and other supplies by sea, Capt. Van der Kun reported.



Britain Halted Lend-Lease Aid To Turkey

By WILLIAM B. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ANKARA, March 2 — (AP). — Reports were current here to-day that Britain has halted delivery of both military and civilian supplies to Turkey as a result of the recent collapse of British-Turkish military talks.

While there was no confirmation from Turkish officials, it was obvious that they were disturbed by the reports, which were interpreted in some quarters as part of a campaign to press Turkey into entering the war on the side of the Allies.

Comment Declined

(Dispatches from London said official British sources declined to comment on the Ankara reports, but declared there was a disposition in London to believe they might be true. The London dispatches added Foreign Secretary Eden might make a statement in the House of Commons shortly on relations with Turkey.)

It also was reported without confirmation that American lend-lease material was included in the stoppage.

Some quarters held that if Britain has stopped shipments of war material to Turkey it might mean she now has written Turkey out of the picture as a possible military ally and is planning a campaign against South-eastern Europe as an alternative.

It seemed unlikely, at any rate, that Turkish policy could be influenced by the reported stoppage —if that were Britain's intent.

Other Uses for Arms.

LONDON, March 2 — (CP). — Reports that lend-lease arms shipments to Turkey had been stopped were interpreted to-day as meaning Allied efforts to obtain Turkish military action against Germany had come to an unsuccessful end.

"Arms had been sent to Turkey to kill Germans," one responsible source said. "They haven't been used for that purpose and we have other uses for them."

Foreign Secretary Eden may make a statement in the Commons shortly on relations with Turkey.

VATICAN CITY BOMBED

LONDON—The Vatican radio said today that bombs were dropped in Vatican City last night.

1,900 Tons Of Bombs Hit Stuttgart

Four Planes Missing Following Attack On Industrial Centre

LONDON, March 2 —(AP) — A force of 600 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Bombers blasted the German industrial city of Stuttgart last night and the raid was followed up today by a strong force of United States bombers hitting at points in southwest Germany.

The American target was not announced immediately, but the direction of the attack suggested an R.A.F. - U.S. double night-and-day punch in the Stuttgart section like those highlighting last week's powerful aerial drive.

More than 600 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers participated in last night's operations with a record low proportional loss of only four planes. All Canadian planes returned safely. Mosquito bombers staged a diversionary raid on Munich, and other formations struck targets in France and the low countries.

London newspapers estimated 1,680 to 1,900 tons of bombs were dumped on Stuttgart last night.

The Allied daylight formations headed out toward Europe at dawn with medium bombers of the U.S. 9th Air Force bombing military objectives in northern France, perhaps on the "Rocket Coast".

More Allied medium bombers flew over the Strait this afternoon.

100 Raiders Over Britain

German raiders about 100 strong retaliated against Britain by night, killing several persons and causing damage at widely separated places. Five were knocked down. Many houses were smashed on the south-east coast, but only a few bombers penetrated to London.

Two of the Germans fell to Wing Cmdr. Geoffrey Goodman, leader of an R.A.F. Mosquito night fighter squadron.

About to go on leave, Goodman "sniffed the evening air," decided there would be something doing and

Argentina Is Again Quiet

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 2 — (AP) — Acting President Edelmiro Farrell of Argentina turned his attention today to a host of domestic and international problems which apparently were only slightly eased by his victory yesterday a quelling a minor revolt.

While Farrell, aided by acting War Minister Col. Juan Peron and local troops, easily met the threat to his newly-delegated authority presented when Lt.-Col. Tomas Duco attempted a coup to restore Gen. Pedro Ramirez to the Presidency, he still is facing the fundamental decision of whether to head toward restoration of constitutional government or yield to the pressure of rabid Nationalists.

Although Farrell's government has insisted it is only a continuation of the Ramirez regime it is bound to take into account the skeptical attitude made evident in Washington and other American capitals.

Great Britain's assurance that it would concur in whatever policy Washington adopts could not help but give even the most extreme Nationalist pause in view of Britain's economic importance as Argentina's best customer.

Britain's Army Is Ready For Invasion

Army Is Fully Equipped And Re-organized Into Greatest Striking Force

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 2 (CP Cable) — War Secretary Sir James Grigg said today that Britain's army, fully equipped and reorganized into the greatest possible striking force, is ready for the invasion of Europe.

Sir James told the House of Commons that everything possible has been done for unification of the command and said that the troops, finely trained and tempered, will be better that the 8th Army.

He said Germany is bound to crack eventually and disclosed that considerable work has been done toward solving problems of administration for the conquered Reich. Staffs are being trained for the task.

Although the Germans have been suffering immense losses on the eastern front they managed until reclement of their forces, he said. clement of their formes, he said.

"But now it looks as if the master hand of Hitler which produced the disaster at Stalingrad is at it again," he said.

Sir James, who presented the annual estimates of the War Office, noted that the Sicilian invasion was the first major operation of this war in which Canadian troops took part, and said, "Their performance in Sicily and Italy has spoken for itself and fully justified the high hopes placed in them."

He said that in the west "it is easy to see that Germany is bound to be defeated in the end" because she will be unable to hold the Russians in the east, the Allies in the south, patrol the Balkans, ward off increasing aerial assault and still "guard against the possibility of landings based on this island along the whole length of the coast of France, the Low Countries or Scandinavia."

He said that "Gen. Montgomery, with his 8th Army laurels still fresh, finds ready to his hand material finely trained and tempered to make something which shall be even better than the 8th Army."

When the second front forces move Gen. Montgomery, commander of the British group of armies for the invasion, will have among his soldiers the Canadian Army Corps in Britain.

Sir James said Britain now is mobilised virtually to capacity.

He declared that Japan along with Germany "must perish" and disclosed that a special British mission has visited the United States, Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea, the Solomons, India and the Burma battlefront, studying what is required for carrying the war to Japan.

Sir James said that Britain probably has mobilised her manpower more highly than any other belligerent.

"Indeed," he said, "some people seem to think we have bitten off just a little more than we can chew. "I do not think this but we have certainly bitten off a great deal more than we can chew with comfort."

He indicated the British arsenal includes secret weapons when he re-

Municipal Health Service

Municipalities Would Be Permitted Engage Doctor

TORONTO, March 2. — (CP).—William Dennison (C.C.F.-Toronto St. David) gave notice of motion in to-day's votes and proceedings that he will introduce a Municipal Health Services Act in the Ontario Legislature designed to enable municipalities to establish and maintain health services for their residents.

He noted that municipalities on St. Joseph's Island in the Sault Ste. Marie district now employ a doctor to provide medical care for the islanders and raise money for his salary by levying on the tax rate. The C.C.F. member said his purpose was to extend the idea of a municipal doctor to all other municipalities wishing to take part in such a plan.

Under Mr. Dennison's bill a municipal council would submit the question to the voters and a two-thirds majority would be necessary to pass it. The bill would provide fo rengagement by a municipality of one or more qualified practitioners on a part-time or full-time basis; for establishment of municipal hospitals and would empower municipalities wishing to take part to set up and maintain medical, surgical, pharmaceutical or hospital services.

Hubert Trial Evidence Is Concluded

No Evidence Offered By The Defence At Murder Hearing

(Wednesday Morning's Evidence—See Page 2)

Defense decision Wednesday afternoon not to offer any evidence appreciably shortened the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert in the murder case before Mr. Justice J. A. Hope and a jury of the Supreme Court of Ontario in its sessions here this week.

Addresses by the opposing counsel, C. P. Hope, K.C., Toronto, for the Crown, and John A. Bradshaw for the accused woman, were concluded at six o'clock when His Lordship adjourned the Court until 10 o'clock this morning for his charge to the jury preceding their retirement for their verdict which was generally expected to be returned about the noon hour.

Mrs. Hubert is charged with having shot her husband, John E. Hubert in their home near Nassau, Douro township, Saturday evening last November 20.

Written Statement

Responsibility for the defense course after the Crown had completed its case was indicted in a written statement of direction by the prisoner to her counsel, which Mr. Bradshaw showed to the Examiner during a recess of the Court. It was as follows, under date of Wednesday:

"I hereby instruct you that I do not wish to go into the witness box in my own defense, nor to call evidence by Dr. Carleton and Dr. Richardson as to my mental condition in my defense. I further acknowledge that I have received your advice in these matters, and fully understand the same, and I instruct you as above. (Signed) Elizabeth Hubert. (Witness) Rev. E. C. Moore."

In his review of the evidence presented by the Crown, Mr. Hope suggested to the jury a theory of the fatal occurrence to the effect that Hubert was shot in the back by his wife as he tried to leave the house by way of a window in a spare bedroom off the kitchen.

Accepting Mrs. Hubert's statement that "there was a hot quarrel" probably around supper time, Mr. Hope referred to the prisoner's account of provocation, as given in her written statement to Provincial Police Inspector Storey, in which she alleged that her husband "grabbed up the bread knife from the table and tried to strike me". I hardly knew what happened. but I picked up the gun and pulled the trigger and it went off". Mr. Hope reminded the jury that the bread knife was found on the table after Provincial Constables Morris and McClure arrived at the house, but Hubert's body was lying on the floor near the open window of the adjoining room. His cap was nearby on the floor. Mr. Hope suggested the possibility that at some stage of the quarrel, the prisoner got the gun and stood in the way of Hubert leaving the house by the kitchen door. Granting the prisoner's statement of unhappiness in their married life, Mr. Hope told the jury that a bullet in the husband's back should not be the penalty for such happiness.

Policy Unchanged

London, March 2 (CP)

THE News Chronicle today cartooned the Argentine situation like thus: Three successive leaders, each giving the Fascist salute, are ousted from the Argentine platform; then, while fights go on around the platform, above it there remains only a bodyless arm, outstretched in the same Fascist salute. The cartoon is captioned: "Our foreign policy remains un-

Oshawa Blaze Threatens Block

OSHAWA, Ont., March 2.—(CP).—Three business establishments suffered severe damage and three others were damaged in fire which to-day swept through the three-storey Bassett building in the heart of this city's business district.

At noon the flames had caused damage estimated at $150,000 and were still eating through partitions and floors of the building. A second alarm was turned in when it was feared the fire might spread through the entire block.

Ten scantily attired persons on the third floor, including an infant, were led to safety by Fire Chief W. R. Elliott.

Premises gutted were Bassett's jewelry store, a Laura Secord candy store and Atkins' ladies' wear establishment. Heaviest loser was the jewelry store. A fireman was reported to have scooped out trays of jewelry, while flames licked about him, and turned them over to the police. Costly china was feared lost.

Firemen said the blaze started in the basement, possibly from overheated pipes or a spark from the furnace.

Badly damaged and threatened with total loss were the Bonnett shoe store, Scotland Woollen Tailors and the offices of Dr. S. J. Phillips, dentist, and Dr. E. J. Richardson.

vealed that research into new devices and projects was constantly going on and that there had been many improvements.

"In one field the ministry (of supply) can expect from us a whole range of new demands—those for specialized weapons and equipment which will be needed when we transfer our main weight to the war against Japan," he said. He disclosed that the fire power of each division has been greatly increased.

"The organization which we now are reaching is that which is best calculated to meet the tremendous task which lies before us in completing the defeat of Germany and redisposing our forces against the enemy in the Far East."

Sir James added:

"Equipment of the forces for overseas now has reached a very high degree of fulfilment. Training is working up to the climax for which everybody is waiting.

"I have said nothing about that vast movements organization which is charged with the work of assembling them and launching on their appointed task.

"My confidence is that what has been and is being done in those spheres will best most assuredly show itself on the bodies of the enemy. This confidence is complete and rests upon faith that this army which came out of the great tribulation is the best we have ever had."

Sir James said far too little is saiad in praise of the British soldier and members cheered when he added, "fortunately there will be many opportunities of repairing this neglect in the coming months."

Sir James said that plans for preliminary military administration of Burma as it is re-occupied have been worked out. Those for other British possessions in the Far East are under consideration.

For Europe plans to deal with various territories to be liberated have been concerted or are being discussed with all concerned and a great deal of work has been done on problems of administrating conquered Germany.

Discussing demobilization he said it was no good thinking that the whole army or even the greater part of it could return home as soon as Germany is defeated. Japan would still be in the war and Britain is honor bound to see through the job of defeating her.

"Perhaps the only certainty is that for many years we will be forced in our own interests and the interests of world peace to maintain considerable armed forces and that land forces will have to play their part," he said.

Of the post-war army he said, "we must never return to the situation as we knew it for 10 years preceding this war when every unit of the British army was short of peacetime establishment and supply officers were not merely inadequate in numbers but in some cases quality too."

Overseas Men Arrive Back In Kingston

KINGSTON, March 2—As the grey dawn broke in the eastern sky early this morning two officers and 35 other ranks of the Canadian Army arrived in Kingston from overseas. Although several of them had seen action the majority were returned to Canada overage or as a result of their medical categories being lowered.

Among the group were members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment injured during clashes with the enemy in Sicily. The two officers who returned were Brigadier R. J. Leach, permanent force officer, of Kingston and Montreal, and Lt.-Col. R. H. Warburton, of Westmount, Quebec.

L./Cpl. Oran Greatrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Greatrix, of Picton, who lost his left eye and suffered shrapnel wounds when a high explosive mortar landed near him at Nissoria, Sicily, said "It's good to be home after four years." He praised the work of the medical units serving on the fighting fronts saying they were "the best possible." He enlisted in January, 1940, and joined the H. and P.E.'s at Aldershot.

Pte. G. J. Vieau, of Trenton, who stepped off the train wearing the "Crusader" patch of the 8th Army, received wounds from exploding mortar at Assoro on the morning of July 21, 1943. He was a member of a demolition squad and was moving toward the front in convoy when the enemy opened fire. His muscles were severed in the right arm.

Another Pictonian who returned was Pte. A. Herbert Cooper, son of Mrs. George Cooper, King street. He went overseas in February 1940 and took part in the Sicilian campaign. He took seriously ill last September, but made a good recovery in a North Africa hospital, following which he was flown to England.

The returning men were met at the station by representatives of the Canadian Red Cross and the Canadian Legion, and each received cigarets.

Each man was granted leave today, and after being checked through at No. 3A Depot, Fort Frontenac, was able to leave directly for his home.

The names and home towns of the men who returned were: Brigadier R. J. Leach, Montreal and Kingston; Lt.-Col. J. A. Warburton, Westmount, Que.; Pte. A. H. Cooper, Picton; Cpl. J. H. War Expenditures Committee To Continue Hearings In Camera

OTTAWA, March 2—(CP).—The Commons War Expenditures Committee yesterday voted down by 13 votes to five a Progressive Conservative motion that its sittings should be in public except where national security was involved in the evidence being heard.

Previously, Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South) had said the Progressive Conservatives would not sit with the committee when meetings were in secret.

After 2½ hours' discussion, the committee approved without recorded vote a motion that all sittings of both the main committee and its sub-committees should be in secret except when the main committee decided it should meet in public or the request of a sub-committee to hold public sittings was approved.

The meeting, with Hughes Cleaver (L—Halton) as chairman, was called to appoint sub-committees for war expenditures examinations during 1944, but this business was held over as the members discussed whether the sittings would be public or in secret.

When the meeting opened, Mr. Cleaver said he took it that usual practice would be followed and the meeting held in camera.

Opposed Secret Meetings

Mr. Homuth said his party believed the meetings should not be held in secret. The meeting was a preliminary one, and it could not be said it should be held in camera.

Mr. Homuth said he doubted whether the committee had the power to hold in camera sittings. The best deterrent against extravagance was publicity.

"If you say to us all (meetings) will be in secret we feel we will not be helping the war effort," said Mr. Homuth.

Tom Reid (L—New Westminster) said the Progressive Conservatives had favored a war expenditures committee like that of the United Kingdom, which met in secret. Canadian businessmen were just as honest as those of the United Kingdom, and there was danger in claiming that business needed watching.

The press had a tendency to headline matters being investigated and charges of graft or corruption were spread across the country before investigation was made. The committee could do its best work in secret session.

Mr. Cleaver, who was re-elected chairman of the committee a week ago, said that if anything wrong were uncovered by the committee the public would demand information on various matters in the House and have that information obtained.

He agreed the public had the right to know how money was being spent, but wartime conditions demanded "undemocratic practices" in that all information could not be made public.

"We are not a progaganda committee," said Mr. Cleaver. "It is not our duty to give one word of information to the Canadian people on the war effort."

Mr. Cleaver said that his confidence in the press had never been betrayed, but the matter went further than the reporters who wrote the committee proceedings.

"There is the matter of policy on the part of certain newspapers," he continued.

Deliberately Misrepresent

After he had read the way in which the case of the leave granted Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Army commander overseas, had been handled in some of the daily newspapers, he was confident "that there are some papers in this country that will deliberately misrepresent and distort by headlines evidence which would be taken before these committees in regard to Canada's war effort, if that evidence were given in public."

"I have not any doubt of that, having regard to the McNaughton incident and some of the headlines that were used.

"I recall the headlines that appeared in one of the Toronto dailies following the conference in the prime minister's office."

(Opposition party leaders conferred with Prime Minister Mackenzie King after he had said in the House that further public debate in the House on Gen. McNaughton's leave might not be desirable.)

"They were the most reprehensible headlines I think I have ever read and absolutely contrary to the facts. That was not the fault of any reporter. That was the fault of the newspaper proprietor or the policy of that newspaper.

"That, gentlemen, is something that we do not like but we have to face up to the facts."

went up. He exploded two of the enemy raiders in the air with cannon fire inside of 45 minutes.

Loss of four R.A.F. bombers was testimony to the effectiveness of the quickened pace of the war against Nazi air defences, and of the British feinting tactics. Bad weather at ground level on the continent also was a factor, keeping many fighters grounded.

15th Major Blow

The assault on Stuttgart, transportation junction on the route to Italy and centre of the Daimler-Benz engine and Bosch ignition works, was the 15th major blow against Nazi war facilities in 12 days.

During the night an R.C.A.F. Wellington bomber on coastal command patrol made the third attack in 24 hours on a German merchant ship off the Netherlands coast. It had first been shot up by cannon fire from Beaufighters, then torpedoed and set afire. Its escort ships abandoned it.

An R.C.A.F. Albacore of the coastal command bombed and damaged an enemy minesweeper off Gravelines and a Mosquito on intruder patrol over northern France destroyed an enemy aircraft.

A German broadcast recorded here said that Field Marshal Herman Goering in an order of the day on the ninth anniversary of formation of the present German air force, declared "you have again excelled yourselves both in attack and in defence, doing your duty." He praised the "magnificent bearing of the German people" under air attack.

Continue Pounding

Stuttgart, site of important German aircraft factories, was last bombed Feb. 25, when it was hit in daylight by a large formation of United States heavy bombers which also struck at Regensburg and Augsburg.

The city, in southwest Germany, is approximately 450 miles from the nearest bomber bases in Britain.

Berlin acknowledged southwest Germany was bombed during the night, but did not name the target. A German broadcast said the raiders ran into heavy clouds and dropped their bomb loads aimlessly.

Small Raid

The German air force attacked London early to-day, and although the raid was on a small scale, a tremendous barrage was thrown up in some districts, while raid flares and searchlights filled the sky. Five German planes were reported shot down.

A church was set ablaze by incendiaries in one district and there were some casualties.

It was believed few raiders succeeded in breaking through London's defences, which presumably followed a pattern established Tuesday night, when R.A.F. night fighters intercepted raiders over the channel and prevented most of them from reaching Britain.

R.A.F. coastal command Beaufighters engaged enemy vessels off the Netherlands coast yesterday.

Gov't Is Asked To Take Over Packing Plants

TORONTO, March 2.—(CP).—Already well ahead of schedule on a heavy agenda, the Ontario Legislature to-day enters its first double sitting of the session, convening in the afternoon and again to-night in an effort to speed the Throne speech debate and progress of bills.

Routine business and bills are expected to occupy most of the afternoon before A. Kelso (P.C.-Toronto-St. Patrick) continues the Throne speech debate in which A. A. MacLeod (L.P.-Toronto Bellwoods) and Agnes Macphail (C.C.F.-York East) spoke yesterday.

The debate will continue at night but who will follow the Toronto St. Patrick member has not been indicated.

Lady Member Speaks

Miss Macphail, Member of the Commons for 19 years and former farm woman and teacher, dealt with farm problems and criticized packing companies. She noted the government's intention to take over the Toronto stock yards and said it might do well to "socialize" packing plants as well.

Miss Macphail said that Canada Packers were able to maintain a substantial rate of profits even during the worst depression years. The facts were that the capital assets and reserves of the packers represented profits made out of the farmers.

One solution might be to organize hog producers of the province under existing legislation so they could negotiate with the packing houses for "a more reasonable deal." The government might also assist hog farmers to form small packing plants.

She believed that the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and the Agricultural School at Kempt-

Mayor and Committee Finds Signs "A Mess"

"George street signs are a mess," said Mayor Hamilton Wednesday night as the finance committee passed over the lighting bill from the Utilities Commission.

"What city isn't?" Morley Shaver, treasurer, dismally, but comfortingly remarked.

"Look at Oshawa! There is a mess," said Alderman Sullivan.

"When the street used to be lit up I always thought it looked darned good," was the estimate of Alderman Glover.

"Seems to be some difference of opinion," Alderman Curtis commented, and discussion passed on to some other topic, just words on the wing.

Hunters In Neighborhood

As to the theory of accident, suggested by defense counsel, His Lordship recalled that Leo Whibbs testified there were some hunters in the neighborhood that day.

"If the bullet had gone through the wall, would there have been powder marks on the sweater Mr. Hubert was wearing?" Mr. Churchman, the ballistics expert, testified that such marks would be impossible. From his test with the gun produced in court, Mr. Churchman said the powder marks on the sweater indicated that they were caused by the discharge of a gun at about three feet. He also said that the bullet found in Hubert's body by Dr. Waite was fired from a rifle of the same manufacture as the gun shown in court and also in a similarly poor condition of its boring."

If the accused had fired the rifle in self-defense, why did she hide it. The evidence is that she was asked at the house where the rifle was, and she told Inspector Storey she had hidden it on the road to John Little's house. She also stated the empty cartridge found in the stove by Constable Morris was not the shell she had fired, and she told Inspector Storey she had taken the empty shell out of the rifle and threw it away on the road where she hid the rifle.

Mrs. Hubert gave a voluntary statement to Dr. H. G. Carleton at her home that Saturday night. In it she said her husband had been in good health and ate his supper. The testimony of Dr. Waite was that Hubert's stomach was empty, indicating that he had not eaten in three hours. In her statement to Dr. Carleton she also said she had no idea what happened.

To Inspector Storey on Monday she said they had a "hot argument and he took the butcher knife and was going to hit me." Where did this fracas take place? If in the bedroom, how did the knife get back to the kitchen table? If he attacked her in the bedroom and fell there, was it not likely the knife would be found there.

Germans Suffer Heavy Losses In Counter Attacks

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD, March 2 (AP)—At the end of the second day of their new attack on the Allied beachhead last night the Germans had suffered heavy casualties and the Allies were holding firm in the area southwest of Cisterna where the thrusts were made.

Troops engaged in the fight said the battle was the stiffest they had yet encountered and enemy artillery fire was the heaviest so far laid on them. The enemy effort yesterday was less vigorous than the opening attack Tuesday. At nightfall it was reported the situation was well in hand.

Disorganized Enemy

The first German attack came before dawn Tuesday. Allied artillery laid down a thick counter-barrage which disorganized the enemy to a considerable extent. Allied infantry, solidly entrenched, held to their positions and as daylight came they opened strong small arms fire, taking a heavy toll.

The Germans then opened up in another area, about five miles southwest of Cisterna, but also were held there until 7 p.m. Tuesday when a counter attack moved forward. Fighting raged throughout the night, and by 8 a.m. yesterday all ground had been retaken and a number of prisoners captured.

Fighting continued throughout the day and in one attack yesterday afternoon many Germans surrendered after running into heavy fire.

A heavy rain which occasionally changed to hailstones continued over the beachhead and the ground became extremely soggy. This confined attacking German tanks mainly to the roads.

Roads Blown Up

Engineers told how they crept forward during Tuesday night and blew up roads along which the Germans were moving.

Some prisoners said Allied artillery fire was inflicting so many casualties on German units before they went into action that they had become demoralized.

I had occasion to learn personally about the artillery fire the Germans are placing on this side. On a visit to the forward area I was twice pinned down, once in a muddy ditch and once in a farm yard by clusters of shells exploding nearby. The Germans were shelling this particular area from three directions.

Unlike Tuesday when they distributed their artillery fire all over the beachhead, the Germans yesterday confined it to areas closer to the actual battlefield.

"Free of Gas, Heartburn and Sour Acidity," Says Hamilton Man. Also Relieved of Rheumatic Pains, Headaches and Dizzy Feelings.

Mr. C. Brown, 25 Caroline Street South, Hamilton, Ontario, is glad to pass his experience along to others, because he knows what it has meant to him to get relief after long suffering from stomach disorders that ruined his appetite and made him feel tired, worn out and fatigued, as well as severe rheumatic pains, frequent headaches and dizzy spells.

"For many years I suffered with bad stomach disorders," said Mr. Brown. "Very often I would be so bloated with gas, I couldn't stoop over. I'd get a full, heavy feeling and a sensation like there was a lump in my throat. Dizzy spells came over me and then I would invariably have a throbbing headache. I had been this way so long that my entire system seemed run down. Rheumatic pains set in my joints and muscles and my nerves were so on edge I couldn't get my proper sleep. I felt tired and fatigued all the time.

Few Veterans Taking Rehabilitation Courses

TORONTO, March 2 — Only about 3,000 of the 115,000 who have been discharged from the services have yet taken any of the rehabilitation training courses provided by the Federal Government, it was learned here yesterday from Arthur Crawford, Ottawa, superintendent of vocational training for the Department of Pensions and National Health.

Of these 3,000 only 85 are university students who are taking advantage of the Dominion's offer to finance a resumption of the college education. A small percentage is also women. Only 500 Ontario veterans have taken vocational training.

Mr. Crawford was interviewed jointly with Howard Kerr, regional director of the Dominion-Provincial Training Program, in Mr. Kerr's offices in the Parliament Buildings. Having arrived in Toronto yesterday morning to confer with Mr. Kerr on the rehabilitation program, Mr. Crawford revealed that action had been taken to extend rehabilitation provisions in order to meet the situation when more veterans would want rehabilitation courses.

"The Government has passed an Order-in-Council, effective yesterday," he said, "amending the original order so that those men and women who did not take rehabilitation courses immediately after discharge may, if they still need training later on, come and make application for vocational training at any time within 12 months of the cessation of hostilities."

Previously all applications for vocational training under the rehabilitation program had to be made to the rehabilitation board within 18 months of discharge.

Also effective under the amending order was a provision allowing vocational training in exceptional cases for certain veterans to take place outside Canada.

"The reason why we believe there have been so few taking vocational courses under the rehabilitation program is that most of the discharged men have got themselves war jobs," Mr. Crawford explained. "That was not altogether foreseen, at first, but now the order has been amended so that when these veterans lose their war jobs they will be able to fit themselves for peacetime work."

Expect 200,000 Students

Both Mr. Crawford and Mr. Kerr expected that after the war, as an approximate estimate, about 200,000 veterans would be receiving vocational training, although they stressed that future events might alter that figure.

Figuring on the same basis, they said between 20,000 and 30,000 veterans might receive Federal assistance to resume their interrupted university courses.

"Heretofore, any able-bodied man discharged from the services has not had any difficulty in securing a job," said Mr. Crawford. "But now we are reaching a time when the man without any previous training or experience is finding it a little more difficult to get a job."

Present classes for veterans include instruction in many of the building trades, office and clerical occupations, chemistry, machine shop work, woodworking, commercial art, radio work, mechanics and motion picture projection. The classes are taken at technical, trade and commercial schools usual length of the course being 12 months. The Dominion pays tuition fees and provides living allowances of $44.20 a month for single men and $62.40 a month for married men.

Allowances to dependents may be paid to servicemen while they are taking the courses.

"Eventually the intention is to have special classes for rehabilitation training, and over half the veterans will be trained right in industry," said Mr. Kerr.

"But at the present time there are not enough students to justify special classes for them, so we have to put them in classes in regular schools," he added.

Farmer Badly Hurt In Fall From Sleigh

CAMPBELLFORD, March 2 — (ENS).—F. W. 'Fred' Barnum, well known farmer of the Petherick's district, seven miles east of here, is in a serious condition in the Belleville Hospital. He had been throwing manure from a sleigh in a field Tuesday morning when he stepped up on the tongue to release the reins. The team suddenly took fright and threw him down between them and the sleigh.

He was dragged a considerable distance before he was able to bring the team to a halt and pull himself up on the seat. Mr. Barnum then drove into the yard at Harry Petherick's where Mrs. Petherick heard his shouts and came to his assistance. Dr. E. A. Stuart was summoned from Campbellford, and he ordered Mr. Barnum rushed to Belleville, where it was found he had suffered a fractured leg, fractured arm and three broken ribs. Mr. Barnum is president of the Rylstone Cheese and Butter Company and last year was president of the Campbellford Cheese Board.

Burnbrae Y.P. Society Plans To Hold Play

CAMPBELLFORD, March 2 — (ENS)—A varied program and several important business items featured the meeting of Burnbrae Young People's Society Tuesday evening. Nineteen members attended the gathering which was in charge of the president Kenneth Milne who was assisted with the opening devotions by Mrs. Donald McKay.

Arrangements were made to present the play "Aunt Tillie Goes to Town" in the near future and Mrs. McKay was named as the director in charge of the production. President Milne announced the next meeting would take the form of a crokinole party and to this each member was urged to bring a contribution of magazines that would be suitable for the Navy.

The program opened with the topic which was given by John Coggins, and other items included a reading by Kenneth Milne, piano solo, Mrs. D. McKay; readings, Miss Clara Thain and Mr. Charles Carter; and a geography contest conducted by the president.

Canada Said To Need New Foreign Policy

LINDSAY, March 2—(ENS)—Important facts that must influence Canada's post-war foreign policy were outlined by W. Kent Power, K.C., of Calgary in an address before the Canadian Club here. The speaker stated that Canada had never had a proper foreign policy and that economic, financial and immigration policies must be adjusted to and if necessary be subordinated to our new foreign policy.

He stressed the importance of maintaining and developing cordial relations with the United States, China and Russia but that it must be made definitely clear that Canada intends to maintain and develop its position as a member of the British Empire.

Soldiers Permitted To Write To Press

OTTAWA, March 2—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston said Tuesday in the Commons that a special army regulation forbidding the writing of articles for the press without the consent of Defence Headquarters has been rescinded, leaving only the old rule in King's regulations and orders which forbids the writing of articles on military subjects.

The minister made his statement in reply to T. C. Douglas (CCF-Weyburn). C.C.F. members had urged the ban on articles on non-military subjects be lifted.

Not a Single Parcel Lost

A fleet of four vessels chartered by the British Red Cross Society is now operating exclusively to carry the prisoner of war parcels the Canadian Red Cross sends to Europe, and to date 7,000,000 of these parcels have been sent. Co-operation has been splendid all along the line, from customs officials, from port authorities, railroads and steamship lines and one of the most wonderful features of this service is that not one parcel has been lost and the goods were landed and distributed in excellent condition.

Repatriated Canadian prisoners have been loud in their praise of the society for sending parcels and have declared these have kept them alive. There are 100,000 packed in Canada each week and they are never out of Red Cross custody from the time they are loaded on their specially chartered vessel until they are delivered at the prison camp.

But part from its prisoner of war shipments and those to all theatres of war, supplies also go forward through the Red Cross from 50 other organizations, one among them being the Salvation Army. Drugs are also being sent to China, regular shipments of supplies to Russia and large contributions are being made to the supplies going to Greece.

The effort of the Canadian Red Cross has been remarkable, but also has been the effort of the Canadian women who with unflagging energy since 1939 have been making the knitted or sewn articles and preparing the hospital supplies, which represent so very many tons of shipping and means so much of comfort and good cheer to the recipients.

Then there are the blood donors who have given of their blood, so that thousands of lives already have been saved.

The operation of all these services costs money and that is why the Red Cross is making its appeal to the citizens of Peterborough through the Red Cross and Community Fund.

Two Dollar Contributions

Canvassers for the Red Cross and Community Fund have remarked on the number of two dollar contributions they are receiving in this year's drive from people, whom if there were nine campaigns, one for each agency, instead of one with all combined, would give two dollars to each and every one of them.

True the campaign in Peterborough is around the $45,000 mark with only $15,000 to go but with the industrial workers less than $1,000 short of their objective and the special names committee $5,000 short, the extra $9,000 to be obtained will require a lot of $2.00 bills.

The whole idea behind the Community Fund was to eliminate the necessity of making individual appeals, but it never was proposed that the nine agencies could get along with the same amount of money as one did previously.

The industrial workers have done their part, the special names will come through with their objective, but to reach the $60,000 mark the other two divisions are going to have to show much larger individual contributions.

The Sinatra Swooners

Some time ago — before Christmas if memory serves—we speculated in these columns on the peculiar powers of Frank Sinatra, the Swoon Crooner. At that time we thought that the reports of his concerts had been exaggerated for publicity purposes, but now we are convinced that they are authentic. Indeed, the squeals of the enraptured maidens who live to hear him sing may be heard over the radio. And Mr. Sinatra has shown in his published statements that he regards his remarkable powers as a gift of Providence, and has no remarkable humility concerning them. So curious did we become that we searched through musical history for similar cases, and we found several of them.

The most remarkable predecessor of Frank Sinatra as a producer of mass hysteria was the great virtuoso pianist, Franz Liszt. Of course Liszt had an advantage over Mr. Sinatra in that he was surpassingly handsome and was a real musician. But he too appeared before his audiences looking as though he could not live through another day, and when he sat down at the piano he seemed scarcely to have the strength to press down a key, much less tear the instrument to pieces, which is what he subsequently did. When he had completed his performance he frequently fainted into the arms of his attendants and was borne from the stage. That was the moment which his audiences lived for; the nearer Liszt came to killing himself, the better they liked it. And women in his audiences screamed, squealed and swooned with monotonous regularity. Liszt was a truly great musician, and a pianist whose accomplishment has never since been approached; in later life he forswore the shenanigans of his youth and settled down to serious artistic work. But the resemblance between the effect he created and that created by Sinatra is striking. Even the rage for souvenirs has a modern tone; ladies struggled to retrieve his cigar butts from the street, and one devotee even bought a chair which he had used, and framed the seat which had received his sublime impress. Sinatra might be described as the hep-cats' Liszt.

It is interesting also to discover that a composition of Rossini's was once received with such enthusiasm that Dr. Cottugno, the great physician at Naples, claimed to have treated more than forty "young females doting fondly of music" for brain-fever or convulsions caused by hearing it! We can hear it now without a quiver.

And who are these enthusiasts? Well, Ernest Newman, the eminent music critic of the London Sunday Times, describes them as "female fools with no real music in them, but only a nervous, and largely sub-sexual, excitability, on a par with that of a cat after a strong dose of valerian". And there we may drop the matter.

Another View Of Air Power

Ever since the outbreak of war people who are interested in prophecies and portents have been writing to the papers, drawing attention to passages in literature which, in their opinion, show a clear foreknowledge of the present war, particularly in its use of air power. One passage in particular, from Gray's Annus Mirabilis, has been quoted again and again, and has already been referred to in these columns. But another has been brought to our attention which we think is of more genuine interest. It is from Samuel Johnson's Rasselas, first published in 1759, and the passage in question reads thus: "If all men were virtuous... I should with great alacrity teach them all to fly. But what would be the security of the good if the bad could at pleasure invade them from the sky? Against an army sailing through the clouds, neither walls, nor mountains, nor seas, could afford them any security. A flight of northern savages might hover in the wind and light at once with irresistible violence upon the capital of a fruitful region that was rolling under them".

Another interesting prophecy of air war has been discovered in Erasmus Darwin's copy of The Botanic Garden, his own long and curious poem written in 1789. It runs thus:

Soon shall thy arm, unconquered stream afar,
Drag the slow barge or drive the rapid car,
Or, on wide-waving wings expanded bear
The flying chariot through the fields of air—
Their warrior-bands alarm the gaping crowd
And armies shrink beneath the shadowy cloud.

It is remarkable that every poet or writer who foresaw the possibility that men might fly, saw also the great danger of permitting irrational and malignant mankind to do any such thing. Only the scientists and the inventors who made flying a possibility seemed to be quite indifferent to the use to which their invention would be put. There is great truth in the oft-repeated statement that our technological advancement has far outstripped our intellectual and moral growth.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A statistician says that women control 70 per cent. of all our wealth. Then who do men have to pay all the taxes?

Elephants live much longer than people, and it probably is because they don't worry themselves to death trying to reduce.

"The pigs of Canada," says an exchange, "are solidly behind the country's war effort". They might as well be; they're stuck with it.

Militarism runs in some families. William Patrick Hitler, whose Uncle Adolf was a corporal in the German army in the last war, has recently joined the U.S. forces.

Canadian Scene

By DUARCEM

(The third in a series of letters from a father to a son in the armed services)

Cedar Hill, Sunday, February 4th, 1944.

DEAR SON: Yesterday's mail, which your Grandfather contemptuously cast before me in a manner quite definitely proclaiming "still no word from Johnny" ended another week without a letter from you. With your dog Mike in close attendance the old gentleman has included in his daily constitutional, since your final departure, the short journey down the drive to the mail-box. He sits with me now, mildly disgruntled, but as fully aware of the vagaries of war-time mail as are the rest of the family. And he commands me to write "'an' don' walk 'roun' so much." A bit testy this afternoon is your Grandfather—and my habit of pacing out a thought, he would have me know, is irritating, and wasteful of time and energy.

So I write.

We wakened this morning on Cedar Hill to another such beautiful Sunday as I described in my last letter. The weather so fine, all of us; your Grandfather, your mother, your brother Peter, your sister Sara, and myself—even your dog Mike, in remoter sense, attended church service as a tribute to our personal gods.

And now, with your mother resting, Peter and Sara with their skiis on the far slope of Cedar Hill, your Grandfather—Mike at his feet—composed and satisfied now that I am actually writing and not just thinking about it, I turn again to depicting, as I see it, the Canadian Scene. Any opinions expressed, of course, are my own; you are at liberty to disagree. You are an individual entity, and as such a power in this land. It is my desire that you use your individuality to further its interest, that by so doing you advance your own. Our Canada, your heritage, was built upon the solid rock of individuality and grew from struggling colony to mighty nationhood by effort of the individual. Your home, this Cedar Hill, was founded by an individual, your Grandfather. His individual effort, whatever I have been allowed to accomplish, your one day privilege to improve and maintain, are all expressions of the Canadian individuality that obtained yesterday, lives today, and shall thrive in the future.

In last week's letter we examined, more minutely than necessary perhaps, the subject of citizenship, its responsibilities, its power and right to govern in a democracy. The power of the vote was emphasized, the right to govern was described.

There are in Canada, in the federal field, three major political parties. They are composed of the Liberal, Progressive-Conservative, and C.C.F. groups. In addition we have small but vociferous parties: Labour-Progressive, New Democracy, Bloc Populaire, etc. In the provincial theatre, excepting Quebec, the same situation prevails. In that province the people are confirmed 'joiners.' It seems possible to introduce and gain a following for a new school of political thought within the waxing and waning of the moon. Quebec, the Eire of Canada, has lost her political stability.

The ranking and governing political power in Ottawa at the moment is the Liberal party. Aggressively threatening its majority of seats is the eastwhile Liberal-Conservative Opposition, under its new designation of Progressive-Conservative. These two groups have alternated at Ottawa since Confederation. On external or internal affairs they do not differ greatly. Only on methods of application are their views, dissimilar. Both parties are led by strong, able, sincere men. They represent Canada as a democracy and would see Canada continue along that road.

A few years ago there was born in the troubled mind of a Christian gentleman of high ideals, a good man who walked with his head in the clouds, a pacifistic, saintly personage who loved all mankind, the thought that it was entirely possible to rid Canada and the world of all its ills by the application of a philosophy he had evolved. He preached his sermons of economic love tirelessly and unceasingly. He gained a following, marshalled an organization, and named it the Canadian Commonwealth Federation. He led his brainchild kindly by the hand, cherished it, loved it, guided its footsteps so carefully toward the Utopia he could see so plainly. Then he died and people mourned and the world was a poorer place. And it gives me pain to be compelled to write that this kind minister of God, in mistaken zeal, preached a doctrine utterly foreign to the nature of man. He did not realize that man is born a militant, aggressive and enterprising creature, created to struggle and strive for individual success that individuals in the mass may benefit as a result. He did not see man clearly as the biological, strong, eager entity he is born but as a bee in a hive or an ant in a hill. He did not see, or chose to ignore, that the bee in a hive and the ant in a hill are slaves and nothing more. Or perhaps he thought that he could so change the nature of man that he would be content in economic slavery. But there are among men the frustrated, the fainthearted, and those who seek to benefit from an economic levelling of the whole. And there is the ambitious man, with not the requisite ability, perhaps, to shine among his fellows under a saner system, who is ready therefore to board any chariot, going anywhere, so long as he is permitted a place in the sun. These people saw virtue in the doctrine and embraced it. It is only fair, too, to say that there are those of the Canadian Commonwealth Federation who are of the same individually worthy, but too hopelessly idealistic, type of its revered founder. They must be given their due as well-intentioned, but misguided, people. These people as described in this paragraph, and the Labour-Progressives (Communists) from whose proferred friendship they delicately shrink, are the socialistic, opposition to our way of life.

And these, my son, as I have barely sketched them in this writing, are the opposing forces in Canada's theatre of political economy. It is the privilege of the Canadian citizen, such as you and I, to reject or accept the philosophy of either. One, the democratic system, recognizes for good the freedom of the individual to work and strive, succeed and fail—to try again in greater strength the system of free enterprise, wherein the worthiness of man is given an opportunity to prove itself. The other, the socialistic phantasy, recognizes not the individual as a single unit but as a mere cog in a cumbersome, Heath Robinsonish, dream machine, as likely to operate successfully in a country of free men and women as one of the many conceived to accomplish the miracle of perpetual motion.

And now, son John, I find again that time and space must be respected. I had hoped to give you in this writing a description of what is being accomplished for your future good in this Canada. I wished you to know that we mean to continue to deserve your trust. But further depiction of the Canadain scene must wait.

May good fortune guide your progress, son of mine.

YOUR FATHER.

EVERY NORDIC FOR HIMSELF —By Thomas

Will Need Canada's Oil

(From WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S statement that the United States is running out of oil and must look to foreign sources, comes as a surprise. Its supply had seemed inexhaustible. But the demand has been tremendously increased by the war, of course, and, with the prospect of a shortage, the United States government seeks a new and adequate foreign supply, conveniently located and capable of development with the least delay.

It is therefore reported to have undertaken to build a pipe-line to the sea from a rich oilfield in Arabia to be developed by three large United States companies. That would serve the United States forces in Europe and Asia.

When the war is over and there is a greater peacetime demand for oil than ever before, for motor vehicles, aircraft and machinery of all kinds, the eyes of the world will inevitably turn to Canada, whose tar sand deposits in northern Alberta contain three times as much oil as all the other known oil reserves in the world combined.

That rich source of supply, if it can be developed, will meet all our own needs, and we shall be able to share it with other countries. The Canadian Government has wisely arranged for experiment on a large scale in the extraction of oil from the tar sands, but the technical problems involved have not been solved yet.

Commons Can Be Saved

(By RANDOLPH PATTON in WINNIPEG TRIBUNE)

IN the present House of Commons no less than 74 of the 245 members failed to obtain clear majorities of the votes cast in their constituencies.

Study of the general election of 1940 shows that most of the three-cornered or multi-cornered contests occurred on the Prairies and in British Columbia, with the Maritimes showing a tendency that way, while most of the seats in Quebec and Ontario were contested by two candidates only.

Third-party movements have been much in evidence in the Prairie Provinces since 1921, and since the late twenties in British Columbia and the Maritimes, even as late as 1940, presence of a third candidate in a contest for a federal seat was the exception rather than the rule. And at that, the third candidate was usually an "Independent Conservative" whose presence in the fight was due to a stubborn conviction on his part that he should have had the nomination or (war being war) to an effort by the weaker party to "split the vote" of the stronger party.

We in the West, having long been familiar with third parties and "ginger groups" of all sorts, have at least 20 years felt the need for the alternative vote or as it is more correctly called, the single transferable ballot.

Voting under this system is simplicity itself. Instead of marking his ballot with an X, the voter writes numbers after the names of the candidates. He writes the number 1 after the name of the man whom he wishes to see elected.

There is a possibility that this candidate may be eliminated: he will if he receives a smaller number of first choices than anyone else. He has then been "disqualified" as a candidate, but those who voted for him have not lost their votes if they wrote the number 2 after the names of those other candidates which they (individually) wished to see elected in case first choice was counted out.

These second choices are now distributed among the remaining candidates just as if they were first choices, which indeed they have become by the process of elimination.

If after this distribution is made all candidates still fall short of a straight majority, the process of elimination is repeated, taking out the candidate with the second lowest number of votes, and so on until one candidate has a clear majority, whereupon he is declared elected.

Large numbers of Westerners are familiar with this type of ballot, partly as a result of sustained advocacy of the system (it was written into the Liberal platform at the national convention of 1919) and partly because the single transferable ballot is widely used in Western Canada—in Manitoba and Alberta provincial elections.

In the Central Provinces, where the system is not so widely known, it has been criticized as "too complicated." This impression may be due to confusing the single transferable ballot with the Proportional Representation system, which is workable only in multi-member constituencies. As a matter of practical politics, discussion of P.R. at this stage merely beclouds the issue, since it could not be adopted without passing a new redistribution bill.

The practical problem now confronting Ontario and Quebec is new to them but old to us. The third-party problem has become nationwide since the general election of 1940. New urgency has been given to the complaint long pressed upon Ottawa by Westerners, that a House which contains a substantial fraction of members lacking majority mandates from their constituents is a weakened and unrepresentative House.

After every general election during the past quarter-century wide disparities between total popular vote and total numbers of seats won by each party have been apparent. Our Parliamentary system is becoming more and more lopsided, and the prestige of parliamentary institutions is suffering accordingly. The single transferable vote, by giving a majority mandate to each sitting member, would at least check the trend toward superseding parliamentary rule with rule by delegate, pressure groups and the executive branch. To preserve its own prestige, Parliament should at this session prescribe that the single transferable ballot be used in all single-member constituencies.

A Bible Message

Is not God in the height of heaven? and behold the height of the stars, how high they are.... Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace: thereby good shall come unto thee. (Job. 22: 12, 21.)

We give thanks to God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you, since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of the love which ye have to all the saints, for the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel; which is come unto you, as it is in all the world; and bringeth forth fruit, as it doth also in you, since the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth....

For this cause we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding; that ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God.... Why The King Said "No"

His Majesty has authorized an announcement that "the King does not contemplate making any change in the style and title of the Princess Elizabeth on the occasion of her approaching 18th birthday".

The reason for the Royal decision was not based on some vague tradition. There was a sound reason for not giving Elizabeth the Principality of Wales and the accompanying Dukedom of Cornwall. Should Queen Elizabeth bear a son, or should a widowed George the Sixth remarry and have a son by another wife, the child would be the rightful Prince of Wales and Elizabeth's title would be only an embarrassment. In line with this, no female has ever had the title of Princess of Wales except through marriage and no Royal Dukedom has ever been conferred on Princesses of the Royal name. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Living and Learning

Perhaps all living is just learning the meaning of words; not the sesquipedalians that we look up in the dictionary, but the big one-syllable basic words that are fully defined only in the lexicon of experience: "Work and play," "joy and pain," "peace," "love," "life" itself—and "death," its silent, invisible companion. Their meanings, alas! we master too late to employ completely.—Ferris Greenslet in "Under the Bridge."

Urges Uniting Of Canadian Welsh Societies

MONTREAL, March 2 (CP).—The part played by the fighting men from Wales in both the present war and the First Great War was praised last night by Senator W. Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard, in a St. David's Day address to the Welsh Society of Montreal.

In the last war "Wales contributed more men to the armed forces per ratio of population than any other part of the British Empire," and while no figures are available for this war, Welsh soldiers will be found on every fighting front and "are distinguishing themselves wherever they are."

The civilian population has also supported the war effort and at "tremendous personal sacrifice" has invested £125,509,438 in National Savings Certificates since the war began.

Senator Davies commended a movement to join the 17 Welsh societies of Canada in the Welsh Cyrmmrodorion Society. The 74,663 persons of Welsh origin in Canada "have a right to be heard as a unit" and if united could be useful to the Welsh people of Canada as well as their native land.

He said that one of the great troubles of Wales today is the disunity within her own borders.

Of a population of about two and a half million, less than half a million are Welsh-speaking only, perhaps a million are bilingual and the remainder do not speak or understand Welsh, and that factor alone is enough to create a difference in viewpoint, he said.

Then there is a difference of opinion between North Wales and South Wales, between industry and agriculture, between Welsh-speaking counties and the English-speaking borders, and a party of extremists who call themselves the National party, Sen. Davies added.

"Welsh people must realize that despite the fact they are a principality of 13 counties, they are a very small part of the total population of Great Britain, he said, and if any progress is to be made these facts must be faced.

Sen. Davies said that he "would like very much to see a Home Secretary for Wales appointed and to see Wales better represented on Government commissions and committees, but let us be reasonable, I think it will get us farther."

The future of South Wales is assured in the coal fields, which at the present rate of production, should last more than a thousand

Medical Service For All Planned

OTTAWA, March 2—(CP)—Provision of a complete health service for all persons is contemplated in the draft health insurance plan before the Social Security Committee of the House of Commons for the second successive year.

Changes made in the draft proposals since last year do not affect the scale of benefits, which comprise:

"Prevention of disease and the application of all necessary diagnostic and curative procedures and treatments, including medical, surgical, obstetrical, dental, pharmaceutical, hospital and nursing benefits and such other ancillary services as may be deemed necessary."

There is no provision for cash allowance in case of sickness.

An official summary of the draft says:

"Medical benefits include the services of a general practitioner, consultant, specialist, surgeon, obstetrician, hospitalization and nurse Nursing in the home is confined to the visiting nurse, except where the circumstances are such that bedside nursing is essential.

"Dental benefit must of necessity be restricted, as the number of dentists in Canada is insufficient to provide full and complete dental care for all."

Health Bill Is Not Complete Vivian Claims

TORONTO, March 1—The King Government's health insurance program just announced deals with only one part of a national health plan—proposals for raising money for it—and of this the most difficult part is left to the Provincial Governments, in the view of Ontario Health Minister Dr. R. P. Vivian.

Dr. Vivian observed that while he had seen only published newspaper accounts and had not had opportunity to study the measure fully, certain highlights stood out.

"First, the Federal Government," he said, "appears to be offering a plan as to how money can be raised for a health insurance program. It is stated that the per capita cost will be $21.60. We don't know how they arrive at that figure. It is presumed that the figure represents the cost for every man, woman and child in the country. It is not clear how the amount was estimated nor is it stated specifically in the newspaper account whether this includes the children under 16." The cost presumably would be upward of $250 million.

"Of the money raised," Dr. Vivian pointed out, "the Dominion proposes raising a portion of it through graduated income tax. The remainder is to be raised by individual assessment to be collected by the Provinces, in a method undisclosed.

Administration Province's Job

"The Province, in addition to this very difficult task, must undertake the administration of the plan and its cost as well as the care of indigents. The Province will have to pay the cost of administrative outlay for benefits to indigents and make up whatever sum the benefits amount to in respect of Provinces, above the estimated cost.

"It will be the duty of the Province to collect the basic $12 fee for every adult over 16."

The Pensions Minister, Dr. Vivian said, had claimed the plan would protect families against the hazard of illness, protect motherhood and childhood, eradicate tuberculosis and venereal disease, "all of which are primary points in a complete public health program." But, he pointed out, Dr. Heagerty, director of health services, in reply to a question by Angus MacInnis, had said not all public health services would be covered by the amount mentioned. "Clarification on this point is most essential," the Ontario Health Minister declared.

Wants to Know Coverage

He felt that while Ottawa would seem to have set up a system for financial procedure, and stated that this amount of money would cover adequate medical and hospital care for all, "they fail to specify what, in their opinion, this care should be. This has a direct bearing upon any estimated cost.

"This is particularly important," said Dr. Vivian, "inasmuch as it is stated that besides all other things the Provinces will have to do, they will have to make up whatever sum the benefits amount to in respect of Provinces above the estimated cost."

"I have repeatedly," he said, "stated that adequate health services of both preventive and treatment character should be established in all parts of Canada." But he felt the Ottawa plan dealt with only a part of the problem.

He was pleased to note, he said, that the former "cumbersome contribution system has been eliminated."

Member Declares C.P.R Curbs Output

VICTORIA, March 2—(CP)—Thomas Uphill (Lab.-Fernie) claimed in the British Columbia legislature last night that the Canadian Pacific Railway is throttling industrial expansion in the province so it can avoid reduction in the freight it carries.

Speaking in the budget debate, Mr. Uphill said the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company Ltd., at Trail would probably develop into one of Canada's greatest industries if it was divorced from C.P.R. control.

The Labor member contended the Consolidated plant does not make certain products because the C.P.R. wants the long haul on freight from Ontario and Quebec to the coast.

British House To Unfold Post-War Plans

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 2—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill's government, so the word goes around Whitehall, is almost ready to unlock the pigeonholes where three massive reports on post-war Britain have been gathering dust and criticism.

Officialdom is as silent as ever, but the word has come seeping through the Whitehall grapevine that the government's view about the Barlow (presented in 1940), Scott (1942) and Uthwatt (1942) reports will be made known shortly in the form of White Papers.

The Barlow, Scott and Uthwatt recommendations have received little publicity outside the country though they will play a vital part in the shaping of post-war Britain.

When the White Papers reach Parliament as government bills, they likely will produce some of the bitterest wrangling of any wartime session of the Commons. The reports have been subject to heated wrangling among the various factions concerned in the recommendations.

Here, briefly, are the main recommendations of the reports:

Barlow: Advocates restriction of the uncontrolled drift of industry to towns, particularly in the south and around London. Location of industry to be controlled as social, economic and strategic problem that must be solved.

Scott: Suggests creation of a central planning authority to revive village and country life and to preserve the amenities of the countryside. Proposes country life be made more economically attractive and calls for rural housing improvements.

Uthwatt: Makes sweeping recommendations on the planned use of the land for housing, factories and so on. To prevent land profiteering, suggests compulsorily-acquired land be paid for at price levels prevailing at March 31, 1939.

The reports take their names from commissioners who conducted the investigations—Sir Montague Barlow, Lord Justice Charles Kennedy Scott and Mr. Justice Andrew Augustus Uthwatt.

What they are saying:

Lord Vansittart—(On how to treat Germany after victory) "Punishment must be reserved for the hands that have actually committed the crime, but don't assume that the German nation is guiltless. The nation has been the accomplice of its misleaders."

Sir Richard Acland, Commonwealth Leader—(On the post-war world) "I believe there will be a revolution in this country within 10 years and it is up to us to decide whether it should be a revolution in our minds or in the streets."

Air Commodore Howard Williams—"One thousand years hence the people will look back and say 'My word, but the 1940s must have been terrific times' and they will quote Winston Churchill as they quote Caeser."

HONOR WORKER — With his production shortcuts helping battle line and production line, alike, a native of Cassino, Italy, now an aircraft engine assembler at the Packard Motor Co., Detroit, Mich., has been called to Washington for national recognition as an outstanding "production soldier." He is Fred Ospedale and 18 of his ideas are in use throughout the war factory.

Leap Year Parties Are Held By I.O.D.E.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 2 (ENS) Two rather interesting leap-year parties were held here last night under auspices of Group 5, Bemersyde Chapter, I. O. D. E. At Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Locke's Frank Street a cribbage party was held for some twenty players and Mr. Sid Hopping was the prize winner. Proceeds of the evening amounted to $7.75. Mrs. G.A. Ironside, Booth Street, was hostess to 9 tables of bridge and here Mr. Charles Howey was the prize winner. The prizes two decks of cards was turned over to Archie Meyers who auctioneered it off among the guests and raised an additional $26.50 which brought the total to $37.00. Following the auction Mr. Meyers gallantly turned the cards over to the hostess Mrs. Ironside, as a memento "of a very enjoyable evening."

Evidence Shows Baby Was Strangled

KINGSTON, March 2 — (CP).— Walter Haley testified on Tuesday in Assize Court here that Mrs. Annie May McCumber and Mrs. Reta Waagr both asked him to kill a baby which had been born to Mrs. Wagar. Mrs. McCumber, mother of rMs Wagar, is on trial for murder in connection with the baby's death.

The 22-year-old Haley, who said he lived with Mrs. Wagar at nearby Wagarville, testified: "Reta asked her mother and me to kill it and Mrs. McCumber asked me if I'd kill it......Mrs. McCumber washed the baby after she told me to kill it. It was crying and kicking when she carried it out of the bedroom." He added that in the kitchen he saw Mrs McCumber, who is 46, stuff a cloth down the childs throat.

"I just watched a second and then walked out again," he said. "I never was around when anything was being killed and I could not stand to see it."

Haley related that the 24-year-old Mrs. Wagar's soldier husband, who is serving overseas, had asked him to live with her. He said he ran away three times, but returned after each "escape" at her request.

To Save Allowance.

Haley, who began his evidence on Monday and completed it on Tuesday afternoon, testified under the protection of the court. He goes on trial at the conclusion of the McCumber trial on a murder charge in connection with the baby's death.

Mrs. Maude Harby, Haley's mother who occupied the other half of the backwoods shack in which her son and Mrs. Wagar lived, testified that Mrs. McCumber told her that if there was nothing of the baby to be seen her daughter would not lose her husband's Army allowance.

She also said that when police found the baby's body last April Mrs. McCumber and Mrs. Wagar "wilted right down and cried."

"Mrs. Wagar said, 'Oh, Lord, they'll find out just what happened.' Mrs. McCumber said Walter knows everything and will tell everything," Mrs. Harby continued.

H. L. Cartwright, defence counsel, said that at Mrs. McCumber's first trial last September when the jury disagreed Mrs. Harby had testified that she was unable to remember anything about the case.

Mrs. Wagar was sentenced last November 2 to four months in jail on a charge of concealment of birth in connection with the case.

Doug Runions Captures Scoring Crown

TORONTO, March 2 (CP)—Doug Runions of Hamilton Majors and Kenny Smith of Oshawa Generals are individual scoring champions for the 1943-44 Ontario Hockey Association season, official records showed today.

Runions won the Senior "A" crown by scoring 73 points on 39 goals and 34 assists, edging linemate Johnny Conick by three points. Conick had 36 goals, 34 assists for a 70-point total. Smith led the power-packed Generals to a new club scoring mark in the O.H.A. Junior "A" series by chalking up a terrific 53-goal total, coupled with 26 assists to give him 79 points. Trailing him by four points was team-mate Bobby Love, the league's leading playmaker, who scored 26 goals and 49 assists.

Third place in the Senior "A" scoring derby went to Dillon Brady of Hamilton's potent Conick-Runions-Brady trio. He totalled 62 points on 25 goals and 37 assists. Fourth, fifth and sixth places went to St. Catharines Saints' personnel. Blink Bellinger had 53, Red Reynolds 54 and Paul Mundrick 50 to round out the top six in a league that was crippled by the mid-season withdrawal of Toronto R.C.A.F. and Kingston Army.

Bill Ezinicki of Oshawa made the first three places another team monopoly in the Junior circuit by scoring 63 points to gain the slot behind Love. Bobby Schnurr of St. Michael's College was fourth with 60 points and Joe Sadler of the Majors and Johnny Ubriaco of Galt shared fifth place with 56 each.

Intermediate Teams Of Services Are Out Of O.H.A. Playdowns

TORONTO, March 1—(CP)—In a brief statement issued last nght from his Toronto office, Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association announced none of the 26 teams of the Canadian Army and the R.C.A.F. entered in the Intermediate series of the O.H.A. would compete in the playdowns for the championship under recent Ottawa rulings. Hewitt further stated the Powassan Club had retired from the Intermediate race because of transportation difficulties.

Instructions of the Air Force headquarters and the Department of National Defence which resulted in the withdrawal of teams and personnel from organized hockey and stated the order affected those participating in competition leading to the Allan Cup or Memorial Cup. Teams in the Intermediate O.H.A. do not point to either of these trophies but, nevertheless, such "units" have now been included under restrictions against entry into playdowns of that series after finishing compact group schedules.

Win Hockey Title

The undesignated reinforcement unit last night won the hockey championship of the Canadian Army overseas in two straight games by defeating the Camerons 8-2, after winning the first encounter 8-4. Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of British land forces for the invasion, presented medals to players of both teams before a crowd of 6,000 soldier-spectators.

Champion Boxers

Led by hard-bashing riflemen who dropped their opponents for the count, the Regina Rifles Regiment won the unit team boxing championship of the Canadian Army in Britain by the narrow margin of 18 points to 15. Their opponents were a reconnaissance Regiment outfit and each team represented an army division.

The Fort Garry Horse defeated an armored regiment 8-0 to win the soccer championship of their armored brigade and advanced into the playoffs of a Canadian Army Division. Cpl. Ed McHugh of St. Catharines, Ont., was a member of the horse team.

Seek to Buy Dodgers

Another syndicate, headed by Ted McElroy of Boston, has opened negotiations for the purchase of the Brooklyn Dodgers, a conference being scheduled today in New York to discuss terms after which a meeting will be held in Chicago where others interested in the deal are located.

Beau Jack to Defend Title

A step toward the solution of the confused lightweight championship situation will be taken Friday night at Madison Square Garden, New York, when Sidney (Beau Jack) Walker of Atlanta, Ga., will defend his New York version of the title in a 15-rounder with Philadelphia Bob Montgomery. The winner will meet Sammy Angott, the N.B.A. title-holder, on March 31 at New York for the undisputed crown.

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

It will be a great night for Scotland to-night, down at the curling rink; that is, as far as the finals in the Neill trophy is concerned. And after all who has a better right to play in the finals of a curling match than the Scots? Have we not been told repeatedly that curling is "Scotland's ain game."

"Then drain deep the cog, till the brain is a-whirling,
And pledge me, ye lovers o' Scotia's ain game,
To the memory of him, the inventor of curling,
Though the mists of oblivion envelop his name."

And so after many nights of double headers the finals have been reached. This game is scheduled for 8.30 o'clock this evening and should be well worth watching. Both rinks have worked their way all down the line and now the coveted trophy is with in their grasp. D. Grant won it last year, Tom McArthur won it a few years ago, so curlers come down to back your favorite. As we see it, through the glass, it's even money—take your choice.

To-night also we expect to reach the semi-finals in the consolation event.

The ladies, yesterday afternoon, demonstrated that when they want to curl, they can curl. Two games went into overtime and in both cases it was the skip who played last, for that end, had to make the winning shot. In the semi-finals of the Waddell trophy Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Purvis fought it out all the way with Mrs. Purvis coming through with her last stone to make a perfect draw to the tee to win.

Over on the other side of the rink, Mrs. G. Green and Mrs. Y. Lalande were having their own troubles playing in the vice-skips' bonspiel. This game also was close. When Mrs. Green went to play her last stone Mrs. Lalande had the advantage, but Mrs. Green played well up and removed her opponent's stone and counter shot and game.

It was a great afternoon and evening and those on No. 8 really got their money's worth.

Our boys who took in the Oshawa bonspiel report a good time. The rinks were skipped by E. Thomas, R. Best and Dr. McKee.

Replacements Refused

HAMILTON, Ont., March 2—(CP)—Officials of Hamilton Majors in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" group said last night they have been advised by the O.H.A. and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that Hugh Barlow and Jack Laycoe can not be used as military replacements in pending playoffs against St. Catharines Saints. The club was informed it would be unable to use Barlow, and Laycoe, member of the Toronto Navy team, because no member of the armed services is permitted to compete in Allan or Memorial Cup play-offs.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Ladies' Basketball League senior division moves into the final round at the Y.W.C.A. tomorrow night when the St. John's team who earned the right to participate in the finals by defeating Generals in the semi-final series will meet the first-place Transports in the first game of the playoffs for the senior title. Transports have gone through the regular season undefeated. They have a wealth of scoring punch scattered through their lineup with such snipers as Beryl Dobbin, Ruth Hewitt, Jessie Morrow, Jean Castle and Dot Bestard all liable to go on a scoring splurge and this ability to hit the hoop from all angles is responsible for the fact that the league leaders have gone through the season without a loss. St. John's, a fighting team if there ever was one, lack scoring power but they are a strong defensive organization battling for the ball from bell to bell and making it tough for their opposition. They should give the leaders a merry tussle throughout the final series. Transports and the Saints will meet in the second game of tomorrow night's double-header, starting at 8.45 o'clock. Normals and Y Cadets will clash in the first game on the program in the third argument for the intermediate championship. The series is all tied up now with one win each and tomorrow night's tussle is therefore decidedly important. The two games should be among the best of the whole season.

Two-thirds of the Petes razzle-dazzle line, Honey Tompkins and Art Heal, along with the rearguard combination of Johnnie Godfrey and Les Burton have found it impossible to keep out of hockey altogether this winter despite the fact that Peterborough is out of the O.H.A. The four of them played with a local team, the Canadians, in a Felt Cup game in Lindsay the other night and Tompkins and Heal rapped in two goals each out of the total of five scored by their team. Some of the boys have managed to work in quite a bit of hockey in the C.G.E. League to prevent the season from being a total loss. However it seems a sad twist of fate that with material here for a strong O.H.A. outfit it has been necessary for the Petes to stay on the sidelines or get their hockey in industrial loops. The absence of Peterborough from O.H.A. hockey for the first time in over 50 years is not a condition about which we would be justified in doing much boasting.

Plenty of Talent

That there is still plenty of hockey talent going to waste around Kingston this winter is indicated by the following from the column of scribe W. J. Walshe in the Whig-Standard: "Kingston's Frontenac seniors dug hockey togs out of moth balls last night in preparation for the game with Toronto Navy here next Saturday, in aid of the Hockey Hall of Fame. Sgt. Jack MacDonald who is gathering the old gang, figures about 12 of Kingston's disbanded O.H.A. senior leaders will be in the game Saturday. Ross Ritchie will be available for goal while Leaky Boats, formerly of Cornwall, is also a candidate for goal-tending. Boats played for Truro with Roy Giesebrecht, Ted Nicholson, Bill Booth, Jack Tisdale and Jot Catlin, former Kingston players, before he was moved to Kingston. The popular front line of Moe White, Red Doran and Jim Peters reported last night to reclaim old uniforms while Jim Galbraith, Vic Grigg and Buck Jones, the defence regulars, also claimed their old numbers. Chuck Phillips, Herb Foster and Bill Mortimer will also play Saturday. Red Hamill is expected in Kingston later in the week to resume command as coach and play Saturday night. Although it is regretful that so much hockey talent has been idle since the army banned open hockey, fans will appreciate seeing them in action again Saturday."

George Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe, has been reading the riot act in a mild sort of way to the Oshawa Generals. They probably will not like his statement that this year's team is far from being the best that has represented Oshawa in the junior A ranks. Here is how he tells them to snap out of it: "The chips are down from here in and each game is important. This year's team has to prove themselves good enough and do it now. They have to win all games at home and at least one in St. Kitts. If they cannot do that they don't deserve to be in the finals. It doesn't matter if certain Toronto scribes and others express great surprise when the Generals fail to win or fail to score a flock of goals. That's just so much eye-wash. Right here at home, this writer has seldom been guilty of contributing to any case of swell-headitis. Oshawa Generals this year have been guilty of "in-and-out" performances and that's not good enough in playoffs. Note that St. Mike's won convincingly right in Galt. Come on, Generals! You're not nearly as good a team as we've had in some previous year and don't get the idea that you are. However, if you play your best hockey all the way, we think you're good enough to win that 7th O.H.A. title. Come on, Generals! Let's go!"

"Not so long ago Gunder Haegg, an unknown fireman from Gaevle, Sweden, catapaulted to fame by setting a world's record for the mile run," says the Ottawa Journal. "Haegg was followed by another Swedish star, Arnie Andersson, and since that time each of them have been attempting to be the first to run a mile in four minutes or less. Though Andersson and Haegg are great rivals, they also are great friends. Andersson holds the world's mile record of 4.02.6, having shaved two full seconds off Gunder's mark last summer while Haegg was touring the United States and defeating the best on this side of the Atlantic. In a recent interview in Stockholm, the barrel-chested 27-year-old Andersson, who started running by accident, announced that he is training to run the four-minute mile and said he "wouldn't be astonished" if someone did it this coming season. "I should like to be the first to do it," said Andersson whose other ambition is to beat Haegg. Andersson not only has the "phantom mile" figured out but he tells how he hopes to do it with one-half second to spare, based on the race in which he ran 1,500 metres and then carried on for a mile to crack Haegg's world record. His times for the quarter marks in the 1,500 metres were 0.58.1, 1.59.3, 3.02.5 and 3.47.4 for 4.02.6 at the mile. He plans to lower these fractions to 0.58, 1.59, 2.59 and 3.44 for 1,500 metres and then go nine metres farther to negotiate the English mile in 3.59.5!"

The O.H.A. junior A playoffs are all tied up as a consequence of last night's games which saw the results of the opening games completely reversed. Oshawa Generals whose 5 to 3 upset at the hands of the St. Catharines Falcons had been the first surprise of the playoffs came back to form with a vengeance at home last night to smother the St. Kitts' selects 14 to 2. An Oshawa win was expected but the big score will have everybody guessing. The Galt juniors whose chances were supposed to have been completely shot when they were beaten 6 to 3 in Galt by St. Michael's in the first game of their round battled their way back on even terms with the Irish last night by nosing them out 4 to 3 at Maple Leaf Gardens, a real turnover. The third junior round to be tied up was the Hamilton-Brantford series. The Lions won at home in the opening game but the Hamilton outfit squared everything last night by defeating the Brantford kids 5 to 2 and now a third game will be needed.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Vic Holbrook, the young California wrestler who has been seen in action here frequently is an all-round athlete according to Joe Perlove....Holbrook at 23, a product of the University of Southern California has starred in college swimming, track and field, basketball, boxing, wrestling and football and has spent 17 months in the American Army teaching the soldiers hand-to-hand stuff....Max Lanier, star southpaw pitcher for the St. Louis Cards has signed his 1944 contract. ...."Apparently," says Jim Coleman, "the hockey dukes have no way of curbing this 'military replacement' nonsense." And no intention of doing so either, so far as we can see. The whole attitude toward such questions is an indictment of the spirit of amateur sport and turns even junior hockey into a racket....Navy Minister Macdonald will face the puck at the Army-Navy hockey game in Kingston Saturday night.

JOHN LEONARD (PEPPER) MARTIN

St. Louis Hero Ready To Try Comeback With Cardinal Team

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Editor

The "Wild Horse of the Osage," tamed somewhat by age, is coming back to the majors to play with the St. Louis Cardinals once more.

That would be John Leonard (Pepper) Martin, baseball player, hill-billy band leader, midget auto racer, hockey player, football player, prize fight manager and minor league manager, among other things.

Martin, 40 years old as of February 29, was the scourge of the National league during the year 1931-40. His base running kept opposing catchers constantly on the alert. His sliding was spectacular. His tumbles were comic and thrilling. His baseball playing was of the best. His colorful antics off the field made him one of the best-liked and one of the most popular of all St. Louis heroes.

Ended Career in '40

Martin was manager of Rochester, Card farm, last season. Previous to that he handled the reins for Sacramento in the Pacific Coast league and successfully, too.

He had ended his baseball career as a player in the majors in 1940 to take the Sacramento job.

The leader of the "Gas House Gang" of Cards, co-chaperoned by Dizzy Dean in his prime, began his pro career as a 20-year-old outfielder with Greenville. He moved up rapidly, alternating as an infielder. He was with Syracuse in 1926 and Houston the next season. He finished his minor league service with Rochester in 1930, swatting the ball for a mighty .363 average, batting in 114 runs and stealing 26 bases.

.298 His Average

Martin hit an even .300 in his first full season as a Cardinal. He continued to sparkle for the St. Louis club, hitting and fielding well and running wild on the bases.

He was a hero of the 1931 world series, getting 12 hits, and came back three years later to star for the Redbirds again.

In his last season with the Cards, 1940, Martin played in 86 games at third and in the outfield.

His grand major league batting average is .298 for 12 years of service.

Prior to Martin's announcement that he would play for the Cards against this year, it was reported he would take a St. Louis radio sports job.

The Sports Round-Up

NEW YORK, March 2 —(AP)— Don't hold your breath waiting for this latest Dodger "deal" to go through....The word is that the prospective purchasers won't make up their minds whether they're interested or not until they see all the figures—and it was those telephone numbers with a dollar sign in front that scared Max Meyer out....Ted McElroy, the only one whose name has been mentioned so far, is the same radio-telegraph speed champ who recently was awarded the Marconi memorial medal. So you might not go far wrong in guessing that one of his associates is William J. Halligan, who is in the same business and received the same award.

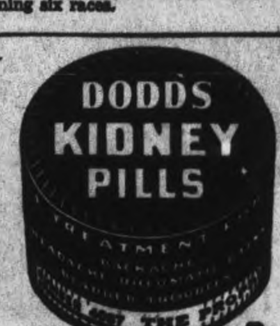
Jack Sharkey, en route home from the war zone, told service men in Puerto Rico that manoeuvring through Times Square on New Year's Eve is a cinch compared to bucking traffic in Italy...."They're really busy over there and you've never seen so much traffic," said Jack....Wonder if he remembers how thick the one-way glove traffic was the night he fought Jack Dempsey?

By any other name:

Ed Staples, Branch Rickey's handy man, was lunching in a Brooklyn restaurant the other day and discoursing at considerable length on the Cardinals....As he rose to leave, the waiter asked: "Excuse me, suh, do you come from St. Louis?"....Staples admitted the charge....The waiter grinned: "Is your name by any chance Dean—Dizzy Dean?"

Confident Of Eurasion

MIAMI —(AP)— Joe Rabinovich, wholesale milliner of New York, yesterday expressed extreme confidence in the ability of his $5,000 colt, Eurasian, to run off with the $25,000 Widener handicap, closing feature of Hialeah Park next Saturday. As a three-year-old last season, the horse won $61,615 in winning six races.



Ben Ward Wins One-Day Open Bonspiel

Oshawa. March 2. — Ben Ward's Oshawa foursome took down first honors in the final one-day open bonspiel of the season here yesterday when they trounced Ed. Thompson's Woodville rink for the limit in the first draw and did the same in the third game to Dr. McKee's Peterborough rink. Ward's rink piled up 27 points for their three wins. Earl Green's rink from Toronto High Park took down second place with three wins for a plus total of 18. W. Langdon's Lindsay rink was another rink to win three games, to take the third prizes with a plus total of 9 and total aggregate of 33.

Frank Michael's rink was high for two wins, while William Potts of Cobourg skipped his rink to a 16-5 win over Dobson in the final game to take down the prizes for high single win. Green's Toronto rink had the toughest road of all, but defeated all three of their Oshawa opponents to finish second to Ward's four.

Junior 'A' Teams All Square With Win Each

TORONTO, March 2—(CP)—Reversals were recorded in all three return games last night in the Junior "A" playoffs of the Ontario Hockey Association, and, as a result, the teams stand all-square in their separate duel going into the third games later in the week. Generals turned the tables 14-3 in a smashing blow against St. Catharines at Oshawa, after bowing to the Falcons 8-3 last Monday. Galt Kists nosed out St. Michael's College 4-3 on Toronto ice after absorbing a 6-3 setback at Galt. At Hamilton, the Whizzers scored a 3-2 win against Brantford Lions, reversing the result of the previous engagement at Brantford.

Bill Ezinicki of Oshawa ran wild against Falcons with five goals; Shewchuk figured in the parade to the extent of three counters, Floyd Curry accounted for two and Taggart, Batten, Daws and Bobby Love added one each. Scorers for St. Catharines were limited to two snipers, Phillips with two and Frank Long. In a battle sprinkled with 22 penalties, Oshawa had a 6-1 edge in the first stanza, stretched it to 12-2 in the second and coasted to a 14-3 verdict in the final frame.

Hamilton held the advantage throughout in turning back Brantford Lions leading 1-0 and 3-0 at the close of the first and second periods. Chief marksmen for the winners were Murray Comfort and Jacklin with a brace each, with Enio Sclisizzi, recently recruited from Stratford, notching one goal. Turner scored both for Brantford.

Galt Kists came from behind in the third period at Toronto to win 4-3 from St. Michael's after the Students notched three counters in the second stanza to assume a 3-2 avantage. Kists came through with two more in the third, however, to equalize the series. The scoring visitors were Johnny Ubriaco, McArthur, Mousseau and Bernie McCarthy. Ted Lindsay was a double-scorer for St. Mike's and Dave Bauer got one.

Sailors see films in comfort in comparison with soldiers on duty, although the fun might be spoiled suddenly in both cases. In a letter to his wife a sailor wrote:

"Last night we went ashore to see the Army movies. They have cleared a spot in the jungle and erected a huge white screen . . . Naturally, there are no seats, and every one has to bring one. Soldiers come down with an old box, a deck chair, a piece of stump and gas cans and grab a space . . . Big bats as large as chicken hawks swoop down and let out a screech that you can hear a mile. Coconuts drop down very often, and soldiers dodge. Every once in a while a board will collapse and a whole row of men will sit down in the mud."

Films follow the flag these days. Men and women in the service often see the latest ones before civilians do.

Young Leafs Sent To Bears

TORONTO, March 2—Eric Prentice, rookie forward for Toronto Leafs, who has been hidden away in practice sessions of the local club in recent weeks, is bound for Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League. So is Ken Schultz, another forgotten Leaf recruit, if his military call-up does not interfere.

Weiland Visits Here

Cooney Weiland, former Boston Bruin centre star, now coach of the Hershey club, was a Toronto visitor yesterday. He announced the deal last night, but qualified it by saying it was contingent on the waiving on the players by other N.H.L. clubs.

Prentice, a Timmins, Ont., juvenile of last winter, and Schultz, from Kitchener, appeared at the Toronto Leaf training camp in St. Catharines last fall. Prentice appeared in five N.H.L. games with Leafs. Both players were farmed out to Providence Reds of the American League, then returned to Toronto. They had been attending workouts of the Leafs regularly for several weeks.

Hershey Bears Hold Barons To Tie

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons, now certain of finishing the American Hockey League season as leaders of the Western Division, were held to a 3-3 tie last night by Hershey Bears, leaders of the Eastern Division. Indianapolis Capitals whipped Providence Reds 7-2 in the only other scheduled game in the circuit.

In last night's contest between the leaders, Barons' Tommy Burlington scored late in the first period. But half-way through the second Peg O'Neil, Ross Knowles, and George Patterson bagged three straight within three minutes and gave Bears a 3-1 lead.

Cleveland tallied when Pete Horeck flipped a counter in the Hershey net just 18 seconds after the opening of the third period, Lou Trudel tied the count four minutes later and neither team scored throughout the remainder of the period.

Indianapolis Caps scored five goals in the final period to overwhelm Reds 7-2. Reds' Yank Boyd scored in the second period and Bill Whittet added their second counter in the final frame.

Rod Morrison led Caps with two tallies, Alex Ritson, Dick Kowcinak, Kenny Kilrea, Johnny Sorrell, and Bil Thompson accounting for the other Indianapolis goals.

Quebes Aces Bump Royals

QUEBEC, March 2.—(CP).—Quebec Aces chalked up a 6-3 victory over Montreal Royals last night to gain revenge for the first loss of the season that Royals pinned on them in Montreal.

The win gave the Quebecers 16 victories in 17 Quebec Senior Hockey League games this season, and the loss made no difference to Royals' firm hold on second place. Billy Reay led the Quebec attack with two goals and an assist, while Rosie Rozzini bagged a goal and two assists. Alex Smart, Smiley Meronek and Jack Carthy were the Royal goal-getters.

Royals made a fight of it in the first period, with Smart's goal tying the count after Reay had shot Aces into the lead. Aces made a sweep of the middle frame. however, with four goals without reply. Gaudreault, Tremblay, Reay and Bergeron bagged the tallies that shot Aces into a 5-1 lead.

Royals showed to better advantage in the third, with tallies by Meronek and Carthy sandwiched around Quebec's lone counter of the period by Rozzini.

Combs came to the Yanks in 1924 from Louisville. He played for 11 years in the Yank outfield, hitting for a lifetime average of .325. Johnny Neun, manager of the Yanks' Kansas City team, will replace Combs as coach. Jack Saltzgaver, former Yank infielder, will be the new pilot of the Kansas City team. He has been playing for that club since 1938.

TORONTO, March 2— (CP). —For years, National Hockey League clubs tried to coax Doug Cairns out of Alberta amateur ranks without success. Doug's right to a place in the big time was proved this week when he nosed out the former Chicago star and Byng Trophy winner Max Bentley, for the centre spot on the Alberta Services Senior League's all-star team. Bentley was third in the N.H.L. scoring last season and has been a high-scoring centre in Alberta, but, still, the 36 players who chose the all-star team rated Max behind Cairns, 35 points to 46 in a possible 103...All other first team choices were former major leaguers; Goal, Jim Henry; defence, Mac Colville and Pete Slobodian; centre, Cairns; right wing, Alex Kaleta; left wing, Dave Schriner All but two of the second team also played under the big top: Goal, Russ Dertell; defence, Eddie Wares, Tom Anderson; centre, Bentley; wings, Roy Sawyer, Bob Carse. Dertell and Sawyer are those who had not played N.H.L.

Coaching tip:

Herb Cain, N.H.L. scoring leader, says it's tougher for him to play against Toronto, Chicago or Detroit than against Canadiens because Lorne Carr, Bill Mosienko, and Joe Carveth, all right-wingers, and Herb's checks when he opposes them, are pressing him for the scoring lead. "When I play against any one of the three I can't concentrate on getting goals myself. I'm trying to protect my lead by keeping them from scoring." Cain told Dink (Montreal Gazette). Carroll. Dink quips: "Which is, one way to make a guy backcheck."

Incidentally:

This is likely to become known as the year of the great football silence. Joe Ryan, one-time Winnipeg fireball, attended the C.R.U. Rules Committee meeting and didn't say enough to get his name in the newspaper report of the gathering....Art Chapman, scouting in Winnipeg for Eddie Shore's Buffalo Bisons, says Shore keeps himself in great shape, and adds: "I don't doubt he'd be the best defenceman in the National League if he wanted to go back today"....Chapman says the American League may reach major league status after the war with St. Louis included in the league.

Jimmy McLarnin Battles Axis

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—AP).—Eleven years ago Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin, as Irish as the harp on Tara's Halls, knocked out Young Corbett III of Fresno, Calif., and won the welterweight championship of the world. McLarnin was a native of Vancouver, B.C.

To-day Jimmy is still swinging punches, but they are aimed at the Axis. Independently wealthy, the genial and smiling veteran of the prize ring, who once dug clams for a living and later retired from boxing in 1936 with a goodly share of the $500,000 he earned, is one of the men behind the gun.

McLarnin works for an airplane specialties concern in Hollywood. He puts in a full day but whatever spare time he finds usually is devoted to his new love, golf. He's a four handicap man.

McLarnin whipped 13 past and present world champions from 1924 until his retirement, but the best man he ever faced, and Jimmy doesn't hesitate an instant in this decision, was Bud Taylor, the Terre Haute, Ind., terror. Bud, says Jimmy could have given Los Angeles' Henry Armstrong the battle of his life if they had squared off in their prime.

McLarnin is still within a few pounds of his best ring weight. He is married, the father of a young daughter, and lives modestly on his earnings and the investments made since he gave up boxing.

Racing And War Effort

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—Racing contributed $8,520,980.86 to the war effort during 1942 and 1943, Herbert Bayward Swope, chairman of the Turf Committee of America announced yesterday. The 1943 donation of $5,326,292.48 was raised through "war days" and other special occasions at 28 tracks. The 1942 contribution was $3,194,688.38, Swope said.

Boston Bruins Considered Out

TORONTO, March 2—(CP)—Boston Bruins, whose National Hockey League fortunes have suffered steady recession in the last two months, meet Chicago Black Hawks tonight in a game which has vital bearing on their chances for a place in the Stanley Cup series.

Bruins now trail the fourth-place Hawks by six points and although there is no mathematical obstacle to overcoming that six-point margin in their remaining eight games, most hockey followers are inclined to dismiss Boston from play-off reckoning. Despite the return of centre star Bill Cowley, Bruins now are a makeshift hockey machine.

Chicago, on the other hand, has shown signs of life since acquiring Defenceman Joe Cooper. It's just about an even money proposition, in fact, that Hawks will oust Toronto Maple Leafs from third place before the season ends March 19. Leafs hold a two-point lead, but have only six games to play compared with nine for Chicago.

Not even Detroit Red Wings, a game ahead of Leafs in second place, are safe from Chicago pursuit. But the Red Wings have a chance to stretch their margin when they meet the tailend New York Rangers at Detroit in the only other N.H.L. game scheduled Thursday.

11,094 Soldiers Desert Canadian Army

OTTAWA, March 2 (CP)—Figures on the number of army deserters in Canada since the start of the war show that the number of general service personnel who have deserted and have not been apprehended is greater than the comparable draftee total in every Military District but No. 4 (Montreal) and No. 5 (Quebec).

The full significance of the figures cannot be ascertained, however, since district strength figures—showing whether general service enlistment is greater or less than draftee enlistment—are not available for comparison.

The desertion figures were provided in the Commons yesterday by Defence Minister Ralston as he answered a question from Hon. Grote Stirling (PC-Yale).

General service men who deserted and are still not apprehended total 6,230, compared with 4,784 draftee deserters still not apprehended. These figures, with 80 Canadian Women's Army Corps deserters still not apprehended, make a total of 11,094.

The figures showed that there is only one deserter still unaccounted for in the United Kingdom.

NO CURE FOR BABY'S COLDS

a state which permits the people to return to peaceful work and live without any anxiety in the near future. Such a state hardly would be reached if we accepted Moscow's conditions. Acceptance would expose ourselves to the risk of becoming involved in another war and would transform our own territory into a war theatre."

It said Moscow's proposals were "a great disappointment" because they were "not so moderate as had been expected."

Finnish sources in Stockholm expressed similar views and said after talking with persons in Helsinki it is unlikely that Finland would accept the Russian proposals—mainly because she cannot afford to withdraw troops from their present positions as preliminary to further talks.

Earlier reports from Helsinki said the Finnish government was planning to send a delegation to Moscow, but these were wholly unconfirmed.

ville should be taken from the Department of Agriculture and placed under a board of governors. Farmers should have a say in appointing the governing board.

Power Cooperatives

The York East member also called for government assistance in forming "power co-operatives" through which farmers might have the use of modern machinery.

Mr. MacLeod told the Legislature the Teheran Conference should be regarded as one of the most important in history and he criticized a publication (Canadian Forum) which he said had belittled the conference and delegates. He was critical too of people who saw the prospect of chaos after the war.

He called on Premier Drew to implement his pre-election "promise" to take over 50 per cent. of the cost of education in Ontario and called for a 40-hour week with two weeks' holidays instead of legislation for a 48-hour week and a one-week holiday as forecast in the Throne Speech.

Termed a Lie.

The Labor-Progressive member defended the C.C.F. against those who would term the movement "national socialist," and charged that Gladstone Murray, Toronto policy counsel, was "running around the country saying he knew that the Labor-Progressive party had in its pocket a plan to stage a general strike after this war." That statement, he said, was a blatant lie.

Throughout his address, Mr. MacLeod linked certain phases of the C.C.F. program with that of his party and called for collaboration between the Government and the C.C.F. Opposition in the closely-aligned House.

The Legislature yesterday gave second reading to four bills, including an act to set up a department of planning and development and its companion measure amending the Executive Council Act to make setting up of the new department possible.

The other would amend the apprenticeship act to require apprenticeship certification in all trades requesting it, and provide for the central fyling and publication of provincial regulations.

No minister has yet been named to take over the new department of planning and development, which will co-ordinate the post-war development and rehabilitation plans now being laid by a number of bodies in the province. It was reported at Queen's Park that Labor Minister Charles Daley may take over the new department temporarily.

The Legislature also gave first reading to the Sugar Beet Subsidy Act, 1944, under which sugar beet growers working under production contracts will get a subsidy of $1.55 instead of the present 55 cents, between April 1 this year and March 31, 1945.

W. J. Grummett (C.C.F.-Cochrane South) gave notice of motion to-day he plans to present a bill to amend the Mothers' Allowances Act to extend its provisions to other than orphan children—the first Opposition bill to be introduced at the current session.

Mr. Grummett said his object was to take care of children whose mother is either deceased or confined in an institution and whose father has deserted them. Such children are not at present included for benefits under the Act.

Speaker W. J. Stewart yesterday ruled out of order a motion by John J. Kehoe (CCF-Cochrane North) amending the justices of the peace bill when it came up for third reading. Mr. Kehoe's motion asked that all prospective justices of the peace go before a judge for examination, except those with legal training.

Previously the speaker had ruled J. B. Salsberg (LP-Toronto St. Andrew) out of order when he attempted to discuss a bill introduced by Labor Minister Charles Daley to amend the apprenticeship act.

Hubert Trial

Mr. Bradshaw devoted an hour to his consideration of the evidence on behalf the accused and to his concluding plea on her behalf.

The last witness called by Mr. Hope was Alfred Woodcox, Jr., of Bancroft, who identified the .22 calibre rifle, produced in Court as an exhibit, as his own property.

"I've known Mrs. Hubert since I was a boy," witness stated in reply to Mr. Hope's examination. "The Huberts lived with us from January to May last year. Mrs. Hubert brought the gun down to Peterborough. She had put it in her trunk and I couldn't get it afterward."

Witness said he had lived for a while at the Hubert place near Nassau last year, but had not seen his rifle while he was staying there, and did not know where it was kept.

Previously in the Crown evidence it transpired that the boy and his father had boarded for a month or two with the Huberts last summer.

mire and forced the tanks to stay on the highways.

The Germans were given only minor support by their airmen. Spitfires shot down three Focke-Wulf 190's out of six over the beachhead yesterday. A Junkers 88 was shot down Tuesday night over Anzio. No German planes appeared yesterday.

American planes bombed German front line positions yesterday and other Allied formations cut to the rear, hitting other targets. British Wellingtons were thrown into the fray last night, dropping blockbusters and hitting troop concentrations with fragmentation bombs. All returned safely.

Artillery Broke Up Attacks.

Allied artillery was credited with a prime role in breaking up the main enemy attacks which centred on a line running roughly from Isolabella through Ponte Rotto to Digaribaldi—all south and west of Cisterna. Heavy fire from the big guns knocked out several German tanks near Ponte Rotto.

The Germans constantly shelled the Allied port areas during the height of the attack on Tuesday.

Allied artillery broke up a small scale German diversionary attack on Tuesday about two miles due south of Cisterna, and a total of 111 prisoners, including four officers, were taken. An Allied counter-blow wiped out small enemy gains. In the same general area, south-west of Littoria, Allied troops took more than 20 prisoners from a Nazi patrol of 30 to 50 men.

In the gullies and caves of the Upper Moletta river sector south-west of Carroceto, British troops still are engaging the Germans in successful encounters, it was announced. A British tank force there, piercing the German lines at dawn Tuesday, entered a small settlement, shot up an enemy platoon, then retired.

Only minor patrol actions took place on the main Allied 5th Army and British 8th Army fronts. Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press War Correspondent, reported sharp German machine-gun fire in the Canadian Corps sector of the 8th Army line.

The weather limited air operations sharply, but persistent hammering of the enemy continued. R.A.F. bombers hit rail installations south of Rome Tuesday night and Desert Air Force Spitfires attacked enemy shipping off the Dalmatian coast yesterday, setting several small vessels afire.

Ralston Urges Curb On Talk

OTTAWA, March 2 —(CP)— Defence Minister Ralston in the Commons Tuesday night appealed to Canadians to continue to avoid loose talk which might aid the enemy, but he praised the silence observed in respect to the sailing of the Kiska expedition last year, known to many on the west coast.

The Minister spoke after Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, referred to an Associated Press dispatch which quoted a United States intelligence officer as saying loose talk in the United States had resulted in the Japanese on Kiska being forewarned about the expedition.

Mr. Graydon said he was pleased Canadians had not been mentioned as having any liability. As at no other time in the war it was important that Canadians realize the winning of the war still was a long way off.

Attack Agreements

CAPETOWN, March 2 (CP-Reuters)—Finance Minister J. H. Hofmeyr defended the 1932 Ottawa Imperial economic agreements in the House of Assembly yesterday after a Nationalist member, Dr. A. J. Stals, claimed few benefits from it and said development of South African commerce suffered as a result of the agreement.

Soldiers To Get Transportation

OTTAWA, March 2—(CP)—Free transportation on retirement or discharge for officers and soldiers who came from countries outside Canada to join the Canadian Army was announced Wednesday by National Defence Headquarters.

Previously, army personnel upon retirement or discharge were entitled to free transportation to the place in Canada where they were appointed or enlisted, or to any other place in Canada provided the cost did not exceed that to the place where they joined.

Now, provision is made for transportation to the place outside Canada from which the individual came for the purpose of enlisting or being appointed, or any part of that country or any place in Canada provided the cost is not greater than to the place he was last living.

Director Of Engineering Service Will Address Kiwanis Luncheon

William J. Davidson, automotive engineer, for 30 years connected with the General Motors Corporation and at present Director of Engineering Service in its War Products division, will be the guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting this Friday. An expert in his field, Mr. Davidson, who has served in various technical capacities relating to war contracts and production almost since the beginning of hostilities, has chosen as his subject, 'Mechanized Army Equipment."

Canadian-born, Mr. Davidson is a graduate of McGill University, Montreal, and since 1914, with the exception of the World War period when he served in France as an officer in the Motor Transport Corps, United States Army, he has served in various technical capacities with General Motors. Naturalized as an American citizen in 1924, he won the Victory Medal of the A.E.F. in 1919, and in 1934 was awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honor by the French Government in recognition of his war service and frindly cooperation with French engineers since the last war.

WILLIAM J. DAVIDSON

In April, 1940, Mr. Davidson made a trip to France on a special aviation mission, and was in France when Hitler invaded the country. On his return to the States he was associated with the British Purchasing Commission until July, 1941, at which time General Motors recalled him to act in the capacity of manager of the Automotive Ordnance Section. Subsequently, he became Director of Engineering Service, General Motors War Products, which is his present position.

Mr. Davidson has prepared and presented papers on engineering topics before meetings of the Society of Automotive Engineers, and served as its president during 1939.

Albert Lions, 85, Dies At Apsley

After 10 days in the Apsley Red Cross Hospital, Albert Lions, 85-year-old man who was driven from his blazing cottage on Loon Lake, suffering burns and frostbite, February 20, died suddenly Wednesday as the result of secondary shock.

Although his heart had been bad, Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, attending physician, was surprised at the good progress he had been making. His feet had been doing nicely and his burns were responding to treatment. The nurse at the hospital phoned the doctor Wednesday that her patient had taken a weak turn, and before he arrived, Mr. Lions had died.

Since he could not be moved, and was progressing satisfactorily, his family had returned to Dundas, and were unable to reach Apsley before he died.

The elderly man was accustomed to coming up to his cottage in the winter and he had made his yearly trip up to Loon Lake on February 14. The following Sunday, he spilled what he believed to be coal oil on the stove, but which was in reality, gasoline, and the cottage became a mass of flames. The old man fought his way out and with eyes partially blinded and in his stocking feet, walked a mile to Couche's Landing in sub zero weather for help.

The body rested at the George G. Hendren and Son Funeral Parlors until this afternoon. It then proceeded by train to Hamilton. The funeral will be held from the Metson Funeral Home, Dundas on Saturday at 8 o'clock. Interment will be made in Dundas Cemetery.

Mount Pleasant Gives Aid To War Victims

Situated in Cavan township only a few miles from this city, the people of Mount Pleasant come into the picture to-day with help for the Peterborough and district British War Victims' Fund through a group of ladies, who have an previous occasions given aid to the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the fund.

In rural districts and communities as sparsely settled as this, social and welfare groups have provided a splendid means through which real co-operative efforts may be undertaken, being really in the first place an outgrowth of a desire to benefit themselves, and it may be said to their credit that since the war began they more and more have branched out and are also taking advantage of their opportunities to spread their influence for good to a far much wider field.

Among these, the Women's Institute of Mount Pleasant takes its place, having stretched out their hands across the expanse of ocean to give a helping hand to the sufferers froh air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and district British War Victims' Fund.

By means of a travelling apron, which went from member to member of this group, they raised the sum of $8.36 which is credited in their name to-day, helping to bring the amount that the fund now has on hand above the $1,200 mark towards the next donation of £500.

Cavan Veteran Also Helps.

All veterans of the last Great War know from bitter experiences the ravages that follow when bombs are deliberately thrown at people, among whom Sidney C. Boyles, of Cavan, is one of those wholesome types of personality who acts to do something practical to play his part in giving them a helping hand.

Besides taking a leading part in some co-operative efforts from his own district to give a helpiny hand, a number of personal gifts have appeared in his name in this column on former occasions, another of which appears to his credit to-day, incidentally bringing credit to the district of which Mervin Kinsman is the fund's representative, and who was responsible for the forwarding of this particular donation.

Range Pals Draw.

The Range Pals club, a group of young people led by Miss Margaret Bell as president in the district around Route 7, Peterborough, are once again at work on behalf of the fund with the sponsoring of a draw on a out work table cloth and 6 serviettes, donated for that purpose by Mrs. Wm. Bell.

The girls of the group did the embroidery work on this prize, and they are now hard at work selling tickets at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents, the whole proceeds of which will come to the fund, and add to the previous substantial amounts already raised for that purpose.

Horticulturists Are Active Group

So active has the Horticultural Society been in the past few months that they received special mention at the Ontario Horticultural Convention held in Toronto recently.

The Hon. P. M. Dewan Trophy was awarded to S. S. No. 3 Harvey which was placed second in the Provincial rural schools competition. The trophy was presented last summer at Lakehurst when 135 teachers, trustees and ratepayers were present. The local society was also used as an example for societies all over the Province in the beautification of wartime housing homes. For the first time representatives of the Peterboro group were invited to sit at the head table and they included Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott.

The whole theme of the convention hinged upon the necessity of more Victory gardens for 1944. Food products are vitally needed, and the more that are grown by householders, the better it will be. The Peterborough group is looking forward to a big year, members report.

Those attending the convention were: Mrs. Alex. Butcher and Fred Storey, official delegates; and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. George Duncan, Mrs. J. C. Read, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilks, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott.

Pte. J. McKenzie Killed In Italy

Pte. Jack McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McKenzie, 596 George street, has been reported killed in action February 9, while serving with a supporting company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy.

Before enlisting two years ago, Pte. McKenzie worked for Sugden and Shadgett. He joined the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.) and after a few months transferred overseas as a reinforcement. He took part in the Sicily operations and those in Italy.

Although not born in Peterborough, Pte. McKenzie had lived here about four years prior to his enlistment. He received his education in Prince Albert, Sask. and was 21 years old.

Besides his parents, he is survived by five sisters. They are: Mrs. F. Stuart, Mrs. J. Davis, Mrs. E. Vance and Carol Anne all of Peterborough; and Mrs. M. Barnett of Brownville, Texas.

J. Girven Talks On Safety Rules

The importance of making industrial employees safety conscious and ways of promoting it were discussed by J. E. Girven at the quarterly banquet of the Central Ontario Division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association at the Kawartha Club, Wednesday night.

The speaker suggested a campaign somewhat along the lines followed in the plants for the Victory Loan. He declared that a basic factor was a thorough knowledge of the facts about Accident Prevention work. The history of the Workmen's Compensation Board and the growth of the Accident Prevention Association were outlined.

"Inspectors visiting plants cannot be expected to detect all the hazards, and it is up to the plant personnel themselves to have regular group committee meetings to check on habits which are dangerous and contribute to inefficiency. When there is a serious accident, employees are at the peak of their safety consciousness, but time brings a slump, to old slothful habits."

Mr Girven said that accident prevention was a sound investment and that it should be sold to the workers. He advocated having a poster competition among the employees, the use of slides and a board with colored light bulbs to show accident-free departments during the week in the shop.

Fred J Overend was chairman and the speaker was introduced by H. A. Cranfield, divisional chairman. The vote of thanks was moved by Fred Innes of Canada Packers. Herb Smith and W. McCrae of Lindsay outlined the work being done in their section and Senator J. J. Duffus spoke briefly.

Plays Feature St. Peter's School Meeting

St. Peter's School held a mid-term meeting of the Senior High School Literary Society on Wednesday evening. His Excellency, Bishop MacDonald, Reverend J. T. Finn, Reverend F. Marrocco and the parents of the pupils were invited to attend.

The introductory remarks of the president, Jack Wade, were followed by an opening chorus—a tribute to "Christ the King," sung by all the senior pupils. After a reading of "St. Peter's News Sheet", by Miss Anne Overend, a charming play, consisting of four scenes from Shakespeare's "As You Like It," was presented by the Grade XII English class.

The cast was as follows: Prologue, Dorothy Sullivan; Rosalind, Mary Sullivan; Celia, Cecile de Chahtigny; Orlando, Raymond Maloney; Touchstone, Clare Conroy; Audrey, Catherine Ryan; Foresters, Tim Donnelly, James Sheehan; Pages, Ernest Schiarriza, George Clarke.

The students assumed these roles with an ease and grace that bespoke careful training and histronic ability. The songs, "It was a Lover and a Lass," "Blow, blow thou Winter Wind," and the concluding, "It was a Lovely Evening," gave an added touch of beauty to the play.

A fine recitation, "Back to School" by Miss Jean Rutherford and a chorus by the senior High School girls, "America has just begun," followed the play.

Grade XIII, the graduating class, then presented a playlet, "Glimpses of the Future." The setting of the play was the Conservatory of an air-liner bound for Paris—Time, sixteen o'clock, in the year 1965. It was an original composition of the Upper School English Class, each student assuming the role he hopes to play in later life. The structure of the liner was explained, ultra-modern medical developments discussed; and touches of humor and human interest rounded out a plot which was presented with a naturalness and charm that was pleasing and interesting.

The cast was as follows: Anne Overend, hostess on the air-liner; Maureen Hickey, a nurse; Joan Donnelly, a Parisian dress-designer; Jack Wade, a specialist in nervous diseases; (Sir) Dan McIsaac, discoverer of a new motive force; Billy Sheehy, his assistant scientist; Owen Cauley, a lawyer; Frank Lucano, inventor of the new airship; Rita Coss, teacher of Esperanto; Marion Downer, Lady McIsaac whose reported death has resulted in Sir Dan's loss of memory.

A choral reading by the pupils of Grade XI followed. The pleasing rhythm and fine blending of the voices of the readers delighted the audience. The meeting closed with a hymn in honor of St. Joseph followed by the National Anthem.

His Excellency, Bishop MacDonald, congratulated the students upon their exceptional dramatic ability and expressed his appreciation of the delightful songs.

Special mention must be made of the splendid work done by the stage-properties committee, John Wolf and Teddy Lynch, and their assistants.

One Man Hurt As Car Hits Tree

When a car plunged off Highway 28 in front of the farm home of James Beatty Wednesday, ran along the shoulder of the road for some distance, then collided with a fence and finally wound up by sideswiping a tree, only one of the three occupants was injured. He was the owner of the car, Reg. Foster, R.R. 2, Peterborough, who received a cut on the hand that required five stitches.

According to Provincial Constable L. A. McClure, who investigated the accident, the driver had apparently fallen asleep at the wheel. The car was north-bound.

After the crash the occupants of the car made their way to the Beatty home and afterward Foster was driven into the city and received medical attention at the office of Dr. D. W. Clark.

The front of the car was badly damaged.

Finance Group Kills Alarm Box Request

Peterborough fire department recorded 378 calls last year, 36 of them through the 58 alarm boxes distributed around the city.

Twenty-five of those 36 alarms were false, leaving 11 of the box calls as genuine.

Alderman Sullivan gave that information to the finance committee of the council last night during the passing discussion of an item of $1,200 for additional alarm boxes.

"I can't see that we should spend that money," Alderman Glover said, and it was rubbed out.

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP). — William Rogers, secretary of the Ontario Fruit and Produce Association, said yesterday that a committee of association members will go to Ottawa soon to urge the Prices Board to permit wholesalers to truck fresh fruit and vegetables for greater distances than 35 miles. The delegation will be made up of James Admonso of Napanee, Joseph Anthony of Peterborough, and D. K. Bonokoff and J. K. Sims of Kitchener.

Health Plan Is Seen As Good Start

"This is certainly something that must come; something of this form must be worked out," was the comment of E. Bruce Fowler, secretary of the Nicholls Hospital Trust, remarking this morning on the national plan for health insurance submitted to the Commons Social Security Committee by Pensions Minister Mackenzie at Ottawa. "They are heading in the right direction, and though a great deal of revision and thought will be required before a final scheme is decided on, I believe this plan is a very worthwhile beginning," he said.

Mr. Fowler pointed to the success of the plan for hospital care in the Province of Ontario, which, started three years ago, had enlisted 250,000 members and was working "marvelously well." He said it was more than likely that the experience of organizations of this type would be utilized and absorbed in any nation-wide health insurance plan when finally formulated, and cited the overall medical coverage at 7c a day of the 90,000 employees of the Henry J. Kaiser Shipbuilding Yards on the West Coast as an example of what could be successfully accomplished.

Cautioning that there were of course many pitfalls in the application of a revolutionary scheme which has no precedent in practical experience, Mr. Fowler said he considered the rates as revised to be reasonable.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, Medical Officer of Health, asserted that quite apart from the merits of the plan it was certain that discussion of its aims and how it is to be brought into practical effect would tend to "make the general public more conscious of the problems and the importance of preventive health measures."

"It looks all right at first glance," said George Gimblett, President of the Canadian Legion Branch No. 52, adding that "maybe the cost is a little [illegible]. But the plan is definitely a good [illegible]ing."

31 Tons Of Paper Collected In City

Peterborough's paper collection is now complete and the returns are in for all the districts. The final check-up shows that a total of 62,110 pounds or approximately 31 tons has been collected in the city as a result of the drive.

This figure is regarded as satisfactory especially in view of the fact that it is estimated that between 20 and 30 tons of paper had already been collected here through the medium of the city schools.

IS TRANSFERRED

Provincial Constable W. H. McBrien who has been stationed in Lindsay for the past four years has been transferred to district headquarters at Belleville. Provincial Constable Driscoll has been moved to Lindsay.

Committee Hints Tax Rate To Be 30 Mills

Intimations of a 30 mill tax rate for this year are coming out of the nightly meetings of the finance committee.

"I don't want to see the rate go over 30 mills," Alderman Glover said Wednesday night, to which Mayor Hamilton replied: "It won't, but we will not be able to have anything like the margin of last year."

Alderman Dutton looked two or three times at an item of $68,000, a tax reserve fund against a possible day of heavy arrears which no member of the council really expects.

That's the same item William Tinker mentioned as excessive in his address at the December nominations meeting at the city hall.

May Retard Plan

While Alderman Dutton was proposing to cut off a slice of about $18,000 from the tax reserves, Mayor Hamilton was breaking the news that the council might not be in a position to lay aside something this year for post-war work.

Taxpayers may remember that something was set up on a top shelf last year for that purpose, and apparently there isn't going to be any 1944 accretion.

"I don't see why we couldn't take something off that tax reserve fund" Alderman Dutton persisted.

The council's intention was to make an annual appropriation equivalent to one mill for uses after the war, but seemingly "the hope was drunk wherein you dressed yourself" and now later in the day it is being abandoned for this year. At any rate there was no definite information on that point.

Red Cross Drive Requires $10,000 To Go Over Top

With two days left in the Red Cross and Community Drive, it was estimated this morning at George street headquarters that $10,000 will have to be raised before Friday night, if Peterborough is to reach its allotment of $60,000. The tally made up to Wednesday night showed a grand total of $48,035.59 turned in.

The retail division is forging ahead and reports $5,042.50 as against $3,942.50 for Tuesday. Special names jumped from $14,686 to $16,966 and industries remain the same.

The standing for the various divisions is as follows:

Retail	$ 5,042.50
Women's	2,134.90
Special names	16,966.00
Industrial	23,671.35

Surprise Raid Captures Isles

AT ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, March 2 (AP)—Troops of the American 6th Army have pushed far into Japan's South Pacific defences with a bold landing on the Admiralty Islands under the personal supervision of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who announced the invasion Wednesday.

Dismounted units of the First Cavalry Division hit the beach at Los Negros island in the northeast corner of the Admiralty and quickly captured Momote airdrome, in a co-ordinated army-navy-air thrust which caught the Japanese unaware.

Not a single enemy plane or ship disputed the operation.

Destroyers carried the troopers to the island through the Bismarck Sea, which a year ago was almost wholly enemy domain.

The invasion, MacArthur said, makes the end of the Bismarck campaign "clearly in sight," and "in addition to troops trapped in the Solomons some 50,000 of the enemy, largely in New Britain and at Rabaul, are now inclosed."

Gen. MacArthur went ashore at Los Negros Island and inspected the quickly-captured Momote airdrome.

MacArthur, who directed the amphibious operation from the bridge of a warship, was accompanied by Vice-Admiral Thomas C. Kincaid and other high-ranking Allied officers.

Only 20 minutes before MacArthur arrived, Japanese snipers had been killed on the edge of the important airstrip.

MacArthur has often indicated his interest in returning to the Phillipines, where he first met the Japanese fighting strength, and his communique announcement of the landing pointedly remarked the Admiraltys are "almost due south of Guam and 1,200 miles from the Philippines."

British Seek Factory Sites In Small Cities

By MOLLIE McGEE

LONDON, March 2 — So many British manufacturers and businessmen are asking at Ontario House, London, for particulars of the Province's smaller towns, with a view to locating in Ontario after the war, that Agent-General James Armstrong is inviting mayors to send detailed accounts of facilities available.

"Analyzing the first 400 applications received during the past few weeks at Ontario House, the majority are primarily interested in establishing themselves in medium sized cities or small towns," Mr. Armstrong said.

It is urgent that mayors, and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario communities draft and mail him accurate information for reference purposes, Mr. Armstrong said.

"The only information pertaining to our Province on this island now is twenty years old. We want the up-to-date picture immediately to present an unbiased story about the situation which now exists. We are anxious to encourage this interest in small towns, but it is about these communities that our information is scantiest," he said.

Nature of Data

Data wanted includes population, education facilities, communications, industry, agriculture, banks, desire for immigrants, housing available, factory sites, opportunities to purchase farms or small businesses, "in other words, brief information in concise form to be sent to Ontario House for ready reference. Pictures will also be useful."

Mr. Armstrong explained: "There are also many men in the Canadian and British forces inquiring about towns in which their parents were born with a view to returning."

According to the Agent-General 90 per cent of the individual applicants are in their twenties or early thirties, in the services or employed in essential war work. A large number are skilled tradesmen some with funds for investing in a farm or business. R.A.F. fliers have airgraphed from Africa India and Egypt, several specifying towns they saw when training.

Priority for Canadians

"Naturally, our own Canadian service men should be given priority in any rehabilitation schemes, but it is a grand tribute to the conduct of Canadians abroad that, never having seen Canada, thousands of British who have met and fought beside them want to be their future neighbors.

"This office is not diplomatic, political or social," Mr. Armstrong said. "We are here solely as a business or selling organization. We intend tot interest the British public in our Province. One of our main functions is to encourage reliable British firms to establish branch industries and find employment for our repatriated soldiers and to absorb workers now engaged in war industries."

Churchill Party Wins Election

LONDON, March 2—(CP)—Maj. E. M. Keatings, National Conservative candidate supported by Prime Minister Churchill's Government, won the Bury St. Edmunds House of Commons by-election from Mrs. Corbett Ashby, Independent Liberal, by 11,705 votes to 9,121, it was announced to-day.

The campaign, which closed when voters went to the polls yesterday, was of such a bitter nature that one London paper commented it might be necessary to change the name of the constituency to "Bury St. Hatchet."

Keatings is a farmer, now engaged in war service. Mrs. Ashby resigned her post as vice-president of the Women's Liberal Federation in order to contest the seat.

It was the first parliamentary contest in the little Suffolk farming community since 1929 and attracted attention all over Great Britain as the first test vote since an independent candidate defeated one sponsored by Mr. Churchill at Bakewell in West Derbyshire two weeks ago.

Keatings said after the result was announced, "I won because I supported the right cause and the right man and the electors of Bury St. Edmunds agree with me."

Mrs. Ashby said, "I lost because the Old Register disenfranchises the young and active workers who have had to leave home."

Apprenticeship Act Amended

TORONTO, March 2 (CP)—A Bill to amend the Power Commission Act, providing for the setting up of an advisory committee to assist Commission on Hydro matters, was one of the three measures introduced in the Ontario Legislature yesterday.

The legislature also passed through third reading of the Weed Control Act and an amendment to the Justices of the Peace Act.

The Bill amending the Power Commission Act, introduced by Hydro Commission G. H. Challies, provides for an advisory council of five members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to hold office for two years.

A bill to amend the Apprenticeship Act, introduced by Labor Minister Daley, would require all persons engaged in any designated trade to hold a current certificate of qualification.

Attorney-General Blackwell introduced a bill to provide for the central filing and publication of regulations. He said its purpose is to require the filing in a central office of all provincial regulations and their publications in the Ontario Gazette.

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—Denouncing birth control, Rt. Rev. Monsignor John A. Ryan of the National Catholic Welfare Conference said yesterday there is a possibility that the population of the United States may become stationary by 1960 and thereafter begin to decrease.

Big Air Battles Expected To Come Soon

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, March 2.—(CP Cable). —A new aerial battle of Britain may be waged before "D-Day" for the forthcoming western European invasion as the German air force seeks to disrupt invasion preparations.

Indications that the Allied High Command believes the Luftwaffe may strain itself to the limit to force such a struggle was provided in Sir Archibald's announcement yesterday that a new air defence force for Great Britain had been created. The new group will operate under Air Marshal Sir Roderic Hill, former air officer commanding No. 2 fighter group.

Presumably absorbing the fighting command, the new force revives in name the old "A.D.G.B." organization of early blitz days in which many Canadian anti-aircraft gunners and night fighter pilots served.

Recent London raids are likely only on a curtain raiser for the gigantic air battles to come as a thunderous prelude to a continental landing. London probably will continue the principal target as the Luftwaffe seeks to knock out communications, railway stations and military installations. The enemy also might seek to crack civilian morale by carrying out as much indiscriminate bombing of residential districts as possible.

Invasion ports probably would be next on the enemy bombing priority list and an effort would be made also to bomb certain large troop camps, supply dumps, ordnance depots and Southern England railway junctions.

Whether the German air force has sufficient punch left to carry out such an ambitious program is open to question but Sinclair warned yesterday that the enemy is not using all his available strength in the current attacks.

Announcement that Hill's force is for day and night defence is significant. Perhaps this is a hint that large-scale German daylight raids are anticipated in addition to night assaults. This was the case in 1940 when sirens moaned morning, afternoon and night.

Great Britain Would Retain Germany As Nation In Post-War World

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 2 (CP Cable)—An editorial suggestion in the Times of London yesterday that Germany must be an important member of the post-war European political and economic order served to point up recent British discussion on what to do with Germany.

The editorial created no immediate stir or official reaction here. In effect it was what British leaders have been saying all along.

It is perhaps not what the British public is feeling in the heat of battle, but there has been an evident warning in government speeches on the post-war set up in Europe that while Germany must be stripped of power to wage war, her economy must not be thrown into the chaos that breeds war.

As recently as last week Prime Minister Churchill disclaimed any desire to "blot out Germany from among the nations of Europe" and Foreign Secretary Eden has repeatedly stated that "Germany must not become a source of embarrassment to her neighbors and the world by suffering economic collapse."

As yet there is no United Nations declaration setting out how Germany's economy is to be controlled or how a beaten Germany will fit into the postwar European political picture.

However the joint statement by Mr. Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin after the Teheran conference said, "we have surveyed problems of the future." Germany's future is unquestionably one of these.

Public discussion of the question has been comparatively light until recently. The Daily Mail published in January a plan for dealing with Germany after the war, written by an anonymous political observer.

The Mail also published comments on the plan by a dozen or so well-known Britons, including George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, Lord Vansittart and Emmanuel Shinwell, and invited comment from its readers.

This plan proposed dismantling and destruction of the German war industry, prohibition of manufacture and import of explosives and weapons of war of any kind, and the setting up of an Anglo-Russian-American Commission to inspect German factories twice a year. The Allies would continue this supervision for 75 years.

Shaw Opposed.

Shaw criticized every point of this plan. Wells condemned the idea of the "Big Three" overseeing reconstruction alone and called for a world readjustment organization with all nations represented.

Lord Vansittart recommended the prohibiting of Germany making synthetic gasoline and rubber as well as armaments. Shinwell, a Labor Member of Parliament, said "we are fighting to destroy Nazi tyranny, not to enslave the German people . . . To control permanently the political system of Germany and remold the lives of her people is a task beyond the powers of the United Nations."

Reader action was plentiful and varied. It ranged from suggestions that "the germinating ground for Hitlers can only be removed by a generous gesture" of providing food, work and houses for the German people to the heated proposal to take away every facility Germany has to manufacture anything and turn the Germans into a race of agriculturists.

Sydney W. Carroll of the Daily Sketch staff wrote it should be made clear to the Germans before the invasion that Allied victory will not mean the wiping out of all German industry, culture, happiness and power for good.

Shop Work Is Popular With Campbellford Students

CAMPBELLFORD, March 1 (ENS) —The technical school is no longer considered merely an institution for those unfit for academic courses but like its counter part the General Shop in the secondary school, it has attained a place of far reaching importance in the educational field and is playing a vital part not only in the war effort but also in preparing school pupils to better fit themselves for work in the post war world. These were the thoughts expressed by Ellis Darling, B. A. head of the Manual Training Department at Campbellford High School who was guest speaker at the noon-day luncheon of the Rotary Club held Monday.

According to Mr. Darling the Shop Work course originated as a part of the new course of study in 1937 and brought the advantages of the technical school to the High Schools in the smaller urban centres. Shop work had been meeting with increasing popularity among students, and this was especially true since the outbreak of the war when many technical schools in the larger centres actually instituted three 8-hour shifts a day to meet the demand for training of this type. Recognizing the technical equipment was costly the Department of Education introduced the General or Composite Shop where drafting, wood cutting, sheet metal working, farm mechanics, auto mechanics, and in some places mining are taught.

To make the idea of instituting these courses popular the Department extended a grant covering fifty per cent of the initial cost of its establishment. This amounted to approximately $1,200.00 where the total cost came to $2,400.00. Annual grants of $200.00 for teaching the course in Grades IX and $100.00 for each other grade in which instruction was given brought the local Board of Education another $400.00 a year from which supplies such as lumber, paint brushes etc. were purchased. The speaker pointed out that the course was obligatory in Grade IX which is termed the 'exploratory year" in so far as the pupil is concerned. This gives him an opportunity to discover his likes and dislikes.

Rotarian A. J. Armour moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. President Stu Stuart announced the club's election of officers would be held earlier this year since the date for the annual District Conference had been advanced. He said nominations would be held on March 13. W. A. Hogle gave a report on school hockey and said the final games of the season woul be this Friday when teams from Stirling and Havelock would compete with the locals.

HAVELOCK, March 2, (ENS) —In the correspondence read at the Red Cross meeting was a letter from Miss Ellen Porter for the Jam Committee, stating a total of 111 tons of jam and honey were donated in 1943. The generous donation from the local Branch bought 24 tins raspberry jam and 15 tins plum jam.

McKelvey, Supervisor of Women's War Work Committee. Emphasis was placed on the necessity of saving the flannelette cuttings for the making of ward slippers.

A card of thanks was read from Mrs. Annie Anderson expressing appreciation for the flowers received. An account from W.A. Scott, Norwood, for transporting of Blood Donors to Peterborough was ordered paid. Final arrangements for the membership drive were made and thirteen canvassers appointed to act this week. Mrs. William Drew was appointed to act as official delegate in place of Mrs. Annie Anderson, and Mesdames Frank Watson and George Smith as the alternates. The new material for the sewing quota has arrived and the garments will be cut out next week.

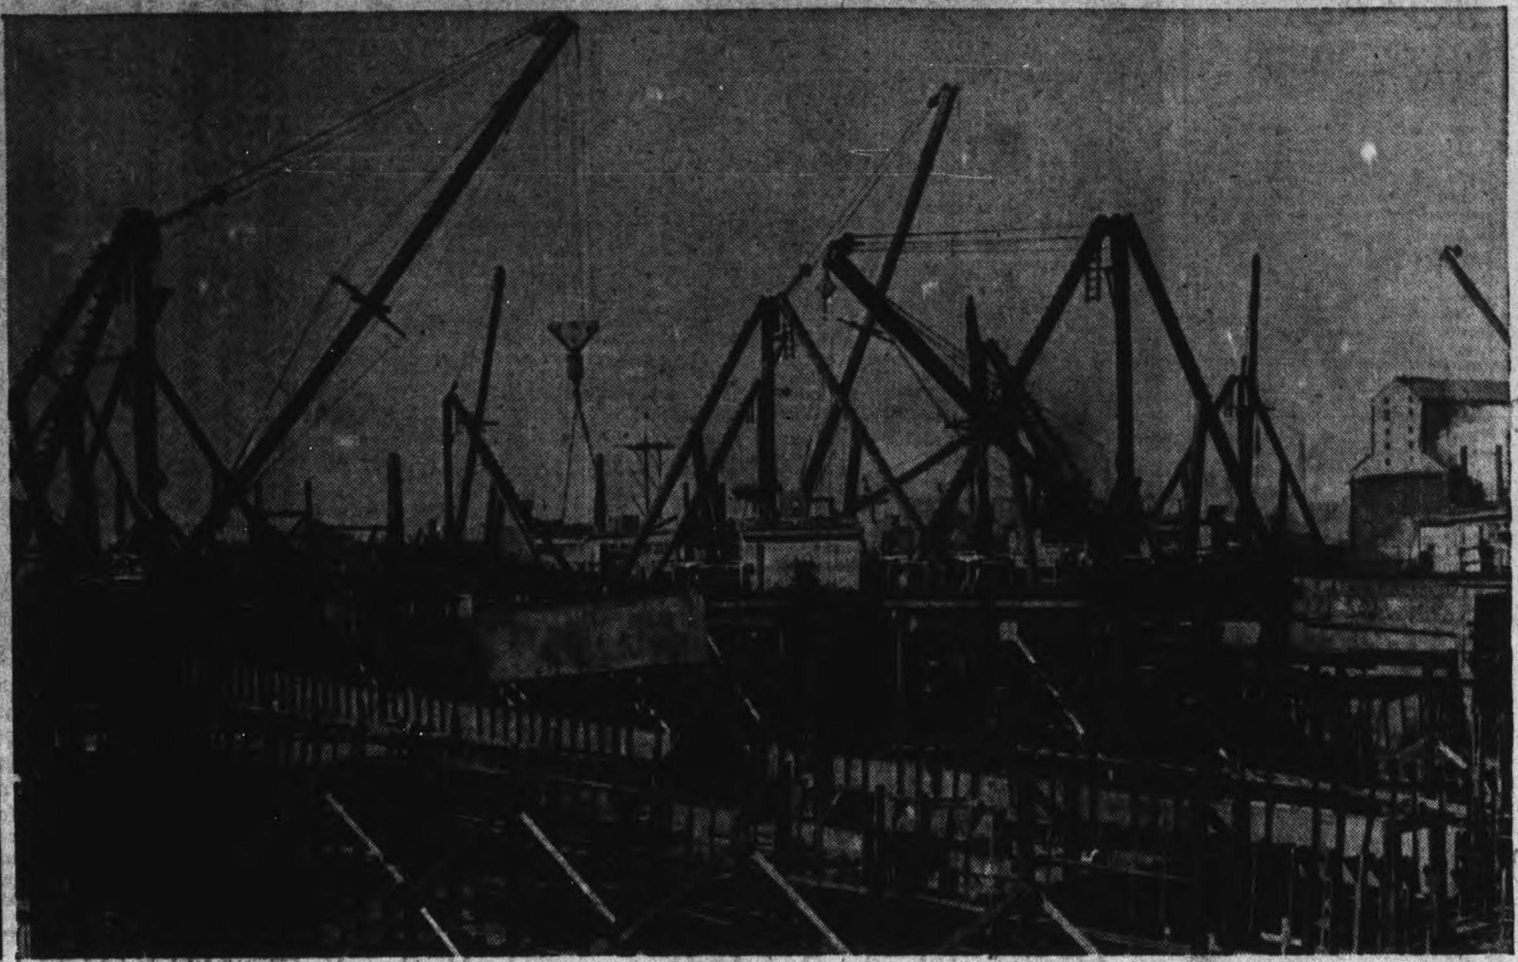
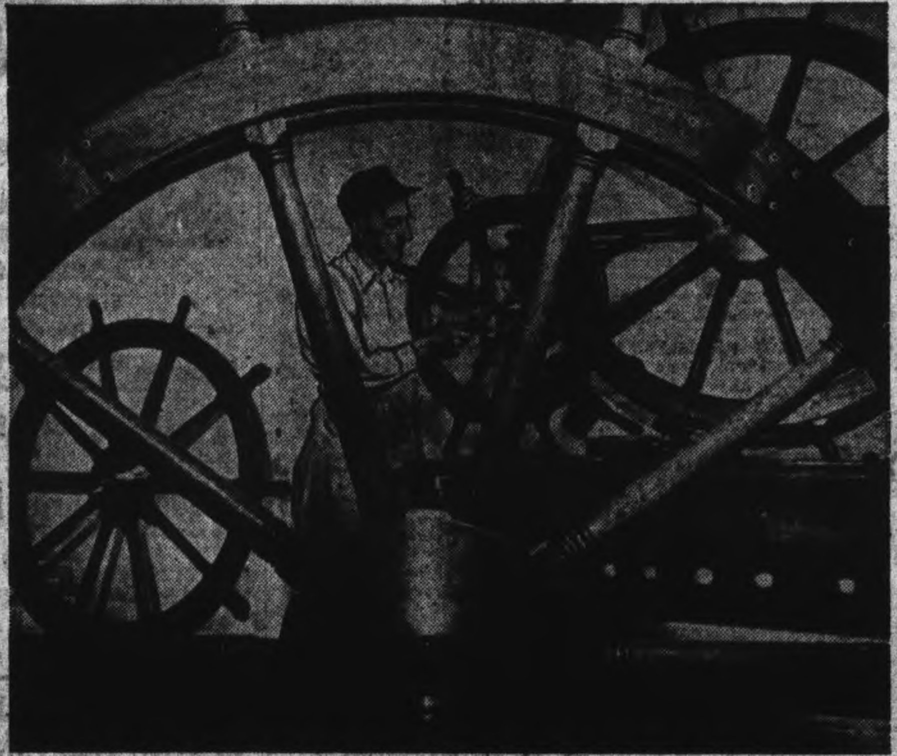
More Than 300 Firms Contribute to Amazing Record of Canadian Shipbuilding

A Vancouver plant makes the anchor chains for Canadian-type Liberty ships. Each weighs 50,000 pounds, is almost a quarter of a mile long. Factory turns them out on electro-weld production line, only one of its kind in the Empire

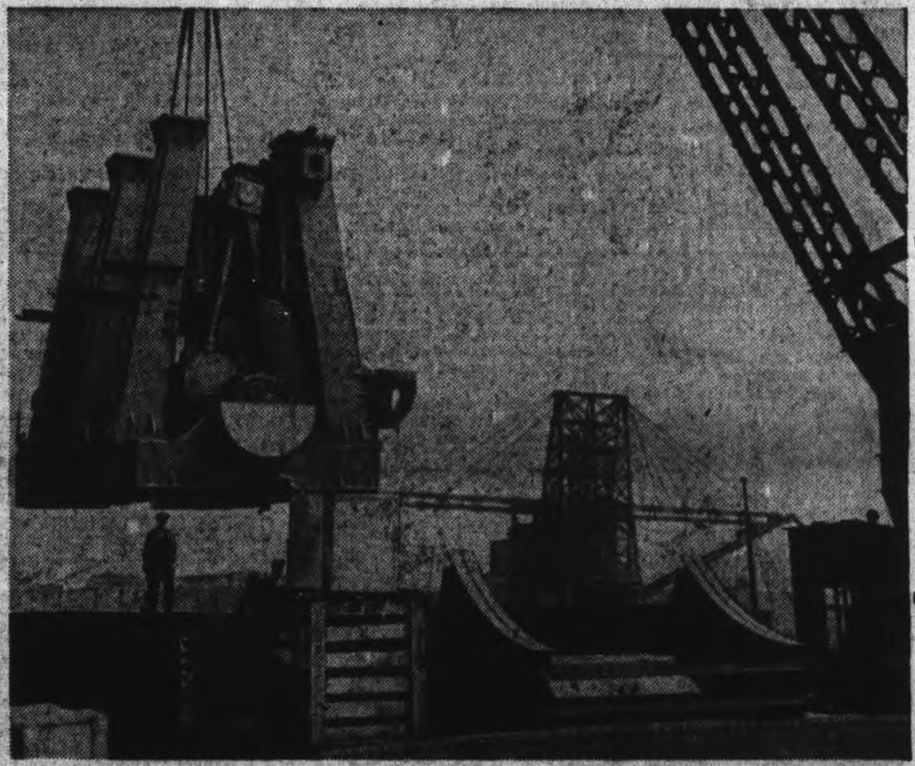


In 12 huge Canadian shipyards, some of which did not exist before the war, close to 50,000 workers are engaged in building merchant boats for the United Nations' Battle of Supplies. All but a few of these ships are of the 10,000-ton class, and more than 225 have been launched. Above, record busting United Shipyards, Montreal. These vessels are similar to U.S. Liberty ships, are 427 feet long.

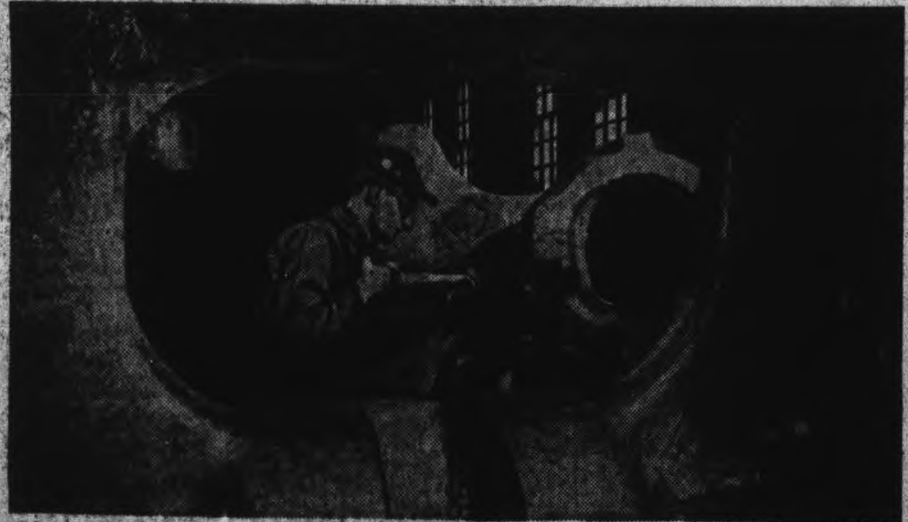
Propellers for freighters are made in an Owen Sound foundry which turns out all the props for every type of craft made in Canada. Above, sanding an 18-tonner.

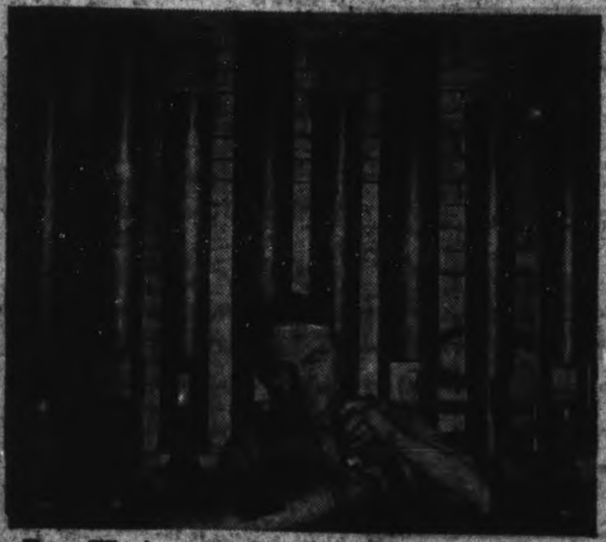


George Parker, formerly a violin and guitar maker, now turns out steering wheels for ships. These are made of teak or walnut, consist of 50 various wood components. Plant, also in Owen Sound, makes furniture in peacetime.



Crane lowers monster engine in belly of a 10,000 tonner. Heavy machinery manufacturing firms, in several cities, are turning out these super-engines. There are millions of parts in a ship. Procurement problems are innumerable.





From Winnipeg, the freighters get their big anchors, two to a ship. From Ottawa come their compasses and binnacles; from Calgary, their steam valves, and from Toronto, their whistles. There are 600 types of valves in the ships, plus 25 tons of copper wire, 2¼ miles of steel cables, and 110 tons of piping and tubing.

Ready for her first journey, this Vancouver-built 10,000-ton ship takes on load of Canadian lumber. In her hull alone are 3,000 tons of steel plates and shapes, held together by 400,000 rivets. Yard can claim credit for building her, but so can the many component firms contributing to her massive bulk.

Voting System Unfair To Many Fliers

OTTAWA, March 2 — (CP). — Introduction of a system of direct voting for members of the armed forces overseas in the next Federal election would deprive a large number of R.C.A.F. personnel of their franchise, Air Minister Power said yesterday at a meeting of the Commons Election Act Committee.

Maj. Power said he personally favors direct voting rather than a proxy system, but it would present tremendous difficulties because of the wide dispersement of members of the R.C.A.F. It would probably be impossible to reach all of these men to enable them to appoint a proxy, he said.

The most complete method would be to allow the name of every man to be put on the voters' list by his next-of-kin and then advise the men they had the opportunity to name an alternate proxy if they desired.

A further difficulty in direct voting would be the possibility that loading cables with lists of candidates and other election information might interfere with important operational messages, he said.

Sam Factor (L-Toronto Spadina) chairman of the committee, announced representatives of R.C.A.F. and Navy will be called at the next meeting to outline difficulties which might arise under different systems of voting.

The committee yesterday studied most recent United Kingdom election legislation as a background for considering amendments to the Canadian Election Act to make provision for voting by members of the armed forces.

BEACH ASSAULT LANDING

Out of the early-morning mist laying over the water, a blunt scarred, paint-chipped boat's stem pushed its way silently, grates on the beach pebbles. Before the wash has had a chance to rustle on the shingle, a ramp forming the front of the boat lowers with a roar of chains and a thump, and a horde of grim efficient infantrymen are disgorged. Another beach landing is under way. The versatile infantrymen of this war have taken even to the sea in their pursuit of the enemy. They travel to enemy shores in landing craft of many sizes, each adapted for a particular use. Smaller types of these steel vessels carry only personnel. Others carry light tanks, jeeps, and small cannon; still larger ones nestle heavy tanks, supplies, heavy cannon, ammunition, and other requisites of warfare in their fat bellies. Some of these landing craft are the size of small freighters and are ocean-going. Others are carried on the decks of troop transports and launched as needed.

New Jet Plane Adds 100 Miles Per Hour

By ELTON C. FAY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP) —Jet propulsion promises to give United States fighting planes another 100 miles per hour, Capt. Ezra Kotcherd of the U.S. Army Air Forces, Engineering Division, writing in the official publication "Air Force," said yesterday.

Kotcher disclosed several points not revealed previously by the few announcements concerning the new plane. The Army has reported only that it is a twin-engine propellerless fighter, with high speed and high ceiling, heavily armed and armored.

Kotcher reports the plane is in production "for training purposes," thereby implying that it is not yet ready for combat duty.

In talking of possible speeds, Kotcher said the standard, propeller-driven airplane begins to be "stymied" at speeds much above 450 miles an hour because at such speeds air begins to be compressible, and this compressibility is felt on the propeller long before it is evidenced in the wings. Therefore, substitution of a jet propulsion unit eliminated the air drag created by the propeller.

The net difference for the two types of aircraft, Kotcher suggests, "may be about 100 miles an hour for the immediate future" of the jet-propelled plane.

Reiterating that the plane is not a rocket ship, Kotcher describes it as a turbo-thermal engine.

The plane, he says, presents no new problem for a pilot "except how to fly a simpler airplane"—which has fewer gadgets and instruments in the cockpit, flies with little vibration, and has only one throttle to control both engines.

The ship is a single-seater, with twin engines and tricycle landing gear, standing close to the ground because little space is needed for the swing of the propeller.

Youngest Of Quads Being Given Brandy

HEANOR, Derbyshire, England, March 2—(CP)—The smallest of quadruplets born Monday to Mrs. Nora Carpenter, 23, was reported today in a weak condition and being given brandy to help maintain his pulse.

Of the boy, christened McDonald and weighing three pounds, the hospital matron said: "We will certainly have to take the greatest care of him to keep him alive."

She said the others and their mother are in fine condition. The father is a soldier.

The Daily Mirror quoted Nora Carpenter's mother as saying that the 23-year-old mother of the quadruplets is not married.

The paper quoted her as saying: "I agree with my daughter. She should correct the statement about her being married. Nothing is to be gained by hiding the facts and we would rather be honest about it."

The father is reported to be an American soldier.

So far the babies have not been bathed because attendants believe the risk would be too great.

Are You a Sufferer From Rheumatic Pains?

These pains come from an inflammation in the muscles and are generally caused by a deposit of poison in the blood called uric acid which produces the irritating and painful effect that causes many days and nights heavy with pain.

During the past 60 years Canadian people have found that by purifying the blood stream, Burdock Blood Bitters aids them to enjoy freer body movement with less rheumatic pain, as B. B. B. helps to tone up the system and clear up the uric acid in the blood, and probably help fortify the system against future attacks.

The Red Cross committee report stated work was now under way on sewing kits to be sent to the men of the Corvette Peterborough, and several were given out at the meeting. Six new members were enrolled during the month, bringing the active membership to well over 300.

Mrs. N. D. Seaton presided at this meeting, and Mrs. J. Hornal gave the secretary's report, in the absence of Mrs. W. Fanjoy.

YWCA Plans Tea To Aid Churchill Fund

The Peterborough Y.W.C.A. is sponsoring a tea, to be held March 11, in aid of the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund, in an attempt to complete Peterborough's allocation of $3,000. The total amount received to date being $2,700. The draw for the silver teapot, blankets and other articles donated for the purpose of raising money, will be made at the tea, and the proceeds will go toward the fund.

For almost three years, the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund has been providing for the needs of service girls of all nationalities, and in a great many countries throughout the world. Since the fund was started, the scope of work has become greater, and hostels and huts have been set up in North Africa, through the Middle East, and even in Sicily and Italy. Wherever servicewomen are sent, this special service follows them.

The services these hostels provide cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents, because the girls have not only a pleasant place to go, with comfortable surroundings, but receive special care. Groups stationed in remote sections of the country are regularly visited, and provisions are made for their comfort and entertainment. In the hostels in the cities, as proven by letters from servicewomen who have enjoyed their hospitality, the homey atmosphere, and the kindly concern of the helpers, help dispel loneliness. Many girls regularly stay at these hostels, and they have a chance to meet one another, and to make acquaintances, which helps a great deal when they are stationed far from home.

Canadian girls take advantage of this service, and are high in their praises for the thoughtfulness of the workers. The Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund was set up to help the English Y.W.C.A., which first started the hostel service. However, it could carry the burden of increasing expenses, and other countries were asked to contribute, through their Y.W.C.A.'s. Canada's objective was set at $100,000, $97,000 of which has already been collected. Peterborough's allocation of $3,000, if reached, will go directly to help bring comfort and happiness to Canadian servicewomen.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Every woman is talking about the Spring fashions and planning their own wardrobe for the Easter parade. I would suggest that the first step in this planning would be to decide your color scheme and in doing this, do not make the colors too sombre for it is to be a very colorful Easter. The styles are very feminine, ruffles, bows and frills galore. The neck lines, now round, now square, on both dresses and blouses, also in the crisp new white collars that are so much to the fore. The draped dressmaker suit, with its soft shoulders, the smooth yoke line curving gently down from the shoulders, are just a few of the deft little touches shown for spring of 1944. The newest shades shown in this type of dress are brown, purple, lime-green and light blue.

For the junior miss the suit made of plaid shetland wool, with its smart cardigan jacket and a smart white shirt waist worn under it. With this may be worn either a bumper brimmed beret, made of the same material and worn forward on the head or one of the many styles in the dutch bonnet.

Another style of dress is the plain shirt and checked waist. This has the smooth fitting pert jacket in checked rayon taffeta and is trimmed with the plain rayon crepe like the skirt and buttoned down the front with large buttons. With this is worn the Scotch cap made of the checked material and trimmed in front with two flowers made of the same material as jacket.

The belted look is for the new coat; it's both youthful and graceful. Sometimes it's a loose belt that ties nonchalantly in front. Some are shown just across the back, other all round with a smart clasp of some bright metal, but always making your waist thimble small and your shoulders dashingly broad. The small close-fitting hat of either straw or felt is the crowning glory of these coats. They may also be made of flowers but, if so, you must choose a very smart and becoming shape; have the flowers put on very flat to give that plain, tailored look carried out in the coats. These are just a few fashion hints for spring. I do think, if you follow them, you will have a very smart spring ensemble.

Omemee Institute Honors Women

OMEMEE, March 2 (ENS)—The presentation of a cheese dish and a silver relish dish to Mrs. Albert Sloan and Miss Florry Sloan, who are moving to Peterborough, was the highlight of the regular meeting of Omemee Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. James Brooks. Mrs. James Magee and Mrs. W. Everson made the presentation.

The program consisted of a recitation by Mrs. R. Cornwall, a solo by Mrs. E. Wood, and three selections of the guitar by Henriette Parker and Doris Brooks.

The roll call was answered by a pieced block donated by each member, and committee reports were given. Mrs. J. Brooks took the scrap book. Refreshments were served by Mrs. James Brooks, Mrs. H. Fisher and Miss Florry Sloan.

NEW LINE FOR TOPPERS—The suit is toast brown wool, buttoned with gilt pretties. The flared tunic coat with moulded waistline, Hollywood shoulders, open sleeves and waistline closing, is of wool striped with toast, blue and yellow. We are here to report, so this is a bulletin on a new top coat which may or may not catch on. Familiar enough as a tunic top for housegowns, or lounging pyjamas, this line is a novelty when delivered in tweed, teamed with a suit, and suggested as a component with other costumes, in the useful topper manner.—By Prunella Wood.

Evelyn Ann Hill Becomes Bride of PO. James Sands

All Saints' church was set with spring flowers and ferns for the evening ceremony which took place Wednesday at 7.30 p.m., when Evelyn Ann Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Hill, 91 Gladstone avenue, became the bride of PO. James Smith Sands, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sands, 100 Gladstone avenue. Rev. W. A. Filer officiated. The wedding music was played by Mrs. William Logan, and during the signing of the register Miss Iris Whalon sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length white satin gown, with tiny satin-covered buttons reaching from the neck to the embroidered waistline, a full skirt, and long sleeves. Her white net veil was caught to her head with lily of the valley, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

She was attended by Miss Eileen Jeffries, wearing floor-length dusty pink sheer, with a gathered skirt and full bodice. Her hat was in a halo shape, and she carried a nosegay of pink sweet peas and roses. Little Eileen Hill, cousin of the bride, made a dainty flower girl, in a floor-length princess style dress of blue taffeta, with matching poke bonnet, and carrying a tiny nosegay.

Mr. Adam Sands, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Sgt. C. H. Swatridge, R.C.A.F., and Cpl. A. E. Goodman, R.C.A.F.

At the reception, held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother received, wearing a two-piece dress of powder blue, with a brown felt beret and brown accessories, and a corsage of red roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in black crepe, matching felt hat and accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

There were about sixty-five guests served at tables set with spring flowers, with the central table set with the bride's three-tier cake. The toast to the bride was made by Mr. Harold Coleman, and the groom responded.

After a short trip, the young couple will leave for New Brunswick, where the groom is stationed. For travelling, the bride chose a printed silk jersey dress in brown tones, a tiny gold flower hat, and brown accessories, with her fur coat.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

SIMPLE BEAUTY MASKS

With spring almost here, the beauty-wise woman will be taking stock of her wardrobe, and planning new ensembles for spring wear. However, the beauty-conscious woman will also take stock of her complexion, and see that it is smooth and lovely—just right to set off a new little sailor hat, and chic spring suit.

Beauty-masks are an invaluable aid to the skin, and there are several formulae that any woman can make right in her own home, and give herself an almost professional treatment. The face should be thoroughly cleaned with a rich cold cream, and washed with a mild soap, with plenty of lather. To help soften blackheads, a poultice of towels wrung out in hot water can be used.

Here is the first idea for an old-fashioned, but successful, beauty mask. Make a mixture of uncooked oatmeal and almond meal and a few drops of milk, which had been mixed into a paste, and smooth it on the face. If a slight bleach is desired, a few drops of lemon juice or peroxide will do the trick.

Cleopatra used a simple honey mask, and this is a popular treatment used by the more expensive beauty parlors. The honey should be patted into the skin, like cold cream, and left from twelve to fifteen minutes. Lillian Russel preferred a milk mask, and buttermilk gets the best results, since it is pure, and bleaches the skin slightly while cleansing it.

All masks should be left on approximately fifteen minutes, and then removed with cold water. The results are really surprising, since the skin is toned, and seems filled with glowing life.

CLOTHES CARE

A white cotton lining for a wicker clothes basket keeps clothes from snagging on loose bits of wicker, and saves them from the dirt which often works up through the weave. The lining can be attached with a draw string, so that it can be easily removed and laundered.

KEEPING FLOWERS

To make a tonic for ferns which have a tendency to droop, try pouring a little fresh water through left over coffee grounds. This weakens the coffee slightly, and it can then be poured around the fern. If this procedure is observed about once a week, the ferns should keep healthy.

If it is impossible to change the water on cut flowers every day, or if the housewife prefers not to touch them, a little piece of charcoal dropped into the vase will help keep the water sweet and fresh.

SPRING CHAPEAUX

The ideal hat this spring is sleek and smart, with lines conforming to the line of the head. The cloche, beret, bowler, and coif are back again, but in new versions, and stitched wool berets, although still popular, must be wider to be in the fashion limelight. All-white hats are also being shown, and also minute fedoras, worn well forward, and trimmed with spring flowers. Veils this year are shaped to the face and head, and do not flutter.

The sleek look is being carried throught the coiffeur too, and if milady wishes to shine in fashion's spotlight, her hair must have that well-tended look. Close, neat, shingles are popular, or long bobs. However, the effect must be smooth and finished, whatever style she chooses.

KITCHEN TIPS

To prevent milk from sticking to the bottom of the pan when heating it, rinse out the saucepan with a little hot water before placing the milk in it.

Try adding a little pickle relish to mayonnaise, when serving it with plain vegetable, lettuce, or cabbage salad.

To remove the odor of fish from tea towels and dishcloths, boil them for five minutes in one quart of water to which one tablespoon of baking soda has been added. Rinse them in warm, and then in cold water. Soda water is also good for removing fish odor from the hands. Burners of gas stoves can generally be kept clean by frequent wiping with paper or a cloth. However, if food has boiled over, it may be necessary to wash the burners with soap or baking soda. Lye should never be used on gas stove burners.

Slow boiling of foods saves fuel, as the temperature is the same, and cooks the food just as quickly as does hard boiling water. Bring the water to a boil with a fast heat, and then turn it down.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 3

A lively and interesting day is foretold from the ruling aspects. While there will be much stirring about, in business arrangements, in travel, dealing with agents, in writings, publicity or promotions, yet there will be considerable anxiety connected with suspicious occurrences, signs of duplicity or trickery, probably from sources quite unexpected. Be vigilant and wary with these using strategem and shrewdness to get behind the scenes of such subtlety and snares.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively and exciting year with probably change, travel, new contracts or agreements, advertising or publicity in promoting important affairs. But under all there is need for shrewd and sagacious insight into tricky circumstances coming from unforseen sources. Meet these with subtlety, cleverness and secrecy in order to circumvent this program of deceit, fraud and undercover intrigues. Keep alert and decisive.

A child born on this day will be exceptionally talented, versatile and clever, but may be victimized by its want of suspicion and personal vanities.

Men of St. Paul's Honor Minister

The Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church held a surprise birthday party for Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart Wednesday evening at the manse. Dr. Smart was returning from a public meeting, and, when he entered the manse, he was greeted by 45 members of the association.

Mr. Hurrell Dodds was chairman, and presented Dr. Smart with a floor lamp, as a birthday gift from the group. A committee of ladies, under the convenership of Mrs. Robert Ross, served refreshments, the table being centered with a huge birthday cake. Mr. George Coleman, Jr., sang a solo, accompanied by Mr. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O.

The stems are plain, delicately sculptured gold. A great, big, beautiful clunk of jewelry is the most satisfying single possession, according to most women...speaking in terms of the wardrobe and chic, of course. Here is a flower piece by Laurent, a modern designer, who uses non-fabulous but intrinsically valuable gems in definitely fabulous effect. Shown here as the single highlight for a classic black evening gown, the same jewel will double as glamorously on your tweed lapel, your spring calot, your afternoon frock. Some Rediscoveries Made For the Winter of 1944

By MARY MOORE.

To be ready well before hand for an anniversary party I had planned staging fo rwell-nigh a year I made a steamed fruit pudding; luckily my pudding mould would not hold the double quantity of batter so I steamed a few individual ones and let the family have them for dessert.

I said "luckily" because it turned out they tasted too strong of molasses. I had used the only molasses I could buy (thinking I'd eke out my sugar ration this way) and it was pure old-fashioned black strap.

Three hours before the guests were scheduled to arrive I whipped up another the following little number and I still can't believe the guests meant quite all the praise they gave it. It's incredibly easy to make.

Ohio Pudding, (a steamed carrot, raisin and potato pudding).

One cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup finely grated raw carrot, 1 cup grated potato, 1 cup each currants and raisins (or 2 cups raisins) and juice and grated rind 1 lemon. Mix and sift sugar, flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Add remaining ingredients, and mix thoroughly. Turn into buttered large mould or buttered one-half pound baking powder tins ,cover and steam 2 hours. Serve with hard sauce or Foamy Sauce.

For Foamy Sauce cream ¼ cup butter, with 1 cup powdered sugar and the yolks of 2 eggs. If you have it add 2 tablespoons wine or 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cook, stirring, over boiling water until thickens. Chill. When ready to serve beat the whites until stiff and fold into chilled sauce.

Hard Sauce is of course made by creaming 1-3 cup butter, and gradually sifting in 1 cup icing sugar or fresh brown sugar while beating constantly; flavor with 1-3 teaspoon lemon extract and 2-3 teaspoon vanilla.

Chicken Hollandaise.

This recipe belong backs in the days when we lived in the country and the children were babies and if we ever saw anyone they had to come to us. Of a Sunday afternoon I would have ready such things as raisin tea biscuits, home-made strawberry jam from our own strawberry patch (good old farming days) and a hot dish such as the following. One of my friends who has since moved to Oregon wrote me saying she had served it to some co-workers in a shipyard office party and "wow-ed 'em" — her words not mine— I'm too perlite.

Three tablespoons butter or cooking oil, 2 teaspoons grated onion, 4 tablespoons corn starch, 2 cups chicken stock, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup finely chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon paprika, 2 cups to 2½ cups cold chicken cut in ½-inch cubes, yolks of 2 hard-cooked eggs. Cook butter, and onion gently for 5 minutes, add corn starch and the stock gradually. Add lemon juice, celery, salt and paprika and chicken; when heated through add the hard-cooked egg yolks, forcing them through a sieve. This is usually served with buttered graham toast, but you can imagine how good it would be with hot tea-biscuits or hot refrigerator rolls.

I have a friend who breezes in from a town about 4 mies down the highway about every two months. I love her and want her to feel welcome, but when she has one of her frineds in tow I think the least she could do would be make up an excuse to go to a telephone and call me and let me know she was pointing my way. Food might be more elegant.

What I scrambled together was Chinese Eggs.

It's appearance surprised me so much I think you'll be glad I am including it here: Cook ½ cup raw rice in 4 cups boiling salted water until tender. Drain well. Season with salt and pepper and spread on glass baking plate or shallow baking dish. Cut 4 or 6 hard cooked eggs in halves lengthwise, remove the yolks, and mix the yolks with ¼ cup cheese grated, 1 or 2 tablespons fiely chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon chopped onion, and 2 tablepoons canned tomatoes or tomato juice. Stuff this mixture back in the egg white halves and arrange these halves on the rice. Pour around the eggs a sauce of ¾ cup hot milk in which is melted ¾ cup , grated cheese (the dish uses 1 cup cheese in all). Place the dish in moderate oven for 20 minutes until heated through and eggs begin to brown. The appearanec of this dish is most attractive.

I served shredded cabbage, carrot and beet salad with it and some of my pet mineral oil dressing—for my two friends are inclined to a slight padding around the midriff too.

DOROTHY DIX

EPIDEMIC OF WAR DIVORCES

Natural Sequence of Hurry-up Marriages of Service Men and Girls on Short Acquaintance.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 20 and married to a boy a year older than I am. We were terribly in love and for four months we lived in a Paradise for two. Then he was sent overseas. Now he has written to say that he has met a girl in Scotland with whom he is madly in love and he wants my consent for a divorce. Shall I give it to him?

I am practically insane from worrying over it, and although I still love him to death, I must think of his happiness as well as my own.

B. M. N.

Postpone Fatal Decision

ANSWER—Play for time. Write your husband that if, after the duration of the war, he still loves his Scotch sweetheart better than he does you that you will give him a divorce, but that you want him to be very sure of his feelings for his own sake and the girl's sake, as well as your own, before you break up your marriage.

Judging from the number of letters I get from servicemen who write me that they have discovered that they have fallen out of love with their wives and in love with some girl they have met at camp, the yen for divorces seems to be sweeping our armed forces like an epidemic. This is not to be wondered at. It is the natural sequence of the hurry-up war marriages in which boys and girls rushed into marriage after an acquaintance of only a few days, sometimes only a few hours, and without any knowledge of each other's characters or habits or previous lives.

No enduring affection could be built upon such a flimsy foundation, for the love that lasts has to be rooted on something deeper than a passing fancy, or a few highballs, or even upon youngsters feeling that they have to get married because all the other lads and lassies are doing it and they will sort of be out of things if they don't.

And it is out of sight, out of mind. As soon as the soldier or sailor is transferred to another camp or overseas the bride of a few days finds that she wasn't in love with Joe or Jack, as she thought she was, and some other youth comes whistling down the street and she dances off with him. And the youthful husband has the same reaction, only more so. In camp he is lonesome. He is bored. He is homesick. He misses the girls he used to play with, and he falls for any skirt that comes his way. And he wants a divorce and to marry this strange girl. And, if he did, he would want to divorce her by the time he got to the next camp and met another charmer.

It is a pity that in order to avoid family mixups and broken homes a moratorium isn't declared against all divorces to both parties of war weddings until after the war is over. That would give the youngsters time to grow up and for their emotions to jell so that they would know what they really wanted in wives and husbands,

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married for three years to a young army officer and we have a darling baby two years old, and we have been very happy. But recently my husband has been sent overseas and I find he married another girl in another state just before he left. I didn't know anything about this until a few weeks ago when she wrote me, thinking I was his sister. When she found out about me she had her marriage annulled.

Recently I met a young soldier and we fell in love with each other. He loves my baby, too, and thinks more of her than her father ever did. I really love this man and I know I could never forget him, but I hate to divorce my husband because the baby loves him. Please tell me what to do.

AN UNHAPPY GIRL.

Unstable Folk Should Act Cautiously

ANSWER — I don't think you could have much security in having a husband with such a marrying complex as yours seems to have, for he surely knew that one wife is all the law allows in this country and that two wives are one too many and are liable to land the unhappy possessor in the penitentiary for bigamy.

However, you have priority on the gentleman and as Number Two seems to have eliminated herself, it is up to you decide whether you want to keep him or leave him. But my advice to you is, that inasmuch as you seem to be as emotionally unstable as your husband, to let the divorce matter ride for the present. Also, find out whether the sailor means business, or is merely passing the time with you.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband says that all that is required of being worthy to being called a gentleman is uprightness of heart and rectitude of conduct. I say that in addition to a good character a gentleman also includes good manners, good grooming, good language, good taste and cleanliness.

A. R.

ANHWER—Both of you are right in your definition of a gentleman. Any man is a gentleman who is pure of heart and upright in conduct, but while a diamond is a diamond, no matter how rough it is, it is all the more valuable when it is polished.

QUESTION—Please help me. I cannot make good pie crust; once in a while it turns out alright, but more often than not I'm ashamed to say, it is like leather. My trouble is in the mixing. I can't get it to stick together, it just goes stringy. Of course I keep adding water till in the end it is too wet. Also I have made some "Sauer Kraut" and it is much too salty; is there anything I can do about it?

I have cut many of your recipes out of the paper. Do you remember the "Eggless Christmas Cake" recipe you gave year before last? Well I made it and sent my sister in England some of it; she wrote and said how grand it was and asked me to send her the recipe, and several of my friends have asked for it too.

If you will be good enough to give me some advice, I always read your cooking page so will be bound to see it, and no doubt it will help other women who have the same problem. Thanking you,

L. ROBSON.

ANSWER—Well I am afraid I have to admit that some pastry I made (and for a party, too!) was a little bit tough and I'm supposed to know what to do. In this case it was oven temperature—it was too low because a fuse burnt out. I only mention this to impress you with the fact that all the rules must be observed in making good pastry.

Plain Pastry

One and one-half cups pastry flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 3 or 4 tablespoons ice cold water. Sift flour and salt together into cold bowl. Add the shortening and cut it in with 2 knives or a pastry blender—cutting until it looks like coarse meal. The add the water slowly, working it in quickly with a spatula or knife—do not add more than 4 tablespoons water for each 1½ cups flour. Chill thoroughly before rolling out. When rolling out flour board very lightly, and only roll just enough to make pastry large enough for pie plate—extra rolling only toughens the paste. If it is to make a two-crust pie roll out top crust before putting filling into bottom crust. When ready put filling in bottom crust, moisten edges a very little, put on top crust, brush with white of egg or milk to which a little sugar is added, pinch edges well, and start baking at 500 deg. Fahr.; reduce heat to 350 after 15 minutes to finish baking. Time of baking depends on whether filling is of raw or cooked fruit—some raw fillings require one hour in all in oven. Cooked fillings such as blueberries from canned fruit require only forty minutes.

Regarding the too-salty sauerkraut, soaking it overnight in cold water and renewing the water in the morning before cooking is usually enough to remove excess salt but this method discards the minerals into the sauerkraut, so if it is used the liquid should be saved for soups, when no salt need be added to the soup. If two soakings in cold water do not remove enough salt, use two cooking waters.

Eggless Christmas Cake

(I think this is the cake you are referring to.)

One cup white or brown sugar, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 cup currants (½ to 1 cup walnuts when they are available are nice), 1 cup water, ½ cup butter or other shortening, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg. Boil together the sugar, the raisins and currants, and water for 5 minutes. Add shortening and beat well. When cool add soda dissolved in a very little water, add flour sifted with baking powder and spices. If nuts are used add them now. Bake in buttered, paper-lined loaf pan at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1 hour—oven is best if shallow pan of boiling water is placed on bottom rack. This cake keeps well. It may be made richer by the addition of candied cherries, almonds, etc. if desired.

I hope all the above suggestions help you and that your pies are flaky and tender. Write whenever you need cooking help.

QUESTION—In your column of last week you spoke on the subject or reducing menus. I wonder if you could help me out. I have two babies and two war workers to cook for, and by the time I am finished planning meals for them I haven't time to fix a different menu for myself. Could you give me a very simple menu that would contain all the food value I would need? I don't mind the monotony if I know I am eating the proper food.

I am about 15 lbs. overweight. I am a very happy person and seem to put on weight very easily. Could you please tell me about the following: shredded wheat or shreddies, rye bread, canned soups.

What is the recipe for this mayonnaise with mineral oil? Thanking you,

MRS. A. J. S.

ANSWER — You sound like an ideal slimmer, but your diet need not be monotonous even though you haven't time to fuss over it.

All the items you mention are fattening—unless the soup you refer to would be bouillon or consomme.

If you could eat the rye bread toasted with a poached egg and no butter for breakfast that would be all right; or the shredded wheat or shreddies with hot skim milk—no sugar or cream; for lunch eat 8 oz. skim milk to start with, then have a large plate of salad vegetables—cottage cheese and a hard cooked egg (If you haven't had one for breakfast) can be included, and use your reducer's dressing on it. Have a whole orange or a half grapefruit; or a large apple and some rye krisp with this.

For dinner start off with clear tomato soup, or bouillon on consomme. Have an 8-oz. glass skim milk, then eat the meat and vegetables you are serving for dinner, all except the potatoes—eat a baked potato 3 times a week with only 1 teaspoon butter for each potato. Have a fresh pear, apple, orange, grapefruit, grapes, stewed prunes (unsweetened) or other unsweetened fruit for dessert.

You will notice you should have plenty of protein, fresh green vegetables and fruits, skim milk. Cut down on cream (none in your tea and coffee), sugar, butter and starchy foods such as potatoes, bread, made desserts.

I would like to know how you get along on these suggestions—if there is any reason why you cannot follow them write me again.

Reducer's Dressing

This is made exactly the same as mayonnaise, replacing the salad oil with pure mineral oil which can be bought at the drug store.

Quick method: In mixing bowl place 1 egg, 1 teaspoon each sugar, salt and mustard, beat well. Have ready a hot tablespoon and measure into it 1 tablespoon boiling water, put quickly in egg mix and give it 10 turns in the rotary beater. Quickly put in ¼ cup cold mineral oil and beat for 25 turns when emulsion will have started. Add ¼ cup cold oil at a time until 1 cup is used up. Add juice 1 medium sized lemon. Mix well, keep in tightly covered jar.

CAPPING THE ANGEL FACE—A medieval coif is the inspiration of this brown stitched felt cap which B. G. Graham, cover girl, wears. It frames the face and lies lightly over the low chignon at the neck nape. The magazine cover girls who have just acted roles representing their own beautiful selves for the movies, can claim the present vogue for the center-part, chignon hairdo. It takes a mighty pretty girl to show off this angel coiffure, but if she is pretty enough it becomes her as no other headline, and new hat styles are sure to follow her success.—By Prunella Wood.

Convicted Chief Of Murder, Inc. Involves Others

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP). — The New York Daily News said today that Louis (Lepke) Buchalter has signed a statement telling "a tale of political intrigue so astoundnig that is repercussions threaten to tear open the most sensational scandal since the notorious Becker case in 1912."

At Sing Sing prison, however, Warden William L. Snyder said he had "no knowledge of Lepke making any statement to anyone."

In a copyrighted story, the News said the condemned chief of Brooklyn's Murder, Inc., schedued to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair to-night, has involved at least three names known throughout the country.

In the statement, signed in the death house, the newspaper said, "he charged one New York political faction with seeking, through him, to fasten high crime upon another and better entrenched faction."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's counsel has been informed of the contents of the statement, the News added.

"The News, because of the personal importance of the individuals concerned and out of respect for the high places they occupy to-day, will rferain from mentioning their names at this time," the story said.

Buchalter reluctantly yielded to pleas by his family and friends in making the statement, the News said.

Still Hopes to Miss Chair.

Meanwhile, as the hour set for his execution at Ossining drew near, Buchalter clung to hope he would be spared from the electric chair to-night.

While he remained optimistic in Sing Sing Prison's death house yesterday, an application for a writ of habeas corpus—which might have postponed the execution—was denied in New York Federal Court.

Possibilities still open are an appeal from yesterday's decision, a further effort to secure a new trial, and the hope that Gov. Dewey of New York State will grant an 11th hour reprieve.

Buchalter is scheduled to die in what has been described as New York State's greatest mass execution in nearly a quarter of a century. Four men, two of them Buchalter's henchmen in the "dollar-a-death syndicate," also are slated to enter the death chamber.

The Murder Inc. lieutenants are Emanuel Weiss and Louis Capone, who were convicted with Buchalter of slaying a Brooklyn storekeeper eight years ago.

The other two condemned men are Joseph Palmer and Vincent Sallami, convicted of killing a Brooklyn detective.

Wood Shortage Looms In Ontario

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP) — There is a real danger of a shortage of commercial wood in some parts of Ontario, Premier Drew told the Ontario Legislature yesterday in the throne speech debate. He outlined the government's plan to establish a forest resources commission to conserve the timber supply.

Proper cutting methods would help to prevent lumbering communities from becoming ghost towns, he said, adding there was no reason why Ontario could not be a successful as Norway, Sweden and Finland in preserving and properly exploiting forest wealth.

The proposed commission would be non-political and would have full administrative powers, he said.

No Bandages Available War Prisoners Claim

TORONTO, March 1 — (CP) — Two repatriated Prisoners-of-War now receiving treatment for wounds at Christie Street Military Hospital yesterday said they owed their lives to the Red Cross Food Parcels they received in a German prison camp. They were Mike Ewanshyn of Oakburn, Man., and Jack Butchart, formerly of Wiarton, Ont., captured three years ago when the German Battleship Admiral Scheer intercepted his merchant ship in the Indian Ocean. Butchart said German camp doctors treated an injured leg with paper bandages and a disinfectant. "They didn't have a thing to operate with until the Red Cross got through," he said.

Sentence Reduced On Young Soldier

TORONTO, March 2—(CP)—Sentence of five years in penitentiary imposed by Magistrate J. H. Campbell of St. Catharines, on John Chester James, 18, returned soldier, on breaking and entering and theft charges was reduced by the Appeal Court to one year definite and one year indefinite.

"This boy enlisted in Peterborough at 14," declared Norman Dunn, appealing. "Only small sums of money and wearing apparel were stolen. The boy was 1½ years on active service in England. He was sent back here at the age of 17, when he married.

"His trouble is largely due to the lack of supervision upon demobilization. The only trade he ever learned was the art of war."

Canadian Army Has Surplus Of Officers

OTTAWA, March 2 — (CP) — Defence Headquarters last night announced that all Canadian universities have been advised of the decision not to organize a third Canadian army university course.

"The question of a further such course for men aged 17 to 21 received the most careful consideration," the announcement said, "but because of the present surplus of reinforcement officers, and secondly because the normal requirements of the technical services are presently secured through the annual output of science graduates from universities, it became necessary to discontinue this special training."

Air Vice Marshal Sounds Warning Note

TORONTO, March 2—(CP)—Too much attention to post-war planning has developed "a subconscious feeling that the war is as good as won," Air Vice Marshal W. A. Curtis of the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa said last night in a dinner address to the Toronto Board of Trade Club.

"We are, both here and overseas, devoting a portion of our efforts to post-war planning," he said. "That is most important. The danger that accompanies it is that those connected with it infect others with their peacetime thinking and there is developing a subconscious feeling that the war is as good as won and everything is lovely.

". . . That is dangerous. The war is far from over. Unfortunately there will be heavier casualties than we have yet suffered."

READING MARKS FINESSE

YOUR READING of a particular suit can be made extremely exact sometimes by what you know about other suits. A striking case is that in which a defender had led a suit which you can count as only four cards in length. If he later shows a singleton in some other suit, you know he has exactly eight between the remaining two. If either of them was of five cards, he would have led it instead of the four-carder. Hence you have him tabbed for four in each, which may enable you to mark a sure winning finesse.

North: ♠ A K ♥ A Q 10 8 6 4 ♦ K 10 6 ♣ 8 6

West: ♠ 8 7 5 4 ♥ J 9 5 2 ♦ J 9 8 7 ♣ 4

East: ♠ J 10 9 6 3 2 ♥ 7 ♦ 3 2 ♣ J 10 9 7

South: ♠ Q ♥ K 3 ♦ A Q 5 4 ♣ A K Q 5 3 2

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣	Pass	2♥
Pass	3♣	Pass	3♥
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5♥
Pass	5 NT	Pass	6♥
Pass	7 NT

Perhaps better bidding would have been for South to call 4-Diamonds over 3-Hearts, to show his six-four distribution. But he was impatient to know what North had for the big bid of 2-Hearts on the first round, so Blackwooded instead. After that convention showed possession of all aces and kings, he of course went to grand slam.

West's diamond 7 didn't tell much. But after the 10 won, and the K, A and Q used up that suit, the second high club brought a most enlightening spade discard from West. It disclosed all at once that West had four cards originally in each major as, if he had held only three in hearts, he certainly would have led the five-card spades. Hence he was sure to have four hearts.

Knowing now that his clubs would not run, South confidently scored the heart K and then finessed the heart 10. That made all the rest of the tricks his. West saw fit to call him lucky for getting away with such a low finesse, but there was no luck about it—just plain ordinary accurate use of common sense.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ Q 6 4 ♥ 8 2 ♦ J 10 9 8 6 5 ♣ 8 4

West: ♠ A 10 9 7 2 ♥ K Q 4 ♦ 7 4 ♣ A 9 3

East: ♠ J 8 5 ♥ 10 9 6 3 ♦ 3 2 ♣ Q 10 5 2

South: ♠ K 3 ♥ A J 7 5 ♦ A K Q ♣ K J 7 6

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

What is South's best try for 3-No Trumps on this deal after West, who had made a spade overcall, leads the 10 of his suit?

LIBERATORS OF KIEV GREETED — Russian veterans stormed into Kiev which had been left afire by the withdrawing Germans. Civilians were on hand to greet the Red soldiers as the Liberators they are. Here some civilians are shown greeting the returning soldiers and their expressions tell what words can not.

Major Russian Gains Made In Drive Towards Baltic

Thaw Making Roads Impassable

Gains Are Reported At Narva And Pskov, New Blows In Ukraine

MOSCOW, March 3 — (AP) — Depite a freakish, spring-like weather that which is hampering military operations, the Red Army is continuing its smashing offensive to liberate the Soviet Baltic republics and has materially improved its positions, dispatches from the front said today.

Temperatures were reported almost as high as they usually are in late April or May, and melted ice and snow was said to be making many roads impassable.

Russian forces, nevertheless captured more territory between Lake Peipus and the Finnish Gulf and tightened their hold on Narva's communications, while in the suburbs of Pskov Russian tommy-gunners inched forward in fierce fighting, frontline advices said.

Railroad Junction

South of Pskov, meanwhile, other Red Army Forces were reported driving down the 12-mile-long highway from captured Soshikino toward Ostrov. The latter city 32 miles south of Pskov, is a junction of the Pskov-Warsaw-Berlin railway.

German forces battling to hold Pskov were favored by the nature of the terrain, which is admirably suited for defensive operations. Two big rivers, the Velikaya and the smaller Pskov, run through the city, joining in the northern sector and offering a natural barrier to the attacking Russians.

Moscow dispatches, meanwhile, said the Russians migh: not wait for mopping-up operations in Pskov, where the Russians were reported fighting in the streets of the suburbs around the town, and the Estonian stronghold of Narva. Instead, they might by-pass the towns and plunge ahead toward Tallinn (Revel) and Riga, capitals of Estonia and Latvia.

Major Gains

Major gains yesterday were indicated by the Moscow midnight communique to have been scored in the Pskov fighting, especially to the south where on Wednesday the Russians got within nine miles of Ostrov by taking Kashino.

The communique made no mention of fighting in Pskov suburbs, which unofficial reports from Moscow mentioned, but said merely that the enemy "was dislodged from several strong points in his defence."

Lost Ground Regained On Beachhead

Strong German Drive 'Costly Failure', All Positions Intact

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, March 3 — (AP) — A strong German drive into the centre of the Anzio beachhead this week was described officially today as "a costly failure." Allied headquarters said defence positions remained intact with all lost ground regained.

The enemy offensive, the third large-scale attempt to drive Anglo-American forces into the sea, now has collapsed. Two final German assaults with tanks and infantry late Wednesday were repulsed, it was announced, and no new attacks came yesterday.

Defensive Success

American troops of the 3rd Infantry Division bore the brunt of the attack and scored "a complete defensive success," a headquarters spokesman said. Less than a week ago, the 3rd, originally composed chiefly of troops from the Pacific coast, was officially commended for previous exploits on the beachhead.

Whether the enemy is regrouping for a continuance of the offensive from some other sector is unknown, but a blistering attack delivered from the air yesterday by heavy bombers and other aircraft served as a deterrent.

This latest German failure to wipe out the beachhead, other Allied officers said, meant heavy losses have been inflicted on the three divisions which spearheaded the assault, centred on a 1,000-yard front midway between Carroceto and Cisterna.

78 Canadian Soldiers Receive Awards

By DOUGLAS AMARON,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, March 3—(CP Cable) —The British 8th Army is "very proud to go forward into the assault of Europe with the Canadian Corps," Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leest 8th army commander, told 78 Canadian soldiers to whom he presented awards for deeds of gallantry done in the Sicilan and Italian campaigns.

I know the whole world and the whole Allied effort are watching what you are doing and what is being done by the Canadian Corps," Sir Oliver said during the conclusion of the presentation ceremony held in the main square of an Adriatic coastal town a few miles from the Moro Valley wheer many of the awards were won.

We have fought many battles leading up to where we now are. There are many more to come," said the General.

Eight D.S.O.'s.

One bar to a Distinguished Service Order, eight D. S. O.'s, 18 Military Crosses and four Distinguished Conduct Medals were presented to soldiers whose ranks ranged from Brigadier to private. Lt.-Gen. Allies Portion Italian Fleet

By D. HAROLD OLIVER—Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 3—(AP).—President Roosevelt said today that discussions were about half completed for transferring roughly one-third of the surrendered Italian fleet to Russia. The President also told a press conference that Edward R. Stettinius, acting Secretary of State, would go to London soon to discuss with British officials a dozen or more questions awaiting solution. He disclosed that the United States and Great Britain already were using some of the Italian tonnage that was surrendered with the capitulation of Italy, and that efforts now are being made to determine how many of these ships or their equivalent can be turned over to the Russian Navy.

He said this was the question he had told previous press conferences that Marshal Stalin had brought up through his Washington Ambassador. He described it as a rather old question and related to what ships or their equivalent would go to Russia.

He emphasized that so long as the war lasts the Allies will use everything afloat against the enemy, but after the war that was something else.

Asked whether the ships would be manned by Italians, Mr. Roosevelt replied some may and some may not. As for Italian ships which escaped to the Balerarie Islands, the President said that was a Spanish problem.

He said that since Italy surrendered to the United States, Great Britain and Russia, it was thought advisable to distribute the Italian fleet roughly on a one-third basis to each. He would not say how much tonnage was involved.

Italy Becomes Major Front Germans Use 22 Divisions

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, March 3 — (AP). — Hitler's furious attempt to smash the Anzio beachhead has elevated Italy to a major battlefront, with the latest authoritative estimates placing the German forces pitted against the Allied troops at 22 divisions.

The German high command is following the same tactics used last winter in Tunisia, when it poured division after division in from Italy in the hope of salvaging a victory.

The Nazis have moved one division from as far away as Calais to the beachhead and apparently are willing to take tremendous losses in an effort to drive the Allies into the sea.

March will be a critical month in the Italian fighting, and it may end without any decisive ground being gained by the Allies, who are in the same position as they were last February and March in southern Tunisia, where they had to build up their forces for one overwhelming attack.

Strategically the beachhead will be more difficult to hold than mountainous Tunisia, but Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean; Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy; Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the Allied 5th Army, and Prime Minister Churchill all have expressed confidence it not only will be held but will be pushed forward.

It seems unlikely, however, that the Allies will be able to push it far until the battle of attrition has worn down the German attacking strength now engaged in a furious assault on the beachhead position.

This probably will take weeks of the bloodiest fighting because the Allies, too, will have to replenish losses.

Woman Guilty Manslaughter

Convicted of manslaughter by the jury's verdict Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Elizabeth Hubert was remanded by Mr. Justice J. A. Hope until Monday afternoon for sentence for the fatal shooting of her husband, John Edward Hubert, at their home near Nassau, November 20 last.

The jury spent nearly three hours on their finding which was reported by their foreman, Andrew Buck, on their return to the court room at 4 p.m. They had evidently accepted part of the woman's statement to the police as to the element of provocation as advanced by defense counsel, John A. Bradshaw, in his address, and exercised their right to reduce the gravity of the crime from murder, as in the Crown's indictment to manslaughter.

The concluding phase of the trial was brief. Mr. Bradshaw suggested to His Lordship that the circumstances warranted a fairly light sentence, having regard to the woman's age and past life, and the provocation as set out in her statement.

"I haye nothing to say now," was the prisoner's reply to His Lordship who immediately announced her remand for sentence until the opening of the Court next Monday afternoon. He then dismissed the jury until Monday, thanking them for "your co-operation in the administration of justice in behalf of the people of your country."

LONDON—Bombs weighing 12,000 pounds now are crashing down on German targets with enormous destructive effects, the Air Ministry disclosed tonight.

Questions Power Of Committee

OTTAWA, March 3. — (CP).— Progressive Conservative members at a closed meeting of the Commons Expenditures committee to-day challenged a previous decision carried by a majority vote that sessions should be held in secret unless otherwise ordered.

It was learned after to-day's meeting that Karl Homuth (P.C.-Waterloo South), quoting the parliamentary rules, said a secret committee could be appointed only by the House, and the Expenditures committee by itself could not decide to hold secret sittings.

Hughes Cleaver (L.-Halton), committee chairman, reserved his ruling on Mr. Homuth's point.

At a committee meeting Wednesday, the Progressive Conservatives moved that all sittings be open except where national security was involved. They said that publicity would aid the committee's work in seeking economies.

This motion was rejected on a vote when Liberal members said the committee could do its work most efficiently when sitting in secret with witnesses knowing their statements would be not be made public.

Mr. Homuth said to-day parliamentary rules provided that when in the opinion of the House secrecy ought to be maintained, secret committees were appointed whose inquiries were conducted throughout behind closed doors.

Allies Have Landed Heavy Reinforcements

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, March 3—(AP).— Allied headquarters disclosed today the initial Admiralty Islands landing was a scouting expedition in force to probe Japanese strength but, after a first day inspection by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and a stand later by outnumbered troops, a full-fledged invasion is in progress.

Strong reinforcements have been put ashore. From a beachhead a mile long and three-quarters of a mile deep, they are fanning out from the quickly-captured Momote airdrome to engage the few thousand Japanese still holding the bulk of Los Negros Island.

Lonergan Jury Panel Is Dismissed

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP).— The trial of Wayne Lonergan for first degree murder came to an abrupt end when the court, dismissing a special panel of talesmen, gave defence counsel Edward V. Broderick one week in which to show cause why he should not be cited for contempt.

Judge John J. Freschi at the same time granted a motion by District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, appearing in court for the first time in the case, to send all records concerning it, both in court and in chambers, to the appellate division "for such action as may be warranted."

Hogan said later it would be up to his office to fix the date for a new trial but said he believed it would not be before completion of the contempt action against Broderick.

Judge Freschi, announcing the decision to dismiss the panel, said that "several days ago counsel for the defence made a motion for dismissal of the panel on grounds that the rights of the defendant had been prejudiced."

"At that time," he continued, "I denied the motion. Yesterday the district attorney announced he had no objection and made the application for me to reconsider.

"He stated he would consent to the granting of the motion. In spite of his vehement denunciation several days ago and vociferous argument that a fair trial could not be had, counsel for the defence did a right-about-face and asserted that he wouldn't accept the district attorney's consent on the motion."

The Judge said that in dismissing the panel there could be no question of raising the issue of double jeopardy when Lonergan, 26 year old native of Toronto, was brought to trial before a new panel. Assailing defence counsel Edward V. Broderick, the veteran jurist said: "His attitude persuaded me that he had made of this trial a farce and mockery for purposes which I cannot fathom."

British Commons Demands Increased Pay For Services

LONDON, March 3—(AP).—A rebellious House of Commons won a promise from the War Cabinet last night for immediate consideration of increased pay and allowances for British armed forces after an angry debate which veteran members said was almost without parallel in their experience.

The debate reached its climax in a vote on a Government-opposed motion to raise army pay, which was defeated by a count of only 63 to 40.

The Government majority was the smallest Prime Minister Churchill has received since he assumed office in 1940, and would have been even smaller but for a hurried call which went out for members of the Cabinet and other Ministers to take their seats for the vote.

At that the vote cost the Churchill Government some prestige but even if the motion had been carried it would not necessarily have meant the Government's fall. Resignation of a Government usually comes only on a lack of confidence vote from a full House or defeat on a major governmental policy.

There were just a few more than 100 members in Commons when the vote was taken and the question of confidence in the government was not involved.

The government was only saved

Bombers Pound Aircraft Plants

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, March 3 — (AP). — American heavy bombers pounded Germany for the second straight day to-day, concentrating on undisclosed objectives in the northwest sector while medium raiders slashed at German airfields in Northern France.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. formation, taking to the air last night for their second successive night, hammered aircraft factories near Paris and at Albert in Northern France without loss only a few hours before. More than half the 600-plane force was made up of Canadians, it was announced.

Canadian Front Quiet In Ittaly

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, March 3 —(CP Cable)— A German reconnaissance patrol probed too far into the Canadian line early yesterday and lost two prisoners. Another German was killed. Forward troops of a maritime battalion in the centre of the Canadian Corps sector of the British 8th Army front in Italy trapped the patrol. A third German was captured by members of a Central Canada unit in the coastal sector.

Apart from these incidents, there was little activity along the Corps front. Artillery fired on targets in the regions of Tollo, 4½ miles southwest of Ortona, and Crecchio, six miles southwest.

The weather here is fair and mild.

45,000 Square Miles Taken from Japs

Still Long Way To Go Before Japan Is Reduced To Allies' Plan

By The Canadian Press.

Allied Forces have wrested approximately 45,000 square miles from Japan's bloodily-gained Empire in the Pacific, but there's still a long way to go before she's cut down to the size promised by United Nations leaders—her own homeland territory.

The whittling process began with the invasion of Guadalcanal and adjoining islands in the lower Solomons in August, 1942. The latest cut was made in this week's landings in the Admiralty landings in the Bismarck Sea some 1,100 miles to the northwest.

Between the dates of those two invasions three major Allied offensive daggers have been thrust ever nearer the Japanese homeland — one up through the Southern Pacific Islands, another through the Gilbert and Marshall Islands, and a third to the tip of the Aleautians, pointing toward Tokyo.

From Guadalcanal and adjoining Tulgai the advance was island by island up the Solomons to Bougainville, while a simultaneous offensive by Australian and American forces forced enemy from about one third of New Guinea and leaped over to New Britain, which now she been about one-sixth freed.

The middle offensive thrust, involving amphibious operations exclusively, first knocked off Tarawa, Makin and other islands in the Gilbert group and more lately streaked in high gear through such Marshall Island Atolls as Kwajalein, part of the Pacific Island groups mandated to Japan after the First Great War, was the first strictly Japanese territory to fall.

The conquest of Kiska and Attua constituted the high points of the northern advance through Aleutians.

From both the Marshalls and the Southwest Pacific bases American forces now are poised for a leap one of these days, possible from both directions, against Truk, Japan's major Pacific Island fortress which air and sea power already has given one sound drubbing.

All these successes have neutralized numerous other enemy island holdings and given Allied planes and ships virtually undisputed control of thousands of miles of sea lanes, but they represent only a start of the gigantic task Britain, the United States and China assumed at the Cairo Conference last December.

Then Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek pledged their peoples to wipe out Japanese dominations over some 3,000,000 square miles of territory and 500,000,000 persons and limit Emperor Hirohito and his followers to the original Japanese Island territory of 140,000 square miles.

Before that goal is attained Japan must be driven from such lands as the Netherlands East Indies, Malaya, Burma (where an Allied force now is making progress), the Pacific Islands of Wake and Guam, all the Carolins and other Japanese mandated islands, the Philippines, Thailand, French Indo-China, Occupied China, Manchuria, Korea and Formosa.

Handyman Slays Librarian

Bet Gunswept Dust Blamed For Bludgeon Slaying

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — A bit of unswept dust was blamed by Washington police today for the bludgeon slaying of Catherine Cooper Reardon, 37-year-old librarian at Washington Cathedral, the burial place of Woodrow Wilson and other notables.

Held on a murder charge was Julius Fisher, 34, negro handyman arrested in an obscure restaurant after a whirlwind search for the perpetrator of Washington's second sensational killing within a fortnight.

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, chief of police, said Fisher had admitted fatally beating and choking Miss Reardon Wednesday night after he learned she had complained that he had not swept the dust from beneath her desk.

Kelly quoted Fisher as saying he found Miss Reardon at her desk and struck her with a piece of firewood. She ran and he followed her, Kelly said, striking again and choking her. Then he dragged her body into a steampipe pit.

She was found clothed only in a slip. She had not been ravished.

Queen Surprises Canadians

Officers Chatting In Club Look Up And See Queen

LONDON, March 3—(CP Cable).— Five Canadians chatting casually in the Churchill Club today were startled when the Queen appeared in a doorway, walked over and talked to them.

Lieut. W. V. Maclean of Toronto and Winnipeg said later in describing their surprise: "It was lucky Paul Davoud was with us and able to sort of introduce us. Otherwise we would have been speechless."

Group Capt. Davoud, D.F.C., of Kingston, Ont., had met the Queen before, at an R.C.A.F. station. Her Majesty recalled the meeting. That helped put the group, four of them graduates of Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., at east.

An old copy of a magazine carried by Maclean attracted the Queen's attention. By coincidence it contained a photograph of the King and Queen taken during the royal visit to Canada in 1939.

The photograph was taken by Maclean, an amateur, with a week-old camera and was the first he had ever had published. It also showed Davoud in civilian clothes.

R.M.C. graduates in the party were Davoud, Maclean, Maj. John Fairly and Capt. Jack Wickson, both of Toronto. The fifth member was Lieut. G. H. Clawson, also of Toronto.

Labor Policy In Ontario Under Attack

CCF Member Declares Gov't Seeks Refuge In Dominion Code

TORONTO, March 3 —(CP)— A spirited attack by Arthur Williams (CCF - Ontario) upon provincial government Labor policies last night provoked a crossfire of comment between government and opposition benches in the Ontario Legislature, marking the first major skirmish between contending parties in the closely-aligned House.

As indications strengthened that the Throne Speech debate might be prolonged well into the third week of the new session, Mr. Williams touched off war debate at the first night sitting of the House by asserting Ontario had "sought refuge" in the new Dominion labor code and by challenging Labor Minister Daley to produce any labor legislation the Progressive Conservative administration might have.

Bluntly, Mr. Daley declined and Premier Drew rose to express hope that Mr. Williams would move a want-of-confidence motion at the end of his address. No such motion was introduced by the C.C.F., which commands 34 votes in the Legislature compared with 35 for the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Williams said the new Labor code "neither meets the demands of organized labor nor fulfills the pre-election promise of Premier Drew who promised model collective bargaining legislation . . " and added he believes all parties in the House should weld themselves together to fight for a better code.

Plenty of Interruptions

There were lively scenes in the chamber as Col. Drew and several of his ministers interrupted the debate from time to time to protest on points of order. C. C. F. leader Jolliffe also rose to defend Mr. Williams and object to the government interruptions which he termed "explanations" rather than legitimate points of order. Speaker W. J. Stewart called several times for order.

The debate was adjourned by J. B. Salsberg (LP—Toronto St. Andrew), who may resume the throne speech debate today if the short afternoon sitting permits. Bills and other routine business will be handled first and there is a strong possibility the throne speech debate may be deferred until Monday. The lengthy slate of speakers scheduled to take part in the debate indicates that it may last well into next week, and possibly longer.

Mr. Williams spoke after F. R. Oliver (L—Grey South) charged "Monopolistic Control" exists among Ontario Packing plants and asserted co-operatives may be the answer to breaking this control. Mr. Oliver urged establishment of Packing and Storage plants in Northern Ontario, creation of new industries in rural communities after the war and said Liberals in the Legislature would support any Legislation "for the good of Ontario".

Mr. Oliver termed the government's decision to take over the Toronto stock yards as "an election promise", which would not make a "plugged nickel's difference to the farmers of Ontario." He suggested the Agricultural committee of the House should study the matter.

Here's Right Way To Go After RHEUMATIC PAINS
Usually the Excess Acids Start to Leave the System in 48 Hours.
Costs But Little—Guaranteed

Here's the swift, modern 48-hour way to get the excess pain producing acids out of your system.

Go to Lynch's Drug Store or any progressive drugstore — get a bottle of ALLENRU — and follow the week-end treatment for Stubborn Rheumatic Pains or Backache.

Start right in taking it Friday night —stay in bed as much as possible till Monday morning—Allenru acts double fast when the body is relaxed and rested.

So don't feel dispirited any longer; don't give up hope of getting real relief. Allenru acts and acts fast and in three distinct ways: (1) to relieve the pain; (2) as a diuretic for the kidneys to flush out excess acids; and (3) to arouse the bowels to normal action.

Lynch's Drug Store and all good druggists have been instructed to dispense ALLENRU with the understanding that if the first bottle does not give you the relief you want and have a right to expect, he will gladly refund your money without comment.—(Advt.)

New Goal for Fighting Men

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, March 3—(CP).—Canada's fighting men need a new goal to shoot at when the war ends more than they need promises that each will have what he wants on "a silver platter," Air Minister Power said yesterday in the Commons. Stating the problems of demobilization and rehabilitation, he said the Government has a blueprint but is not sure it will work, and he asked for suggestions from the House.

The Minister spoke on Air Force estimates in the war appropriation bill, continuing an address started Tuesday night when he discussed the performance of the R.C.A.F. in the war.

After the First Great War, he said, too much emphasis was placed on the materialistic side of what men could expect on their return; not enough on the spiritual side.

Look To Spiritual Side.

"Let us emphasize the spiritual side of the peacetime task at least as much as the material side," he urged. "When these boys return to Canada this country will be theirs to mould, to develop, to build and to make capable of fulfilling its great destiny as a nation.

"The true glamor of peace must be made to replace the transient glamor of war. We have told our boys what a noble and heroic thing it is to apply themselves to the science of war. Let us tell them what a noble thing it is to apply themselves to the arts of peace....

"Let our boys understand that when the last gun is fired and the last bomb has been dropped their task will have only begun. Duties and responsibilities as heavy as those they now bear await them on their return; duties and responsibilities and opportunities, too, if we make them for them, limited only by the vast extent of their country

Youngest Of Quadruplets Dies

HEANOR, Derbyshire, England, March 3—(CP)—Youngest of quadruplets born Monday to 23-year-old Nora Carpenter, former member of the British Auxiliary Territorial Service, died during the night

The child, named Macdonald, previously suffered from a cold and his condition had been the cause of some anxiety, but only last night he was reported showing signs of progress.

Nora was reported "not too well" this morning. Her mother, Mrs. Ellen Carpenter, said the American soldier who had been named as the father of the quads had visited the Carpenter home for a few hours last night.

Father Is Named

Both Mrs. Carpenter and Miss Edith Mathews, nursing home superintendent, said the father of the babies is Staff Sgt. William Thompson of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Macdonald, who weighed three pounds, was the weakest of the quads at birth, and doctors had been giving him small doses of brandy in addition to his regular diet of sterilized cow's milk and glucose. A matron of the nursing home to which the babies had been taken said a hemorrhage was the immediate cause of the death.

The other three children were reported doing well.

A few hours before Macdonald's death Nora had talked optimistically to an interviewer of her plans for the babies and her hopes for eventually marrying the American soldier identified as their father.

Married In States

Miss Carpenter said the quads' father "was married about two years ago in America and they had no children," but added:

"I understand he has seen his commanding officer about the quads and I'm hoping arrangements will be made to enable us to get married some time in the future."

She commented that "everyone in Heanor knows I'm single and it

Four-Year Term Given Dawson

SIMCOE, March 3 (Special) — A. E. Dawson, president of the defunct firm of A. E. Dawson and Co. stock brokers, Toronto, was sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary on five charges of theft and conversion after pleading guilty to a total of 19 charges in Simcoe police court today. On each of 14 charges of false pretenses he was given three years by Magistrate H. P. Innes, all sentences to run concurrently.

The charges involved transactions in stocks and bonds between the A. E. Dawson and Co. and a number of clients, totalling $138,000. Evidence revealed that the money, stocks and bonds held by the clients had been exchanged for shares in an assortment of companies which had been established by A. E. Dawson and Co. Included among these companies were Equity Holding Corp., Associated Royalty Trust and Royalty Corp. Syndicate.

Included among Dawson's clients were Joseph Opychany, E. H. Foulger and E. S. Libby, all of Brantford; Mrs. J. W. Hodgson of Jarvis, Mrs. S. H. Blake, Toronto; Mrs. Lila C. Knowles and Miss M. E. Johnston, St. Thomas; Mrs. Mabel L. Vanloon of Townsend, Gladys M. Nelles, Lois Nelles, Mrs. J. M. Ward and Fred Ward all of Waterford, and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Anderson, Wilsonville.

Dawson was arrested at Fort Erie recently after being deported from the United States, where he had been in custody for some months, as well as in Mexico. During yesterday's hearing, it was revealed that no restitution would be made to any of the fraud victims.

Help For Refugees

LONDON, March 3 (CP-Reuters) —Britain and the United States have each agreed to underwrite £500,000 ($2,225,000) this year for expenses of the inter-governmental committee on refugees, Richard K. Law, foreign under-secretary, told the House of Commons yesterday. He said that when the war ends it is estimated some 20,000,000 people will have been rooted from their homes in Europe.

British Weapons Are Rated Best

NEW DELHI, March 3 — (CP). —Maj.-Gen. J. H. Lethbridge, the British head of an Allied Inter-Services Mission to the South-west Pacific, said Thursday that experiences of his tour of all Japanese battlefronts had convinced him that "when we turn the heat on him (the Jap) we will drive him right back."

With American and Canadian associates from various general staffs, Gen. Lethbridge has visited the battlefronts to help make certain, the best weapons and best tactics are used. Already, he said at press conference, 29 reports have been sent in recommending changes in weapons or tactics and all had been adopted.

One outstanding conclusion he had found in the South-west Pacific front he said was that British weapons are better than American.

"The Australians have tried all weapons belonging to the Americans," he said, "and have gone back to their own. They have found them better."

When reporters questioned him on this he emphasized:

"British weapons have been found superior both in quality and adaptability." With a smile he added: "British weapons are foolproof."

the embarrassment of an adverse vote, however, after Foreign Secretary Eden promising consideration of pay increases by the War Cabinet, came to the rescue of War Minister Sir James Grigg.

Grigg, who had been subject to constant heckling, earlier had flatly refused to consider the question of pay boosts on the ground that it would involve inflation.

The storm centered chiefly on comparisons of the pay of British soldiers with that of the United States and Dominion troops and with the pay of men in British industry.

(British army base pay is about 80 cents a day, the British Information Service said, with Australian $2, New Zealand $1.50, Canadian $1.30 and American $1.66.)

Eden agreed there were cases of families and servicemen living on subsidies and charities, but refused a suggestion that the pay of British soldiers be brought up to United States standards, saying the cost —about £400,000,000 ($1,200,000,000) annually—would mean inflation on the widest scale.

Wheezing In the Chest Points to Bronchitis

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a dry, harsh, hacking cough accompanied by a rapid wheezing and tightness across the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning. This phlegm is at first of a light colour, but as the trouble progresses becomes yellowish or greenish.

You may find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to help stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, relieve the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and aid nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Price 35c a bottle; the large family size, about 3 times as much, 60c, at all drug counters.

Few Applying For Licenses

"There were only four or five persons here applying for their automobile licenses and gasoline rations in the first hour this morning when there should have been nearer 100," J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, told the Examiner to-day. "There is going to be an awful jam, reminiscent of last year, when late applicants stood in lines waiting for hours and formed queques stretching down the street, unless people wake up to their responsibility," he declared.

"This job can't be done unless the public comes in," Mr. Dorris said, stating that some 6,500 passenger car and truck licenses and some 9,000 driving licenses remain to be issued before the deadline date, March 31. Up to now there have been about 3,000 registrations handled at the Chamber of Commerce offices.

"From now on we will be open every Saturday afternoon until the rush is over. There are 24 business days left in the month and this means registrations will have to total 300 on the average each day in order to get everybody through," Mr. Dorris said.

"People must start coming in in much greater numbers right away. It can't be done successfully otherwise, and as things stand now it is not fair to them and it's not fair to us."

Oscar Winners Are Announced

HOLLYWOOD, March 3—(AP)—Moviedom's coveted "Oscar" awards for the best acting performances of 1943 are held today by Hungarian born Paul Lukas, 48, and Oklahoma-born Jennifer Jones, 24, while "Casablanca" has the acclaim as last year's best film.

The famous little gold-plated statuettes, given each year by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and constituting the industry's top laurels, were awarded last night before a glittering array of other hopeful acting candidates and 2,048 fans who paid $11 admission each.

Miss Jones won the prize—on her 24th birthday—for her peasant-girl performance in "The Song of Bernadette." Previously she had appeared in only a few minor roles.

Lukas' award was for his portrayal of the impassioned anti-Nazi in "Watch on the Rhine," a part he enacted previously on the stage.

The monocled veteran actor, Charles Coburn, won the honors for the best supporting role by an actor by his performance in "The More the Merrier."

Katina Paxinou was adjudged the best supporting actress for her work as Pilar in "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

The best-direction accolade went to Michael Curtiz for "Casablanca."

Hal. B. Wallis received the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award for consistent high quality of production.

around the beachhead, dropped about 40,000 fragmentation bombs from some 1,800 planes—a record for this type of attack in this theatre.

Heavy, medium, light, and fighter bombers all participated, the atttack being concentrated on the Carroceto-Velletri-Cisterna line. The German air force made no attempt to intercept the formations. Ten enemy planes were sighted on one occasion but they did not fight.

In the final attack late Wednesday in their two-day offensive the Germans were forced to cross open country and Allied artillery tore huge holes in their ranks even before they neared the Allied lines. Subsequently, American troops wiped out a few minor infiltrations.

"Everywhere now our lines remain intact as before the offensive began," an Allied military commentator said.

Enemy losses included nine tanks knocked out by one American antitank unit at the height of the attack and an entire company of possibly 100 men embushed by the British during a diversionary German assault near the Moletta river headquarters south of Carroceto.

A strong Allied patrol ambushed and killed or captured an entire German company that attacked in the coastal zone southwest of Littoria Wednesday morning.

Snow, rain and heavy winds remained hampering factors yesterday in the main 5th Army and British 8th Army sectors yesterday, but artillery duelling and patrolling continued. Canadians of the 8th Army took a number of prisoners and killed one German in patrol engagements, Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported.

The Allied air forces, with strength to spare from the beachhead bombing, sent Spitfires and Thunderbolts in sweeps along the Yugoslav coast in direct support of Marshal Tito's forces and they had a field day in knocking out five troop trains, four locomotives, 16 motor transport vehicles, four staff cars and some horse-drawn wagons.

The Spitfires sighted one motor convoy of at least 50 three-ton trucks which one of the pilots said "we couldn't miss." About one-third of the trucks were left burning and others were damaged.

One formation of Spitfires bagged their second enemy E-boat in two days and set a small schooner afire near Corfu.

R.A.F. Wellingtons bombed rail installations along the coast northwest of Rome between Montalto di Castro and Talamone last night and shipping and harbor facilities at San Stefano, in northwest Italy. Other Allied craft set fire to a radio station near Leghorn.

ed by fighters of both the 8th and 9th American Air Force, as well as Allied fighters, an indication that the operation was of considerable size.

The widespread daylight smashes also included stabs at the French "rocket gun" sector by R.A.F. fighter-bombers.

The R.A.F. operation, last night included Mosquito slashes at Western Germany and mine-laying in enemy waters.

An Air Ministry communique today said two medium bombers, one fighter-bomber, and two fighters were missing in extensive sweeps by the Allied expeditionary Air Force yesterday.

A communique announced 11 bombers and three fighters failed to return from the heavy bomber operations. All Canadian planes returned. The fighters destroyed 18 German planes, but the number shot down by the bombers was not immediately tabulated.

American medium bombers raided the rail centre at Amiens yesterday and other attacks were carried out on the invasion coast of France, it was announced. Persons watching the cross-channel assault during the day estimated between 2,000 and 3,000 Allied planes of all types flew against enemy targets by daylight.

The Air Ministry announced last night R. A. F. night bombers had dropped 13,200 tons of bombs on Germany during February and another 1,730 tons were dropped by daylight. The announcement said R.A.F. plane losses during the month were 245 and 51 planes were destroyed over Europe by British-based R.A.F. craft.

Robs Child's Bank Gest Fifteen Days

Fifteen days in the county jail was the sentence imposed in police court this morning on Joseph McGuire, 24, of no fixed address who pleaded guilty on Thursday to stealing a sum of money from a child's bank, the property of Mrs. Vedra Meharry.

Giving evidence in the case this morning M. H. Meharry, caretaker of the Knights of Columbus Hall stated that McGuire had been sleeping in a taxi office and had no home. Witness had tried to help him out by offering him a bed and food in exchange for doing a few chores. McGuire, he said, had not been there very long when he left and it was found that some money in a child's bank had disappeared. Between $8 and $9 was taken, Meharry stated and McGuire had admitted stealing the money.

"I only took between $3 and $4" the accused declared. McGuire had no previous record, it was stated.

"It is not a case for suspended sentence. This kind of thing must be stopped" said Magistrate Langley in imposing a fifteen day sentence.

W.A. Discusses Serving Banquet

MILLBROOK, March 3 (ENS) — Fifteen members were present for the March meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's church, held at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, in the chair.

The theme for the devotional period was "Having your loins girded about with truth," the study for the year being concerned with "God's armour, our strength." Mrs. Ross Edmunds read the lesson, and Mrs. F. J. Smith offered the prayer, after which the secretary, Miss Josie Sutton, reported $7.45 in fees at the February gathering, and 91 cents to the mile of coppers.

The visiting committee reported sick members called upon, and the sunshine bags, in which one cent is to be deposited every day the sun shines for March, were distributed, Mrs. A. L. Sisco and Mrs. J. H. Barringer, with Mrs. Smith, being the committee in charge. The treasurer, Mrs. J. McKnight, reported $20 from the afternoon tea at her home following the last meeting, $18.26 from the pot luck supper, and a $5 donation from Mrs. Morden, the president's mother, the latter being an annual gift.

New business was concerned with the matter of a request for catering for a banquet, the date being early in May. No decision was reached. The parsonage committee reported repair work needed and this will be given immediate attention, the parsonage being the special care of the Association.

For the program, Mrs. H. W. Johnston sang: "My Task," and Mrs. F. J. Smith gave a reading, "It Isn't The Church, It's You.' For the April gathering, the invitation of Mrs. Edmund Ball was accepted.

They are fanatics; they want to get things done at top speed. They show us very clearly the danger inherent in one-party government; the ablest and least corruptible of legislators are the better for a check on their activities, and so far as we know parliamentary government is the only system which provides a check.

Cat And Mouse

Can it be that the leaders of the United Nations are playing a cat and mouse game with Hitler? Within two weeks Premier Churchill has said that he does not think that the end of the war is in sight, Mr. Roosevelt has repeated his warning about unconditional surrender, and Marshal Stalin has said that he thinks th[illegible] end of the war is very near. We would be better advised to make up our minds that at least another three years of war lie ahead of us, and that only tireless effort by everyone will end the job even then.

Temporary Suspension Of Rationing

It was a wise and practical move to suspend meat rationing for a time. It was clear that there was a glut of meat in the Canadian market, and that we had not the means of shipping it abroad to ease the shortage in Great Britain. Why, therefore, should we not eat some of it ourselves?

We do not think that many people have suffered under meat rationing. It may be that men who do hard physical work in the open air expect meat twice or even three times a day, but most workers eat it only once a day, and are able to stretch their allowance by judicious use of fowl or fish. Meat rationing kept housewives alert, but it did not present them with any insoluble problems. No, we think that the people who will benefit most directly from the temporary suspension of meat rationing are the butchers. The reckoning of coupons, and the extra work necessary to keep the coupons and the sales of meat tallying, made a lot of worry for the retailers which they will be glad to escape for a time.

Rationing has been removed because [illegible] have too much meat on hand, and [illegible] until shipping is free to take [illegible] shipping is the bottleneck. [illegible] has been adjusted [illegible] back again. [illegible]

THE effective operational radius of Allied aircraft was, in fact, not seriously tested until the time of the Salerno landings. Until practicable landing grounds on the Italian mainland could be converted to our use, fighters were called upon to give cover to Allied troops on the beaches at an unprecedented range.

Here, Air Marshal Coningham evolved a bold plan based upon an intimate knowledge of the capabilities of his pilots, together with an equally important knowledge of the fact that long range fighters of the Tactical Air Force would be available in large numbers.

The problem of range did not, of course, affect the light, medium or heavy bombers, so that once again, Tedder's 'Carpet' unfurled itself over the landing beaches at the time when it was most needed. In addition, during daylight, assault troops also had the support of the First Air Arm.

At night, an adequate number of night fighters took up the cudgels and continued to protect the troops until daybreak [illegible]

A Bible Message

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good things unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound. (Isa. 61: 1.)

And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward: not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God; who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life....

Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord. (II Cor. 3: 4-6, 17, 18.)

For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope, because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. (Rom. 8: 19-21.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Said the countryman to the dentist: "I won't pay nothin' extra for gas. Just pull it out, even if it does hurt".

"You are very plucky, sir. Let me see the tooth".

"Oh, 'tain't me that's got toothache; it's my wife. She'll be here in a minute".

Raising Children

Mayor LaGuardia is strong for home environment and as firm as any wise Chinese patriarch in his insistence on parental authority and respect for elders. He makes another plea for better manners—a plea which, though it may seem strange coming from him, is, we suspect, largely the crux of the whole matter. He sees no reason why children should be above learning the intricacies of cooking, housework and washing dishes. He goes even further and makes the suggestion, so shocking to many of the moderns, that a spanking (sometimes known in these days of bogus terminology as "manual guidance") is often precisely the medicine required. —New York Herald Tribune.

Where To Learn

Failing to wean a heifer calf off its sucking habit, and induce the animal to drink like a bona fide pail addict, caused a north-country farmer to break into a storm of invective just as the wife appeared in the cowshed door. Noting an upset milk pail and the rejected forefinger of the instructor, she exclaimed: "Good land, if you want the poor thing to learn to drink why don't you take it out on one of your all-night public meetings!"—Leamington Post.

Five Tax Answers

Five reporters in Cleveland took the same income problem to the collector's office, and came back with five different official solutions, ranging from a debt of $365.16 to a credit of $12.88. More Fanatic Than Ever

Dr. Goebbels made a radio speech last Sunday night from which these words are quoted: "Once victory is in the bag we shall proceed to make our socialism of deeds into a reality. As we have promised, we shall come out of this war as even more fanatic Nazis than ever". We wonder what meaning the Doctor's hearers can possibly have attached to his words. What does the word 'socialist' really mean in Germany today, or what has it ever meant during the Nazi regime?

Certainly Hitler provided many tangible benefits for the German people when he came to power. After the shabbiness of the republican days the spruce and shiny Germany of the Nazis, with its magnificent motor roads, its ultra-modern concrete buildings and its increased agricultural production looked very fine indeed. There must have been hundreds of thousands of Germans who found the Nazi regime stimulating and helpful because they did not have the bad luck to be Jews, or liberals, or thinkers of any kind. They were the people who were happy to take whatever was given to them, both in the physical and the spiritual realm. Those are the people who will recall the Nazi regime as an era of German progress; those are the people who, if Germany should win the war, will undoubtedly be even more fanatic Nazis than ever.

But what has Nazism to do with socialism? Socialism, in theory, is a benevolent system in which the evils of private ownership are reduced to a minimum, and the benefits of co-operation are exploited to the full. In Germany private ownership was greatly curtailed, but a special group of private owners—the Nazi leaders—became unwholesomely rich; in Germany there was certainly a great measure of co-operation, but it was for one end only—for the glorification of the State, which was the same thing as saying the glorification of the Nazi leaders. How anyone in Germany who had even the most superficial knowledge of socialism could have mistaken what the Nazis offered for that political belief passes the imagination.

It may be that there is a lesson in the history of National Socialism for the Canadian people. The question which must come to anyone who looks at the Nazi party is this: can any group of men, however honourable their professions, and however high their ideals, be trusted with the power which, of necessity, resides in the heads of a socialist state? Now we do not suggest that Hitler and his gang were corrupted by power: they were thoroughly corrupt long before they achieved any success whatever. But we do suggest that a socialist state rests on autocracy and bureaucracy, and that men who seek autocratic power cannot be trusted to exercise it without corruption. We need not look to Hitler only for proof of this. Is there any record in all history of an autocrat whose term of power did not abound in instances of oppression and injustice which a democracy would never tolerate? Half the tragedy of Germany may be attributed to the evil character and base ambitions of Adolf Hitler and his associates; but the other half must be laid at the door of socialism itself, a form of government which has much to recommend it in theory but which in practise is too full of temptation for ordinary, corruptible men. A socialist out of power may be a great-souled lover of his fellow-men; a socialist in power is, by the very nature of his beliefs, a despot.

Dr. Goebbels, with his characteristic impudence, included these remarks in his Sunday speech: "Our enemies forced this war on us because the example of our socialist community was a danger to their socially backward system. Britain today is discussing plans—and even rejecting them—which are still much more modest than what Germany introduced under Bismarck in the nineteenth century". It is characteristic of the Nazis, and of socialists generally, that they do not like to waste time in discussing reforms; they like to bustle them into effect at once, and in spite of contrary opinion. The slow and cumbrous methods of evolutionary democracy are particularly distasteful to them. They are fanatics; they want to get things done at top speed. They show us very clearly the danger inherent in one-party government; the ablest and least corruptible of legislators are the better for a check on their activities, and so far as we know parliamentary government is the only system which provides a check.

Cat And Mouse

Can it be that the leaders of the United Nations are playing a cat and mouse game with Hitler? Within two weeks Premier Churchill has said that he does not think that the end of the war is in sight, Mr. Roosevelt has repeated his warning about unconditional surrender, and Marshal Stalin has said that he thinks that the end of the war is very near. Now we do not imagine for an instant that Churchill and Stalin have expressed different opinions because one has information which the other has not; we think it far more likely that they have made their statements to confuse and dismay the enemy. It is, indeed, his own "war of nerves" applied skilfully to himself.

Where does the truth lie? Well, as Lord Halifax said on Wednesday, when he was addressing a St. David's society, the unexpected sometimes happens behind the fog of war, but we dare not count on it. Germany has been hard hit, but Germany can still strike heavy blows and we would be foolish to underestimate her power, and particularly the power of her air force. It is true that in the first Great War the German collapse came at a time when it was least expected, but it is poor policy to expect history to repeat itself. Our safest plan is to assume that we shall only win the war by fighting it to a finish, and by actual invasion of Europe and Japan.

For we are somewhat inclined to underestimate Japan, just as our neighbours in the U.S. sometimes appear to look upon the defeat of Hitler as a mere side-show compared with the Pacific war. We have been warned often enough that Japan's scheme of war is not planned in years or decades, but in centuries, and that a single setback cannot be called a Japanese defeat. When the war in Europe is won we shall still have to make sure that Japan has been thoroughly discouraged in her grandiose plans of eastern domination. Everyone, admittedly, is sick to death of the war and wishes it were done, but wishing will merely deceive us. We would be better advised to make up our minds that at least another three years of war lie ahead of us, and that only tireless effort by everyone will end the job even then.

Temporary Suspension Of Rationing

It was a wise and practical move to suspend meat rationing for a time. It was clear that there was a glut of meat in the Canadian market, and that we had not the means of shipping it abroad to ease the shortage in Great Britain. Why, therefore, should we not eat some of it ourselves?

We do not think that many people have suffered under meat rationing. It may be that men who do hard physical work in the open air expect meat twice or even three times a day, but most workers eat it only once a day, and are able to stretch their allowance by judicious use of fowl or fish. Meat rationing kept housewives alert, but it did not present them with any insoluble problems. No, we think that the people who will benefit most directly from the temporary suspension of meat rationing are the butchers. The reckoning of coupons, and the extra work necessary to keep the coupons and the sales of meat tallying, made a lot of worry for the retailers which they will be glad to escape for a time.

Rationing has been removed because we have too much meat on hand, and will have until shipping is free to take it abroad; shipping is the bottleneck. When that situation has been adjusted we shall have meat rationing back again. We accepted rationing in the first place in order to make meat available for our allies abroad who are very short of it. While it is impossible to send the meat to them there is no reason why we should not eat it ourselves.

The hero of the hour, of course, is the Canadian farmer, who has provided meat in such quantity that it is almost an embarrassment. Fortunately we shall soon be able to send our surplus meat to the place where it is needed most.

Mighty Expansion Of Allied Air Support

By
WING-COMMANDER L. V. FRASER

BEHIND the advance in Italy of Britain's Eighth Army across the difficult Sangro and Moro rivers towards Pescara, and that of the Fifth Army now closing in on San Pietro, lies another story of the great strides made in the conduct of co-ordinated air warfare.

It is the story of the expansion of air support from the time of its inception in the Western Desert of Egypt during 1941.

Today, in terms of striking power, the air support available to advancing Allied armies is roughly two hundred per cent greater than it was even during the latter stages of the North African campaign.

Not only has the use of new and more modern aircraft in the Strategic bomber force stepped up its hitting power to an immense degree, but the Mitchells which now constitute the main weapon of the Tactical Air Force are able to carry twice the bomb load of the light bombers used in the early days.

Single engined Kittyhawk and Warhawk fighter-bombers similarly carry, today, a load equal of that of the former light bombers which necessitated a crew of four.

The destructive power of these fighter bombers, has, in itself been stepped up by about three hundred per cent.

IN spite of bad weather, nearly nine thousand sorties were flown during the greater part of November, by Tactical medium bombers and fighters bombers. Of these, the versatile Kittyhawk and Warhawk and Invader fighter-bombers contributed over 5,000 sorties, a number of which were in direct support of Yugoslav partisans.

During the same month, Tactical aircraft, for their own loss of 44, destroyed 61 German aircraft and damaged many others. Allied losses were almost entirely due to anti-aircraft fire, the Luftwaffe having long ago adopted a purely defensive role. It is, nowadays, so conspicuous by its absence that many Allied fighters are either being converted to fighter-bombers, or employed exclusively in strafing and harassing the German troops.

But how has this air support grown up? Turn back to 1941. From the Desert Air Force consisting of a few squadrons of Hurricane and Tomahawk fighters, together with a sprinkling of Maryland light bombers, grew the Tactical Air Force, an immense and highly complex air arm, powerful, flexible and endowed with the ability to apply the maximum striking power at the right moment.

The matter did not end with the expansion of equipment and the perfection of a complicated organisation. It went much deeper. From the time when the Eighth Army was formed under the command of General Cunningham, a combined Army and Air Headquarters came into being. Air Marshal Coningham, air commander in the desert, thus maintained the closest physical contact and complete understanding with the Army.

This air co-operation, was continually improved from practical experience, so that later on the Tactical Air Force working with the Eighteenth, and subsequently the Fifteenth Army Group in a joint Headquarters, was able to give General Alexander all the assistance he required.

DURING the final stages of the North African campaign the enormous advantages derived from constant and efficient air to ground co-operation became overwhelmingly obvious.

Air Chief Marshal Tedder then took the scheme a step further by developing an ambitious method of utilizing the striking power of all the Air Forces simultaneously. Thus, while heavy bombers of the Strategic Air Force pounded objectives in accordance with plans evolved much earlier, the Tactical Bomber Force of medium bombers operated at a moment's notice, wherever required, while the fighters and fighter-bombers of the Tactical Air Force concentrated on air interception escort duties, and ceaseless harassing tactics. Tedder's "Carpet" had come to stay.

Then came the acid test of the gigantic amphibious operation directed against Sicily.

Brilliant planning and performance enabled the integrated British-American Force to use its immense hitting power to best advantage, despite the fact that three different air bases were used at the same time. While the fighters operated mainly from Malta and Pantellaria, the North African mainland was the base for the Strategic Air Force, the Tactical Bomber Force and the American Twelfth Air Support Command.

As rapidly as Sicilian landing grounds fell into the hands of the Allies, they become the jumping off point for occupied air operations, so that the striking range of the air support was never permitted to suffer.

THE effective operational radius of Allied aircraft was, in fact, not severely tested until the time of the Salerno landings. Until practicable landing grounds on the Italian mainland could be converted to our use, fighters were called upon to give cover to Allied troops on the beaches at an unprecedented range.

Here, Air Marshal Coningham evolved a bold plan based upon an intimate knowledge of the capabilities of his pilots, together with an equally important knowledge of the fact that long range fighters of the Tactical Air Force would be available in large numbers.

The problem of range did not, of course, beset the light, medium or heavy bombers, so that once again, Tedder's "Carpet" unfurled itself over the landing beaches at the time when it was most needed. In addition, during daylight, assault troops also had the support of the Fleet Air Arm.

At night, an adequate number of night fighters took up the cudgels and continued to protect Allied troops until daybreak when the process began all over again.

The enemy's road and rail communications, his gun positions, strong points, shipping and supply depots received a merciless and continuous pounding. But this was not all. Systematic attack of enemy airfields had important effects on the course of the battle by weakening the Luftwaffe's capacity for aerial warfare and limiting their ability to give support to German troops from the sky.

Today the air support available to advancing Allied armies is stronger still and its development continues.

That's O.K., Judge

BACKING HIM UP —By Rube Goldberg

'Full' or 'High'

(THE PRINTED WORD)

AS a political slogan, the phrase, "Full Employment," has undoubted merit. It can be used as a plank in any political platform, and few hecklers would be unkind enough to insist that a speaker furnish an exact definition.

At present, statisticians seem to agree that we have nearly full employment. In other words, a job of some kind is available for everyone who is able and willing to work, and fortunately for our war production, those who are neither willing nor able are in the minority. Yet this degree of full employment has been attained by putting countless thousands of workers into positions that they would not have chosen for themselves. Few of our temporary soldiers, even though volunteers, have any intention of making soldiering their lifetime profession. Many temporary civil servants are looking forward to the day when they can return to their pre-war businesses. Women munition-workers and bus-drivers will desert the lathe and the steering-wheel, giving up their right to an individual pay-envelope in order to claim ninety per cent of a husband's weekly earnings.

Full employment, as we know it, comes about because the Government is the great employer. In addition to direct employees in the armed forces and civil service, the Government is really the employer of workers in war industries, of many workers in factories partly engaged in war work, of extra workers in transportation services, even clerks and stenographers in those sections of accounting departments that are fully engaged in keeping track of taxes.

It may be admitted at once that no immediate threat of unemployment looms for the last-named class; but any politicians who promises full employment for the others is actually promising that his party, if returned to power, will underwrite the employment of the masses of direct and indirect government employees who will be looking for new jobs on the proclamation of peace.

The Socialists, whose program includes taking over all large industries at once and the smaller enterprises as quickly as they find it expedient to do so, can promise full employment with some consistency. If the state becomes the sole employer, the state must see that everyone is employed. But as yet neither Mr. Coldwell nor Mr. Winch has gone so far as to guarantee that everyone will have the kind of job he wants.

Even in normally good times, it is not unusual for many of our brightest university graduates to emigrate to the United States because there is insufficient demand for their services in their native land. In the early nineteen-thirties, men of excellent education were frequently forced to accept lowly jobs, unsuited to their training and ability.

A promise of full employment on the wartime scale is misleading. It cannot be fulfilled even if citizens are willing to surrender direction of their own lives to National Selective Service or some similar department in perpetuity. Politicians who are not Socialists should be cautious with their promises. Governments, by their economic policies, can influence conditions so as to encourage or discourage business activity and expansion and with them the general increase or decrease of employment. The politician who promises more is throwing a boomerang, which he may not be able to dodge.

"Full employment" is a snare and a delusion. It means merely that everyone must be on a payroll, and that isn't true even today. But high employment is feasible. High employment means that virtually everyone able and willing to work can find a job.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

PROPOSED NATIONAL PARK

Sir,—May I have space to reply to an article published in the Examiner on Tuesday, February 29, entitled "Proposed National Park scheme meeting with stiff opposition".

It would perhaps be useless to suggest, in view of the petition now being circulated by those opposing this idea, that until we are informed of the exact basis on which a Park either National or Provincial could be established, that all concerned withhold decision and action until the facts are available. However, I do suggest that the public generally do nothing to commit themselves one way or another until they have the facts.

With regard to the statement that the expenditure of money on such a project would not be justified, may I point out that very large sums of money have already been spent on highways bordering the proposed area, which money could never be returned by the few settlers and small lumbering projects served by these roads. A National or Provincial Park reasonably developed would in time justify these roads.

According to the press the present Ontario Provincial Government since taking office last August has established two such parks and the Dominion Government contemplate similar action. It would appear that the people of this county will help pay for a park in this area or elsewhere. I cannot believe that any unprejudiced person would rather see such a park established where perhaps ninety-nine per cent. of Peterborough people would never see it, than within the boundaries of this county.

With regard to the statement that such a park would result in the destruction of tourist business—this is too ridiculous to need reply.

I have yet to hear any suggestion that settlers would be removed or property demolished. I would suggest to settlers and others concerned that they seriously consider the source of such statements and decide whose interests are provoking such concern.

As for the lumber interests. There is little merchantable timber left in the proposed area, and having in mind the ability the lumber companies have displayed in the past in looking after their interests, I do not think we need be greatly concerned.

I was greatly interested to learn that the proposed park area is one "where American tourists come almost exclusively", and further, that the establishment of a park would stop this influx, since fishing in parks is permitted. I am at a loss to understand where these people stay in this area and how they get there since there is not ten miles of passable roads and nothing that by any stretch of imagination could be called a tourist resort in the area proposed.

I note that among the organizations opposing the idea is the Ketcheoum Hunt Club. I am inclined to doubt this and am sure this organization must have been falsely accused.

Some years ago when I was a game and fisheries officer I had occasion to call on these people during the course of a patrol. I found the members to be Peterborough business and professional men of the finest type. The kind of people one would expect to find taking a leading part in furthering any worth-while community enterprise. I was most hospitably treated by this group on two occasions and I find it very difficult to believe such men would oppose anything so valuable to this city and county because of the slight personal sacrifice involved if they were obliged to hunt outside of the proposed area, about one mile distant from their lodge.

In conclusion may I say that wild life, fish and Crown land are the property of the people generally; whether you have ever caught a fish or killed game you are at least as much entitled to say what should be done with this national asset as the citizen who enjoys these pastimes at every opportunity. Perhaps you would enjoy a drive or a holiday in an area where you could see wild life at large in its natural home? Has anyone any right to say that you should not have the chance?

There are many other sound reasons in favour of this project that cannot be covered within the space of a letter, Mr. Editor. I am grateful to the Examiner for the space it has given me, its support of this proposal and my efforts to further it dating back to 1935. I make no claim to being an authority on the subject but I have given it considerable study on the spot. I have considerable data as well as a large scale map of the county with the proposed park, present game preserve, lakes, streams, etc., marked in colours, and would be happy to pass on such information to any individual or organization that might be interested.—Sincerely yours,

FRED C. MARSHALL.

A Bible Message

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good things unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound. (Isa. 61: 1.)

And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward: not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God; who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life....

Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord. (II Cor. 3: 4-6, 17, 18.)

For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope, because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. (Rom. 8: 19-21.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Said the countryman to the dentist: "I won't pay nothin' extra for gas. Just pull it out, even if it does hurt".

"You are very plucky, sir. Let me see the tooth".

"Oh, 'tain't me that's got toothache; it's my wife. She'll be here in a minute".

A recruit fed up with army life, thought he would try to "work his ticket".

He sketched a duck on the barrack-room wall, and began to throw crumbs of bread to it.

When the sergeant saw him, he gave him a large shovel.

"What's this for", asked the recruit, continuing his half-wit pretence.

"You go into the field at the back", answered the sergeant, "and dig and dig until you come to water for a pond. Then your duck can swim in real water and not on a brain-wave".

Raising Children

Mayor LaGuardia is strong for home environment and as firm as any wise Chinese patriarch in his insistence on parental authority and respect for elders. He makes another plea for better manners—a plea which, though it may seem strange coming from him, is, we suspect, largely the crux of the whole matter. He sees no reason why chicken should be above learning the intricacies of cooking, housework and washing dishes. He goes even further and makes the suggestion, so shocking to many of the moderns, that a spanking (sometimes known in these days of bogus terminology as "manual guidance") is often precisely the medicine required. —New York Herald Tribune.

Where To Learn

Failing to wean a heifer calf off its sucking habit, and induce the novice to drink like a bona fide pail addict, caused a north-country farmer to break into a storm of invective just as the wife appeared in the cowshed door. Noting an upset milk pail and the rejected forefinger of the instructor, she exclaimed: "Good land, if you want the poor thing to learn to drink why don't you take it out on one of your all-night public meetings!"—Leamington Post.

Five Tax Answers

Five reporters in Cleveland took the same income problem to the collector's office, and came back with five different official solutions, ranging from a debt of $246.16 to a credit of $13.88. THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 4

THE LUNAR transits for this day hold excellent stimuli for forging ahead toward ambitious goals and desires by a determined, concentrated and skillful marshalling of all the forces and faculties upon the cherished objective. Use sagacity, constructive ability, ingenuity, persistent and decisive attack, backed up by personal influence and appeal, even glamor and charm, if need be. This combination may attract the hearty support and substantial endorsement of those in place and power, but in all be cautious as to the regularity of documents or writings involved. Be sure to stick to facts in speech and writings. Refrain from exaggeration and extravagance.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of excellent opportunity for winning cherished hopes, wishes and fondest objectives, mainly by the concentrated assembling of its varied assets of energy, brain, spirit and personality. Industry, application, perseverance and decisive action, with initiative, aggressiveness and skill, will have their convincing appeal to those in high places ready to cooperate generously. But refrain from all manner of excesses, extravagance and prodigality, with assets, energies and especially in writings or agreements. Beware misconstrued words; make facts clear.

A child born on this day will have splendid abilities for attaining its desires for a successful and happy life, assisted by influential persons in private and business life. Its prodigality, squandering of resources of substance and energies might be its undoing.

Belleghem, camp library convener. She also stated that magazines had been forwarded to Halifax, and that the Training Centre hospital was also well supplied.

The need for knitted articles for the active services was stressed and Chapter members will provide 15 pairs of mitts for the men of the corvette Peterborough. A donation of $25 to the Red Cross and Community Fund was also announced.

Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke was named as convener for the "Opportunity Shop" to which members will donate articles which can be bought by anyone wishing to purchase a gift. THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Variety is the spice of meals, as anyone knows. The odd thing is that a great many meal planners, who are conscious of that fact, limit the ways in which they introduce variety to certain rather set types of food. In my opinion the greatest variety is put into the desserts while the first course is almost the same every day. While we have to serve many things from day to day that are the same, we can vary the way we cook them. Take potatoes, for example, the many different ways they can be cooked and served. Beside the usual boiled, fried and baked potatoes, did you ever try potato cakes and potato puffs? If not, I am giving you the recipes to-day. You try them and see what a real nice change they are from the every-day way.

Potato Cakes.

3 cups mashed potatoes, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 cups flour (1½ cup ut in and ½ cup left for mixing), 2 teaspoons baking powder, mixed with the cup and a half of flour, ½ cup of milk, 1 teaspoon salt. Max thick, roll out and cut like biscuits. Bake nice and brown and serve hot with the meat course.

Potato Pryamids.

Mash 6 cooked potatoes with just enough milk so that the potato may be formed into small pyramids. Arrange these in a shallow baking dish. Score the outside of the cones and sprinkle with grated cheese. Pour some melted butter over them and place in a slow oven until quite hot. Serve at once.

Potato Puffs.

1 cup cold mashed potatoes, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons baking powder, pinch of salt, flour enough to make a soft dough. Roll ½ inch thick Cut into small strips and fry in deep fat.

Savery Potato Balls.

6 medium-shaped potatoes, 1½ teaspoons salt, 4 teaspoons butter, 1 egg, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon finely minced green pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ⅓ cupful cheese. Cook the potatoes until tender. Drain, dice and add the salt, butter, celery salt, paprika, green pepper and beaten egg. Beat well, make into balls the size of croquettes. Arrange in greased pans, brush with beaten egg, sprinkle with cheese and bake in hot oven of 450 deg. F. until brown. Serves six.

UNDERGROUND ACTIVE.

LONDON — (CP) — Athanase Sbarounis, who recently escaped from Greece, say there are 98 different guerrilla organizations and more than 40 underground newspapers in that German-occupied country.

A NOVEL TOUCH—It is the touch of the unexpected that marks the work of the master designer. Here is a stunning novelty interpreted by that leading New York designer, Anthony Blotta, who does suits so well. It is a tailored street suit in gray woollen with striped jacket, but instead of woven stripes these are made of chalky white sequins. Worn with snow white pique gilet and a pretty hat also of white pique.

Collegiate Students Present Annual Comedy

The opening performance of A. A. Milne's comedy, "Mr. Pim Passes By," in the Collegiate Auditorium Thursday evening, was an unqualified success, judging by the applause of the delighted capacity audience.

The amusing and entertaining three-act play, which tells the story of a man with a very poor memory, subject to suggestion, who inadvertently makes a remark which causes serious repercussions in the quiet and mannered household of George Marden, J.P., is being presented by the Dramatic Club of the Collegiate. Directed by Mr. R. B. Hale, in collaboration with Miss M. White, the play has polish, and each humorous situation is handled so that it is appreciated to the full by the audience.

Mr. Carraway Pim, the somewhat unknowing and bewildered troublemaker in the Marden household, is played by Jim Airth, a Grade niner. Although he claims to have gotten the part through the man-power shortage, he carries it well, and turns in an excellent performance, as the vaguely-minded visitor.

May Colby, as George's vivacious niece, Dinah, plays a part calling for a good deal of natural and spontaneous action on the stage. She is light and gay, and yet displays surprising convictions, inspired, however, in many instances, by her affection for Brian Strange, an artist, played by Leslie Fowlie.

Tough Proposition.

Brian appears as a quiet chap, who has been vainly attempting to ask George for Dinah's hand, since George is her guardian. Brian's mild manner has been somewhat drowned during his first talk with George, since the latter disapproves violently on his artistic interpretation and socialistic tendencies.

George, played by Allan Boate, is a hard nut to crack, however, since he doubts that Brian can earn sufficient to support a wife. Brian explains that he is young, and is just trying out new things, until he finds his "medium of expression." George effectively squelches him for the moment by remarking that he is going to try experimenting with a wife. This, needless to say, draws a quick exclamation of anger from Dinah, who doesn't think that she's an experiment at all.

Olivia, George's wife, played by Jean McTavish, finds George somewhat difficult at times too, since she has had her heart set on smart new curtains for the living room, and George has refused to have "those ridiculous things" in his house. Olivia has been married previously, to a somewhat shady character, whom her father chose because of his political opinions. Jacob Tellworthy, her first husband, had a fitting end, in Australia, about six years before the action in the play.

It therefore seems that George, played by Allan Boate, is the bottleneck in the actions at the beginning of the play. Olivia, however, having been his wife for five years, understands and knows how to handle him, and exasperates him by continuing in her own placid way while he blusters around like a ship in a full gale.

Drops Bombshell.

Into this somewhat strained atmosphere, Mr. Pim who, as he explains, is "just a passer-by," drops his figurative bombshell of a dead husband come alive, which shocks the whole household. He picks a most inopportune time to spring his surprise, since it is on this very day that George's aunt, Lady Marden, played by Eula Rosenburgh, chooses to come to lunch. The climax of the first act comes when Anne, the maid, played by Clara Ruskin, comes solemnly into the strained atmosphere vacated by Mr. Pim, who has just made his announcement and wandered away, and announces the arrival of Lady Marden.

However, George finally is brought around, and Dinah and George gain his consent, and Olivia gets her curtains, and the promise of a new carpet and furniture covers.

The second and third acts are amusing, since they show the processes by which the unrelenting Justice of the Peace is finally subdued and transformed into a meek and happy individual, who is quite contentedly hanging the orange and brown curtains when Mr. Pim quietly steals in for his final and brief appearance.

Thursday evening was students' night, and the intermissions were taken by two groups who presented unusual and original skits. In the first skit, John Lewis, as Freddie McGurgle (the Collegiate Sinatra), was carried to the stage by two male nurses, and, while clinging to a disinfected microphone, sang "Paper Doll," to the accompaniment of delighted screams from female members of the audience.

The second skit featured a bit of jive, and was done in blackface by some Harlem hep-cats. A little take-off on the old-fashioned minstrel show was also given. Those taking part in the skits were Jack Hill, John Lewis, Leonard Moore, Garry Brown, Ronald Bourne, Gloria Lowney, Jean Leach, Betty Blewett, Hugh Graham.

DOROTHY DIX

SECRET MARRIAGE A FOLLY

Such Union Always Puts Woman In Equivocal Position in This Suspicious World.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to a young man who will graduate from college in June, at which time I will graduate from high school. He is 20 years old and I am 18. We want so much to get married and as I am planning to enter college and he plans to enter medical school we are considering keeping our marriage a secret until things look brighter. Don't you think both of us would be happier and better satisfied, since we will be separated much of the time during our education, if we are married?

BLUE EYES.

Secret Marriage Unwise

ANSWER—Don't ever, Blue Eyes, under any circumstances commit the folly of making a secret marriage because, no matter how legal one is, it always puts the woman in an equivocal position. This is a censorious and suspicious world and nobody ever quite believes in a belated marriage certificate.

No matter how unwise, from every practical standpoint, is the marriage you are contemplating making, if you are going to do it, do it publicly and honestly and openly in the sight of all men. That is what the marriage ceremony means. It is a public declaration that a young couple are serving notice that they intend to live together and are assuming all the responsibilities that go with it.

It is probably useless to tell you that a girl of 18 and a boy of 20, who have still years of schooling to go through, are making a terrible mistake not to wait until they are grown and adult and know what they want in a husband and wife, and have some way of making a living, but, nevertheless, I put in my little two cents' worth and beg you not to do it.

It will take the boy you are engaged to at least eight or ten years to get all the training to fit him to be a competent doctor and to get started in his profession so he will be able to support a family. That is a long wait for a girl. In ten years both he and she will change. They will get to know different people, have different ideals and different tastes, and they may not want each other.

Can't you see how much better it would be to wait? If you really have the love for each other that endures, separation and change will not alter it. But if your love is just an adolescent girl's and boy's fancy, it will have died of its own weakness, and how glad you will be that you are free to make other ties.

Give yourself and the boy a chance, Blue Eyes. Don't marry before you are ready for it.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband has recently been moved to another city to work in a Defense Plant. We are utter strangers in this place. How can I go about getting to know nice people? I would also like to ask another question: How do you cope with people who have the habit of belittling everything you do, or say?

DOLORES.

Church Best Place to Make Friends

ANSWER — Probably the best way of getting to know nice people in a strange town is through your church affiliation. As soon as you get a settled address call on the pastor of whatever church you belonged to at home and tell him that you wish to join his congregation, and also that you would like to take an active part in church work. That will throw you in contact with the women who run things.

If you belong to women's clubs at home, get the presidents to write to the presidents of similar clubs in the town to which you have moved suggesting you as a desirable member and thereby vouching for you. Just now, when there is a call for women workers in all sorts of war work, there is no difficulty in making contact with nice women. Watch the newspapers and whenever you see that any organization is asking for helpers to join up with them. They will welcome you with open arms.

As to dealing with people who have the habit of belittling everything you do or say, all you have to do is to avoid them. Just ignore them and have nothing to do with them. It is folly for you to offer yourself up as a human pin-cushion for them to stick their barbed criticisms into.

DEAR MISS DIX—In your discussion of the many reasons for divorce, have you ever taken into consideration the allergy that so many women seem to have for soap and water? Forty years ago I married a girl who was well-educated, who had a great deal of money and who had always lived in luxury. But it was not very long until I noticed her avoidance of the bathtub, which grew more and more marked after we had several children and she gained weight.

In order not to hurt her feelings I refrained from ever mentioning the subject to her, but like other men who confront the same problem, I just naturally drifted towards more sweet smelling ladies.

A HUSBAND.

ANSWER—For years and years I have been urging my women readers to use plenty of soft soap in dealing with their husbands, but I had no idea that an even more basic need in marriage was a free use of toilet soap and water. Certainly in this country, where plumbing is a fetish, every woman should be as fragrant as a rose, and she would be if she realized that there is no other feminine charm more alluring and lasting than cleanliness. Biggest crowd of the season is expected at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium tonight when the final series for the senior championship of the Ladies' Basketball League will get under way and the Normal School and Y Cadets will continue their argument for the intermediate title. The double-header should be one of the best cards of the campaign. Transports who swept through the regular schedule without losing a game are an all-star outfit, made up of some of the ace players of outstanding girls' teams of the last few years. They have speed, teamwork, experience and above all scoring ability with four or five girls who are liable to break out into a scoring rash at any momnt. St. John's, a bunch of girls who for the most part have been playing together for a number of seasons haven't the scoring punch of the leaders but they are a close-checking crowd who handle the ball smartly and fight every foot of the journey. The senior game is bill for 8.45 o'clock. It will be preceded by the third game in the intermediate finals. Normals and Y Cadets are all even, Cadets taking the opening game and the School team coming back last week to grab off the second fixture and tied up the best-of-five round. Tonight's game which starts at 7.45 o'clock is vitally important for the winner will be only a game away from the intermediate championship.

Latest list of Peterborough recruits for the Canadian Navy show that the city's list of athletes is being further drained by the calls of the armed services. Basketball which as this column has pointed out before has been harder hit than any other branch of local sport is again the loser for the list includes that one-man cage team, Joe Stewart whose high-scoring performances have been a feature of basketball here for the last few seasons. Stewart, tall, rangy and fast, and an accurate sniper from all angles has sparked winning City and House League teams in several campaigns and it has become a legend around the Y.M.C.A. that the club fortunate enough to secure his services was a sure-fire winner. Joe is a natural athlete. He starred in softball last summer by his sensational work in centre field for the 4th Battery team, covering acres of ground, and last fall when he played his first game of organized rugby he showed that given half a chance he would be a star at the gridiron game too. Another basketball player in the latest Navy list is Joe Csumrik who has also been a member of the Y.M.C.A. weight-lifting club. And still another young athlete now in the Navy is W. E. Edgar, Sherbrooke St. who has been playing goal for the Lakefield hockey team this season and turning in a fine card between the posts.

Gets Another Chance

Vic Holbrook's demand for another crack at Strangler Bob Wagner, following the unexpected ending of Tuesday night's main bout has been granted by Promoter Frank Tunney who has re-matched the two mat stars for another bout here next week. "From what I hear that injury to Holbrook was more or less of a fluke," the Toronto impresario explains, "and I think Holbrook on his record in Peterborough rates a chance to show his many friends that barring accidents he can handle the big fellow from Portland." Wagner, naturally squawked a bit, "I beat him, didn't I," he growled but he finally agreed to battle the California comet again. "I gave him the works once and I can do it next week too," said the long-haired Oregon battler. It must be admitted that Wagner has given the popular Holbrook more trouble than anybody he has met here but at that most Peterborough fans feel that Velocity Vic is the better mat artist and that he will demonstrate that fact to the satisfaction of everybody when they meet at the Brock Tuesday night. Tunney is putting together a couple of other good bouts that will be worthy of the main feature.

* * * * * *

Incidentally Joe Perlove of the Toronto Star sporting staff is tremendously impressed with Holbrook. Here is part of a story on the California sensation: "Talked with Holbrook in Frank Tunney's office yesterday and can't remember enjoying a conversational hour more. He's done a lot in his 29 years. That's all he is, just a few years out of college, the University of Southern California. He's tremendous in size, six feet four and a half, but splendidly proportioned and as fast and limber a laddie as ever broke a full nelson. He's a sunny kind of a fellow, an easy talker with clear thoughts on youth and life and especially about his business, all of which he gives out fluently. What does get him mad is the general conception people have of wrestlers and wrestling. "It burns me," he says, "that folks think wrestlers are muscle bound. That's all cockeyed. That day is gone. It went out when the elbow smash came in. Today a wrestler in the ring has to expect anything and usually gets it. He has to be ready for it. Once a wrestler just had to know holds and counters and be big and strong. Today you have to have all that and be smart and extra limber besides."

It's A Screwy Whirl

Strange indeed are the ways of the white man when it comes to regulating "amateur" hockey these days. Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald calls attention to one odd feature of current developments when he says: "The screwiest set-up in a screwy hockey whirl is the rule that permits junior "A" players to revert to the minor ranks, such as juvenile and yet denies the same players the privilege to drop back to junior "B" ranks." Conditions in junior hockey have got so bad indeed that as the Stratford scribe points out you can count the number of homebrew players on the ten junior "A" clubs on one hand without going over it very often. And Oshawa's George Campbell supplies some more evidence in this paragraph: "Word is out that Brantford expects three military replacements from Port Colborne—Gravelle, their ace forward, Simpell and Kaiser. Just who these boys are replacing or how the Lions expect to qualify three more replacements at this late date, we don't know. Hamilton wanted some men from Port Colborne, too, but didn't get them. Word comes from Hamilton that when they made overtures to Port Colborne and Young Rangers, they were told that it would cost them money, $200 per player, in one instance. Now Ross Clemens, of Hamilton, past-president of the O.H.A., has taken this story to the ears of George Dudley, C.A.H.A. The Hamilton story says Brantford paid $100 for one P.C. player and $75 for another. Just by way of wondering, what did Ed. Wildey get when his Young Rangers went to Port Colborne and Stratford. My, my, such goings on!"

* * * * * *

"Buster" Wright, former Peterborough junior played with the Trenton Flyers in an important Service League game at Belleville the other night and Ken Colling comes up with the following in his sport column: "Veteran puck fans will recall Eddie Wright, Peterborough's well known barber, who made senior hockey history in the Liftlock City in the roarin' 20's when he was business manager of the Petes, senior O.H.A. champs of 1926, the year Ace Bailey, the late Frank Collins, Snap Parker, Joe Dwyer and the boys brought a senior crown to Peterborough. Well, the reason for this reminiscing is the fact that "Young Eddie" Wright was playing with the Trenton "Flyers" last night, he wore No. 8 jersey and was the player who tangled with Michanik for the game's only major penalty, although there could have been many more. Young Wright is a battler like his dad and was teamed with McAfee and Wilson, but this trio just couldn't get around Claude Bourque last night."

Want $1 A Head For Soldiers' Sports

OTTAWA, March 3 — (CP) — An Army sports committee has recommended to Defence Headquarters that $1 a head be provided for each soldier for Sports purposes and that permission be granted to charge civilians for admission to Army Sports shows, it was announced Thursday.

The money would go toward a fund to provide sports uniforms and equipment for the big mass participation sports program the army is just launching.

"The big military centres have enough equipment for normal usage and the smaller centres have hardly any", an army sports officer said. "We hope by our proposals to provide enough money to furnish uniforms and equipment for every soldier in the Army."

A decision of recommendations is expected soon, the officer added.

Bobo Newson Is Not Signed Mack Declares

By The Canadian Press

The colorful Bobo Newsom yesterday held a conference on baseball generally with Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics in the Quaker city but when the player's conversational approach was concluded, the veteran head of the club confided to the press he had not signed a 1944 contract. "All he did was talk baseball," sighed the 81 year old manager.

Newsom, weighing 206, confided he'd rather pitch for Mr. Mack than anyone else but there was a chance he might go into some business, the nature of which he did not disclose. Thirty-five years old and 4-F in the draft, Newsom figured prominently in the revolt of the Brooklyn Dodgers last summer, went to St. Louis Browns, thence to Washington Senators before he was traded for Roger Wolff of the A's. He almost pitched Detroit to the world series title in 1940. Since then he's been around.

Fight Is Postponed.

The California State Athletic Commission yesterday announced postponement of the N.B.A. lightweight championship fight between defender Sammy Angott and Juan Zurita of Mexico scheduled for Monday night until the following Wednesday because heavy rains had drenched the Hollywood baseball park, scene of the scrap.

Difficult To Return.

Army headquarters at Ottawa said last night Jimmy Orlando, former Detroit Red Wings hockey player now under four year sentence in the United States for alleged violation of draft regulations, would have to apply to his commanding officer for permission to return to the United States when his appeal from the sentence is heard at Cincinnati. Orlando enlisted in a Canadian unit at Montreal yesterday. At Detroit, Kenneth Wilkins, assistant U.S. attorney, said Orlando's enlistment in the Canadian army would make no immediate difference in the satus of his case.

As long as Orlando remains in Canada, however, he cannot be arrested because of his conviction in the United States, Wilkins added. His $2,000 bond would be declared forfeit only should the Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati sustain his convicton and should he then fail to appear to serve his term, the government attorney said.

Orlando was permitted to go to Montreal to attend his mother's funeral. He remained there with his father and bought a share in a business.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 3—(AP)—Southern Association baseball bosses have just given their official word that they intend to go into the pro football business after the war. The American Association made the same decision a few weeks ago. but Big League football men aren't so sure it will work . . . They point out that most small baseball parks aren't suitable for football because they offer too few seats on the 50-yard line . . . Curly Lambeau, for one, says minor league football is a swell idea but that salaries would be so low that the players would have to hold down other jobs . . . So why not investigate soccer as an offseason attraction? . . . It's a fast, entertaining game, salaries are low and there wouldn't be any competition from colleges such as Minnesota or Georgia Tech.

Reason Enough

Recently the pastor of the largest church in Jewell, Iowa, was married and his congregation decided to hold a big reception for him and his bride . . . The date was announced as Monday, Feb. 28. Then someone discovered that the Iowa State and Oklahoma basketball teams were playing the deciding game of the Big Six race that night so the reception was postponed until the next evening.

Another Shortage

Cutler high school in Illinois has no substitutes on its basketball squad because it has only five boys enrolled . . . The other night the boys were a bit rough in a game against Willisville and four went out on personal fouls. . . . As each Cutler boy fouled out, Coach Gentry Lowe of Willisville withdrew one of his boys, so when the final gun popped there were only two players on the court.

Remember When—

Just 12 years ago tonight Toronto's Larry Gains retained the British Empire heavyweight boxing championship at London with a 15-round victory over Don McCorkindale, South African titleholder. The Canadian battler relinquished the title to Len Harvey two years later.

Grant Takes Neill Cup For Second Year

BY HERB. MARTIN

With every member of his rink putting up a brand of curling that was not to be denied, Dave Grant, for the second successive year, piloted his rink to win the Neill Trophy last night. Tom McArthur's rink tried hard enough, but were not just clicking.

For the first four ends the game was a dandy and had all the earmarks of being a real hot argument but a big four for Grant on the 5th end just about settled the issue. They followed this advantage up by seizing one on the sixth and another on the seventh and that certainly did decide the game beyond a doubt. Tom had a chance to get back into the game on the ninth end, when if he could have passed out one of Grant's stones he would have counted four, but he played a little narrow and missed.

The game was witnessed by many spectators and No. 8 had the usual pros and cons about different shots etc. and No. 8 was invariably right.

Although the series was held up for a few days on account of ice conditions, yet everything seemed to have gone along very smoothly.

There was a lot of good curling and a little bad thrown in for good measure.

To-night we wind up the bonspiel with the playing of the Consolation finals.

In the ladies section the final of the Waddell Trophy was played with Mrs. Wood's rink coming out on top. It was a case of an experienced skip against a new comer

Hamilton Drops 4-3 Game To St. Catharines

By The Canadian Press

The Saints of St. Catharines started on the final road to the O.H.A. senior championship with a 4-3 victory over Hamilton Majors last night on St. Catharines ince but the visitors forced the issue into overtime, thus giving promise of a tight playoff series which will be decided on the basis of best-in-seven games.

Hamilton led 2-1 in the first period only to have Blink Bellinger get the equalizer with the sole counter of the second stanza. Majors went ahead in the third and Bellinger rang the bell once more to bring a 3-3 deadlock before the completion of regular time. In overtime play it was Red Reynolds who registered the payoff score after 4:05 minutes. It was his second tally of the encounter.

Only four players figured in the game's summary as goal-getters. In addition to Bellinger's important pair for the Saints, the other two scores for the winners were punched by Reynolds. Johnny Conick came through with a brace for Hamilton, the odd goal being chalked to the credit of Dillon Brady. All of these snipers had figured among the first five in the final standing of individual scoring points during the regular season. The second game of the playoffs is scheduled for Saturday night at Hamilton.

King's Plate Value Is Set At $13,000

TORONTO, March 2—The 1944 renewal of the King's Plate, to be run Saturday, May 27, will have a purse value of $13,000, it was estimated yesterday by O.J.C. officials in announcing closing dates for four important Woodbine races.

Monday, March 20, is the closing day for nominations for the King's Plate and the Plate Trial. The latter is a new $2,500 added sprint of six furlongs. This race will be run on opening day, May 20, and is exclusively for 3-year-olds eligible for this year's running of the Guineas race.

Palmer Wright also draws attention of horsemen to the fact three of Woodbine's top-line stakes for the autumn meeting close also on Monday, March 20. These races are the Breeders' Stakes, $4,000 added; Maple Leaf Stakes, $2,500 added for 3 and 4-year-old fillies, and the Coronation Stakes, $5,000 added, fashioned for Canadianfoaled 2-year-olds.

Chicago Thumps Bruins 4-2; Red Wings Win

By The Canadian Press

National Hockey League planners, looking ahead to the opening of the Stanley Cup series late this month, could be reasonably sure to-day of the four teams which will participate in the post-season playdowns.

It wasn't cut and dried mathematically, but it seemed a logical development that Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs (possibly in that order) would earn berths behind the leading Montreal Canadiens, leaving Boston Bruins out in the cold.

This impression was strengthened last night when the Hawks thumped Bruins 4-2 at Chicago, while Detroit toppled Rangers 6-5 on home ice. The results left Detroit four points ahead of Toronto and Chicago, now deadlocked for third place eight points ahead of Boston. The Bruins face the formidable task of overcoming that eight-point deficit in their seven remaining games.

Clint Smith Gets Two.

At Chicago, 11,912 spectators watched the Hawks gain a one-goal advantage three times, holding on to it the third time. All Chicago goals were provided by the sharpshooting line of Clint Smith, Bill Mosienko and Doug Bentley, Smith getting two. Pat Egan and Norm Calladine sniped the Boston scores as Bruins suffered their sixth straight defeat.

Red Wings had an unexpectedly tough time with Rangers, who haven't won in 14 starts through the last six weeks. After Carl Liscombe sank the first two Detroit goals to become his club's first 30-goal scorer in history, Rangers fought back to sandwich three goals around a counter by Adam Brown, Ab Demarco, Fern Gauthier and Johnny Mahaffy doing the scoring. Brown scored again for Detroit to open the third period, but Brian Hextall and Johnny Mahaffy gave Rangers a 5-4 lead with fewer than eight minutes remaining.

Forty seconds later, however, Bill Quackenbush beat Ken McAuley on a pass from Murray Armstrong and Brown, who came back to score his third goal—and the clincher — at 12.49. Rangers withdrew McCauley from the nets in an effort to tie the count, but Conny Dion, who handled only 14 shots compared with 31 chances for McCauley, could not be beaten.

Don Grosso and Bob Dill drew major penalties for a third-period fist fight in which the referees did not intervene under the new league code.

MIAMI (AP)—Winner of the New Orleans handicap Feb. 19, the eight-year-old marriage has been shipped here for Saturday's Widener handicap in an attempt to cop the only other $25,000 feature of the winter racing season. The gelding won $59,600 in 1942 and $86,875 last year.

'Peg Monarchs Are Eliminated

WINNIPEG, March 3—(CP)— A club new to interprovincial play-offs, will be Manitoba's defenders of the Dominion Junior Hockey Championship this year. Three teams are left in the fight to keep the Memorial Cup in the province.

St. James Canadians, champions of the Manitoba South Division loop, eliminated Winnipeg Monarchs in three straight games of a best-of-five series while Winnipeg Rangers, Memorial Cup holders last Spring, only won one game in 12 starts this season.

Canadians will meet either Winnipeg Esquires or St. Boniface Athletics in the provincial finals.

Esquires gained a two-one lead in the best-of-five north division finals by defeating Athletics 10-5 last night. Esquires won the opening encounter 5-4 and St. Boniface the second, 6-5 in overtime.

In Thunder Bay, Port Arthur West Ends and Port Arthur Flyers will meet in a best-of-three series, opening next Monday, with the winner entering interprovincial junior play-offs. The series also is the Lakehead League semi-final, the victor meeting H.M.C.S. Griffon for the league crown later. The sailors will not enter contests leading to the Memorial Cup.

In the senior division, Manitoba will have no challenger this season for the Allan Cup. Thunder Bay representatives will be either Port Arthur Shipbuilders, an all-select sextet coached by Hugh O'Leary or Fort Frances All-Stars.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, March 3 — (CP).— The Army's new sport policy is in favorable contrast to the former program featured by packing of a few all-star hockey teams with little regard for mass participation. In the new boxing program, for example, eliminations will begin in sections, platoons and companies so that every man will have benefits of competition. And progress of district winners will have the interest of every Army man.... District hockey play-offs already are under way in some commands. First Pacific command promotion under the new program will be the command hockey championships in Vancouver March 6-13 featuring teams from Vernon, Prince George, Nanaimo, and Victoria....It isn't likely that Army-Navy-R.C.A.F. inter-service play-offs will be permitted. Such play-offs would invite abuses and charges of "packing" such as led to the service sports ban a few months ago.

Indignation:

Vancouver horsemen are swooning with indignation because the S.P.C.A. petitioned the British Columbia Government to close Hastings Park half-mile race track at Vancouver on grounds it is dangerous and unfit for racing. And in the horsemen's view the S.P.C.A. president, Miss C. Van Steenwyck, added insult to injury when she charged purses at Hastings were so small the better grade racehorses were not attracted. ".....And the temptation to improve the racing ability of the horses must be very great."....Sam Randall, head man of Vancouver racing, countered by stating the saliva test is given every winner at Hastings. He stated the track "is as safe as human ingenuity can make it."

Incidentally;

Dick Brayley, Montreal lacrosse enthusiast now in the R.C.A.F. in Toronto, reports plans are being laid for an international professional Lacrosse League after the war. He expresses confidence Montreal will draw 10,000 for Sunday night lacrosse......Alfie Phillips, former British Empire diving champion, is the father of Leap-Year twins born in Toronto February 29....Phill Hergesheimer, former Chicago Black Hawks and Cleveland Barons hockey player, turned out with Ottawa Commandos last week-end.

Buffalo Bisons Beat Capitals

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons, three points behind Hershey Bears, now are definitely in the running for top position of the eastern division of the American Hockey League.

They trounced Indianapolis Capitals 7-2 last night and only need another game and a draw to catch up with Bears, who have 59 points. Bisons have 56 and have played one game less than the Hershey team.

Last night Bisons ran the score to 5-0 before Alex Aritson counted for Caps in the second period. Johnny Sorrell collected their second tally in the final frame when Fred Thurier was in the penalty box.

Bisons' Morey Rimstad - Walter Atanas-Eldy Kobussen line accounted for three of the goals, with each of the trio bagging one. Dede Klein, Max Bennett, Thurier and Larry Thibeault scored the other four goals.

Beau Jack Is Favored To Win

NEW YORK, March 3—(AP)— Third and final episode of the Beau Jack-Bob Montgomery serial for the New York version of the world's lightweight title is tonight's feature at Madison Square Garden.

And everyone's wondering if the all-star cast will do an about-face this time and follow the script.

They took turns playing hero in the two previous instalments, each winning when the betting boys thought he wouldn't. Last May, as now, Beau Jack held the crown and was a 5-12 favorite. Bob beat him and took the title.

Last November Bob was quoted at 5 to 12, so Beau won and got back the bauble. For tonight's heat Beau Jack is favored at 1 to 2.

They'll be shooting at three targets. One is the championship, the second is a March 31 shot at Sammy Angott, holder of the N.B.A. title, and third is a share of the more than $90,000 gate. The Angott match with the winner will clear up the lightweight title muddle which has existed since 1942, for both the N.B.A. and the New York Commissions have promised full recognition for the victor.

and by its potential resources, industrial, natural and commercial."

Maj. Power, who fought through the first great war and returned wounded, spoke from knowledge of both war and post-war conditions as they affect servicemen. Between the wars he served on various House committees studying pensions and returned soldiers' problems and presided for a time over the Pensions Department of Pensions and National Health.

Industrial Bank

While the emphasis on the Air Force discussion for the day turned to demobilization problems following Maj. Power's speech, the House heard from Douglas Abbott, parliamentary assistant to the Finance Minister, that the proposed Industrial Development Bank is one of a series of measures planned with a view to creating maximum employment after the war.

The proposed Bank would ensure "adequate financing . . . for desirable projects — particularly small ones—after the war and would be a $100,000,000 subsidiary of the Bank of Canada with a president and board comprising solely bank of Canada personnel, Mr. Abbott said.

"This bank is intended to supplement the activities of existing lending agencies rather than to displace them," he said.

Capital stock of the Bank will be $25,000,000, all to be subscribed by the Bank of Canada with $10,000,000 or more to be paid-up when the Act goes into effect.

Empowered to Borrow

The Bank also will be empowered to borrow up to three times the amount of its paid-up capital stock and reserve funds, by the issue of bonds and debentures—"thus providing the bank with total resources of $100,000,000."

President of the bank will be the Governor of the Bank of Canada. Its board will comprise 16 members —the Bank of Canada Board of Directors and the Assistant Deputy Governor.

A second reading debate on the bill was adjourned by Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC—York Sunbury), who expressed belief there would be sufficient money available for industrial development without it if taxation were eased.

From Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) came the suggestion that every member of parliament be taken by the Air Force on an operational flight against the enemy to teach them what the airman is up against.

Maj. Power said he is looking for an overseas air officer of high calibre to head up the job of pre-demobilization planning in the Air Force. Already he had appointed a number of "personnel counsel" whose job was to talk to airmen about their post-war plans and help guide them into the right kind of training.

There were different opinions on which men should be discharged first, Maj. Power said, and on that question he expressed no opinion.

He was convinced that rehabilitation was a civilian job and not one for a war department, although the services themselves could help prepare men for it and work out a plan of demobilization. He did not like the idea of keeping men in the forces until jobs were found for them because he feared boredom and a breakdown of discipline when the supreme objective which made them accept discipline and work was removed.

On priorities of demobilization, he said, two principles could be accepted by all: that no man should be demobilized as long as he was essential to the service; and that personnel desiring delayed demobilization could be retained as long as they could be usefully employed.

After the enemy is defeated, he feared mutiny such as happened after the first great war, feared development of state of mind which might distort men's whole future outlook unless some new objective were found for them.

Promises of so many dollars and such and such treatment might serve only to develop selfish instincts and create a rush to get out of the service and cash in on promised benefits.

"In other words," he said, "we cannot and should not promise every individual that everything he desires will be handed to him on a silver platter."

Frederic Dorion (Ind—Charlevoix-Saguenay), an airman with the R.F.C. in the First Great War, said Canada could not be wholly proud of her air contribution overseas since thousands of Canadians were not in Canadian squadrons. It was obvious Canada "had to fight" to get the Canadian squadrons now overseas, he said.

Suggests Agreement

Mr. Dorion asked if it must be believed that there is an "unknown agreement" under which the R.A.F. must keep its standing at the expense of Canadian airmen.

"Why always have Canadians in all the services perform the most difficult task, when others keep to their fireplaces?" he asked.

"Why must we furnish the men to do the real fighting when every day, from press dispatches throughout the world, we are told that it is the Britishers who do the job?"

Mr. Dorion said he wondered why British ground crews were not incorporated in Canadian squadrons instead of Canadian airmen being trained to form British squadrons.

"Does not the answer reside in the fact that we are always, and must always be the colonials, useful only to pay tribute to the Mother Country?" he asked.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, and Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity-North Battleford) suggested that members of the R.C.A.F. Women's Division should receive pay equal to that given men of comparable rank.

Rejoice In Jap Defeat

LONDON, March 3 (CP-Reuters) —Prime Minister Churchill last night rejoiced in the "salutory exposure" given Japanese "boastfulness" by the Allied 14th Army's recent defeat of a Japanese force in the Arakan jungles of Burma. He sent a message of congratulations to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied commander in southeast Asia.

Bancroft Flier Missing For Second Time

BANCROFT, Mar. 3 (ENS)—Pilot Officer Leonard E. Goodkey, 23-year old on of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodkey of Bancroft is reported missing for a second time, after air operations overseas.

He enlisted December 30, 1941, training in Canada as a navigator. The flier received his Wings at a presentation ceremony at Malton Airport and went overseas in 1942.

He was first reported missing on an operational flight over the European continent, September 7, 1943 when he and the remainder of his crew bailed out of their damaged aircraft over the North Sea. Five out of the seven members survived but under trying conditions. Their damaged rubber raft was only kept afloat after four hours hard repair work. The boys were on the water nineteen hours before being sighted by Allied aircraft and later picked up by patrol boat. Leonard was the only Canadian in the crew. He was admitted to the hospital for a period of three days and in another ten days he was released and back on operational flights.

This last report of Leonard's being missing comes as a shock to his family and also his brother, Pilot Officer John Goodkey, who just arrived in England last week and several hours too late to see his brother. They had enthusiasticaly planned a reunion together. He had nearly, if not already completed his thirty operational flights which would have entitled him to an extended leave.

Pilot Officer John Goodkey enlisted January 5th, 1942 receiving his commission just prior to going overseas. Another brother Gordon is also in the R.C.A.F. taking up a pilot's course at the R.C.A.F. station at Centralia, Ontario.

Of the original seven man crew of which Leonard was a member only an Australian Pilot remains, as far as is known.

Labor Policy

Urges Breeders to Organize

Mr. Oliver said representatives of packing plants "make or break the market." They stopped buying to force the prices down, and then bought at their own prices. Cattle breeders and hog shippers should organize so they could say to the packers "you can buy at a certain price or leave it alone."

Farmers had to sell their products in a world market of stiff competition, but bought their own wants in a highly protected market. A floor should be put under farm prices but it must be one that would provide a "decent standard of living for the farmers."

Mr. Oliver urged the government to distribute new industries in smaller centres after the war.

Predicting a bright future for co-operatives, which he described as the answer to "the breaking of the monopolistic control," he said he visualizes a day when co-operatives will enable farmers to make their own machinery and process their own products in their own plants.

At the afternoon session, Col. Drew said "it is most unfortunate" that the revised federal health insurance plan was presented without prior consultation of the provinces.

Amid applause from both sides of the House, the premier said "this government intends to insist on the constitutional rights of the province of Ontario" although his administration had no desire to place obstacles before the federal government. Such matters as the health insurance plan had caused him to request a Dominion-provincial conference, but he had been notified officially that it was not now possible to fix a date for such a conference. He told Mr. Jolliffe health insurance was only one of a number of matters in which the province had taken the initiative in approaching the Dominion.

State of Suspension

Premier Drew said presentation of the health plan to the social security committee left it merely "in a state of suspended animation" and therefore it was impossible to comment. No one could say whether the plan would come back as it was presented.

"This government has certain rights under the British North America Act. It is not merely a subsidiary government. There is one field of authority for us, one for the Dominion government and some overlapping. If there is to be effective co-operation, it must be co-operation."

The House sat in committee to report 10 bills for third reading during the afternoon and also heard A. Kelso Roberts (PC-Toronto St. Patrick) take part in the throne speech debate. The other address in the throne speech debate was made by H. A. Stewart (PC-Kingston), who termed his address a "record for brevity." Mr. Stewart said the government was going to give the people progressive action.

Mr. Williams then took the floor to attack treatment of organized Labor by past administrations back to 1933, mentioning specifically the dispatch of tanks to Stratford, Ont., during the strike there in September, 1933, and threats against the C.I.O. during the Oshawa, Ont., strike in 1937.

In criticizing the Labor Code, the Ontario member noted it had been denounced as unacceptable to workers by George Burt, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.)

(The Globe and Mail said today Labor Minister Daley and Attorney-General Blackwell will leave for Ottawa tonight to confer with Dominion authorities on certain sections of the Code which the Province feels should be changed.)

The formation of a separate non-political commission to deal with Canadian soldiers discharged as unfit for duty, possibly headed by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, was suggested by Mr. Roberts. He was critical of treatment received by Canadian service men returning wounded from the front.

Irish Regiment Takes First Prisoners

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, March 3 — (CP) — A central Canadian Battalion, the Irish regiment of Canada, holds the honor of taking the first German prisoner after Canadian troops replaced New Zealanders around Orsogna, 12 miles from the Adriatic coast.

The successful company, commanded by Maj. Bill Armstrong of Toronto and Oakville, Ont., received a bottle of whisky as a prize. The whisky was donated by a Brigadier from Montreal "just to create a bit of competition" in the Brigade he commands.

The German was captured when a strong patrol pulled of a surprise night attack on two houses held by Armstrong's forward company. The defenders opened up with everything they had and in the melee L. Cpl. R. S. Prescott of Oakvile, Ont., spotted a Jerry and after shouting "hands up" in English, he let go a hand grenade and followed up with shots from his rifle.

As the Germans withdrew Pte. G. L. T. Graham of Bowmanville, Ont., and Pte. S. O'Brien of Toronto, crawled forward to maintain contact and heard groans. They discovered the wounded Nazi and brought him in, but he died while being evacuated to a field hospital.

"That was a bit of tough luck," said Lieut. H. MacTavish of Toronto. "However, the German served the purpose and we obtained some of the information for which we were hunting."

Prescott was member of a platoon under Lieut. C. H. Fourt of Port Hope, Ont., who intercepted and brought down fire on the attackers. Others in the brief skirmish included Lieut. Charlie Spencer of Bowmanville.

Church Group Gives Aid To War Victims

When the war first commenced, many of the christian Churches of this city and district formed their own units of the Red Cross, symbol of mercy and helpfulness for all peoples in trouble, since which time they have done a tremendous amount of work for good in its name.

There is an affinity between the Church and the Red Cross which is quite definite, since the latter carries out in a practical way the teachings of the former, and this bond would undoubtedly create an impetus wherein one would serve the other.

From time to time a number of these various units of the Red Cross have added the direct way of carrying out their mission of mercy, by giving of the money they have raised to give assistance to the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, whose aims and objective are almost of an identical nature, and might therefore be said to have some claim upon their goodwill in this respect.

Among these, the Red Cross Unit of Knox United Church have taken their place on more than one occasion, and their contribution to-day of $15.00 through Miss Luella L. Oesch their secretary-treasurer, demonstrates just how much alive they are to the good they can accomplish at a time of need, when recent raids on London would tell of the necessity for prompt help to be sent overseas.

Hadassah Gives $10.

It may not be generally known that Hadassah is the Hebrew interpretation for the lovely Biblical personality of Esther, and as such would be very inspirational to the members of this particular group.

Both locally and nation-wide, this group has been doing a fine work on behalf of the war effort, which has included the maintaining of a hospital in England and another in Palestine, besides providing mobile canteens and ambulances where they could be of much service.

What might be termed one of their major efforts of the moment is known as Youth Aliyah, which is responsible for taking young people out of the occupied countries, and then caring for their wants and needs in every respect, which considering the state that these countries are now in, is a most laudable work indeed.

Then locally this group, both junior and senior branches have not been unmindful of other war efforts that go to the credit of the place they live in, and have from time to time given towards their efforts as well, among which this fund has had a place, for both have on occasion appeared as contributors in this column, of which a further one from the Sr. Hadassah per Mesdames A. Goldstone and R. Fine appears today.

One personal gift from "A friend at Crawford's Grove" is also listed, there having been a number in a similar amount of $10.00 appearing under the same heading previously to mark their donor as a true friend indeed.

St. Patrick's Day Dance

For the 4th successive year now, the management and staff of the C.D.S. Stores are sponsoring a dance St. Patrick's Day to give aid to the fund. This will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall on Murray street and an extra feature will be novelty dances and Irish numbers by Marion Perry Laird, while music will be supplied by Jack Marshall's orchestra.

In connection with this event, a draw for a cedar chest filled with many useful articles is also being conducted through the sale of tickets to give the receipts a further boost, all of which will come to the fund. These, as well as tickets for the dance may be procured from any member of the staff.

City's Surplus Of $31,697— What It Means

At a meeting of the finance committee of the council Thursday night, Mayor Hamilton referred to the words "saving" and surplus in a letter to the Examiner over the signatures of William Tinker and Fred T. Tuggey, expressing a sense of satisfaction that the carry-over from last year in the city's operating finances were so substantial.

The Examiner had learned that the "surplus" from 1943 was in the neighborhood of $31,000, and presumably the correspondents may have obtained their information from that news item. But, wherever they got it, the amount they quoted was $37,000, and the treasury statement is to the effect that the "unexpected surplus for 1943" was $31,697.

Mayor Hamilton suggested to the Examiner an explanation that the surplus should be taken into account with the corresponding surplus was around $6,000. That is, this amount was the difference between the carry-over from 1942 as subtracted from the carry-over from 1943.

To the Examiner this morning, City Treasurer Shaver spoke of the $31,697 as "unexpected appropriation". The corresponding "carry-over" from 1939 to 1940 was $21,500; from 1940 to 1941 the amount was $16,700; from 1941 to 1942 the sum was $18,900; from 1942 to 1943 it was $26,800; and the latest 'surplus' from 1943 to 1944, as above, $31,697.

It may be that Messrs. Tinker and Tuggey understood the "saving" or "surplus" as they regarded it to be also an "unexpected appropriation", and that any of the three terms would suit their purpose of comment. Mayor Hamilton said last night the actual surplus was around $6,000 which seems to be approximately the difference between the unexpected appropriations of the last two years.

In arriving at the tax rate the council prepares an estimate of the expenditures for this year and also a statement of estimated receipts. Obviously the receipts are subtracted from the expenditure and the remainder is the amount to be collected by taxation. It is the year's requirement for operation of all the city's current affairs, including Board of Education Public Library, Police Department and so on.

If there is an unexpected appropriation from last year, the inexperienced taxpayer may wonder what becomes of it. And as he would probably expect, it is included it in the estimated receipts for this year. It is already an unspent credit at the bank. If the council had closed the year with a deficit, there would be no amount to be brought forward, but the council would begin the new year with a debit, and that amount of shortage or deficit would have to be included in the estimated expenditures and in the total funds to be raised by taxation.

The contention of Messrs. Tinker and Tuggey was to the effect that if the estimates for 1943 had been more closely related to the actual expenditure, the tax rate for 1943 should have been less than thirty mills. They mentioned a rate of 28½ mills as their opinion and computing. In any case a mill on the taxes this year is equivalent to $25,500.

$2,000 Required To Reach $60,000 Mark

With one day left to go, Peterborough's Red Cross and Community Chest Fund drive needed less than $2,000 to reach its objective of $60,000 when Thursday's canvass ended.

The total recorded at headquarters as of last night was $58,174.94. The final figure which will be given at a windup supper of the workers and canvassers at the Genelco Cafeteria at 6.30 o'clock this evening, will be over the top, workers predict confidently.

All the divisions have exceeded their quotas except the retail section and workers in that division are redoubling their efforts in a last-minute drive to make sure that the objective is attained.

Figures of the results in the five divisions to the end of yesterday's canvass are as follows:

Retail division	$ 7,450.10
Ladies' division	3,532.15
Special names	20,681.00
Industrial	26,290.85
Penny collection	220.84
Total	$58,174.94

The campaign will come to an end tonight when the workers will assemble for supper at the Genelco Cafeteria, at 6.30 o'clock, and the final total will be announced. All the officials and canvassers are expected to be on hand.

Hubert Jurymen Return Home

The twelve men of Hubert jury parted company Thursday afternoon to return to their homes after two nights' stay in a local hotel at the expense of the county. And it should be pointed out that the city bears its share of the cost of the Peterborough administration of justice.

Andrew Buck and his associates were summoned for petit jury duty in this week's assizes, and reported to the sheriff Monday afternoon. The entire panel was dismissed that day awaiting the bill decision of the Grand Jury, but returned Tuesday morning. These twelve were chosen by the customary method of selecting names from a box.

They also passed the scrutiny of the Crown and defence lawyers, and from that stage, as Mr. Justice Hope informed them, they had to remain together as a body and virtually live together as men apart from the rest of the community. If they wished to read newspapers, the several attending and accompanying police constables had to go through the newspapers and cut out any reference to the Hubert trial.

They were not permitted to go to a theatre at night, but most of them put in the evening at the hotel playing euchre. Tuesday afternoon they had to send home for the personal things they required, shaving materials, pyjamas and so on. And so they were kept together Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and when they wished to stretch their legs in a walk they had all to go together under the escort of the two constables.

Reservists Must Attend Parades

A vigorous effort is being made by the training staff of the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF) to have all men of the battalion turn out regularly for parades, and according to word received from regimental headquarters today letters are being sent out to those reservists who are inclined to be habitual absentees.

"We are not going to tolerate any further absence without leave," said Major Vincent Eastwood, this morning.

He said that a reasonable written excuse was of course acceptable but all soldiers were obligated to notify their company commander or platoon officer if unable for any reason to attend the weekly parade.

"Militia regulations will be enforced, and all absences will be examined," Major Eastwood declared.

Regarding progress of training, he said that more advanced stages of training were now being undertaken and that an extra tactical scheme was being planned for this month. The recent Sunday outing of the ski patrol had stimulated interest in that division of the Rangers' training, and members of the patrol, numbering 60, were looking forward to the next occasion when they could get out.

Crop Improvers Congratulate Gordon Hancock

A field crop competition in Ajax oats was proposed to the Peterborough Exhibition Board Thursday afternoon by the local Crop Improvement Association as a desirable and helpful project in agriculture.

Twenty-one farmers of the district have bought registered Ajax for this season's planting, and it was believed that if the Exhibition Board could lend their sponsorship a competition would direct more interest and attention to the growing and care of the fields from this registered seed.

Alex Huston presided at the meeting in F. C. Paterson's office, and the members congratulated Gordon Hancock of Smith township on the distribution of having been elected present of Ontario Crop Improvement Association at the recent annual convention in Toronto.

The members who attended the convention, including Mr. Huston, Mr. Hancock, Clarence Johnston and W. W. Dawson, said they were greatly impressed by the information the addresses provided on soil conservation and rehabilitation. The statement by Dr. H. H. Bennett of the U.S. Department of Agriculture that the United States had lost 100,000,000 acres of soil beyond retrieving, and that the federal government was spending $300,000,000 to prevent further erosion and loss, and also to help restore some of the land, was remembered as a warning for this country and its individual farms.

The discussions throughout the convention plainly indicated that the farmers of Ontario are becoming more aware of the need of broad soil conservation planning. Elmer Milburn of Smith mentioned his own experience in creating a nine acre field of new pasture by using a special seed mixture and fertilizer. The result was that this field was furnishing enough feed for his cattle as compared with their previous roaming about two farms for sufficient grass.

John McKelvey, 51, Dies In Hamilton

HAMILTON, March 4—(CP). — John McKelvey, 51, one-time famous football star, died at his home here Friday after about two weeks' illness.

Mr. McKelvey, known to his friends and sports fans as 'Chicken' broke into the big four in 1911, when he played with the championship team of Hamilton Tigers. He played until 1922, when he retired and became a referee.

Three Youths Sentenced For Burglary

Reformatory sentences were imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley K.C. in police court this morning on three youths who had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the garage of Robert Nurse and Son at Fowler's Corners on the morning of February 19 and committing theft.

James Sweeney, Weston, the oldest of the three and the man who was shot in the leg by Kenneth Nurse when the latter surprised the youths outside the garage after being awakened by a burglar alarm was sentenced to nine months definite and nine months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory. Sweeney is 20 years old.

Gerald J. Sullivan 16, alias Hilliam Rudd, Toronto and Herman Shepherd, 18, Brampton, were given sentences of six months indeterminate in the Reformatory.

Magistrate Langley said in imposing sentence that while Shepherd was two years older than the 16-year-old Sullivan, the previous records of the two youths offset the difference in ages and put the two on an even basis.

St. David's Society Told Worth Of Song

The gift of song which they possess in such superlative abundance has been a tremendous spiritual aid to the Welsh people in living through the many problems that confront them, it was said by the Rev. E. C. Moore, rector of St. George's Anglican Church, addressing the St. David's Welsh Society banquet this week.

"The singing of Welsh has kept up the faith of the Welsh people in God and man," he said. "It has enabled them to endure their many problems, economic and other. It will help the whole English speaking people towards the fulfillment of a better day."

Exhorting the Welsh that they would be rescued from their tribulations and in the meantime should keep on singing, Rev. Mr. Moore told the story of a little boy who was buried in falling debris, and whose searchers were able to locate him only after they had heard the sound of his voice, singing.

In his talk to members of the St. David's Society, the speaker alluded also to three points of paramount importance to the people of Wales, ambitions which they were strongly desirous of achieving. The first of these was that Wales should have a Secretary to direct its local affairs; the second, that Princess Elizabeth should become Princess of Wales; and the third, that plans should be made to preserve the wartime prosperity of Wales and avoid the return of unemployment.

Modify Foreign Policy

BUENOS AIRES, March 3—(AP)—Gen. Edelmiro Farrell, acting president of Argentina, declared yesterday that Argentine foreign policy would not be modified and that close co-operation with the other American republics was an aim of his temporary regime.

Clad in civilian clothing, Farrell said, "I am occupying the presidency only temporarily, fulfilling a mission which I accepted six months ago when I was made Vice-President."

31 Mill Rate Is Proposed By City Council

City council will adopt a 31-mill tax rate Monday night if it confirms the unanimous recommendation of the finance committee Thursday night approving an increase of one mill over the 1943 rate.

In its revision of the estimates some of the members, at one stage of their scrutiny of a sheaf of appropriations, expressed a purpose of trimming the rate to 30 mills.

Alderman Glover: "This is not the year to put it up."

Alderman Ovens: "It certainly is not."

Alderman Cotton, chairman: "It looks to me like 31 mills".

In the spirit of trying to avoid an increase in the tax levy for this fifth year of the war, the committee turned to their budget volume once more in the hope of compressing estimated expenditures for the year within the limit of the monies to be raised by a 30-mill rate.

Alderman Curtis contributed $1,500 to the cause by undertaking to slice that sum off the allowance for parks and rinks.

Alderman Swanston struck off $200 from the property account saying, "We'll just have to do without some repairs around the city offices."

Alderman Glover proposed that $1,000 be "knocked off" his welfare requisition.

Clip Hospital Account

Alderman Sands noticed the item for ice for the public drinking fountains next summer, and suggested that, having laid in a stock of ice, the council might as well begin at home and do the cooling job with their own ice and equipment, at a saving of $100. He also pointed out that the Nicholls Hospital Board had included in their requisition $2,600 for bad debts which, he said, should not be included in a statement of operating loss for last year. For that reason, he moved, seconded by Alderman Curtis, that the payment to the Board for last year be reduced from $28,540 to $25,940, and the committee supported the change, with Mayor Hamilton deprecating that cut in the words, "You are only putting off the day."

Alderman Swanston gave the clipping and shrinking attempt another substantial help by proposed to take $3,500 from his estimates for the collection and disposal of garbage, leaving the total at $31,000 as compared with the estimate last year of $31,530 and actual expenditure of $33,478.89.

Several of the members commented that with the city taking over the garbage collecting work itself, the Swanston committee could not closely guage its expenditure for the first fiscal year, but Mayor Hamilton pointed out that the present Cavanagh contract does not end until the 31st of this month.

On A $800 Surplus

Several other items of reduction were added to the column of prunings, and City Treasurer Shaver said the surplus on the basis of the altered figures would be $800. And that margin was too narrow to satisfy some of the members of the committee. Mayor Hamilton said he had come to the meeting with the intention of supporting a 31-mill rate.

Alderman Sullivan expressed the opinion that a 30-mill rate this year would necessitate a transfer to 1945 of expenditures which would sharply increase the rate. "I'd rather move up gradually than put on three mills in one year."

"We're not going up $75,000 in one year," Alderman Glover commented.

(One mill this year is equivalent to $25,500.)

Alderman Cotton directed attention to the $6,000 item in the miscellaneous account against the $21,596 amount last year. Alderman Ovens raised the question as to the feasibility of calling in debentures such as those held by the City Trust Commission and re-issuing at a lower rate, to provide a saving. He also objected to "the county not agreeing to pay their just share of the cost of the Children's Aid Society. I don't think it is fair to let them get away with it, and the city have to bear the burden. The Society cannot keep children at 75 cents a day."

"We could ask the Government to increase their rate," Mayor Hamilton suggested, and it was understood that a resolution with that request be prepared for Monday night.

Alderman Dutton said he did not like any proposal of interfering with the debentures because such a move might tend to jeopardise "the splendid financial position of the city."

Finally, as the discussion veered toward a half mill increase and then a full mill, Alderman Dutton moved, seconded by Mayor Hamilton, that the 1944 tax rate be 31 mills.

Lepke Is Given Reprieve For Two Days

OSSINING, N.Y., March 3—(AP) —Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, assured of at least two more days of life by a last-minute reprieve by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York state, today looked hopefully to the highest court in the United States to save him from the electric chair.

The one-time ruler of a vast cartel of crime, who was to have been executed last night with two aides for a 1936 slaying, was told in the Sing Sing prison death house 70 minutes before execution time that the governor had granted the trio a stay—until 11 p.m. E.D.T. tomorrow—pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

Warden William E. Snyder said Lepke, whose assorted and interrelated enterprises handled anything from extortion to murder-for-a-fee, was highly pleased at the news, although it was reported he had been coolly confident all along. A similar stay also was obtained for Louis (Boss) Capone and Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss.

Snyder said unless he received further word from the governor, he would put the three to death at 11 p.m. tomorrow.

Conferred With Lepke

Announcement of the stay followed by a few hours a surprise visit to the prison by Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan who said he had conferred with Lepke — at Lepke's request—for 90 minutes. But he would say nothing further.

Lepke's attorney, J. Bertram Wegman, is seeking a review in the high court of a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision in New York yesterday which upheld a federal court denial of a writ of habeas corpus application.

For Lepke, Capone and Weiss, it was the sixth stay. They received several reprieves during the long dispute between state and federal authorities over custody of Lepke, who finally was moved to Sing Sing from federal prison where he was serving a 14-year term on a narcotics conviction.

The three were convicted in 1941 for the slaying of Joseph Rosen in Brooklyn.

The fast-moving developments, however, did not affect the fate of Joseph Palmer and Vincent Sallami, who were executed on schedule for killing a detective.

Lepke's wife paid what she thought would be her last visit with her husband, and left the prison a few minutes before the stay was announced, apparently unaware of it.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ASK HELP TO GET IT

UNDERSTANDING the mental processes of bridge players is the key to many a pretty play. It enables you sometimes to make a situation seem quite different from what it really is. Cruelly misleading your opponents by means of the plays you select is legitimate competition. If by doing it you manage to get their help in making an otherwise hopeless contract, more power to you.

That dummy certainly looked hopeless at first to South after he saw the lead of the spade 10. It was clear he had no chance for game unless he could run the dummy's diamonds. But taking his A, K and Q would do him no good, as he could never get into the dummy to score the rest if the defenders learned the suit was cleared. And then he had a big idea. He could make one of them think the other had the diamonds blocked.

So he played low on the spade 10, East properly put in the J, and the K won. Then the diamond A and K were scored—but not the Q. Following the two diamonds, he led his spade 3. West took it and then, sure that East had the diamonds stopped with the Q, he decided to clear his own spades. He led back the spade 2, the Q winning, and was amazed to see South discard on it the diamond Q.

That cleared the suit for South. He was able to run four more diamonds and cash the heart A for the vital tenth trick.

West had fallen like a ton of bricks for South's ruse. But credit to South should be passed out rather than blame to West.

Fear President Has Grown Too Autocratic

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 3 (CP)—President Roosevelt today enjoys wide power in the United States and has since the United States entered the war, as have Prime Minister Churchill and Prime Minister Mackenzie King since the early days of the war.

Few informed persons would dispute the necessity of the Allied Powers being directed by those who have authority to act almost as quickly and decisively as the Dictators who precipitated and conduct the war for the Axis.

But Mr. Roosevelt had been in office nearly nine years before the Japanese attack at Pearl harbor forced the United States into the shooting war and had already set up some powerful bureaux which the New Deal considered necessary to fight depression.

Now the sincere anti-Roosevelt groups fear that his long enjoyment of wide power has become a habit and that, if he is given a fourth term in this year's elections, he will assume the complete mantle of autocracy.

There is still Congress which wields considerable power even in wartime, as it demonstrated last week in over-riding the President's veto of a taxing bill. Mr. Roosevelt maintained the bill would have provided insufficient money to meet mounting war costs.

There is still the Supreme Court of the United States which can and does over-ride the decisions of both the legislative and executive branches of government.

A fear that is gnawing at the vitals of those who are apprehensive of a Roosevelt Dictatorship is that his long career in the White House has enabled him to fill so many judicial vacancies that today 70 per cent of the Federal Judges owe their appointments to him.

Unhappy Newspaper: The Patterson-McCormick Washington Outlet, the Times Herald, counts the day lost that does not see an anti-British crack in its columns. Recently it mourned editorially that the price of Allied victory will be preservation of the British Empire and urged that immediately victory is assured Canada must join with the United States and other Western Hemisphere countries for defence, so that the tail will not wag the dog—the tail being the Empire and the dog we western hemispherians.

Jap Planes Strafe Canadian Nuns Fleeing To Safety Of India

BOMBAY, March 3—(CP)—Two Canadian nuns whose Roman Catholic mission in the interior of China was bombed five times daily for three weeks and who left it only after friendly Chinese had warned them that the Japs were entering the gates of the town on one side, now are serving at a rest home near here, haven for 3,500 servicemen of all creeds and races, many of them fliers of the R.C.A.F.

The nuns, both members of the Grey Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, Pembroke, Ont., are Sister St. Kenneth, born Katherine Radey of Toronto and St. Catharines, Ont., and Sister Mary Vianney, born Iona Bertrand, of Port Coulonge, Que.

They went to China from Canada in 1936, and before the United States entered the war the town in which their mission was situated was bombed heavily by the Japanese. Often, with other members of the mission, they sought safety in the mountains.

Mission Destroyed.

The mission, said Flt. Lt. Bill Dumsday to-day, was partially destroyed. The Sisters left with no money and wearing their only clothes. Much of the trip they made by foot along treacherous mountain passes, and the party was often strafed and bombed from the air.

Sister Mary Vianney, suffering from acute appendicitis, was at one time given only 10 days to live. When she arrived in India by air her weight had dropped from 130 to 70 pounds.

Sister St. Kenneth, who became ill during the hazardous trek, staggered along a roadway with a temperature of 104 for two hours one day. The thermometer registered 130 degrees in the shade. The sisters put wet rags over their heads, but these were baked bone dry within a minute.

Water was not always available, and for four consecutive days the party had none either for drinking or washing. Night after night they slept at the side of the road, often resting on piles of stones.

Hill In Graveyard

Once they slept in a graveyard, and when the Japs attacked from the air they sought many places of refuge, the oddest being an open grave. While bombers roared overhead the sisters crouched beside human skeletons, the remains of previous victims of aerial warfare.

Sister St. Kenneth is a Nursing Sister and Sister Mary Vianney a Missionary Sister. They both serve now at a rest home operated by a young English couple, Mr. and Mrs S. A. Seddon of Northampton, England. The home, nestled among cool palms on a stretch of foreshore washed by the blue waters of the Indian Ocean, has been visited by many Canadians on leave. At Christmas time 126 men were quartered at the home. Those who heard the story of hardship and bravery included F.O. Grant Nelson, (39 Elgin St.) St. Thomas, Ont., a Flying Boat pilot.

Society Hears Report Of Annual Meeting

OMEMEE, March 3—(ENS).—The Omemee and District Horticultural Society met in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening to hear reports of the annual convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association, which was held in Toronto last week.

The president, John Bent, opened the meeting, and in the absence of the secretary, Horace Hill, Mrs. W. D. Weir was appointed secretary. A lengthy discussion took place regarding the choice of premiums for this year, and finally it was agreed to give gladioli bulbs and fall bulbs to all who pay their membership fee in 1944. Plans drawn up at a directors' meeting held in February were heard and discussed, mainly being plans for the monthly programs during 1944. Mrs. S. H. Moyer, director in charge of the summer flower show, then had a discussion about the prize list and some revisions were made.

The delegates to the Toronto convention then gave full reports on the sessions. Mrs. W. Weir told about the Thursday sessions, including talks on victory gardens and an address by Rev. O. D. Cadotte of Silver Water on "Problems of Village and Township Societies"; also the banquet held in the Crystal ball-room, with the noted South African speaker, David deWitt Meyer, who spoke on "South Africa In and After the War."

Mrs. H. Deyell reported the sessions held on Friday. One of the highlights of this was a report on the "Ganaraska Survey," which is a set of pictures of the Ganaraska River and district, including the town of Port Hope. Mrs. Deyell's report included the election of officers, with the new president being Mr. C. Janzen Kitchener. Both delegates expressed thanks to the Omemee society for making it possible for them to enjoy the convention.

Council Sets Tax Rate At 42.5 Mills

LINDSAY, March 3 (ENS)—Lindsay's tax rate has been set at 42.5 mills, an increase of two mills over last year's rate. The increase is stated by the Council to be due to higher salaries for civic employees and to take care of an additional $5,000 asked by the Board of Education.

Town Clerk W. Allely in advising the council, stated that in 1943 the tax rate had been lowered one mill due to a grant from the Water Board which could not be taken into consideration for 1944. Mayor Charles Lamb stressed the need for economy in all departments if the council was to emerge at the end of the year without a deficit.

Practically every municipal department, however, has asked for an increase. Chairman S. R. Pitts of the Industries and Tourists Committee requested an allowance of $1,000, stating that he believes the time was appropriate to advertise Lindsay as a prospective centre for industries that might be coming to Canada following the war. The council allowed him $500 for this purpose. Extra allowances were granted the Board of Works, Town Property Committee and the Public Library Board. Salary increases were meted out to town hall and fire hall officials and clerks, as well as to Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Gleeson and Sanitary Inspector, T. H. Davis.

Grants allowed were: Ross Memorial Hospital, $1,800; Town Band, $1,200; Salvation Army, $75; Horticultural Society, $40; Sick Children's Hospital, $25. A former annual grant to the Lindsay Central Exhibition of $250 was cut off by the council as no petition had been made for it.

Doors, Windows Taken By Nazis

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW, March 3—(AP)—The map shows it's only about 12 miles from Cherkasy to Smela, in the Dnieper Bend, but to Malvina Efimovna it is one of the longest stretches in the world.

Malvina Efimovna works for the Soviet movie industry. She is a native of Cherkasy, the daughter of a doctor. He is dead, but her mother is alive and taking care of an adopted child. Malvina Efimovna received a letter last week giving her the first news in two years that her mother and child are alive.

I read the letter. Although it took about a month to make its way from recently liberated lands, it was as fresh as today's radiogram as far as the daughter was concerned. The letter told how when the Germans left Cherkasy, they hurriedly huddled together every civilian they could find.

"But I'm 68," the mother said she told the German commander.

"You're alive," he replied, "and if you are alive, you are going to walk."

With her nine-year-old adopted daughter, the old woman, with hundreds of others, marched out on to the Cherkasy-Smela road.

"I asked the guard where they were taking us," the mother wrote. "He told me we were going to Germany where we would be put to work, 'and don't be surprised if you walk all the way, but it will be good for you, grandma. It will give you a good appetite.'"

The mother wrote that when the Germans arrived at Smela, she was just about dead from fatigue and hunger, but begged some potato peelings in a German market and kept herself and the nine-year-old child alive.

As the Red Army got closer the Nazis abandoned the old woman and child. When Smela was captured, they were taken back to Cherkasy in a truck.

"But daughter," wrote the old woman, "there is nothing left of your old home. They've even taken our doors and windows, those Germans."

The letter carried this pathetic footnote from the old woman:

"I just want to sleep—nothing but sleep. I'm so tired."

Soviet Army Draws Near Gateway City

Germans Put Torch To Town Of Narva As Russian Approach

LONDON, March 4 (CP)—Russian troops have smashed their way into the outskirts of the Baltic gateway city of Pskov from the east, Moscow announced today, and unofficial Soviet reports said the Germans have put the torch to the ancient Estonian fortress town of Narva as the Soviets lunge nearer.

Red Army units now hold positions in the environs of Pskov from two directions. Even before yesterday's advance they had plunged to within six miles of the city from the north.

Seventeen miles southeast of Pskov Soviet spearheads fought their way to within six miles of the Pskov-Warsaw railway, one of two last escape rail routes open to the Pskov garrison, the Moscow bulletin said, and were closing in on the rail town of Ostrov.

On the Narova river bridgehead south of Narva, Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's troops pressed westward against stubborn Nazi resistance and succeeded in enlarging their foothold on the west bank, killing more than 2,300 Germans within the past 48 hours, Moscow reported. Govorov's troops previously reached Auvere, nine miles west of Narva, cutting the railway leading to Reval, practically isolating the Narva garrison.

Gains Admitted

Berlin admitted Russian gains in the Narva area, described the fighting as "exceptionally embittered" and said "the enemy continues to attack without interruption."

Indicative of the fight the Germans were prepared to put up to hold Pskov, key to what is left of their communications and supply system in Northern Russia, Moscow

American Force Makes Headway

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, IN SOUTH-WEST PACIFIC, March 4—(AP). — Reinforced American invaders of Los Negros in the Admiralty Islands have inched forward 1¾ miles against Jauanese bitterly resisting from ridge positions, an Allied communique said to-day.

The several thousands of Japanese also are being reinforced from Manus Island on the west in the battle for a dominant position in the Bismarck Sea, but are undergoing a terrific pounding from the medium bombers and attack planes. The only appearance of their planes since the invasion opened on Tuesday resulted in a costly defeat.

Around the airbase perimeter at Empress Augusta Bay on Bougainville Island, 110 tons of explosives were dropped by Allied planes and farther to the south on the same island dumped 84 tons on the enemy's Kahili airdrome.

From Pearl Harbor came an announcement that six Japanese is- Homeland Islands.

9,800 Places Closed

New York, March 4 (AP)

A TOTAL of 9,800 places of "high-class entertainment" in Tokyo—ranging from theatres and large restaurants to tea rooms and geisha houses—will be closed tomorrow under a measure designed to "fit the mode of public living to wartime requirements," said the Domei news agency today in a broadcast beamed to North America and recorded by the United States foreign broadcast intelligence service.

Red Cross Drive Over Ton With $68,256

Once again the citizens of Peterborough have rallied magnificently behind the Red Cross and Community Fund, putting it over the top by $8,256.22, making a grand total of $68,256.22. There is still more to be turned in which will bring the final figure to $70,000 or more, it was announced at the concluding dinner Friday night.

Although all the canvassers did excellent work, the Women's Division has presented an outstanding record. The official tally worked out at 6 o'clock before the dinner credited these teams with $4,860.45. But in her report Mrs. J. Marshall stated that they had $5,054.56.

In reporting for the Retail Division, Jack Sinclair declared that they had exceeded their quota of $12,000 with $13,233.75. Again they surpassed the official figures which stood at $12,320.25. Five of the teams in this group went over the top. E. Pridham's team achieved its objective first, followed by those of William Hamilton, W. E. Franks, D. Fitzgerald and George Gimblett.

Not to be left behind, the Industrial Division turned in a fine job with [illegible] as against their $25,000 objective. Ian McRae, reporting, said that Peterborough's industrial workers had always united when there was a job to be done and this campaign was no exception. The Special Names with an objective of $20,000 subscribed $22,006, Gordon Matthews said.

Fell Short

Although the schools of the city worked hard for their $500 goal, they fell just short, Clare Collins explained. They turned in $430.22 after a week of concentrated effort. Eight public schools and the Collegiate had lower amounts that they presented a year ago. The Prince of Wales School showed an increase over 1943, as did all the Separate schools. Queen Elizabeth received special mention for having an increase of 400 per cent. In 1943 they gave $2.46 and this time $8.57.

His Worship Mayor Hamilton congratulated the 300 canvassers for their untiring efforts saying that they had shown a sense of responsibility to the city, country and those who are fighting Canada's battle against ruthless enemies. Continuing, he recalled that this was the fourth campaign which the people of Peterborough had brought to a successful conclusion.

Praise was also given by Rt. Rev. Bishop J. MacDonald, who complimented the gathering on fulfilling their duty in such an admirable way. He pointed out that these patriotic and community works need the united support of all citizens and that it was a small price to pay for the treasure of democracy.

Five Divisions Used By Nazi OnBeachhead

Three Small Attacks Are Smashed By Allied Forces

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, March 4 —(AP)—Three small German attacks against the beachhead south of Rome were smashed yesterday and Thursday as the Nazis continued to stab weakly at the Allied lines after the failure of their latest all-out offensive, headquarters announced today.

A dusk assault against American troops along the Cisterna-Montello road Thursday was beaten back by artillery fire and three tanks were destroyed. Two strong enemy patrols probing British positions around Carroceto were dispersed and infiltration attempts in the Moletta River area also failed.

Weather Is Bad

Unfavorable weather curtailed ground operations on all the fronts, a communique said, with action in the Cassino area limited to "normal patrolling and exchanging of fire." The British 8th Army repulsed a small Nazi thrust in the mountains.

Allied officers estimate that at least five Nazi divisions were used in the recent costly offensive against the beachhead. Three German divisions had previously been identified in the assault, but the Allied command later learned the crack Hermann Goering Panzer Division and the 715th Infantry also were employed. The latter outfit suffered heavy casualties in both of the last two offensives.

Since British and American forces landed south of Rome Jan. 22 they have taken more than 3,500 prisoners

Lonergan's Trial Date Not Set

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP) —Any possibility that Wayne Lonergan's second murder trial would get under way quickly appeared today to be buried beneath legal stumbling blocks.

With the alleged wife-slayer back in a jail cell, expressing disappointment over the delay, District Attorney Frank Hogan said he had not decided to press for a new trial immediately.

"Even if we started tomorrow," he added, "it would take at least two weeks for the preliminary manoeuvres."

A new jury panel must be drawn because Judge John J. Freschi dismissed the original talesmen when he abruptly ended the first trial yesterday with a statement that Lonergan's attorney, Edward V. Broderick, had sought to make "a farce and mockery" of proceedings.

The jurist said Broderick's "statements, his demeanor and his entire attitude" at the trial—one of the stormiest in the history of New York courts—raised danger that the jurors might not be able to evaluate the facts properly.

British Troops Capture Jap Positions In Burma

NEW DELHI, March 4.—(AP). — British troops captured Japanese positions north and northeast of Buthedaung in their drive on Akyar, 80 miles to the south, in Burma yesterday and held them against strong counter-attacks, today's Allied southeast Asia communique announced.

Strategic and tactical air forces combined in an attack on Fort White in Northern Burma yesterday while tactical fighters and dive-bombers struck enemy positions in the Kaladan, Arakan and Mayu areas.

Many Fires Started

Large formations of United States fighter-bombers started fires and caused heavy explosions among troop concentrations, and stores in the Swanghka area, the communique said.

West African troops moving down the Kaladin Valley east of the Mayu range in a southward drive which has out-flanked Buthedaung, were attacking the town of Apaukwa and crushed most of the Japanese positions there.

Apaukwa, a Kaladin River port, lies 31 miles southeast of Buthedaung across the Mawdok mountain range. It is eight miles south of Kautaw, which the west Africans captured a week ago.

Two groups of Japanese forces trapped east of Ngakyedauk Pass in the Mayu range attempted to break through the Allied lines yesterday and fall back southward. One of the groups was driven back in hard fighting and the other is being followed up and harassed, with half of its original numbers killed.

The Tokyo radio, still claiming a victory in the Buthedaung area fighting, said Japanese troops destroyed the main force of the 7th Indian Division. It said that 7,000 men including 3,000 British troops had been killed and that 600 prisoners were taken.

Allied communiques have reported that this division, previously trapped by the Japanese, has been relieved.

German People Are Not Hungry

BY MEL MOST
(Associated Press Correspondent who has just been Released from German Internment)

LIBSON, March 4 — (AP) — Unlike the rest of Europe, Germany is not hungry, although the people live on a monotonous, unappetizing diet with many deficiencies.

Everything in Nazi-land is sacrificed to keep up Army morale. That is Hitler's main "Secret Weapon". German civilians come second, and even there the main effort is simply to keep their rations from going down to where they would be troublesome. This is done even at the expense of driving the citizens of unoccupied territories to revolt and guerilla warfare.

Even at that the German civilian ration would be maddening to those not used to it. At Baden-Baden about the only thing that

4 Years In Transit

Cobalt, Ont., March 4 (CP)

IT took more than four years for a pair of socks knitted by Mrs. A. W. Moore of Cobalt and New Liskeard to reach their destination. Knitted when the Cobalt Red Cross branch was organised for war work at the start of the conflict, Mrs. Moore received word from Cpl. Thomas Brady, Glasgow-born member of the British Army who has been a prisoner in Germany for three years, that the socks, bearing Mrs. Moore's name and address, finally had arrived.

New Roosevelt Record In White House

WASHINGTON, Mach 4 —(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt attained another anniversary in the presidency today feeling fit at 62 after, 11 action-crowded years encompassing the domestic and international upheavals. He begins his 12th year in the White House facing momentous problems on the solution of which may depend his political future.

At home he is confronted by a Congress which rode rough-shod over his tax bill veto and has been talking back on other issues.

Abroad, he has many irons in the fire, both militarily and diplomatic, stemming from the greatest war in history.

His personal physician, Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Navy Surgeon-General, described him as in good shape physically, considering his long tenure in office and his recent attack of influenza.

Last night he and Mrs. Roosevelt were hosts at a cabinet dinner an annual affair, to commemorate his first inauguration, March 4, 1933. His record-breaking third term has less than a year to run, ending January 20.

Eire Is Suffering From War Nerves

BY ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 4—(CP Cable)—There are indications that Eire is suffering from war nerves despite her attempts to lean over backwards to preserve her neutrality.

It is reported in London that a few wild shots fired 10 days ago by a drink-befuddled Allied soldier who crossed the border from Ulster into Eire brought an attack of the invasion jitters.

No news of this matter has come from Eire officially yet, but the Daily Express reported the alarm is only now easing off, according to travellers who related that the Eire Army was ordered to a five-day "stand-to" alert after the incident. Troops manned forts, mined bridges, and were stationed at machine-gun posts. Local volunteers were called out.

Eire, according to the reports of travellers, became a great rumor-factory, particularly in Dublin where stories grew to such a extent that a week ago there were re-

Heavy U.S. Bombers Strike German Capital For First Time In Daylight

Long-Range Fighters Protect Armada Along Heavily Defended Course Through Skies As Cold As 45 Below Zero

By W. W. HERCHER—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 4—(CP).—American heavy bombers bombed Berlin for the first time today, the Berlin radio said, as U.S. headquarters announced without naming the target that its bombers had struck at objectives in the Reich. Berlin has been smashed repeatedly and heavily at night by the R.A.F. bomber command, including the R.C.A.F. bomber group.

The German broadcast said the raid on the German capital was a repetition of an attack which failed yesterday. U.S. headquarters announced yesterday, however, only that American fighter planes had made an offensive sweep over Berlin and made no reference to bombers.

"Only a small part of the American formation—which was strongly escorted by fighters—reached Berlin, the broadcast said.

"They encountered very strong defence and had to jettison their bombs or were compelled to release them without taking aim as they were hard pressed by German fighters. Several U.S.A. planes brought down, crashed in the immediate vicinity of the capital."

Goal for Months

Berlin has been a goal for American fliers ever since they began operations in the European theatre but if the German reports were true this was the first time they had an opportunity to take part in the destruction of the capital begun—and almost finished—by the R.A.F.

The daylight operation against the German capital had awaited development of long-range fighters necessary to protect the bombers along the heavily-defended course to the target, at least 575 miles from British bases.

The bombers plowed through bitterly cold skies at temperatures as low as 45 degrees below zero in their daylight blow at the Reich.

"It was plenty cold," reported one pilot. "The supercharger and the ballturet tailgun froze up."

The American announcement said that the bombers thundering into Germany for the third straight day were powerfully escorted by fighters.

8th Air Force Out

They crossed the channel in a tremendous procession and headed toward Germany in clear, cold weather.

"The whole 8th Air Force was up there today," declared Sgt. William Deblasio, of Pittsburgh, one of the first crewmen to return.

Berlin's account said the planes were heavily escorted by fighters and were met by stiff defences, with many of them forced to jettison their loads. It claimed several of them were shot down in the vicinity of Berlin.

The Americans approached Reich territory under a cover of clouds but were engaged in fierce air combats going in and leaving the targets, Berlin said.

Before the morning was far advanced waves of Marauders were ob-

Great Supporter Of Battle Drill Killed In Italy

LONDON, March 4 —(CP)—The Officer who introduced battle drill into the British Army, Maj. Lionel Wigram of the Royal Fusiliers, has been killed in Italy while leading a detachment of Italian irregulars on the 8th Army front.

Battle drill became rapidly accepted as an essential part of British and Canadian Infantry Training following the pioneer work done by Wigram and few war-time soldiers have exerted broader influence on tactical teaching than this 37-year-old Englishman.

In 1941 he was with a British Division in the southeast command and started the first battle school. It was a success from the start

Ontario Plans Own Health Bill

TORONTO, March 4—(CP).—Plans were under way today for introduction by the Drew government in the Ontario Legislature next week of an independent Provincial health service plan to be carried out on a contributory basis. Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian, Minister of Health, issued a statement yesterday announcing the measure, which if it passes the Legislature, will be the first Provincial health plan in Canada. The statement said the measure to be introduced in the House "probably next Tuesday" will be known as the "Ontario Municipal Health Services Act." It will "provide for an improved type of medical care, available to all on a basis satisfactory to the medical and allied professions, at a cost within the means of everyone and by a method of payment that will ease the financial burden in the cost of sickness."

Dr. Vivian declined to discuss details until the measure reaches the floor of the House. However the statement said the plan will be carried out with the aid of the Ontario Medical Association, the Ontario Hospitals' Association and other groups representing organised personnel rendering services in the treatment of illness.

In an interview following his statement Dr. Vivian said the provincial scheme would be independent of Dominion health legislation. Premier Drew commented that the Ontario plan would not bar the way to Ontario's participation in any Federal health scheme which was "acceptable" to the province, in which case the provincial scheme could become part of the Dominion-wide health plan.

Plan Memorial For Airmen Killed In Battle Of Britain

By DOUG HOW—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 4—(CP).—The airmen who gave their lives in the Battle of Britain will have their names enshrined in the chapel of Henry VII in Westminster Abbey, the place of devotion set aside by the dour Tudor king more than four centuries ago.

They, and their fellows who have survived, are those of whom Prime Minister Churchill spoke August 20, 1940: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

The commemoration will await the triumph of what they fought for, but after the war their 375 or more names will stand in illuminated letters on a roll of honor in a "Battle of Britain" memorial to which more than £40,000 (about $180,000) has been subscribed, more than double what was originally asked.

When Lord Trenchard, Marshal of the R.A.F., and Air Chief Marshal Lord Dowding, the leaders of the "few," proposed the memorial, donations came from high and low, from Buckingham Palace and the Tewkesbury choir boy who sent in six shillings he earned singing Christmas carols.

The chapel of Henry VII was build because that monarch wished to show his devotion to the Virgin Mary, wanted for himself and his consort a place of burial, and also a tomb in the Abbey for his predecessor, Henry VI.

The eccentricities of Henry VIII thwarted the last desire and the sixth Henry lies at Windsor.

The memorial will grace a chapel within a chapel, the eastern corner of this most eastern chapel in the Abbey. It was here that Oliver Cromwell, Admiral Robert Blake, famed "General of the Seas," and other stout supporters were originally buried in the 17th century, only to be routed from their repose forever when the Crown was restored.

The Chapel has known many storied moments—the talents of the erratic Italian Pietro Torrigiani, one of the master painters of the world, who in 14 temperamental years built Henry's tomb and a superb high altar and molded the interior; the destruction of the altar by Sir Robert Harley, a "hot-brained zealot" in the days of the Long Parliament of 1643; its replacement with parts of the original in the 1930's; the burial of Kings, the last of them George II, in 1760; the brilliance of the installations of new Knights of the Order of the Bath from 1725 to 1812, a ceremony ranked next in the public mind to a Royal Coronation, and revived by George V. in 1913.

But its moment of high torment came with this war when, its interior prudently stripped of its ele-

Dunkirks Over For Allied Army

SHEFFIELD, England, March 4—(CP-Reuters)—Home Secretary Morrisons said last night that there will be no more Dunkirks.

"This time there will be no mistake about the outcome," he said in a speech. "We mean to get into Europe, and to get at Germany, to take the Germany army by the throat and shake the life out of it.

"We mean to be done for good and all with the German general staff, the German military tradition, the German lust for power and the German habit of aggression."

The Home Secretary said that "the ordinary British soldier in all wars has won an historic reputation for his ability to hang on, as he has done for the last four years, and then when the enemy has exhausted himself to leap to the attack with full force."

The recent German raids on London, though not comparable with the German performances of 1941 had been quite bad enough, he said, "and there have been a few episodes comparable with the worst singly incidents of the big blitzes."

Morrison said that 50,324 British civilians have been killed by bombs and 163,075 have been injured.

Change In Rules Of Commons To Be Debated

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, March 4 — (CP) — Changes in the rules of Parliament to speed Commons business without limiting freedom of speech are under consideration by members today and will be debated next Tuesday with a view to their application this session.

They were reported to the House yesterday by a special committee headed by Speaker J. A. Glen, as a preliminary to an all-day discussion of Agriculture Department estimates—the third full day devoted to that department.

Nothing radical was proposed by the committee. It rejected several far-reaching suggestions mooted in and out of the House during recent years, including the consideration of estimates by committees and a limitation of time to be devoted to major debates.

The committee found both suggestions inconsistent with the true function of Parliament and the duty of members to speak freely on behalf of their constituents.

"Criticisms of Parliament seem to have been inadequately considered in relation to the whole structure of Parliament, the necessary party system and the complex situation created by the war which now is in its fifth year," the committee re-

Danger Becomes Greater

President De Valera in a speech at Cavan Sunday condemned the rumors and said there was no justification for public uneasiness, although he added:—

"The danger becomes greater as the theatre of war moves more in our direction and the efforts of the belligerents against each other reach a climax .. at any moment this war may come upon us and we may be forced to defend our rights and our freedom with our lives."

Strict Eire censorship apparently allowed no word of the rumors or the war-scare to leak out, but after President De Valera's Cavan speech a Dublin source advised The Canadian Press in London to be vigilant for accounts of the speech and headings as they appeared in the Eire Press.

It developed there was nothing alarming or too informative in the Eire Press reports of Mr. De Valera's speech, but the reason for the message from Dublin is becoming more apparent now that travellers are reaching Britain with reports of last week's nervousness in Eire.

Monty Visited Canadian Army

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 4—(CP Cable)—Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, commander of the British group of armies for the western invasion, has just completed a four-day tour of the Canadian Army in Britain.

For the former 8th Army commander who had Canadians under his command in Sicily, Italy and before then when he was officer commanding the southeastern command in Britain, the visit was a renewal of friendships with men who will form part of his invasion army.

There were no formal inspections. Gen. Montgomery preferred to describe the tour as just "informal meetings." He travelled the English countryside in a special train accompanied by Canadian commanders and senior officers.

He saw Canadian troops in groups of several thousands. In each case the Canadians formed a hollow square and stood at ease as Sir Bernard walked slowly down long lines, chatting here and there with various men.

In typical Monty style, the General climbed into a jeep in the middle of the square after his walk among the ranks and told the men to gather round him.

Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, acting Canadian Army commander, was with Gen. Montgomery during the tour.

Ban M.P.P's From Highway Board

TORONTO, March 4—(CP).—The Ontario Legislature went into its second week-end adjournment of the new session today with the end of the Throne Speech debate not yet in sight and indications that it will continue all next week at least.

The debate has been proceeding at a fair pace but not as fast as it might because of the heavy volume of legislation. Many measures have already been given third reading, 10 of them yesterday, including one to set up Ontario's new department of planning and development to map the province's post-war plans.

The House has already heard three C.C.F. Opposition speakers, including Leader E. B. Jolliffe, and indications are that the C.C.F. plan at least another nine speeches.

Yesterday members heard Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy warn a world shortage of 3,000,000 tons of sugar is anticipated this year. The speech praised the sugar beet growers of Ontario and other parts of Canada.

The Minister was speaking during second reading of his bill to increase the Ontario sugar beet subsidy from 55 cents to $1.55 a hundredweight for the year ending March 31, 1945. The bill was given second reading.

A C.C.F. amendment sponsored by William Dennison (CCF-Toronto St. David) was accepted by the government in the House yesterday during committee consideration of amendments to the Highway Improvement Act. Mr. Dennison's amendment would prevent members of the Legislature from sitting as members of suburban roads commissions. He believed it would "prevent some bad cases of local patronage." The bill was reported.

Mrs. Rae Lucock (CCF-Toronto-Bracondale) one of two women members of the Legislature—the other is Agnes Macphail (CCF-York East)—entered the debate yesterday for the first time. She and a number of other opposition members

Missionary Finds Many Indians Loyal To Crown

COBOURG, March 4—(ENS)—Miss Susie Hinman, Baptist missionary who has been doing missionary work in India for 32 years, returned to her home here Friday for a furlough. It is the first time she has been home in seven years and her furlough will be for about a year and a half. Miss Hinman had an uneventful trip from Bombay to Los Angeles.

"We had 24 missionaries on board, four from India and 20 who had been stationed in China. Of that number, three of the missionaries from India had been in Baptist missions and came from Canada. The other Baptist missionary was an American. I can't say what course we took but we crossed the equator twice. We had no submarine alerts, however, and the trip was very quiet.

Asked how long she had been in missionary work, she laughed and said that she would be giving away her age.

"No woman likes to do that, but I'll tell you. I have been 32 years in the work and I am proud and grateful that I have been permitted to devote that time to my work," Miss Hinman said.

Bombed By Japs

Her past seven years in India have been apportioned as follows—two and one-half years at Akida doing education work; ten months further north at Vizianagram where she was in charge of five schools, a leper asylum and an orphange. The past three years were spent at Cocanada. Earlier in the war with Japan, Cocanada was the first place in India to be bombed by the enemy. In Cocanada she has been doing Bible teaching to the women and children. When she left for her furlough she went by train from Cocanada to Nagpu and thence to Bombay, and after that travelling was by ship.

Miss Hinman saw first hand the effect upon the people of British rule.

"I think that in time the Congress will take over. The British have governed justly and wisely and those who have been christianised have been the first to appreciate how much England has done for India. If the British ever pulled out of India I would not care to remain there. As Christianity spreads, so also will spread the appreciation by India of what England has done for the people," she declared.

Great Loyalty

"I can demonstrate what I mean in this way. Greater loyalty has come from the Christianized people of India than from the Hindus. You will find Christian Indian families who have given sons to fight for the Allies, some of them in Iraq, Burma and so on. This is because Christian teaching has got them away from the self-centred traits of the Hindus.

"Their minds have expanded, socially and geographically in proportion to the religious teaching which they have assimilated and out of that has come a loyalty to England and an appreciation of what England has done them, which is expressed in their willingness to fight for the Allies. It is irritating to read the viewpoints expressed by Americans who have not been in India in regard to the question of India and her relationship to England. We who have been in India know much better how helpful England has been to India, than those over in America who have had no personal contacts. As a matter of fact, Americans who have lived in India as missionaries or in civil capacities, are the first to admit how wrong is the attitude of their brother Americans living in the United States," Miss Hinman said.

Miss Hinman is the daughter of John Hinman of Cobourg and the late Mrs. Hinman. A sister, Clara lives in Cobourg, and a brother Lt. Colonel Fred Hinman is stationed at Petawawa.

ers, a spokesman said.

The Allied air forces yesterday struck slashing blows at German communications in northern Italy and in Rome, blasting railways, destroying a number of locomotives and cannonading shipping and dock areas. Eleven German planes were destroyed for a loss of 10 Allied craft.

One company of German infantry attacked Indian troops near the mountain village of Fallascoso, southwest of Torricella on the 8th Army front, but were driven off with casualties, leaving four prisoners in Allied hands.

Contact With Germans.

On that front Allied patrols maintained close contact with the Germans, a Canadian patrol capturing a mchine gun in the Orecchio area. Another Canadian patrol ambushed a German party in a night action near Orsogna, inflicting casualties. Polish patrols also were active.

Spitfires again blasted the Yugoslav coast, smashing two locomotives and machine-gunning trains, and Wellington night bombers followed up the blows with a smash last night at Zara, Italian port on the Dalmatian coast, with two-ton bombs. Zara is one of the major intakes for German reinforcements and supplies in the battle against Yugoslav Partisans.

Mediums, following the heavy bombers over Rome, attacked the Ostiense rail yards in the southern part of the city through which German supplies to the 5th Army front pass. Liberators went north of Rome to bomb airfields, but a heavy overcast prevented accurate observation of the results.

and several hundred Canadian officers and noncommissioned officers took the course, training in battle tactics with the use of live ammunition and various devices to give battle realism.

Experimented in Division

But the original ideas sprang from Wigram's experimental work in his own division. The Major was the son of a Sheffield business man and was in the territorial Army. Before the war he achieved marked success as a London solicitor and company director.

Inspired by the paper on tactics written after Dunkirk by Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, he found an outlet for his own ideas in the divisional battle school. Few officers in those days felt the old system of infantry training could be challenged. But Wigram challenged it on every score and proved his points.

He wrote a book of battle drill which became the official British Army Manual on the subject. Later Gen. Sir Bernard Paget, when he was commander-in-chief home forces, decided that every British division should have battle drill. Wigram was made commandant of the G. H. Q. School for training of instructors.

6th Victory Loan Objective Is $1,200,000,000

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP).—Canada's sixth Victory Loan campaign, to open April 24, will have an objective of $1,200,000,000, Douglas Abbott, Parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley, announced Friday in the Commons on behalf of the Minister.

The $1,200,000,000 target is the same as that of the fifth Victory Loan last autumn which yielded $1,383,275,250. In the approaching campaign, as in the last drive, individuals will be asked to loan $525,000,000 and "special name" groups—including corporations, life insurance companies and other investment funds—$675,000,000.

"Borrowing needs for the continued prosecution of the war remain at very high levels and the Minister of Finance is confident that once again Canadian everywhere will show their determination to support their fighting forces by a financial achievement greater than on any previous occasion," Mr. Abbott said.

A similar press statement was issued a few minutes before the House assembled.

In the fifth Victory Loan campaign cash applications numbered 3,008,336 and in addition 24,715 applications, representing a total of $188,036,330 in bonds, were received for fifth Victory bonds in exchange or other Dominion of Canada bonds which had matured or were called for redemption.

Jesus Urges His Disciples To Watch and Pray

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 5 is Mark 13:1-37, the Golden Text being Mark 13:35, "Watch therefore; for ye know not when the lord of the house cometh.")

AFTER JESUS called attention to the widow who had cast all the money she had into the treasury of the temple, Jesus and His disciples left the temple. As they went out, one of those with Him called His attention to the stones used in the building. To this Jesus answered:

"Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down."

The prophecy was fulfilled. Part of the substructions remain, but "the buildings on the platform of the temple, to which Jesus referred are wholly gone, not a stone there is left in its place," says Rev. Wilbur M. Smith.

They crossed the Kidron and climbed the Mount of Olives, and as they sat on the mount, looking back toward the temple, Peter, James, John and Andrew asked the Lord, "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?"

Shows Marvelous Patience

Jesus' infinite patience with these followers of His amazes one. In spite of the fact that he had told them that He was shortly to leave them; that He would be harshly treated and killed, but would rise again, they persisted in ignoring his words and what it would mean to him and themselves. They asked Him all manner of questions about who was to be the first among them as they did recently, or the present question, when was all this going to happen.

His first answer to the question was a warning, that many would coming saying they were the Christ, and that they must be careful not to let themselves be deceived. Even when they heard of wars and rumors of wars, they should not be troubled, "for such things needs must be, but the end shall not be yet."

"For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles, these are the beginning of sorrows."

He prophesied also the persecutions to which they would be subject after He had gone.

"But take heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to councils; and in the synagogues ye shall be beaten: and ye shall be brought before rules and kings for My sake, for a testimony against them, And the gospel must first be published among all nations."

There was no need for them to plan what to say when they were taken before these rulers, because the Holy Ghost would answer through them, He told them.

"Now the brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the son; and children shall rise up against their parents, and shall cause them to be put to death.

Disciples to Be Hated

"And we shall be hated of all men for My sake: but he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved."

Jesus then told of the desolation in store for the world, seeming to point to such a holocaust as the first and present World wars, and to earthquakes, which are frequent in widely different parts of the earth.

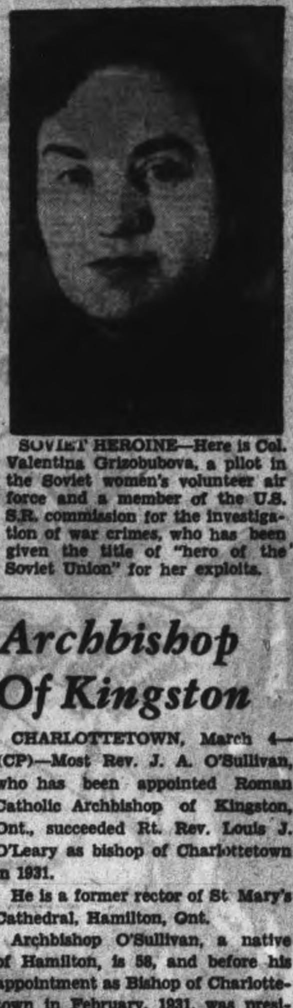
"The gospel must be published among all nations," said Jesus, and it was, among the then known nations, as the accounts of Paul's travels prove.

Again Jesus warned them of the false prophets who would come working wonders, but by whom they should not be deceived.

Finally He answered the question the four had asked, "When would these things all come about?" He said, "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father."

"Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is. For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch. Watch ye, therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh."

"And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch."



SOVIET HEROINE—Here is Col. Valentina Grizobubova, a pilot in the Soviet women's volunteer air force and a member of the U.S.S.R. commission for the investigation of war crimes, who has been given the title of "hero of the Soviet Union" for her exploits.

Archbishop Of Kingston

CHARLOTTETOWN, March 4—(CP)—Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, who has been appointed Roman Catholic Archbishop of Kingston, Ont., succeeded Rt. Rev. Louis J. O'Leary as bishop of Charlottetown in 1931.

He is a former rector of St Mary's Cathedral, Hamilton, Ont.

Archbishop O'Sullivan, a native of Hamilton, is 58, and before his appointment as Bishop of Charlottetown in February, 1931, was president of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto.

The Apostolic Delegate also announced that the Pope has bestowed the personal title of Archbishop on Most Rev. James Morrison, 83, Bishop of Antigonish, N.S., and the oldest member of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy in Canada.

Archibishop Morrison was appointed Bishop of Antigonish in 1912, and will retain that post.

Christ's First Temptation

REV. E. R. JAMES.

The Devil said unto Jesus, if thou be the son of God, command this stone that it be made bread. St. Luke 4:3.

From whence did the Church receive this knowledge of the temptations of Our Lord in the wilderness? The Lord Himself revealed it to His Apostles in those days when they were with Him, daily becoming more fascinated with His Personality. When they were able to bear it He told them.

Who is the devil? He is a real spiritual power ever present in our hearts and minds. He is the spirit who is at war with God. He is the adversary Satan. Have you never discovered his reality? You are kneeling down in prayer striving to say your prayers. Suddenly there flashes upon your mind other thoughts, sometimes in distinct opposition to God. How did they enter? It is the work of the evil spirit or his angel.

The adversary came to tempt the Lord along three lines. Never forget that the Master is truly Man, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. Or in words which have been repeated for over sixteen hundred years by countless Christians: —

Church News and Notices

"Who, for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven, and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary and was made MAN." The gravest peril of Evangelical preaching is to forget the Manhood of Our Lord and to over emphasise His Diety.

The devil tempts Him through His Humanity. He is a real Man. He is hungry. "IF THOU BE THE SON OF GOD COMMAND THIS STONE THAT IT BE MADE BREAD." The appetite craves for food. Self preservation is the first law of nature. It is a natural instinct and desire. So the evil one whispers: "Surely your Father, Who loves You expects You to maintain your Life?" Further is the reminder:—"Use your supernatural power and turn this stone into bread." The Messiah was expected to have power over nature; able to work miracles. They were to be the sign of his Messiahship. The Master had grown up in the atmosphere of such expectations. "Then those men, when they had seen this miracle

Start Is Made In Fund For Roman Catholic Schools

Two anonymous donations of $40,000 and $25,000 last night led off the campaign to raise $900,000 in the Catholic Diocese of Toronto for the building of a new St. Michael's College School and a new De La Salle College School. The announcement was made at a banquet in the King Edward Hotel by His Grace Most Reverend James C. McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, at the conclusion of an address to over 100 members of the special gifts committee gathered to hear their final instructions.

The general drive for funds will be launched on March 16 when over 7,000 Catholic workers will start soliciting in the approximately 135 parishes and missions in the Diocese.

Terming the campaign a crusade for the cause of Catholic education and the upholding of Christian standards of Catholic youth, His Grace said that the present "outmoded and dilapidated" school buildings must be replaced with the most modern structures and facilities and staffed by the finest teachers to be found.

With Toronto the English-speaking centre in Canada of culture and commerce, it was unfair to Catholic youth to send them to the present "unsightly schools," he said.

"In the post-war years many trials may be awaiting us," said the speaker, "We must have true social reforms which the Catholic Church and every right-minded citizen wants under human liberty and regulated private enterprise. As an alternative we may have dictatorship and slavery of the people. No greater bulwark can be erected against anarchy and revolution in the post-war period than the teaching of religion in the schools.

"Premier Drew believes that religion should have a place in school education. Winston Churchill and the people of Britain believe religious teaching should have a place in the schools. The Catholic Church has always had it, for we believe that religion is necessary for the full flowering of the soul of the boy or girl."

His Grace traced the history of the two schools during the past 90 years, the struggles and poverty which had often accompanied the giving of a Catholic and Christian education to a large part of the Church's youth in Ontario. He said that, even in "these poor buildings" boys were getting an education second to none, but the finest of modern buildings and academic training would give further prestige to the Church in the training of Catholics and Canadians.

Jesus Urges His Disciples to Watch

Scripture—Mark 13:1-37

By Alfred J. Buescher

As Jesus and His disciples left the temple, one of them called His attention to the stones of which the buildings were made.

Jesus answered, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

Jesus and four of His disciples sat upon the mount of Olives and the men asked Jesus when the temples should be cast down.

Jesus answered, Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

Revised Health Plan

Mr. Ian Mackenzie, the Minister of Pensions, has submitted his revised health insurance plan to the House of Commons, and the plan, greatly simplified in its financial structure and containing a scheme of Dominion Government assistance to the provinces, will have to be carefully studied, in the House and out of it, before any useful opinion can be offered. We think, however, that most Canadians are in sympathy with the general purpose of the plan, which is to improve the health of the country, and provide medical care for everyone who needs it, without fear of debt.

We should not wish to oppose this humane scheme, though we see in it yet another evidence of the approach of what we may call the Workhouse State. In the Workhouse State we are all each others' poor relations; we keep everybody and everybody keeps us. We are born in debt and we are born beholden not merely to our immediate family, but also to the State; we live in debt, and a portion of our earnings is always withheld or taken from us to provide for others whom we do not know and have not seen; we die in debt, and the State has first claim on any sum which we may have accumulated. It is a sort of benevolent serfdom, and it is probably a good thing. The health insurance plan will doubtless prevent a great deal of ill-health; we should not be surprised, however, if it did not encourage weakness and dependence of character. Benevolent as the health insurance plan is, we think that there are great numbers of Canadians who would rather look out for themselves and their dependents than be included in a scheme of state medicine; better risks and freedom, they think, than the Workhouse State and a great measure of security. A lion in a cage has social security, but he does not long remain a real lion; either he becomes a savage and irritable beast or he becomes a torpid cat.

There are, of course, problems which the national health insurance scheme would solve. It would greatly help the man whose income in small but sufficient, but who has to keep on earning in order to make ends meet. If he falls ill and his earning power is stopped, he has either to enter the hospital as an indigent, which is an indignity, or he must go heavily into debt. Under these circumstances he frequently conceals his illness until it is acute, and may live in dread of the calamity of a few months away from work.

The doctor's side of the matter must be considered as well. Many doctors treat patients whom they know will never pay them, or who will pay slowly and reluctantly. In certain cases, of course, this side of the doctor's business is greatly exaggerated; there are few professional men who do not do a lot of work as charity. But doctors, particularly in poor districts, are often victimized in this way. Under the national insurance scheme we presume that they would have greater security; whether they will have a first-rate opportunity to reap the rewards of unusual skill in their profession is still not quite clear.

During the discussion of the revised insurance scheme we shall hear a great deal about it, both for and against; we are quite sure that our legislators will not accept it without regarding the will of the country as a whole, and without a careful consideration of all that it implies.

Eleven Thousand Deserters

It was a surprise to everyone, we imagine, when the Minister of Defence, Mr. J. L. Ralston, revealed in the House that there were 11,093 deserters from the Canadian Army. Those men are somewhere within the country. Of the deserters from our army abroad all have been captured except one.

Eleven thousand deserters is a very great number for an army the size of ours. Of course there are always plenty of men who are absent without leave, and their offence, though serious, is not looked upon as desertion. But when absence without leave stretches on for three weeks it becomes desertion, and the family allowance of the man in question ceases to be paid. Overseas, where conditions are different, the allowance is continued for three months. It is hard to understand why some members of Parliament thought that family allowances to deserters should be continued indefinitely. The family allowance is paid as one of the conditions of the man's service to his country; surely when he ceases to serve of his own free will the obligation of the country to look after his dependents ceases also? The lot of the deserter's family is hard, but the country is not responsible for it and should not be asked to relieve it.

Why have we so many deserters? We have no idea and cannot offer any useful suggestion. But we might make two general observations on the matter. First of all, there are a great many men to whom military service or any other sort of confining and co-operative work is violently distasteful, and they will go to any lengths and risk any punishment in order to avoid it. Also, service in a conscripted army in a country where there is no enemy to fight must seem inglorious and even foolish to many men who have been called for it. They have not argued the matter; they have simply skipped camp. Second, there are more people in this country (and in all other countries) than we like to think who are wholly without patriotic feeling and who, having had nothing to do with the beginning of this war, see no reason why they should concern themselves with ending it. They live their lives and think their thoughts on a plane of low realism; they have no ambition above creature comfort, and no honour. If they can avoid an unpleasant duty they do so; their idea of civilization and their sense of social responsibility is no greater than a cave-man's. It is a good thing that we should realize that these people exist; too often in national matters we forget them and their peculiar point of view.

A Temperance Technique

During recent months there has been talk of a program of temperance education in Canada, and in the current issue of Saturday Night we read an account of a program of this kind in Russia, which is of interest. Russia, as everybody knows, is not and never has been a total abstinence country; like most northern lands, a good deal of hard drinking goes on there. The government does not mind, so long as drunkenness is kept in check. But if a man or a woman seems to be drinking too much, he is likely to receive a tract with his next bottle, in which the dangers and evils of drunkenness are pointed out to him in a reasonable manner. If that does not work someone—it is not explained who—takes a picture of him next time he is drunk, and this is posted, without comment, on the notice-board of the place where he works. Presumably his fellow-workers look at the picture and jeer. This system is said to work well.

We have never heard of derision curing a man of over-indulgence in anything, but the Russians may be particularly sensitive in these matters. The fact that the temperance teaching is rooted in common sense rather than in moralism may, however, have a good deal to do with its success.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A writer suggests that Premier Drew let Mr. Jolliffe take over the reins of power and watch the fun. What fun?

March, as a bright contemporary remarks, came in like a lion and brought any amount of lamb.

A Minnesota man is divorcing his wife because she kisses him only when she wants money. Well, isn't that often enough?

The word 'illegitimate' is no longer to be entered on birth certificates. But we predict that a much blunter word, meaning the same thing, will keep its popularity as an insult.

At three different points along the Atlantic coast, a news story reports, whales have recently "run up on the beach". This, we assume, is a new type of amphibious whale—with legs or wheels, or maybe a caterpillar tread.

When Mr. King protested in Parliament that "some groups were thinking more of winning elections than of winning the war", a section of the press accused him of losing his temper and speaking unfairly. Considering how often that very charge has been made against Mr. King from one source or another, we feel that he has a right to throw it back again if he chooses.

Diary Of A Former Cub

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Worked today bringing my scrap-books up to date. A scrap-book is really an invaluable possession, but it involves a vast amount of pernickety work which is apt to be put off for months at a time. I keep several books and paste into them clippings about the things which interest me. One of my best books is about crime; I have a few theories of my own about the causes and the likely form of a few special sorts of crime, and murder in particular; in my scrap-book I keep records of murders which seem to bear out what I believe. Have you, by the way, ever noticed how lacking in originality most murderers are? Crime after crime is committed in the same way, with a few trifling differences of detail. Real ingenuity in murder is rarely shown except by the criminally insane. As well as my murder scrap-book I have my advertisement scrap-book; I have a theory that an age reveals its true self more fully in its advertisements than in its more conventionally acceptable writings. Today I worked long, pasting in my clippings and dating them. Perhaps I am providing a fortune for my grandchildren by this work; I have noticed that at book-sales old scrap-books fetch astounding prices. Perhaps when I am gone and the provincial and Dominion governments have beggared my family with inheritance taxes, they will be able to sell my scrap-books for enough to live in ease. Because, frankly, I don't want them to work if I can help it. I have seen a good deal of work, and I have a low opinion of its effect on the character. I should be a better man if I did not have so much work to do.

MONDAY: Spring has come. The unfailing, the infallible sign has appeared. I have my spring headache. Every spring there comes a day when I wake up with a splitting pain in my head, and then I know that it is spring at last. I do not have headaches as a usual thing; often my spring headache is the only one I have in a whole year, but it is a beauty—the grandfather of all headaches. I have a theory that it is caused by the sudden alteration in barometric pressure as winter turns to spring; this causes the bones, membranes and tubes in my head to expand suddenly, giving me intense pain. I once set this theory of mine before a friend of mine who is a doctor, thinking that it was a valuable addition to science, of which he would be glad. Instead he abused my ignorance for almost half an hour. Still, it is a good theory.

TUESDAY: I had a very nice letter today from W.J.T., saying that he liked my diary and my book-reviews, except when I tried to crowd too many books into the latter. Yes, I hate those reviews too, but sometimes there are so many books waiting to be done that I clear off a batch of them in a hurry; I know that it makes dull reading. My correspondent also says that he has tried to like opera, listening to the Saturday afternoon broadcasts, but has failed. Don't let it get you down. Opera, like Roquefort cheese, is an acquired taste, and some people never develop it, and yet they live happily and die and go to Heaven like the most determined cheese-connoisseurs and opera-lovers. It is a far, far better thing that you don't like opera and say so than it is to kid yourself and a lot of other people that you do when really it bores you to death. Many thanks for the letter; you cannot imagine how encouraging such mail is.

WEDNESDAY: I see that this is Boy Scout Week. I never became a Scout, but I was once a Wolf Cub. In the town where I lived it was decided to form a Cub Pack, and a group of small boys—including your diarist—was put in the care of a young man whose enthusiasm for the work far outran his actual ability to lead or organize even such a group as a Cub Pack. We had an initial meeting, bought our uniforms, and soon afterward went on a hike. We took sandwiches and pie in shoeboxes, just like Indians, and we drank from what our leader called a 'spring,' which we all knew was the drain from a distant farmyard. We never met again. Our leader was courting a girl, and he forgot about us and our little green hats.

THURSDAY: Had occasion to make a brief journey by train today. People on trains get a special expression of face, rather as though they were ill, or dead. They know that nothing interesting is going to happen to them until they reach the end of their journey, and they let their faces express their boredom and their peace. When first one gets into the train the faces are a shock, but soon one catches the attitude of mind, and looking out of the window one may catch sight of the ghost of one's face in the glass, composed as though for burial.

FRIDAY: My spring headache is just going; it is as though little gnomes with bars of red-hot iron had been stirring my brains.... Today I saw a woman being assisted from a beverage room to a car; she was so drunk that she could not navigate alone. The sight provoked three interesting reflections. First: how can anyone drink enough beer to get drunk? My own capacity is two glasses in two hours; anything more results in a species of internal drowning, like the Japanese water torture. Second: what would compel a woman, sitting with other women, to drink so much beer that she would make a spectacle of herself? Was she unhappy? The time was early in the day; does anybody drink before noon for fun? Third: if we urge women to work in factories and serve in the armed forces, have we any right to expect them to behave better than men? If they want to make fools of themselves, have they not earned their right to do so? The romantic conception of womanhood as something essentially higher than manhood is based on an economic situation which is changing rapidly.

SATURDAY: Listened to the opera broadcast of "Tales of Hoffman" while two children strangely resembling myself attempted to tear the house down about my ears. I suggest that when the invasion of Europe comes a few thousand healthy children should be dropped over Germany by parachute; they will disorganize the whole military, communications and police system of the Reich in a few hours and then our soldiers will simply walk in and chain up millions of prisoners.

A War Of Ideas

The present conflict is a war of ideas as well as of guns, and Lord Halifax is perhaps on the right track in suggesting that it will have to be fought with school-books as well as planes and tanks.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

AND SO THE POOR DOG GOT NONE!

Brave Men Underseas

(From OTTAWA CITIZEN)

MORE will doubtless come to be known by degrees of the British midget submarines and their work although the full story will probably come only when the war is over. Testimony to the quality of the men who man and command them has lately been given, however, by the announcement of the award of the Victoria Cross to the commanding officers of two of the tiny craft engaged in the destruction of the Tirpitz last September.

Some information has come out as to the conditions under which officers and crew must operate and of the intensive training that prepared them for this gruelling task. Training began two years before in a country house specially damp-air conditioned to approximate the atmosphere on board the submarines.

Naturally such training called for the finest physical standards. The men chosen had to become habituated to specially concentrated rations, for no food could be cooked aboard and only specially prepared beverages would be available, all of which had to last until the job was completed. They could not wash and they had to become accustomed to living in the closest possible confinement of space where it was impossible to lie down. Sleep under such circumstances would be most uncertain, quite apart from the necessity of remaining constantly alert during operations.

With the enemy's loss of the Tirpitz and the Scharnhorst there is less opportunity for the British midget submarines to engage against Nazi war vessels. But the Japanese navy still has to be dealt with. The gallant men of this latest branch of the Royal Navy will have their tasks in the future in far distant waters.

Philosophical Smallpox

(THE PRINTED WORD)

B. K. SANDWELL, the philosophical and charming editor of Saturday Night, wrote an article the other week in which he seemingly argued that Canada will survive even if it abandons free enterprise and goes in for state socialism. Which reminds us of a lady who survived smallpox without disfigurement. And that modern doctors frown at tossing the baby into the same bed with an older child who has measles.

Canada survived Mackenzie and Mann and many other mistakes. The country is pretty healthy right now in many respects. But who would wish the nation to contract smallpox even though, under modern medicine, there would be a good chance of survival? As far as we are concerned, we wouldn't like our country to be quarantined even for measles.

It is perfectly true that this country has survived vast political changes despite the keening that arose when, say, Sir John A. Macdonald won in 1878 and the Hon. (later Sir) Wilfred Laurier won in 1896. But we think Mr. Sandwell on this occasion was writing to fill space rather than to shed light for his readers; past advocates of change have conceded private rights to be inherent or, indeed, have demanded reform to enhance private rights and liberties. On this occasion, the reformers are out to end private enterprise. Mr. Coldwell says they will do it gradually. Mr. Winch says they will do it at once. The difference is the difference between the deaths of the martyrs Latimer and Ridley at Oxford who were chained back to back at the stake. One died quickly because the flames touched off gunpowder tied to his chest; the other died slowly because the vagrant breeze kept the flames swirling around his ankles. Both died.

It will be said, of course, that the Socialists are such nice people that they wouldn't be drastic. One meets them in church (when they aren't at Sunday political meetings). Lots of them are well educated. They have sons and daughters in the armed forces and they pay taxes with no more complaint than do bloated capitalists. But the C.C.F. is frankly a Socialist party. It promises to take over the means of production and distribution and run them as government enterprises. If they do so they have brought about revolution as complete (though, we hope, unbloody) as the Lenin revolution in Russia or the Hitler revolution in Germany. If they don't do so they will have abandoned their pre-election promises.

Socialism is to be feared, first of all, because freedom and Socialism cannot continue together. Secondly, Socialism is to be feared because you cannot turn back. You can turn out a high-tariff government and put in a free-trade government and vice versa. But Socialism is like railway unification; once you scramble all the business enterprises in the country into a government-owned and managed whole, you cannot unscramble them.

This comment may be labelled as reactionary. It is sad to be considered, but we cannot change our views on this point until someone writes a new and improved table of multiplication. These are things that don't change even though young reporters grow into learned editors and radicals are more likely to be found among grandsons than grandfathers.

At heart, we are arrant and vociferous reformers. We want people to be better, to be more decent, kindly and generous. We want business laws that will prevent unregenerate crooks from robbing anyone. We want a world so good that Yale will be better known as a school than as a lock. Above all, we want the poor to be relieved of taxes, especially indirect taxes that they don't realize they are paying. We want governments to be honest and politicians to succeed without surrendering to expediency.

To listen to many of our C.C.F. friends, one would think that Canada, to date, has been a failure. Yet through the years Canada has been one of the most prosperous of all countries, with a constantly rising standard of living. Those who argue that Moscow does it better than Toronto or Auckland better than Winnipeg ignore the fact that our scale of relief in hard times has been better than full wages in virtually every other country in the world except the United States.

If one measures it all by materialism (which seems to be the only measure with which the C.C.F. are acquainted) we aren't very far behind the United States, for we always have been busy keeping up with the Joneses below the border. There was a C.C.F. sneer the other day because there is only one Canadian automobile for every ten Canadians, which means distressful crowding. But in Russia, the spiritual home of the Frank Scotts, David Lewises, et al, one has to be a komissar, or at least a deputy thereof, before one may ride. If there's one komissar for every ten Canadians, will he give the other nine Canadians free rides?

Canadian System Favored

The Canadian parliamentary system is what the United States should adopt. Then we could avoid the necessity of holding elections in the midst of some national crisis where continuity of administration might be imperative. We could acquire also a new sense of responsibility in the relations of the executive and the legislative branches of the Government. Woodrow Wilson foresaw this need as far back as the 1880's and advocated it again as president-elect in February, 1913, in a historic letter to Congress on the subject of presidential tenure.—David Lawrence in New York Times.

A Bible Message

Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches. In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water. For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had. And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole? The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me. Jesus said unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk. And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked. (John 5: 2-9.)

Peter's father had a library of which he was justly proud, and it included many autographed copies, presentations from the authors. One day when Peter was looking over some of the volumes, he asked his father what the writing in front of some of the books meant. His father explained that they were autographed copies, which made them much more interesting to keep, and that many of them might in time become valuable.

The next day Peter's mother reminded him that it was his sister's birthday next week.

The anniversary duly arrived and a parcel was handed over with pride. When the little girl opened it she found a copy of the Bible with the words in her little brother's best handwriting:

"With the Compliments of the Author."

Post-War Airports

Some of us have been conjuring up grave difficulties respecting the distribution and use of airports for the globe-circling aviation which is expected to develop when the war is ended. Recall, for example, the alarm expressed last fall by the five peregrinating Senators. But, if we assume among nations a will to co-operate instead of to compete, these difficulties might disappear. It is time to put that will to the test. In other words, it is time to channel the will to co-operate by talking over the common responsibilities to be undertaken in world policing, which must be basically concerned with the use of air bases. No international system regulating civil aviation can be set up satisfactorily till our military commitments are established in common.—Washington Post.

Getting Together On Oil

The British, with their Navy converted to oil, many years ago recognised control of oil reserves as a vital factor in the nation's defence. Development of these reserves was therefore seen as a proper field for intervention. One result of this approach was the strengthening of the hands of British oil men all over the world in competition with private enterpreneurs of other nations. If recompense for use of American oil must be made by the British the compensation might well take the form of concessions in post-war agreements to enable the two countries really to get together to keep as much of the world's oil as possible in the hands of nations who must police the peace.—Christian Science Monitor.

Desirable Law

Let us hope the forecast that adequate legislation will be brought in to the provincial parliament to outlaw slot machines in Ontario is well founded. Under the proposed law, discovery of any machines, capable of being utilized as gambling devices would mean confiscation without even a court order.—[illegible]

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 5.

Sunday's horoscope encourages the use of the Sabbath Day liberty to engage in the conventional cultural, spiritual and social preoccupations rather than in routine activities. In all affairs there is a certain danger of overdoing, with impetuous, indulgent, emotional, and extravagant excesses, which might mean regret. With conservation of energies and substance there may be a pleasant and happy day.

For the Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a day in which the proclivities may be in all sorts of extravagance and outlay, indulgences and emotional impetuosities that might combine to create loss and regrets, with little accumulation of resources or physical energies. With care, thrift and good judgment there is fair promise of increased fortunes, business growth and expansion of personal security and well being. Care for health and shun strife.

A child born on this day is likely to have occasional loss and reversals in its affairs mainly because of an expansive and indulgent proclivity to unwise handling of funds.

For Monday, March 6.

Monday's astrological forecast offers excellent opportunity for productive and progressive work, especially where new, original or experimental creative endeavor seeks outlet. This is likely to attract influential persons ready to assist in development, capitalization and promotion. But there is a menace of disagreement through sarcasm, caustic speech, or overwrought nervous state. Be calm, conserve the energies and emotions for happy results.

Birthday Forecast.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a good year for expressing their originality, ingenuity, and uncommon creative ability through the substantial co-operation of influential personages. However, these must be handled with finesse, as sarcastic or smart speech may give offence or beget antagonism. Emotional upsets or nervous strain may be at back of this, so guard the health and spirit.

A child born on this day will be gifted with much original talent, with inventive genius or rare skills, attracting aid from powerful persons. Its danger is from over-emotional or nervous outbursts.

Rev. E. C. Moore Addresses L.A.

"The great weakness of the church is that it becomes bound up in its own activities, and ceases to feel and recognize the tremendous needs in the lives of men and women round about," said Rev. E. C. Moore, rector of St. George's Anglican church, addressing a meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Rev. Moore spoke on the importance of the church translating its doctrines into terms of practical living, and said, "Both clergy and laymen let themselves be deceived by a cheap brand of success, achieved largely by being sweetly agreeable. They forget that the success of Jesus Christ is symbolized by His cross." He closed his address wth a challenge to all to put their Christian faith to work, ermoulding the life of their community.

Rev. Moore was introduced by Dr. J. D. Smart. Mrs. J. J. Craig, first vice-president, presided at this meeting, and conducted the business sesson Mrs. Wesley Braund read the Scripture, and Mrs. Martin B. Chenhall led in prayer. Soloists for the afternoon was Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, who sang, "Resignation," accompanied by Mr. M. B. Chenhall. The vote of thanks was made by Mrs. T. H. Taylor

Becomes a Virtue in Youth, Unanswerable Objection to Early Marriages.

A group of school girls and boys are debating the age-old question of which sex is the more fickle, and they want to know what I think of the matter.

Well, I think that fickleness is not a matter of sex, but of the individual temperament. Also, it is an indication of development. Adolescents outgrow their tastes and desires in people just as they outgrow their clothes, so that the boy or girl with whom they thought themselves madly in love in June bores them to tears in December.

That is the eternal, unanswerable objection to early marriages. To this column come thousands of letters from unhappy men and women who have fallen out of love with their wives and husbands and in love with others, and practically every one of them starts out with "I married when I was too young." It is not that these miserable men and women are of unstable character and incapable of a deep and abiding passion. It is just that they have matured and want something more in their mates than they did in their salad days.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the philandering husband and the unfaithful wife are not the result of fickleness, but of natural development . One went on to the higher things. The other stayed put. And it was an evolution of personality that neither one could change or stop.

Fickleness Becomes Virtue With Age.

So boys and girls should not regard fickleness as a defect either in themselves or the opposite sex. They should look upon it as a virtue and realize that it shows that they are becoming more sophisticated, more demanding in their associates.

Youngsters should also recognize that fickleness is not only the best insurance that they can take out against making a marriage of which they are likely to tire. It also makes them immune to the pangs of jealousy and kindred sentimental complications that cause much suffering. For as long as they can be off with the old love and on with the new as easily as they can change their hats, Cupid can only scratch their hearts, he cannot break them.

This may sound like cold advice, and as if I were advocating fickleness. So I am among the young. I believe that changing partners is the proper dance for the girls and boys in their teens, and that they make a great mistake when they indulge in the pernicious practice of what is commonly called "going steady" and tie themselves down to just one sweetie. That narrows their field of vision. It keeps them from ever getting really acquainted with other lads and lassies and having a chance to shift their affections to someone who will come nearer to their hearts' desire. I think that boys and girls should shop around and look them all over before they make their choice.

If they did, it would take care of the fickle problem before them and after marriage, for none of us tire of the thing that comes up to our ideal, nor are we unfaithful to those whom we really love. That love grows stronger as the years go by.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

We are to-day going to turn our attention to the different styles of blouses being shown so much for Spring. There are several different styles in the more tailored blouse, some high at the neck, some open. A pretty one is made in plaid taffeta, in a shot effect, with a narrow turnover collar and a huge bow tied in front at neck, very smart and youthful.

Then there is the plain tailored waist with pleated front and V neck, fastened with three large jewelled guttons down front. A very beautiful blouse made of printed crepe with cap sleeves. The crepe has a very light beige background and gold flowers here and there over it. This has a low V. neckline with narrow standing collar at back and a scarf effect tied in front which fills in the V neckline.

This is really a very beautifu blouse and will add charm to any woman. It can make a suit or it can add the chic of a dinner dress to a plain skirt. This blouse would be equally smart, if made in the pastel tones, and worn with a black crepe skirt. A small brown cellophane straw sailor with a huge bunch of gold flowers directly in front, worn with that decided forward tilt, will make a dinner costume of no uncertain charm. On the other hand, for a more sophisticated person, take the black skirt and the blouse in any of the pastel tones worn with the postillion hat would be equally stunning. What we are trying to do to-day is to combine fashion with a subtle adult charm. This same blouse made in periwinkle blue rayon, the postillion hat in the same shade of straw, trimmed with a spray of soft ostrich feathers in black to correspond with the skirt, would make an ensemble that one would turn around and take the second look at, especially if the wearer had the added charm of gray hair. To this a very fine circular veil in black would complete a very smart hat and one that is right up to the minute in the style picture. In these days when we are trying to look our very best, yet not wishing to spend any more money than we can help, these blouses of which I have been telling you will help out. If you have a couple of pretty skirts and three or four smart blouses, you can go out to any affair and feel well dressed Next week we will tell you more about the style picture.

NEWS OF SPRING PRINTS—It's definitely a print season, and why shouldn't it be, with so many beautiful prints available? For figure flattery the skirt has a center panel with soft gathers radiating from either side below the belt.

English Bride In Peterboro To Make Home for Husband

"I've come to Canada to make a home for my husband when he returns and for our young son," says Mrs. O. R. Innes, a young English war bride, who has come to Canada to live, although her husband, Sgmn. O. R. Innes, is still overseas. Mrs. Innes, recently arrived in Canada, said that she did not want to leave England, since her husband was able to visit her and their 11-months-old son, Oliver, on an average of twice a week. The safety and security of Canada, however, seemed best for the baby. They are staying with her husband's parents on Sherbrooke street.

Mrs. Innes' first impression of Canada and Canadians was most pleasant, since the Red Cross workers, who met the boat, were very helpful. They took charge of the group of war-brides when they arrived, and supervised their trips to their destinations.

"We had the best of care," said Mrs. Innes, "and there was special food for the babies, and little gifts of clothing, and also of toys, to while away the long hours on the train. All the girls were most grateful for the thoughtfulness of the Red Cross, and felt deeply thankful for their kindness. It helped to soften the strange feeling we experienced on landing unknown in a strange country."

When asked of the differences she noted in Canada ways as compared to English habits, Mrs. Innes said that the dress of Canadian men struck her as particularly strange.

"In England," she said, "men never wear the sharp-pointed hats—I think they call them fedoras. Only the soft slouch hat and the plain bowlers are seen. Another queer sight to our English eyes was the fact that everyone wore goloshes. We never had enough snow to warrant their use. The weather is much colder too, and everything is covered with snow. We could always see green grass at home, and it is one thing I miss very much. The absence of birds is also quite noticeable.

Went Through Blitz

This slender, small, dark-haired girl, lived in Highgate, just about ten minutes' ride by train from London, as so she went through the blitz there.

"When the bombing would start," she continued, "I would take the baby in his crib and place him under the table. The bombing didn't seem to bother him at all, and the people are used to it. The blackouts were still continued during the lull in the bombing. Just before we left for Canada the bombing had started again. That's another thing I can't quite accustom myself to, here in Canada. It seems so strange that we don't have to blacken out our windows at night when we turn on the lights."

Speaking of the rationing in England, this young war bride explained that although rationing was strict, the babies always received the best, and came first in all things. Young Oliver is on almost the same diet here, as he had in England. Babies were allowed three eggs a week, and fruit juices and milk in adequate quantity. The adults, however, did not fare as well, and Mrs. Innes said that the first time she had tasted grapefruit since the war had begun was when it was served for her breakfast here in Peterborough.

Quantity Of Merchandise

The profusion of all commodities in the stores astounded here, and the quantities caught her fancy. Another Canadian way of doing things to which Mrs. Innes will have to accustom herself is the serve-yourself method used in the larger stores. where several articles are gathered together by the customers, and then paid for at a central till.

"In England," she said, "we buy everything separately, and, through force of habit, when I went shopping here, I was trying to pay each clerk as I chose an article. It was quite amusing for a while, until I began to accustom myself to the idea of just walking up and taking an article and putting it in my basket until I had all my purchases together, before paying for them."

Born Nora Keene, in Highgate, Mrs. Innes was working for the Southern Railway in Waterloo, when she met Sgmn. Innes. She was working in a refreshment booth, and Sgmn. Innes met her while he was on his way back to his station after spending a leave, and had stopped to chat. They were married in London, in December, 1941, seven months after their first meeting. Their honeymoon was spent in the country, and when Sgmn. Innes returned to his post Mrs. Innes went back to her home.

Giving her opinion of Canadians, Mrs. Innes said they were most kind and understanding, and that she knew that she was going to be happy here. Although the baby weathered the trip over in the boat very well, the unaccustomed heat in his new home had caused a little rash which is bothering him.

"You see," explained Mrs. Innes, "we didn't have central heating at home, and rooms were much colder. The unusual heat bothered Oliver quite a bit, and I myself found it difficult myself to get used to the warmer atmosphere of the house."

With one brother, a flight engineer with the R.A.F., and her husband in the services, Mrs. Innes realizes the meaning of war. She has come to her husband's country to begin a new life, and to bring up her son in safety. She is going to prepare a home for her husband, so that he will know that she and her son are safe and secure, and waiting for his return.

RIBBON TIES UP THE MODE—The ribbon hat, once a rather casual outsider so far as the inner fashion circle is concerned, has come into its own this Spring and is being sponsored by some of the country's smartest women. Here, lovely Madame Walter Strate wears Helene Garnell's "tri-heart," which is a cross between a tricorne and a heart-shaped hat. It has a ruffled ribbon brim of gaily striped taffeta topped with valentine box crown of black velvet ribbon.—By Alice Alden.

Y.W.C.A. Club Doings

This week saw the beginnings of the Lenten study group "The Christian Community" discussing the growth of the idea of "community" in the Old Testament and its development to love to thy neighbour and thine enemy in the New Testament. This group will meet every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. until Holy Week.

Miss Brownscombe was guest of the Co-Ed Club at supper on Wednesday. The after supper program consisted of contests, fortunes and a discussion on "The 'Y' and the Home". Mr. Singleton of the Y.M. C.A. will be next week's guest. This is Girls' Council week. The executive met before the meeting on Wednesday to finish up the last detailed arrangements for the Business Girls' Observance on March 14th.

The Council meeting was held in the Club Room at suppertime. Betty Detcher presiding. Supper was prepared and served by Ina Robinson and her committee: Isobel McCamus, Jean Carew, Doreen Lord. The after-supper "sing" was led by Miss Roberta Kiefer and the meeting opened with the Invocation. Doris Royea is in charge of the ticket sale for the Business Girls' Observance and tickets may be secured from any council member. It was announced that Miss Aileen Ross of the Department of Sociology, University of Toronto, will be the guest speaker taking as her subject "Canada—a land of Opportunity?" This address will follow the film "Peoples of Canada".

Members were reminded of the Mrs. Winston Churchill Tea and Draw for March 11th. Jean Carew was appointed Council Delegate to the local Youth Committee of the Canadian Youth Commission. The regional conference planning committee will meet in Toronto on March 25th and it is hoped that two council delegates may attend. Two letters were read from neighbour "Y's" in appreciation of assistance given them. The Thursday Supper Club sent a knitted afghan to the National War Services Committee for use in a Blue Triangle Leave Center. The So-Serv Club had made oilcloth toys which were sent to the Montreal Travellers' Aid Department for use in their station rooms through which hundreds of mothers and their babies pass daily. This effort at keeping peace amongst the infant family was much appreciated by the workers. The Gym Demonstration was announced for April 27th and 28th.

The Gym-Swim Club met for a business meeting in the Club Room on Thursday with Jean Thomas in the chair. The Club was divided into four groups each group to be responsible for program and supper for one meeting each month. The group leaders are: Isabel McCamus, Isobel Shearer, Grace Schiarizza, and Doreen Wells. Tickets were given out by Doris Royea for the Business Girls' banquet which the club members will be attending. Isabel McCamus and her group are in charge of the next meeting.

The Saturday Juniors last week started their meeting off with a sing song and games. They are keeping busy by sewing quilt patches and knitting afghan square. They are also busy with a story contest and a prize is given to the member able to answer the most questions.

The '38 Club Springtime Dance has been the social event of the week and committees have been working overtime to make this event a success. Since the printing wheels don't wait for news such as this the big write-up will be found elsewhere.

Bad Coughs Yield Quickly To This Home Mixture

Surprisingly Quick Relief. No Cooking. Saves Money.

Here's a medicine for coughs due to colds, that you mix in your own kitchen. It's so easy to prepare that anyone can do it. Once tried, you'll never again be without it in your home.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of really excellent cough medicine. It's thrifty, too—about four times as much for your money. And children take it willingly, because it tastes so good.

This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that really satisfies. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable agent for soothing throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Transports Take First Game Of Basketball

Transports, unbeaten leaders in the Girls' Basketball League, won the opening game in the senior final series at the Y.W.C.A. gym Friday night but only by an eye-lash. The St. John's team, who finished in second place and eliminated the Generals in the semi-finals threw a real scare into the Transport camp before they were finally beaten out 13 to 12 after leading most of the way.

The leaders who had swept through the regular schedule without an argument had the toughest kind of a battle to win by the slender margin of one point. As a matter of fact on the baskets actually scored the teams were equal but the Saints lost a successful free throw because it was ruled that the marksman's foot had been over the line. It was that close.

St. John's threw up a checking barrage that had Transports disorganized for the greater part of the battle. As a result the high-scoring first placers found themselves behind for the first time this season and they stayed behind until well into the final quarter when Jessie Morrow finally came to their rescue with three quick baskets that put them in front for the first time. The third one made it 13 to 11 for Transports and at that the Saints cut the slender lead in two with a successful free throw and missed two shots from under the basket in the last 30 seconds of play.

St. John's opened the scoring when Eva Clarke found the basket with a nice toss. Detty Flynn evened the count shortly afterward with the only Transport score of the first half but a free throw by Eva Clarke put the Saints in front again and Doreen Groombridge tossed in a field basket to make it 5 to 2. It remained that way until the end of the quarter.

The Saints continued to tie up the Transports in the second quarter, holding them scoreless, while they added to their lead with an accurate free throw by Marg. Hawthorne to leave the half-time score: St. John's 6, Transports 2.

Early in the third period Teresa Heslip, St. John's captain, increased their margin to 8 to 2 with a neat basket. Before the end of the quarter however Transports had reduced the lead and it was 11 to 7 for the Saints at the end of the session.

The fourth quarter was rapidly passing before the league leaders finally found their scoring touch. Jessie Morrow saved the day for them when she tossed in three field baskets in a row to put the Transports in the van 13 to 11. Peggy Lawless sliced that slender lead in two by a free throw score and it was anybody's battle until the final whistle. In fact the Saints missed two open chances to have won the game in the last few seconds of play.

Jessie Morrow with her game-saving scoring splurge in the last quarter was the Transport star and high scorer for the night with six points. Eva Clarke and Teresa Heslip were outstanding for St. John's but the whole team earned brackets for the battle they put up against a club that has been romping over all opposition all season.

The lineups:

Transports (13)—Beryl Dobbin 2, Isobel Crary, Helen Miller, Detty Flynn 2, Jessie Morrow 6, Ruth Hewitt 2, Dot Bestard, Fran Bestard, Irene Stewart 1, Jean Castle, R. Fleming.

St. John's (12)—Marg. Hawthorne 1, M. Dyer, Teresa Heslip 4, Eileen Hewitt, Eva Clarke 3, Doreen Groombridge 3, Peggy Lawless 1, Edith Harte-Maxwell, M. Vosberg.

Referee, Joe Cooper; umpire, Howie Macdonald.

Intermediate Game

The intermediate battle between Normal School and Y Cadets was just as close and as exciting as the senior tussle. It was finally won 11 to 10 by the Normal team, giving the Benson Avenue knowledge factory team a 2 to 1 edge in the best-of-five series for the intermediate honors.

That was anybody's ball game. The lead alternated and the checking was so close that neither team could do much about running up a score.

The Cadets outscored the ultimate winners 4 to 2 in a hard-fought first half and it was an even struggle from there in. With less than five minutes to go Normals were in front 9 to 8. Then the Cadets came through with a basket that looked good enough to give them a 10 to 9 win. However Normal were not to be denied and in the last minute of play Evelyn Fritz who has been playing fine basketball for the school team all season tossed in the million dollar basket that spelled victory for the budding school teachers and they were in front in the final series two games to one.

Pauline O'Donnell with six points and Evelyn Fritz with five monopolized the Normal scoring while Betty Stewart with two field baskets was top scorer for the losing Cadets.

The teams:

Normal School (11)—Reta Chapelle, Evelyn Fritz 5, Pauline O'Donnell 6, Verna McNalley, F. Sexsmith, Marg. Vanderwater, Mary Howes, Agnes Nelson, Helen Baird, Joan Griffin, Reta Heffernan.

Y Cadets (10)—N. Soothern 2, D. Saunders, Betty Stewart 4, M. Spicer 2, Betty Braund, B. Cook 2, Ann Young, L. Edwards, Barbara Weir, N. Ackerman.

Referee, H. Smith; umpire, Howie Macdonald.

Hornsby Denies Miller Charge

MEXICO CITY, March 4—(AP).—Rogers Hornsby, newly appointed manager of the Vera Cruz club of the Mexican Baseball League, last night denied criticism by Leo T. Miller, general manager of the Syracuse (N.Y.) team of the International League that he is luring players away from organized baseball.

Out Of His Hands.

In replying to Miller's reference to Antonio Rodriguez, Cuban infielder who played for Syracuse last year and has signed with Vera Cruz, Hornsby said: "I have nothing to do with signing any players in Mexico. My duties consist only of managing and teaching the fundamentals of the game.

"Rodrigues and several other Mexican and Cuban players who have been signed to play in Mexico couldn't play in the United States if they wanted to because of their draft status.

"These players would like to have permission from their club owners to play in this country until their draft status is cleared up. Then they would like very much to return to their teams.

"I have no desire to use players that would hurt my status or the players' status in any way. I have advised Rodriguez and would advise others to return to the United States."

Hornsby said he would be happy to discuss the situation with any club owner and that he wants them to know that he is in Mexica to develop players and that their scouts are welcome.

Other former United States players on the Vera Cruz roster are Chico Hernandez, formerly with Chicago Cubs, and Chile Gomez, formerly with Washington and Chattanooga.

MINT WAS PREPARED

LONDON (CP)—Large sums of money were printed on notes of two shillings, sixpence (60 cents) and five shillings early in this war and dispersed through the country in case the mint was destroyed or communication between London and the provinces disrupted, it has been disclosed. It is unlikely they will ever be used now.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

St. John's girls' basketball team came within an ace of pulling the upset of the season last night when they outplayed and outscored the league-leading Transports in the first game of the senior finals at the Y.W.C.A. over most of the route, only to lose out 13 to 12 in the closing moments of play. The Saints were not conceded much of a chance against the high-powered leaders who have gone through the season not only unbeaten but never seriously threatened. Transports have the edge in scoring punch, experience and in reserve strength and throughout the campaign nobody had come even close to beating them—until last night. However St. John's, battling every moment of the game and checking relentlessly disorganised the usually smooth-working Transports, held them to the lowest score they have compiled all year and finally lost out by a margin that was as thin as the ham in a railway sandwich. The Saints tied up most of the Transport scoring aces and would have won the decision if Jessie Morrow had not rescued her team when defeat seemed certain by scoring three quick baskets that changed disaster into triumph. It was the most exciting game of the season. The series is a best-of-three affair and will be continued next Friday night. The intermediate final series game between Y Cadets and Normals was every bit as close with the future teachers just managing to win in the last moments of play by 11 to 10. They lead the best-of-five series two games to one.

The manner in which the demands of the armed services have cut into basketball here once more comes to the front through the announcement of the enlistment of Joe Stewart in the Canadian Navy. The City Basketball League as it existed before and in the early years of the war has been completely denuded of players. Practically all the first rank cagers in the city are in one branch or another of the country's fighting forces. The Outboard Marines who represented Peterborough in the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association intermediate series are, with the signing up of Stewart who was one of the younger members of the squad, almost 100 per cent on active service. Gordie McIntyre, Harry Marsh, Ross Pulkinghorn, Jack Gemmell, Lloyd Grose and Mike Rogow are in the Army; Doug McPherson in the R.C.A.F., and Jimmy Thorburn, Don Sedgewick, Jack Craig and Joe Stewart in the R.C.N.V.R. No other team in the city in any other line of sport so far as we know can equal that record. In addition to these well-known players, scores of other basketball players from the City League and the Collegiate teams are wearing the country's uniforms.

They Want To See It

The announcement that Promoter Frank Tunney has decided to give Vic Holbrook another chance to beat the battering Bob Wagner has been received with satisfaction by Peterborough fans. They didn't like the windup of Tuesday night's bout a little bit. Nobody is sure whether the injury to Holbrook was a sheer accident or was intentional but in either case the result was that the Pacific Coast flash was robbed of a win over the troublesome Wagner just when he had the bout in the bag and the Holbrook marching and voting club—and that includes about all the patrons—were seeing red as they left the Arena. The fact that Promoter Tunney has cancelled earlier plans for Holbrook and instead decided to send him in against Wagner again here next Tuesday night shows that the Toronto impressario who has an uncanny ability of being right about what the public wants has been keeping his ear to the ground. He feels that Peterborough fans would like nothing better than to see Bad Man Wagner who is as tough a hombre as has been seen here given a wrestling lesson by the California stylist and accordingly he has re-matched the men. The Strangler is crabbing a bit about the order but adds that the result will be the same when the two meet again. He claims that Holbrook's flashy style will not stand up against a sustained attack of "old headlock" as he calls his pet hold. Most of the fans declare that it is nothing more than a plain stranglehold. Anyway it should be a bout brimful of action.

A sure sign that the corner around which summer is waiting is not so far away is a bulletin from F. R. Feaver, secretary of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association announcing that the annual meeting of the organization will be held in Guelph on Good Friday, April 7, just a little over a month away. The O.A.S.A. secretary encloses a few comments about the game itself pointing out that softball today draws the greatest player participation in is history and that Canadian boys in the armed forces have introduced it into every clime. "Reports of games played in England, Egypt, Ceylon and India with spectators in the thousands have reached this office," Secretary Feaver states. Other interesting notes are the fact that the Great Lakes Naval Training Station in 1943 operated 2,000 teams in regular competition and that a former O.A.S.A. player Pitcher Louis Jaber of Amherstberg, Ont., pitched the United States Quartermaster Corps to the United States Army championship last year. Incidentally the bulletin winds up with this slogan which we hasten to pass on to the 4th Battery executive: "1944 Objective: Every Ontario Player Registered." We might add—And in time too.

He Kept His Head

Ford Moynes, Lindsay scribe in his sport column "Sport Sage" in the Watchman-Warder has the following interesting reference to a well known Peterborough citizen, Alex Kay: "We had the pleasure of meeting a newcomer to Lindsay in the person of Rev. Fr. Kay, of Peterborough and Kinmount, a young clergyman who has a fine reputation in various circles of sport, including curling, as a member of the Bobcaygeon club. Rev. Fr. Kay's father was a great guy—and is yet. Baseball fans in particular well remember Alex Kay as an umpire par excellent in the day of the old Central Ontario Baseball League. He was keen of eye, quick on his decisions, audible to the entire crowd, fair and impartial and above all else had that requisite so necessary in an umpire or referee, namely, he was always "boss of the job."....We recall one outstanding instance when an important game of ball was being played in Sutton, a town that had an unusually large number of rabid fans. It was quite apparent that this time Umpire Kay had made a mistake, a rather glaring infraction of some rule, as all umpires at times are prone to do. The management of the Sutton nine and several players rushed from the dugout with bats and gloves, much yelling and bursting with verbal abuse. It looked like trouble, but Umpire Kay waved them aside, at the same time yelling: "See page 42 of the rule book, section 6—play ball! Well, by the time someone looked up the page and section (which had nothing to do with the decision) the teams were in the next innings—and the incident was dropped. It was a case of an Umpire using his head to escape an awkward situation."

Here is George Campbell's reaction in the Oshawa Times-Gazette to the one-sided win by the Generals over St. Kitts the other night: "The Generals are out of their slump! However, let's not get all "hepped up" over that 14-3 victory. It merely proved what the Generals can do when they really turn on the heat and, Mister, that's what they did last night. They turned on so much heat that it looks as if some of it must have carried over to the Bassett Block this morning. It was Oshawa all the way last night right from the drop of the hat. However, don't forget although the Generals skated the Falcons silly (Coach Buddy Pilous of St. Kitts admitted that to us, after the game. His remark was: "Your boys were really flying out there tonight") we still must remember that Oshawa had the breaks last night, too. Everything seemed to work right for them. St. Kitts missed rolling pucks, stray passes, overskated pucks in their knots and had many of their breakaway dashes spoiled by offsides. Oshawa had hardly any of those handicaps last night, things just seeming to work their way. For instance—Jackman pulled Batten's shot into the net and the shot was at least two feet over the top, until the goalie tried to catch the puck and deflected it into the net."
